

The Patagonia Museum Mata Ortiz Bus Tour

December 15-17, 2017

Come aboard on Friday, December 15, at 8 am as we depart from Patagonia to Mata Ortiz, Chihuahua, Mexico. Transportation will be provided by South of the Border Tours. We will lodge at Hotel Hacienda in Casas Grandes for 2 nights. We plan to visit the Museo de las Culturas del Norte, view a pottery making demonstration in Mata Ortiz, shop at The Pink Store in Puerto Palomas and visit other sites as time allows. $ 480 (double occupancy-members) per person ($530 nonmembers) covers transportation, meals and lodging. Mata Ortiz is a small village near Casas Grandes well known for reviving the Paquimé pottery. Rebecca Orozco, anthropology and history instructor for Cochise College and the University of Arizona will provide commentary throughout our tour. We return to Patagonia by 5 pm. More information: German Quiroga, 520-343-5641, info@thepatagoniamuseum.org

Our Guides

Rebecca "Becky" Orozco is a third generation resident of the border in Arizona and currently teaches history and anthropology at Cochise College and the University of Arizona. Her master's program focused on the Chiricahua Apache and for several years she acted as a liaison for tribal members and historical groups. Her undergraduate degree in anthropology (1974) and graduate degree in history (1987) are from the University of Arizona. She has traveled widely and lived in Peru, Ecuador and Guatemala where she worked as an archaeologist.

Rosalina "Rose" Quiroga is a retired Registered Nurse. She has traveled extensively and has hosted families from Mata Ortiz in her home in Tucson. She is a long time member of The Patagonia Museum, has volunteered her time to the Flying Sams (volunteer medical professionals who travel to Baja California to provide medical services to the needy) and has served on numerous nonprofit boards in Tucson.
