UNITED STATES WARNS RUSSIA

SOVIETS MUST GUARD PROPERTY AND LIVES, IS AMERICA'S DEMAND.

HUSHES SENDS NOTE

"VIEWS WITH DEEP SYMPATHY PLIGHT OF PEOPLE OF RUSSIA."

WASHINGTON, MARCH 25.—Resumption of trade relations with soviet Russia will depend upon satisfactory assurances that "fundamental exchanges are contemplated involving due regard for the protection of persons and property and the establishment of conditions essential to the maintenance of commerce," Secretary Hughes says in a message sent to the Russian soviet representative at Reval.

The message was in reply to the recent appeal of the soviet government at Moscow that the United States again trade with Russia and that it negotiate with a delegation to be sent to this country for the purpose by the soviet authorities.

The note was transmitted through the American consul at Reval, as the original message from the soviet government was received from the soviet representative there.

"The government of the United States," says the communication, "views with deep sympathy and grave concern the plight of the people of Russia and desires to aid by every appropriate means in promoting proper opportunities through which commerce can be established upon a sound basis."

"It is manifest to this government that in existing circumstances there is no assurance for the development of trade, as the supplies which Russia might now be able to obtain would be wholly inadequate to meet her needs, and no lasting good can result so long as the present causes of progressive impoverishment continue to operate."

It is only in the productivity of Russia that there is any hope for the Russian people, and it is idle to expect resumption of trade until the economic bases of production are securely established.

"Production is conditioned upon the safety of life, the recognition by firm guarantees of private property, the sanctity of contracts, and the rights of free labor. If fundamental changes are contemplated involving due regard for the protection of persons and property and the establishment of conditions essential to the maintenance of commerce, this government will be glad to have convincing evidence of the consummation of such changes, and until this evidence is supplied this government is unable to perceive that there is any proper basis for considering trade relations."

The State Department is known to take the position that there was no occasion at this time to reply specifically to the proposals of the Bolsheviks that a trade delegation be received by the American government.

Sufficient opportunity, it is held, is given in the request of the American government for assurances from the soviet government of a change in heart as affecting their communistic principles and the rights of private property for later consideration of the question of the reception of a soviet delegation.

"Strike Me Dead" Gets Wish. Welch, W. Va.—Two hours after he had expressed the wish that his life be taken if he had made a statement attributed to him by witnesses in a suit over the sale of cattle here, Mark Dillon dropped dead. "I hope God will strike me dead if I made that statement," witnesses said Dillon declared as he left the court room.

Cardinal Gibbons Dead. Baltimore, Md.—James Cardinal Gibbons, archbishop of Baltimore and primate of the American Catholic hierarchy, died after a prolonged illness which mainly affected his heart. He was in his 87th year.

Capture Lone Bandit. Cherokee, Iowa.—A lone bandit who gave the name of Frank Livingston, who held up Harrison Steele, book-keeper in the Steele bank here and got $500 was captured in an abandoned barn into which he ran when a trail of citizens were "hot" upon his trail.

U. S. to Get Bergdoll. Washington.—"We are going to get Bergdoll if it is possible to get him," Secretary Weeks declared in discussing the case of the Philadelphia draft evader now in Germany. "I don't believe we will recognize any statute of limitation in his case if one should exist." Secretary Weeks would not say what steps would be taken to get Bergdoll out of Germany. He refused to discuss the possibility of his extradition by Great Britain for violation of British passport laws.

To Give Soldiers Better Care. Washington.—Confidence of early improvement in facilities for the care of wounded soldiers of the World war was expressed by administration officials as a result of a canvass of the situation made at the direction of President Harding. The subject is understood to have been discussed at the cabinet meeting, where data was submitted showing that 12,000 additional hospital beds would be available for the work in the near future.

Southwest News

From All Over New Mexico and Arizona

The records of County Treasurer Hayne of Grant county, N. M., show that in the month of February over $200,000 of the 1920 taxes were collected, the total of all the fees and taxes turned into the office being $102,870.

Citizens of Alamogordo, N. M., are planning the construction of a public swimming pool. All are enthusiastic over the proposition and it is thought that a pool will be a big asset to the community.

At a special meeting of the Commercial Club of Las Vegas, N. M., decided that the Cowboys' Reunion must be held again this summer if possible. Secretary Root reported that some $3,500 had been raised and that an effort would be made to get more.

W. M. Elliott, foreman for the Diamond A Cattle Company and one of the best known stockmen in the vicinity of Silver City, N. M., is dead at his home from heart failure. He had been a cattle man of Grant county for many years.

The Clovis, N. M., Gun Club, with fifty members in the initial organization, recently held a meeting for the election of officers. Milton Brown being chosen as the new president. A range will be fitted up soon and practice will be started by the team.

Surveyors are now at work on the highway between Colfax and Maxwell, N. M., and the work of grading the road will be started soon. The surfacing will be completed early in the summer, thus making another main highway into Raton.

A cotton gin in Roswell, N. M., to take care of the season's crop is now assured, according to the reports received since a meeting of the farmers which was recently held. Practically all the acreage needed has been secured and the crop will be one of the principal ones of the valley during the coming season.

Senate Bill No. 158, amending the present law relating to the sale of bonds to secure the indebtedness of counties, school districts, cities, towns and other municipal corporations by changing the restriction upon the amount for which such bonds could be sold, was vetoed by Governor Thomas E. Campbell. The measure was passed by the last Legislature.

The farmers of Quay county, N. M., have shipped four car loads of broom corn to the eastern markets, this being the largest shipment of the season. The price paid to the growers was $75 per ton, which means that the crop will bring a neat sum to the farmers of this vicinity and will no doubt mean that the acreage will be greatly increased during the coming season.

Arizona is a big factor in the mining world. This fact is clearly brought out in the list of officers and committees for 1921 for the American Mining Congress. James S. Douglas, prominent mining man of the southern part of the state, is a member of the board of directors, while Norman Carmichael of the Arizona Copper Company in Clifton, is on the committee of state vice presidents.

The Old Dominion Company, one of the oldest producers of copper in Arizona, will discontinue operations. In making this announcement, President Charles S. Smith stated that the company is carrying a large surplus of copper produced at high cost and for which there is no market. Operations will be reduced gradually over a period of several weeks until ore and coke on hand have been exhausted.

The much discussed Arizona industrial commission bill has been signed by the governor. The bill creates an industrial commission of three members, serving terms of two four and six years, each at a salary of $4,000 per year. The commission will appoint its own secretary.

An immediate embargo on imports of wool was suggested by the New Mexico Wool Growers' Association in a message sent to President Harding by President Pringmiller of the association. The decision to send the wire was reached after many wool growers in the state had voiced their opinion that an embargo would be the only chance of saving the wool growing industry from terrific financial damage.

Oral argument before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application of the Arizona railroads for increased rates was postponed from March 23 to April 21, E. R. Baumaker of the Southern Arizona Traffic Association has been notified by letter. The delay was caused by a similar battle in Wisconsin, which has reached such proportions that it may result in being used as a test case and may be a basis in which the Arizona case is settled.

Two new automobiles sales agency buildings containing thirty-three cars, most of them second-hand, were destroyed in a fire at Phoenix. Numerous explosions made the work of the firemen dangerous. Ed Evans, a volunteer fireman, was blown thirty-five feet by one of the explosions and suffered bruises and cuts with possible internal injuries. The buildings which were burned were completed only last fall and were considered among the finest of their kind in the state.

Governor Campbell of Arizona will go to Washington probably about the middle of April. This announcement was made at the executive offices in Phoenix. The governor wishes to be on hand at the opening of Congress. He will attend as a delegate from the Southwest to take up with party leaders the matter of securing irrigation legislation effecting the entire West.

When M. P. Blinn of Los Angeles sent to his garage he did not know his 14-month-old son Nicholas was creeping after him, and backing out his car crushed the child to death.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Meat Strike Rests in Conference of Packers, Union Chiefs and Government Officials.

RAIL BOARD HAS ITS PROBLEM

Congress Plans Early Consideration of Tariff and Tax Matters—Germany an Enigma—Allies' Tariff Experiment Interesting—Dim Outlook of Peace in Ireland.

By E. F. CLIPSON. Hopes for a settlement without strike of the labor difficulties existing in the meat-packing industry, lodge in the mediation-arbitration efforts of the United States government. Secretary of Labor Davis, although new to his position, has been brought quickly into a realization of its responsibilities. In order that he may get off on the proper foot and show the people that he is the right man in the right place, he is neglecting no effort to bring about an adjustment of the trouble which threatens one of the most important items of the nation's good supply.

Although the result of the strike ballot leaves no doubt that the employees are in a mood to attempt a complete tieup and gives their representatives a powerful weapon in the mediation conference at Washington, there is a distinctly optimistic phase in the willingness shown by both sides to take part in that conference. It indicates a desire for a reasonable adjustment, and the fact that the proceeding is occurring under such important government auspices, warrants assumption that it will be more readily productive of results than if left simply to negotiations between the packers and their employees. In the latter event, with both sides thoroughly stiff-necked, a strike would be the logical outcome. The affair has great portent as showing how the present administration proposes to deal with the larger phases of capital and labor strife, particularly as relating to the cost of living and the return to normal conditions.

An important development of the controversy pointing to possible methods of eliminating similar difficulties in the future, is the announced offer of some of the larger packers to democratize their plants. The proposal is to give employees a voice in labor conditions by separating the plants into general divisions covering the principal products, matters of production and mechanical departments, each division to be subdivided into voting precincts of about 300 employees. The employees are to elect delegates to a divisional council which shall in turn choose delegates to a general plant conference board, while the company names an equal number of delegates to both board and council.

It is proposed that the board shall make recommendations on employment, wages, working conditions, safety, sanitation, recreation, transportation and other matters of mutual interest. These recommendations when concurred in by a majority of the board are to be regarded as decisions binding on plants affected. In the case of a tie, the matter may go to arbitration. Union labor officials denounce the plan as one intended to deceive the employees, disrupt the unions and substitute a shop union controlled by the companies.

The government railroad labor board has a problem in considering the great mass of data and in adjusting present difficulties, and others sure to arise in the near future, between the railroads and their employees over announced reductions in wages. Shippers and organizations representing the public are demanding a voice in the hearings. The big question is similar to the one agitating the packing industry, although no immediate strike is threatened. The earning sheets of the railroads show that they need more revenue. There is pronounced opposition to obtaining it by an increase in freight rates, as much of the current business depression and low rail earnings is said to be due to high freight tariffs which discourage shipments.

Railroad officials contend that relief should start with lower pay rolls. Naturally, the employees cannot see it. Union officials claim that the railroads are purposely loading up the railroad labor board with complaints and cases so that there will be a long delay in adjudicating the present question, while in the meantime the roads get the benefits of the wage reductions ordered. The whole thing is so acute and at the same time so involved, that it is very likely to be a subject of congressional action at an early date.

President Harding has announced that he will call the sixty-seventh congress into extraordinary session April 11. The tariff and tax programs have not been definitely mapped out, although the statement is made from authoritative sources that the President approves the proposal of Republican congressional leaders to pass a bill preventing the dumping of cheap foreign goods in the United States. A feature of this legislation will be a section of a special bill placing the valuation of imports on a domestic instead of a foreign basis.

Any tariff legislation is almost certain to be of a preliminary nature as the vast number of schedules to be dealt with in a permanent bill will require many weeks' consideration—probably into the middle of the summer. One of the talked about features of the preliminary bill is an emergency tariff on agricultural products. The administration has not been authoritatively committed to this provision although it has strong support in influential Republican circles.

In response to the demands of business, tax legislation will come up for consideration; immediately after, if not before, the temporary tariff bill. Secretary of Commerce Hoover has started out on the program of accomplishment, the "do-things" plan, which his friends predicted he would inaugurate. One of the first problems he has tackled is that of broadening the possibilities of American manufacturers in foreign countries, a necessity if Uncle Sam's ships are to be kept in employment. Mr. Hoover has been meeting with the directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, an affiliation of chambers of commerce and boards of trade all over the country, with a view to closer cooperation between his department and the various trade and commerce organizations. Also, it is the intention of the secretary to create an advisory committee for each of ten or twelve chief groups of industries. It will be the purpose of each committee to form a direct connection between the particular industries and the foreign agents of the Department of Commerce.

Beyond the fact that Bavaria has defied the allied powers in refusing to disband its civilian military organizations and that the Berlin reichstag has tabled the order designed to coerce Bavaria, there has been little change in the German situation. The action of the Bavarian leaders and the reichstag was taken despite reports that France intends to occupy Frankfurt and possibly other important cities if refusal to comply with the order persists.

The whole German attitude to the unfinished terms of the Versailles treaty, the reparations program and the allied occupation is that, "we are damned if we comply and damned if we don't." The difficulties of either course are so pronounced that the leaders are in a quandary and probably disposed to let the questions solve themselves along present lines of allied action. In the inability of the German government to map out a clear course, its leaders seem inclined to accept conditions as they are and assume an attitude of martyrdom, while they make feeble protests to the League of Nations and continue propaganda in the hope of affecting other countries to the point of exercising pressure for relief.

If the German government has no other plan in the back of its head and as the entire matter is largely one of economics, it will be solved by an unusual economic method—the application of tariff principles to war problems—not an entirely new method, but one which never before has been applied on such an extensive scale. The spectacle then arises of victors making a forcible but otherwise peaceful occupation of a conquered nation, exercising a supervision over its trade and industries, and collecting in the form of duties—sanctions in the diplomatic word used to cover the ramifications of the transaction—the reparations demanded.

It will be interesting to watch the methods by which the allies shall prevent German goods escaping the tariff embargo through the nearby neutral nations. Already a modified blockade has been suggested, along with an occupation of all the land borders, extending inward if resistance develops, of Germany. To this end comes an intimation, probably most skillfully steered from Paris, that Poland is ready to invade Germany at a moment's notice. The allied Rhineland high commission has in effect recommended to the council of the allied nations that tariff schedules shall not be imposed which will crush the industries of the Rhineland territory, but shall have a punitive effect upon Germany.

The plebiscite in Upper Silesia is expected to affect the situation. If Germany loses that rich territory she will be in position to claim still farther her inability to meet the reparations. If the election throws the country to Germany her economic position will be improved. In either event an excuse will be presented for further negotiations.

Russia's revolution seems to have been checked temporarily at least, with the evacuation of Kronstadt, restoration of a more or less orderly condition in Moscow and the removal of the immediate menace to Petrograd. The operations of the revolutionaries around the latter place were doomed to failure when they failed to take the stronger defenses of the city such as fortress Krasnaya Gorka.

The Red government has been successful, but its weakened hold is seen in the fact that the revolution movement started among the soldiers and sailors, the forces which made the establishment of the government possible and heretofore have been its strongest adherents.

As indicative of the seriousness with which the government is menaced, and its desire to placate other nations is the ratification of peace with Poland and signing of the long discussed trade agreement with Great Britain. The Russians had been reported as massing heavy forces opposite the Polish frontier and making strong threats of a spring offensive. But now they want peace. In the negotiations with Great Britain which have been long drawn out and the subject of arbitrary appearance at least, on the part of the soviet authorities, they have capitulated in several respects, the most important being an agreement to cease all propaganda in other countries. Great Britain agrees on her part not to mix in Russian internal affairs.

St. Patrick's day did not usher in the much discussed truce or even important negotiations for peace in Ireland. That such negotiations are not brewing and probable, cannot be stated so positively. Undoubtedly strong agencies are working toward the opening of negotiations. In view of the determined stand of the British government and the equally strong attitude of the Sinn Fein, some change in conditions must present itself before either side feels like altering its position. Lloyd George is reported to favor postponing action on peace until after the elections of the new Irish parliaments, believing that they will result in a new Dail Eireann with which he would be willing to negotiate a truce. Meanwhile the state of affairs in the unhappy country continues very bad with the daily toll of murders, executions and disturbances large and grievous.

HOLDS TWO LEGION OFFICES

Winchester, Va., Man is State Historian as Well as Chairman of Americanism Commission.

B. M. Roszel of Winchester, Va., has been entrusted with two offices by the Virginia department of the American Legion. He is state historian as well as chairman of the Department's Americanism Commission. He also serves as historian of his post.

Born in Baltimore, Md., Mr. Roszel was educated in the schools of his state and received the A. B. and Ph. D. degrees from Johns Hopkins University. Afterwards he was a fellow in astronomy and an instructor in mathematics in that institution, and later a teacher of physics, mathematics and chemistry in the Washington high school system, Washington, D. C. From 1903 to 1908 Mr. Roszel was head master of the Sewanee Grammar School, in charge of the preparatory department of the University of the South. Since 1908 he has been superintendent of the Shenandoah Valley Academy, a military school at Winchester, Va.

Mr. Roszel served eighteen months in this country and overseas in the Army and was discharged a major. He has since accepted a similar commission in the Reserve Corps.

TRAVEL PICTURES FOR POSTS

Films Embrace One Thousand Topics, for Use of All Legion Organizations.

By arrangement between the American Legion and the bureau of commercial economics, the most complete and valuable collection of educational and travel motion picture films in existence will be placed at the disposal of the Legion for free exhibition under the auspices of all posts. The films, which embrace 1,000 separate topics, are the property of the bureau, an altruistic institution the sole aim of which is to advance education and pride in American institutions.

At the instance of national headquarters, the bureau has prepared a special catalogue in which each film is numbered and described. A copy of this catalogue will become the property of each Legion post. The only expense attached to posts ordering the films will be the payment of express charges to and from the nearest distributing center of the bureau. No admission fee may be charged by the post.

A distributing center for the films will be established in almost every state. Responsibility for the transmission of the catalogues and the information concerning the location of distributing centers to which each post must apply for films, rests with the state departments.

The story of the establishment of the bureau of commercial economics is that of a fulfillment of a vow which a blind man took years ago, should his sight be restored. Dr. Francis Holley, the founder and director of the bureau, vowed to work for the betterment of mankind when he recovered his sight, and the bureau is the result.

LEGION IS HIS MIDDLE NAME

Adjutant and American Director of Chicago Post First to Name Himself After Organization.

"Every American ought to have an American name," said Jacob Telowitz, adjutant and Americanism director of Walter S. Pogue Post No. 161 of the American Legion at Chicago, at a post meeting.

"To prove that I stand up for my convictions, I have changed my name to Jacob Legion Tenny."

Tenny said that there should be a law establishing an American standard of nomenclature and that, in the meantime, it is up to members of the American Legion to set the fashion.

"Telowitz is a grand old name, but Tenny will be easier to pronounce," said Tenny. "I'm retaining my first name, Jacob, of course, but I'm adding Legion as a brand new middle name. So far as I know, I'm the first man who has named himself after the American Legion. There couldn't be any better name for a he-man son of an American service man than Legion."

Tenny enlisted with the first contingent of eighteen men from the West side of Chicago and served overseas. He is a lawyer and at the last primary election was a Democratic candidate for municipal judge.

LEGION HIKERS ARE GREETED

Two California Ex-service Men Report Cordial Treatment by Posts of the Southwest.

The hospitality of the Southwest is reflected in its American Legion posts, according to Van W. Bishop and C. G. Allison, California Legionnaires who are well on their way on a little walk from Los Angeles, Cal., to Mexico City, Mexico, a distance of more than 1,500 miles. Bishop belongs to Los Angeles Post No. 8, and Allison to Irwin Post No. 93 of San Francisco.

Wary with tramping the dusty kilometers and burdened with packs and other impedimenta, the marchers found rest at a number of Legion posts along the way, according to a letter received from them by the adjutant of the Los Angeles post.

"The posts of the American Legion in the towns where we have stopped have treated us royally. Legion members at Tuma, Ariz., started the good things for us. Then Tucson post fixed us up for two days in a room fitted with bunks for the accommodation of a few fellows who come in and want a place to stay.

"Our next stop was at Bisbee for three days. They have a regular home with several rooms and a sleeping porch. A number of the fellows make their home at the club. We arrived in time to attend the funeral of one of the boys brought back from 'over there.' Now, we are at Douglas, where Legion post officers obtained quarters for us. Our plan is to enter Mexico at El Paso or Laredo, Tex."

QUEEN OF LEGION CARNIVAL

Faribault, Minn., Young Woman Honored in Connection With Celebration to Raise Funds.

Miss Thille Olsen is not posing for a motion picture of fental days. She has merely assumed her position as Queen of the Carnival, which the Faribault, Minn., Post of the American Legion staged in that city to raise money for carrying on various post activities.

HALF-HUNDRED LEGION POSTS

Seventeen Foreign Countries and Three Territorial Possessions of Four Continents Represented.

Fifty-one American Legion posts are scattered about the face of the globe outside the continental limits of the United States, according to national headquarters of the ex-service men's organization. Seventeen foreign countries and three territorial possessions of four continents are represented.

The list of territorial posts follows: Anchorage, Valdez, Ketchikan, Juneau, Seward, Wrangell, Port Liscum, Cordova, Nome, Haines, Fairbanks, Sitka, and Petersburg, all in Alaska; Honolulu, Kealia, Hilo, Kapaau, Waiolu, Schofield Barracks, Fort Kamehameha and Kahului, in Hawaii, and Manila, Cuartel de Espana, Cavite, Fort William McKinley and Corregidor, in the Philippines.

Foreign posts have been formed at Buenos Aires, Argentina; Brussels, Belgium; Rio de Janeiro, Brazil; Montreal, Canada; Caguaciguita, Chile; Shanghai and Peking, China; Havana, Cuba; London, England; Guatemala City, Guatemala; Paris, La Rochelle and Giverny, France; Coblenz, Germany; Tokyo, Yokohama and Kobe, Japan; Mexico City and Tampico, Mexico; Carro de Pasco, Peru; Balboa, Cristobal and Gatun, Panama; Warsaw, Poland, and Santo Domingo, Santo Domingo.

A. E. F. Play Library.

An A. E. F. play library has been opened for the use of posts of the American Legion, which produce plays for home talent production. The musical comedy, "Sittin' Pretty" is one of the featured plays now offered to posts. It tells the story of a doughboy who poses as a girl welfare worker in France, saves a party of A. W. O. L. soldiers from court martial, chaperones two charming daughters of a French nobleman, and saves the boys from drowning in the River Cognac. The address of the bureau is A. E. F. Library, 65 West Fortieth street, New York City.

Legion Man is Legislator.

Robert J. Boyd, twenty-five years old, a member of Gilbert C. Grafton Post No. 2 of the American Legion in Fargo, N. D., is the youngest member of the North Dakota house of representatives. He was elected by a large majority at the last election. Mr. Boyd is a former president of the Fargo Trades and Labor assembly, and is one of the active members of the Pressmen's Union at Fargo. It is expected that he will introduce several bills advantageous to organized labor.

COLT NEGLECTED IN SPRING

No One Considers That He Should Be Gradually Changed Over From Dry Winter Ration.

Consider the colt in the springtime! Maybe he is a yearling with a half-formed equine mind full of curiosity and wonderment. Every old horse on the place is off in the fields somewhere at work in daylight. His owner neglects the colt as much as he can and have the youngster live.

The half remembered green fields and pastures of last year become green once more. The colt has vague memories of the taste of green things that mingled on his taste-nerves with the flavor of mother's milk. From between the cracks in the post-and-plank fence that incloses his world he looks upon the springing grass, marvels and hungers. Part of his hunger is plain hunger, part is memory, and most of it is instinct, but it is all very real.

He is a lonely little hider of instincts and cravings about to start his second year. He is a bewildered orphan of the farm stalls and stables, accustomed to his corn and alfalfa, and with all the troubles of horsehood a life before him. About half the time no one considers that he should be gradually changed over from the dry-winter ration to the soft green summer ration, and when the change comes it comes so quickly that there is not a day's time for that young horse's stomach to get used to it.

For long weeks the plow teams have been getting ready for the change. If they could not sense the spring in the air, in any other way they might know it from the gradually increasing amount of corn that is going in the feed boxes. They are being worked a little more and a little steeper than they were while January's snows still covered the pastures. The colt, though, goes his neglected way until some day after the oats are in and every plow moldboard on the place is like burshided silver, then all at once some one decides it is high time that the colt was on the pasture.

On the pasture he goes. It may be just enough of a pasture to keep life within his hide, but he must get along with an occasional salting on sunny Sunday mornings. The grass may be thin and watery, tasteless compared with that good alfalfa he has been getting all winter long, but if he gets thin and hard-bellied, then that may be the colt's fault and not because he is not getting enough to eat. Is he not on a pasture and is not a pasture supposed to be the very place for colts?

Of course, it stands to reason that the change from the warm stable and the regular corn and alfalfa to the open pasture and the yellow-green, thin, spring grass should be a gradual one. Still, no one is supposed to use a great deal of reason in dealing with a boy, a pup or a colt.

TO ESTABLISH SHEEP FLOCK

Farmers Should Not Hesitate to Pay Good Price for Ewes That Produce Thrifty Lambs.

In establishing a flock of sheep do not hesitate to pay a good price for ewes if they are exactly adapted, and especially for those that, when judiciously mated, are likely to produce lambs that will give the best return for the food which they consume. It is of the utmost importance to make use of rams that possess great individual merit, and strongly inherit the good points by which they are distinguished. Unless a ram has a good masculine head and stands firmly on strong legs he should not be selected, however great his merits may be in other respects. Breeding ewes should be kept in good store condition. Show condition and low condition both must be avoided.

BEST TIME TO TRAIN COLTS

Mistake Not to Halt Foals and Teach Them to Lead During Infancy—Means Less Trouble.

It is a mistake not to halt foals and teach them to lead during infancy, when it can be done with less trouble than at any other time. A few minutes two or three times a week is sufficient, as they should be by no means pulled about so as to make them perspire, as there is then a risk of their taking cold. As well as the halter lessons the youngster should be taught to eat dry food, which he will soon do if it is held to him or if allowed to eat from the manger with his dam.

Increase in Farms.

During the past ten years the number of farms in the United States has increased only 1.372 per cent. Nebraska and Iowa both show decreases.

No Place for Scrubs. There just doesn't seem to be any place in this efficiency-demanding age for the scrub hen, cow, trees or folks!

Best Fields By-Product.

Beet tops raised this year in the United States, will be an equivalent of 800,000 tons of alfalfa.

Bright Youth. The clergyman was examining the infants' class. Suddenly a bright idea flashed across his brain. He had found a puser.

"And now, my dear children," he said, rubbing his hands and beaming with wicked pleasure, "can any of you tell me how many blue beans make five?"

There was a long and deathly silence, broken finally by a piping voice from the back bench: "Please, sir, I could tell you if the beans weren't blue."

GETTING WORK FOR VETERANS

American Legion Successful in Its Efforts to Connect Ex-Soldiers With Needed Jobs.

New York.—There were 400,000 veterans of the World war out of work in the United States on March 1 last, according to an estimate received by the American Legion. This is a reduction of about 100,000 from the "peak" of more than 500,000 jobless ex-service men in the country shortly after January 1 last, and the Legion reports state there is promise of further improvement.

The survey of the national situation on which these figures are based was made by the American Legion Weekly, official publication of the Legion, which states that the unemployment situation, as affecting the veterans, "appears to have taken a turn for the better."

A chain of employment agencies operated by the Legion in every state has done much to relieve the situation, say the Legion officials. The Legion has been instrumental in obtaining work for veterans, in discouraging the migration of unemployed men toward the great industrial centers and has encouraged a movement from cities to the farms. It has demanded that workers who left their positions to go to war should enjoy seniority rights on a par with those of military age who stayed at home.

Nearly a year is required for the returned veteran to get back to his old stride in industry.

ADVERTISEMENTS
The average person reads the home paper these days as much for the store news as he does for any other, and no doubt he finds such news profitable to him. In this modern age the merchants and business firms tell the public through the columns of their local paper when they have anything worth while or of interest to the buying public; and on the other hand, the buying public has a right to feel that the business man or merchant who does not have anything to advertise has but little to sell—Will's Point Chronicle.

Not to read the advertisements in the paper is to be loser. There is much that is interesting in the advertisements in addition to the opportunities they offer to buy necessary things with more information than might otherwise be had. Advertisements stimulate business for the advertiser because they remind the possible customer of his needs—or her needs, to be more specific. Stimulated sales mean stimulated production, and stimulated production means stimulated pay rolls. We could all get along by wearing overalls and shirts only, speaking of the gentlemen, and skirts and blouses only, speaking of the ladies. But to dress meagerly would mean to manufacture meagerly, to farm meagerly, to buy and sell meagerly. Economy consists of the purchase of needed things without extravagance as to price. Advertisements afford guidance in this matter. However, it is scarcely necessary to admonish people to read advertisements. Everybody does read advertisements, everybody who reads at all. And even those who cannot read can look at the pictures. Advertising is as much a force in modern business as railroads and telegraphs. The non-advertiser must depend upon large profits from slow sales, for he can expect only the drop in trade, of which there is always some, but never enough to pay adequate returns on the time which is invested in waiting for it.

St. Louis says that Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent shan't be sold on the streets of St. Louis. St. Louis claims that circulation of the publication is a violation of the defamation and criminal libel statute, or if it isn't it ought to be; and besides, it is against the city ordinance forbidding a disturbance of the peace; but even if that isn't so, it makes the Jews mad, and so it can't be sold in the public thoroughfares. The Independent has undoubtedly aroused the resentment of the Jews, but there is ground for the feeling that this does more credit to their loyalty to their race than to their sense of humor. Mr. Ford's charge that the Jews and the Masonic Order have combined to rule the world with autocracy or ruin it with Bolshevism is scarcely to be taken seriously, even by the most serious-minded of men. Henry Ford is now said to be the richest man in the United States with the one exception of John D. Rockefeller. But with all his talent for acquiring great wealth, Henry Ford some times and in some things acts like a fit subject for the insane asylum. Some of his critics go so far as to say that Mr. Ford can make more kinds of a fool of himself than any other man in the country. But maybe so Henry gets a lot of enjoyment out of his seemingly foolish acts.

There are two little words, simple enough in themselves, that introduce untold trouble in the world and responsible for more gossip, scandal and harm than any two words in the English language. These two words are nothing more than, "They say." They have done more to ruin the reputations than all other things. If you never quote what "they say" you may be quite certain you are not a gossip. A few years ago one of the strongest national banks in Ft. Worth, Texas, was whispered out of business. The knockers began to whisper around town that this bank was not any too safe, the whisperings spread, depositors began slowly at first, withdrawing their balances, and finally a wild run was made and the bank went to the wall. Before these whisperers began to spread their poison the bank was perfectly solvent, and who knows but what the recent bank failures in Phoenix and other Arizona towns were the result of whisperings? There are gossips everywhere, but the percentage in Patagonia is less than most towns of its size, and because of the fact we should all be mighty thankful.

As a remedy for sleeping sickness they might try the Cimex lectularius. We used to call them bed bugs, though.

One of the strangest things in this world is why some men are afraid of germs in water and not afraid of the devil in booze.

One reason why grandpa never grumbled at the cost of living was because he didn't have to spend his molasses money for gasoline.

Others can choose for themselves, but if we are ever tried by a jury containing a lady we are going to try to vamp her.

A Texas widow says the reason she broke her last engagement was because her fiance was named Bee and she was afraid they would swarm.

Talk about not taking any chances on a cinch—there's the Georgia woman who brought suit for divorce while her husband was under sentence to hang.

An Oklahoma newspaper carries the following timely warning above the name of an apparently substantial citizen:

NOTICE—My wife and I have divided our possessions. My wife gets all of the real estate and personal property and I got to pay $1.00 per day board, and sleep in the smoke house. On and after this date each one of us pays our own bills.

Our position simply is that it is better to make a living by working than a fortune by worrying.

A gentleman living not a thousand miles from Patagonia says the reason he thinks his new neighbor is a Socialist is because he has nothing and wants to divide it.

Gossip Is Rife In Political Circles On Appointments

PHOENIX, Mar. 26.—With the return from Washington of Andrew Baumert, state republican chairman, gossip as to probable federal appointments in Arizona was renewed at the statehouse today. Mr. Baumert, of course, is saying nothing. Nevertheless the talk on "possibilities" goes on.

Those who profess to know what is stirring in republican circles—inside circles, if you know—declare that for the position of United States marshal for Arizona, there are a handful of candidates. Among them are Wes Hill of Phoenix, former proprietor of the Apache Trail stage line, soldier and general "good sport." Then there is Hugh Daggs of Flagstaff. The Daggs family is not entirely unknown in republican state politics—also in Phoenix. Ed Stephens, secretary to the livestock sanitary board, is also in the running for the appointment. Geo. B. Wilcox of Lowell and Dick Prantz of Clifton are also mentioned for the post. On the whole, the office of U. S. marshal will not go begging for applicants.

For the office of internal revenue collector, Mr. Baumert and Frank Stuart of Phoenix appear to be the only ones named as "among those present." As for Mr. Stuart—well, he is known as the "original Harding man" in Arizona. He is a personal friend of President Harding and if he would be satisfied with the internal revenue job at Phoenix there is little doubt but that he would get it. But for a personal friend of the president—why should he be satisfied with such a post? And "Andy" Baumert—well, "Andy" is something of a big frog in the state republican organization. So there you are.

For the Phoenix postmaster's job, the name of Oscar Ruggles is mentioned. Just mentioned. For United States attorney, "Jimmy" Dunsenath of Tucson seems to be something in the way of a sure shot, according to the gossip. Tom Maddock, state engineer, is discussed as a candidate for the position of surveyor general of the Arizona district. The popular Ned Creighton of Phoenix is connected with the talk as to who will be the receiver at the land office for Arizona.

For port collector at Nogales, the local republican politicians have taken a long-distance squint through the political crystal and now proclaim that C. L. Fowler of Nogales is leading the field. Just who the stringers-along are, the crystal gazers did not say.

Getting into the more dim future, the prognosticators took up the matter of the judgeship for the new federal court district that is created. E. S. Clark, defeated candidate for U. S. senator, against Sen. Cameron, is named as a possibility. Also Robert E. Morrison seems to be a contender.

These tales of probable political fortunes are, of course, just tales. As yet most of them are in the nebular form: As a matter of fact, much will depend upon what Sen. Cameron has to say. It is understood that the President will leave the matter of federal appointments in the several states to the republican senators from such states.

PHOENIX, Mar. 26.—An effort is being made to pool the entire deposits of state moneys in the Central Bank of Phoenix, which failed to open for business last Monday.

The proposition, it is said, has struck a snag in that some departments which had deposits in the closed bank are reluctant to enter into the pool. It was proposed to pool the deposits in order that through the state treasurer's office the entire sum might be handled at one stroke, when the time came for final settlement both with the bank and with the surety and bond companies who stand as insuring the state deposits.

The hitch in the plan developed when it became known that there are departments of the state which hold securities of doubtful value and some even which hold no securities at all in support of deposits they had with the defunct bank. Those departments which hold good negotiable securities are reluctant to pool these securities with the questionable securities and as in support of deposits for which there appear to be no securities at all.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—In an informal statement, Senator Ralph Cameron of Arizona, characterized as a sheer unadulterated blackmail suit, the action filed against him by Edward R. McFarlin of New York, asking the sum of $100,000 damages for the alienation of his wife's affections.

Papers in the case, Senator Cameron said, were first filed in 1916 and said that no effort had been made to serve the documents upon him, until last week.

Now, that I have become United States senator, his statement said, those behind this ridiculous suit, evidently decided to attack me in the hope of injuring me by giving wide-spread publicity to the absurd charges.

I am prepared to fight this suit with both fists, fearlessly and in the open.

His statement, said that Senator Cameron first met Mrs. McFarlin on an observation platform of the train between Chicago and San Francisco in 1912, this being before her marriage and that he met her twice since and her husband, once.

GOV. CAMPBELL HAS CHAT WITH WILLIS WOODS

PHOENIX, Mar. 29—Life below the Mexican border is too strenuous for a jail-bird, if you accept the verdict of Willis Woods, a life term at the state penitentiary who escaped from the Florence prison about the first of the year. Mr. Woods confided his sentiments about life in Mexico to Gov. Campbell out on the desert on the road to Phoenix last Sunday.

The governor was returning to Phoenix from his visit to the Fort Grant industrial school, when his party overtook a car containing prison authorities with Woods in their custody. The prison car had halted because of tire trouble. Woods, who had been picked up near the border and was being brought back to the state prison, was seated on the running board of the car more or less encumbered by leg irons and handcuffs.

The governor recognized him as one of the "life sentence" men from the prison and genially inquired of him, "Well, Woods, are you going back home?"

"Uh-huh, I guess I am," the prisoner replied.

"Been down below the border?" suggested the governor.

"Yes, sir."

"How did you find things down there?"

"Well, believe me, governor, it's no place for a jail-bird," Woods replied. "I was on the jump and had to be on the run so much that I finally decided that it would be easier to come back across the border and 'turn in.'"

At one time Woods was considered a very valuable man as a "trustee" in the prison kitchen.

DEFUNCT BANKS MAY OPEN AGAIN

PHOENIX, Mar. 26—There is every probability that the Citizens State Bank of Phoenix and the Exchange Bank of Peoria will reopen their doors for business in the very near future.

This announcement was made today by Charles W. Fairfield, state auditor. The statement comes following some strenuous work put in on the books of the banks by Mr. Fairfield and his men. The arrangements for reopening will be made, it is said, under the direction of the state auditor and the depositors, the latter agreeing to contribute financially toward making the resumption of business possible.

Summerton Bank Fails to Open Doors

PHOENIX, March 28.—Coincident with the failure of the Summerton State Bank to open its doors this morning, the body of the bank cashier was found in one of the rooms in the rear of the bank, according to advices from Summerton. The bank is one of two at Summerton and according to the December statement had deposits totalling about $130,000. The weak conditions of the bank was the subject of persistent and innumerable rumors during the week.

TAX COMMISSION PROCURES DATA ON BACA FLOAT

After a thorough examination regarding the taxes of the Baca Float, the members of the Arizona Tax commission, consisting of Charles R. Howe, chairman, Ed. Hughes and Frank Luke, have taken the matter under advisement and will report within a few weeks.

This morning the members of the commission, who have been here for the past two days, departed for Tombstone, County Assessor Wager accompanying the members of the commission.

At Tombstone the assessors of Cochise and Pima counties will meet with Assessor Wager of Santa Cruz county and the members of the tax commission regarding the assessment of range land.

It was stated by the members of the commission that the conference at Tombstone will be an important one. Many tax matters that have been held in abeyance will be definitely settled.

FINANCIAL ATMOSPHERE IS CLARIFIED

PHOENIX, Mar. 30—With the financial atmosphere clarified by recent events, attention is now being centered upon re-organization plans being pushed by depositors in two of the local banks which failed recently.

Following meetings of depositors' committees of both the Citizens' State and the Exchange Bank of Peoria belief is growing that these banks will be doing business again within the near future.

The affairs of the Central Bank of Phoenix, the first one to collapse, have not been completely canvassed by the state bank examiners. But from what knowledge that has already been gained, all hope of avoiding a receivership for this bank has been abandoned. The examiners are expected to make their report within the next few days. The procedure then will be for the governor and the attorney general to canvass the report and throw the matter into the courts. Following this, the court will appoint a receiver to take over and adjust the affairs of the bank.

FRESH MONEY IS RECEIVED BY ROAD DEPT

PHOENIX, Mar. 29—The state highway fund was augmented today by the receipt of a check for $11,000 from the federal government as part of the federal aid fund owing the state by the government. The check, as is very ably pointed out by the highway department, represents real money brought into the state at a time when so-called real money is very acceptable.

The highway department is entertaining reasonable hope of meeting all its outstanding bills within the next 30 days. This is to be done with funds available and in immediate prospect, from both the federal aid money and from the omnibus roads bill passed by the recent legislature. From the latter source the department already has the sum of $200,000 at its disposal.

Commercial Men Come to Rescue of Bank

PHOENIX, March 28.—Following an enthusiastic meeting of the majority of the stockholders of the Exchange Bank of Peoria, which closed its doors last Wednesday, it is announced that the bank will reopen its doors about the latter part of next week.

This move has been made possible by the hearty cooperation of not only the depositors themselves but also the business interests of the town. The plan is to have the present depositors leave their present deposits on the books of the bank for at least a year and resume relations with the bank as though no untoward incident had intervened. Added to this business men of the town volunteered to put into the bank $10,000 to be left as time deposits for at least a year.

At a mass meeting to be held within the next day or two it is expected that an additional $15,000 will be raised further to secure the soundness of the bank.

FINANCIAL CONDITION NORMAL
PHOENIX, Mar. 26—The banking situation in Phoenix has returned to normal, according to J. H. McClung, head of the Phoenix clearing house association. As a matter of fact no startling incident developed on Thursday, when it was thought possible that a run on the banks might develop. Following a giant mass meeting of Phoenix business men and women Wednesday night, the city was stormed by an army of loyal supporters of sane and conservative thinking and action. In the face of this demonstration of confidence the run on the banks did not materialize.

CHAPTER XVIII—Continued.

"Oh, my love!" he cried happily. "I had not dared dream of such happiness until today. You were so unattainable—the obstacles between us were so many and so great—"

"Why today, Bryce?" she interrupted him.

He took her adorable little nose in his great thumb and forefinger and tweaked it gently. "The light began to dawn yesterday, my dear little enemy, following an interesting half-hour which I put in with his honor the mayor. Acting upon suspicion only, I told Poundstone I was prepared to send him to the rock pile if he didn't behave himself in the matter of my permanent franchise for the N. C. O.—and the old oily invertebrate wept and promised me anything if I wouldn't disgrace him. So I promised I wouldn't do anything until the franchise matter should be definitely settled—after which I returned to my office, to find awaiting me there, no less a person than the right-of-way man for the Northwestern Pacific. He was a perfectly delightful young fellow, and he had a proposition to unfold. It seems the Northwestern Pacific has decided to build us from Willits, and all that prospectus and publicity of Buck Ogilvy's about the N. C. O. was in all probability the very thing that spurred them to action. They figured the C. M. & St. P. was back of the N. C. O.—that it was to be the first link in a chain of coast roads to be connected ultimately with the terminus of the C. M. & St. P. on Gray's Harbor, Washington. And if the N. C. O. should be built it meant that a rival road would get the edge on them in the matter of every stick of Humboldt and Del Norte redwood—and they'd be left holding the sack."

"Why did they think that, dear?"

"That amazing rascal, Buck Ogilvy, used to be a C. M. & St. P. man; they thought they traced an analogy, I dare say. Perhaps Buck fibbed to them. At any rate this right-of-way man was mighty anxious to know whether or not the N. C. O. had purchased from the Cardigan Redwood Lumber company a site for a terminus on tide-water (we control all the deep-water frontage on the bay), and when I told him the deal had not yet been closed he started to close one with me."

"Did you close?"

"My dear girl, will a duck swim? Of course I closed. I sold three-quarters of all we had, for three-quarters of a million dollars, and an hour ago I received a wire from my attorney in San Francisco informing me that the money had been deposited to escrow there awaiting formal deed. That money puts the Cardigan Redwood Lumber company in the clear—no receivership for us now, my dear one. And I'm going right ahead with the building of the N. C. O.—while our holdings down on the San Hedrin claim in value for the reason that while three years they will be accessible and can be logged over the rails of the Northwestern Pacific!"

"Bryce," Shirley declared, "haven't I always told you I'd never permit you to build the N. C. O.?"

"Of course," he replied, "but surely you're going to withdraw your objections now."

"I am not. You must choose between the N. C. O. and me." And she met his surprised gaze unflinchingly. "Shirley! You don't mean it?"

built the N. C. O.—because I'm going to—oh, dear, I shall die laughing at you—because I'm going to merge with the Cardigan Redwood Lumber company, and then my railroad shall be your railroad, and we'll extend it and haul Gregory's logs to tide-water for him also. And—silly, didn't I tell you you'd never build the N. C. O.?"

"God bless my mildewed soul!" he murmured, and drew her to him.

In the gathering dusk they walked down the trail. Beside the madrone tree John Cardigan waited patiently.

"Well," he queried when they joined him, "did you find my handkerchief for me, son?"

"I didn't find your handkerchief, John Cardigan," Bryce answered, "but I did find what I suspect you sent me back for—and that is a perfectly wonderful daughter-in-law for you!"

John Cardigan smiled and held out his arms for her. "This," he said, "is the happiest day that I have known since my boy was born."

CHAPTER XIX.

Col. Seth Pennington was thoroughly crushed. Look which way he found the bedeviled old rascal could find no loophole for escape.

"You win, Cardigan," he muttered desperately as he sat in his office after Shirley had left him. "You've had more than a shade in every round thus far, and at the finish you've landed a clean knockout. If I had to fight any man but you—"

He sighed resignedly and pressed the push-button on his desk. Sexton entered. "Sexton," he said bluntly and with a slight quiver in his voice, "my niece and I have had a disagreement. We have quarreled over young Cardigan. She's going to marry him. Now, our affairs are somewhat involved, and in order to straighten them out we spin a coin to see whether she should sell her stock in Laguna Grande to me or whether I should sell mine to her—and I lost. The book valuation of the stock at the close of last year's business, plus ten per cent will determine the selling price, and I shall resign as president. You will, in all probability, be retained to manage the company until it is merged with the Cardigan Redwood Lumber company—when, I imagine, you will be given ample notice to seek a new job elsewhere. Call Miss Sumner's attorney, Judge Moore, on the telephone and ask him to come to the office at nine o'clock tomorrow, when the papers can be drawn up and signed. That is all."

I think I can enjoy the sweets of victory, I am content."

"And what a run you did give that boy Bryce!"

She laughed softly. "I wanted him to fight; I had a great curiosity to see the stuff that was in him," she explained.

Next day Bryce Cardigan, riding the top log on the end truck of a long train just in from Cardigan's woods in Township Nine, dropped from the end of the log as the train crawled to the log dump. He hailed Buck Ogilvy, where the latter stood in the door of the office.

"Big doings up on Little Laurel creek this morning, Buck?"

"Do tell!" Mr. Ogilvy murmured morosely.

"It was great," Bryce continued. "Old Duncan McTavish returned. I knew he would. His year on the mourner's bench expired yesterday, and he came back to claim his old job of woods boss."

"He's one year too late," Ogilvy declared. "I wouldn't let that big Canadian Jules Rondeau quit for a farm. Some woods boss, that—and his first job with this company was the dirtiest you could hand him—smearing grease on the skid road at a dollar and a half a day and found. He's made too good to lose out now. I don't care what his private morals may be. He can get out the logs, hang his rascally hide, and I'm for him."

"I'm afraid you haven't anything to say about it, Buck," Bryce replied dryly.

"I haven't oh? Well, any time you deny me the privilege of hiring and firing you're going to be out the service of a rattling good general manager, my son. Yes, sir! If you hold me responsible for results I must select the tools I want to work with."

"Oh, very well," Bryce laughed. "Have it your own way. Only if you can drive Duncan McTavish out of Cardigan's woods I'd like to see you do it. Possession is nine points of the law, Buck—and Old Duncan is in possession."

"What do you mean—in possession?"

"I mean that at ten o'clock this morning Duncan McTavish appeared at our log landing. The whisky fat was all gone from him and he appeared forty years old instead of the sixty that he is. With a whoop he came jumping over the logs, straight for Jules Rondeau. The big Canuck saw him coming and knew what his visit portended—so he wasn't taken unawares. It was a case of fight for his job—and Rondeau fought."

"The devil you say?"

"I do—and there was the devil to pay. It was a rough and tumble and no grips barred—just the kind of a fight Rondeau likes. Nevertheless Old Duncan floored him. While he's been away somebody taught him the hammer lock and the croch hold and a few more fancy ones, and he got to work on Rondeau in a hurry. In fact he had to, for if the tussle had gone over five minutes Rondeau's youth would have decided the issue."

"And Rondeau was whipped?"

"To a whisper. Mac floored him, and choked him until he beat the ground with his free hand in token of surrender; whereupon old Duncan let him up, and Rondeau went to his shanty and packed his turkey. The last I saw of him he was headed over the hill to Camp Two on Laguna Grande. He'll probably chase that assistant woods boss of Shirley's woods and help himself to the fellow's job, and I don't care if he does. What interests me is the fact that the old Cardigan woods boss is back on the job in Cardigan's woods, and I'm mighty glad of it. The old horse thief has had his lesson and will remain sober hereafter. I think he's cured."

"The infamous old outlaw?"

"Mac knows the San Hedrin as I know my own pocket. He'll be a tower of strength when we open up that tract after the railroad builds in. By the way, has my dad been down this morning?"

"Yes, Moira; read the mail to him and then took him up to the Valley of the Giants. He said he wanted to do a little quiet figuring on that new steam schooner you're thinking of building. He thinks she ought to be bigger—big enough to carry two million feet."

Bryce glanced at his watch. "It's half after eleven," he said. "Guess I'll run up to the Giants and bring him home to luncheon."

He stepped into the Napier standing outside the office and drove away. Buck Ogilvy waited until Bryce was out of sight; then with sudden determination he entered the office.

"Moira," he said abruptly, approaching the desk where she worked, "your dad is back, and what's more, Bryce Cardigan has let him have his old job as woods boss. And I'm here to announce that you're not going back to the woods to keep house for him. Understand? Now, look here, Moira. I've shilly-shalied around you for months, protesting my love, and I haven't gotten anywhere. Today I'm going to ask you for the last time. Will you marry me? I need you worse than that rascal of a father of yours does, and I tell you I'll not have you go back to the woods to take care of him. Come, now, Moira. Do give me a definite answer."

"I'm afraid I don't love you well enough to marry you, Mr. Ogilvy," Moira pleaded. "I'm truly fond of you, but—"

"The last boat's gone," cried Mr. Ogilvy desperately. "I'm answered, well, I'll not stick around here much longer, Moira. I realize I must be a nuisance, but I can't help being a nuisance when you're near me. So I'll quit my job here and go back to my old game of railroad."

"Oh, you wouldn't quit a ten-thousand-dollar job," Moira cried aghast. "I'd quit a million-dollar job. I'm desperate enough to go over to the mill and pick a fight with the big bandsaw. I'm going away where I can't see you. Your eyes are driving me crazy."

"But I don't want you to go, Mr. Ogilvy."

"Call me Buck," he commanded sharply.

"I don't want you to go, Buck," she repeated meekly. "I shall feel guilty, driving you out of a fine position."

And with his father's body in his strong arms he departed from the little amphitheater, walking lightly with his heavy burden down the old skid road to the waiting automobile. And two days later John Cardigan returned to rest forever with his last mate among the Giants, himself at last an infinitesimal portion of that tremendous silence that is the dispensation of the ages.

When the funeral was over Shirley and Bryce lingered until they found themselves alone beside the freshly turned earth. Through a rift in the great branches two hundred feet above a patch of cerulean sky showed faintly; the sunlight fell like a broad golden shaft over the blossom-laden grave and from the brown trunk of an adjacent tree a gray squirrel, a descendant, perhaps, of the gray squirrel that had been wont to rob Bryce's pockets of pine nuts twenty years before, chattered at them inquiringly.

"He was a giant among men," said Bryce presently. "What a fitting place for him to lie!" He passed his arm around his wife's shoulders and drew her to him. "You made it possible, sweetheart."

She gazed up at him in adoration. And presently they left the Valley of the Giants to face the world together, strong in their faith to live their lives and love their loves, to dream their dreams and perchance when life should be done with and the hour of rest at hand, to surrender, sustained and comforted by the knowledge that those dreams had come true.

[THE END.]

TRAGEDY IN INCREASED GIRTH

Man May Smile at His Rotundity, but to Woman It Is a Matter of Terror.

A fat man is usually a jolly sort of an individual who accepts the world as the same sort of a joke as the world considers him. Girth may worry a man occasionally because it is an annoyance, but with the modern woman it verges upon tragedy. As physicians—if they would talk freely—can tell you, it is a worry to them that frequently leads to ruined health, insanity or the grave. The New York Sun says:

It is possible for a man to grow fat gracefully. At least he can subdue his habits, stop running for trains, give up his golf and spend most of his time in ponderous poses. His tailor can easily arrange his clothing into well known and accepted lines.

The case of the woman is different. Fashion blinds her as with a chain. There are no stylish frocks for stout women. The fashion calls for slim figures and trim ankles. Waists and hips are taboo. There are no sleeves capable of concealing overdeveloped arms. Man can adapt his clothes to his figure, but woman must adapt her figure to the clothes or else shamelessly admit that she cannot wear what is fashionable.

It was not always so. In another generation the stout woman had a well-defined place—the "dowager type." It was sometimes called. The woman who made the best biscuits and cooked the most savory chicken was always a rotund sort of person who never minded it when people came unexpectedly around at dinner time. She was the one children flocked to for sympathy and the one who seemed to make the world brighter wherever she went.

The Why of Jayhawkers.

"Wild's Annals of Kansas" gives this history of the word: "One autumn morning in this year (1856) Prof Devlin, a Free State Irishman, rode into Osawatimie on a horse heavily laden with many kinds of goods. 'Have you been foraging, Pat?' 'Yes, I've been jayhawking.' 'In Ireland we have a bird we call the jayhawk; it worries its prey before devouring it; and jayhawking is a good name for the business I've been in.' This is the only known origin of the word. Colonel Jennison, early in the war (between the pro-slavery and free state forces) called himself and his soldiers 'jayhawkers,' and the name soon came to be applied to all Kansans. Others attribute the word to Col. Charles L. Jennison, one of the Free State leaders, claiming that he 'coined' it. 'Jayhawking' was the term used to describe the depredations of the Kansans and they were called 'jayhawkers,' as the term 'Border Ruffians' was applied to the Missouri pro-slavery men.

How Physicians Get Rich.

Jones is no more of a hypochondriac than other people, but he was heard talking to himself as follows: 'Here I am eating my usual diet of fried fish, canned meats, doughnuts, pie, wine, tea and coffee. It makes me sore to even think of wholesome food like bran, eggs and milk. My stomach must be a frightful condition; I'll go and see a doctor.'

Later at the doctor's office he explained: 'Doctor, although I feel a No. 1, my diet has been such that I feel sure it must have injured my digestion. Please examine me thoroughly and then tell me if you honestly think I am in need of the services of the profession which affords you a livelihood.'

It Certainly Is That!

Have you ever been stuck in the mud at the foot of a steep slope in a bulky motor car? So have we. And if you are a woman and the motor was driven by a normal man, you heard words that you had a vague idea about but were not exactly sure were in current use. And if he asked for a pair of pliers, you knew if you made a mistake you handed him a monkey wrench he might choke you or something. And when, after he has had out of that mud hole, O-o-o! 'Ain't it a grand and glorious feeling?'—Columbus Dispatch.

Heat Brings Out Incriptions.

Inscriptions nearly obliterated by age and wear from old silver coins may be rendered visible by placing the coin upon a piece of red-hot iron, by which means the inscription is made to assume a greenish hue, whereby it becomes readable.

People who are suffering will not listen to your cool philosophy. They upset things.

The Kitchen Cabinet

It is not enough to be industrious; so are the ants. What are you industrious about?—Thoreau.

WHAT TO SERVE FOR DINNER.

A soup which is somewhat out of the ordinary and provides a nourishing dish for the bill of fare is:

Cauliflower and Tomato Soup.—Rub a head of cooked cauliflower through a colander, mix with two cupsful of sifted tomato, add two cupsful of water in which the bones of a roast turkey have been cooked. Season with three teaspoonfuls of salt and one tablespoonful of pepper. Cook one tablespoonful of minced onion in three tablespoonfuls of fat until brown. Stir in four tablespoonfuls of flour and add the vegetable pulp and stock. Stir until boiling. Serve with rings of sweet green pepper as a garnish.

Mock Venison.—Hang a leg of mutton in a cool place as long as possible, while it keeps sweet. Then take off the skin and put the mutton into a dripping pan or kettle and pour over the following pickle: Take three heads of garlic or three sliced onions, one-half ounce of peppercorns, one-fourth ounce of allspice berries crushed, six bay leaves, a dozen sprigs of thyme and a dozen sprigs of parsley, all brought to a boil in three cupsful of vinegar. This pickle should be rubbed into the meat, rubbing and turning for at least thirty minutes. Allow the meat to remain in the pan, covering the top with thinly sliced onions until the next day, then repeat the rubbing and lay in the pan the other side up, covering with onions again. Continue this for four days, then wipe the meat dry and rub for half an hour in a pint of hot molasses. Let the meat hang in a cool place until the next day, then wipe dry and roast the same as a leg of mutton. Serve with melted currant jelly. This sounds like a good deal of work but it is worth it.

Date Bran Muffins.—Sift one cupful of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt and one tablespoonful of sugar. Add one beaten egg to two cupfuls of bran and one and one-half cupfuls of milk. Beat thoroughly, add one-half cupful of dates cut in small bits, combine with the flour mixture and bake in muffin pans twenty-five minutes.

Rhubarb Soup.—Take six stalks of rhubarb, cut in small pieces. Add the rhubarb to one quart of veal stock, one small onion, two thin slices of bread and salt and pepper to taste. Let the mixture boil, removing the scum as it rises. Slimmer gently until the rhubarb is tender. Strain and serve with toasted bread.

Even in ordinary life the unselfish people are the happiest—those who work to make others happy and who forget themselves. The dissatisfied people are those who are seeking happiness for themselves.—Mrs. Besant.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

The leather cushions of chairs and couches may be treated with ordinary tan or black shoe dressing, the cleanser and polishing wax. Rub it in with great care and scratches and stains will be removed, the leather preserved and made new looking.

The leftover pancakes broken in bits and added to scrambled eggs make a palatable dish and a saving on eggs.

Before roasting the leg of lamb place it in a kettle with one-fourth of a cupful of rice, salt, pepper and one onion, celery and parsley; add two quarts of water and simmer one hour. Remove and roast as usual. The broth will make a delicious soup.

Old hair brushes may be renewed when soft by dipping the bristles into a strong solution of alum water. Hair brushes are good to clean the brushes in the carpet sweeper.

When rendering lard grind it through the sausage grinder and there will be much less waste. They will do this at small cost at the market if you request it.

Casters which drop out from furniture can be fixed by pouring in a little hot paraffin and inserting the caster while the paraffin is hot.

Saw strips of old rubbers on the corners or sides of rugs that bother about slipping.

To remove wall paper from walls a thin paste put on hot will soak the paper and will not dry as quickly as clear water.

A large pink-lined sea shell makes a pretty receptacle for a bunch of growing violets or violets and ferns.

MRS. HAYDOCK SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Followed Advice of Her Druggist's Wife and Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6824 St. Lawrence Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Legal Aid Societies to Safeguard Poor Stressed as Vital Need.

Washington.—Interest in the establishment of legal aid societies for the poor, as one important step in Americanization work, was advocated recently by Charles Evans Hughes, now secretary of state, in an address before the American Bar Association. Coming from such a distinguished source, the views expressed are worthy of more than passing attention on the part of those who would aid in seeing that justice in the courts is given to both rich and poor alike, if the large and increasing foreign population of the United States is to be made to believe in the efficacy of law and order.

The question has been asked, "Must aliens distrust American justice because they don't understand its processes?" It has been further suggested that "litigation is costly and cumbersome and the poor, whether alien or native, have at present to little experience with the boasted evenhandedness of justice. Agencies which will protect them in their rights, for the sake of having the right prevail, and charge them nothing for the service, offer a new and startling illumination of the workings of American Democracy."

It is the belief of Mr. Hughes that while the legal aid society is the poor man's lawyer, and gives him the essential assistance he cannot obtain elsewhere, such a society should be a result of the patriotic labor of private organizations. It has been well said editorially that "no greater civic service is open to lawyers, and high-minded citizens than to secure the needy and ignorant full protection under the law."

As emphasizing the opportunities for service of this kind, for such patriotic service as Mr. Hughes suggests, it is of record that in Pittsburgh and Rochester 41.8 per cent of the people are immigrants who spoke other than English tongues before coming to America. On the other hand, New York City's figures show that 32.2 per cent of its population are best acquainted with foreign tongues and English is the mother tongue of but 41.8 per cent. The percentage of foreigners in Chicago is greater even than in New York, according to the census, while in Milwaukee but 28.1 per cent are placed in the column of those speaking the English tongue originally and 71.9 per cent other tongues.

Plymouth, Mass.—Plymouth Rock, the boulder dropped on the shore here from a glacier ages ago, to become the stepping stone of the forefathers from the old world to the new, is to be protected against the waters and frosts of future years. "America is Spendthrift Nation." Philadelphia.—America was characterized as the "worst spendthrift nation the world has ever seen," by William Mather Lewis, director of the savings department of the United States treasury, at a dinner of the Phi Delta Theta Alumni Club of Philadelphia, Tuesday night. "We spend $22,000,000,000 yearly for luxuries," he said, "and if this stupendous sum was split in two ways, we would have enough money to solve the world's capitalization problem."

MRS. NANCY SHARP, of Los Angeles, who says she received the greatest surprises of her life when Tanlac completely restored her health after she had almost lost hope of ever getting well. Suffered twelve years.

"After seeing the wonderful results my husband obtained from Tanlac I began taking the medicine myself, and now we both agree that it is the grandest medicine on earth," said Mrs. Nancy Sharp, a prominent and highly esteemed resident of Los Angeles, Calif., living at 921 Camulus street, whose husband is proprietor of the Merchants' Express Co.

"During the twelve years that I suffered with indigestion and stomach trouble I tried nearly every medicine I heard about, but nothing helped me and I lost faith in everything. So, my wonderful restoration to health has been the greatest surprise of my life. "I began to feel an improvement on finishing my second bottle of Tanlac, and now after taking six bottles I am like a new woman. I have a splendid appetite, eat three hearty meals a day, enjoy them thoroughly and am never troubled in the least with indigestion or any other disagreeable after effects.

"Before taking Tanlac most everything I ate caused my stomach to rebel and I would suffer for hours afterwards. I was so dreadfully nervous that many nights I never closed my eyes in sleep, but now I am not the least nervous, and I sleep like a child. My strength has been wonderfully increased, and I have much more energy.

"I just wish it was so everybody troubled like I was knew about this wonderful medicine."

Big Fund for Food Research

Carnegie Corporation Supplies $700,000 for Study at Leland Stanford University.

was suggested by Hoover

One Aim is to Avert Waste, and Marketing and Distribution Will Be Studied—New Institute Will Begin Work in July.

New York.—A food research institute for the study of all problems of production, distribution and consumption is to be established at Leland Stanford Jr. university at the suggestion of Herbert Hoover, with an endowment of $700,000 provided by Carnegie corporation. This announcement was made by the corporation here.

"The need for such an institute was first suggested to Carnegie corporation by Herbert Hoover," said the announcement, "and the selection of Leland Stanford Jr. university as its home was due in part to the fact that it is the point at which the great unique collection of documentary material relative to the economic side of the war, gathered by Mr. Hoover during the war, is deposited.

"The value of such an institute as it is now proposed to establish during the war, when the study of food supply in its different phases was necessary in order to attain maximum efficiency in the nutrition of the nations involved. The knowledge thus acquired clearly indicates the great importance of continued research effort. The general field of the institute will be the problems arising after food has left the farmer's hands.

Efforts to Reduce Waste. "A special feature of the work of the institute will be the scientific study of the marketing and distribution of food products. The objects of the institute, however, are thoroughly practical, and will, it is hoped, contribute to the welfare of the producer and consumer by eliminating present wastes in the process of marketing nearly all kinds of food. The objects of the institute are not only important from the standpoint of the farmer, but have a direct effect on the question of proper nutrition of the nation.

"In every nation at war, and in neutral nations as well, much of the previous data of production, distribution and consumption of food was found to be inaccurate. Faced with the necessity of securing immediate results, governmental authorities frequently compelled to grope in the dark for long periods before they could accomplish the end sought.

"Under the terms of the agreement with Carnegie corporation the university agrees to establish a research organization under the name of the Food Research Institute of Leland Stanford Jr. university and to appoint three men of science to be known as directors of the institute. These directors will have authority to determine the scientific policies of the institute and the problems to be studied. It is the hope of the Carnegie corporation that eventually the new organization will be known as the Hoover Institute.

"There will also be an advisory committee made up of men of national prominence, representing agricultural, consumer, economic and other groups of the community, one of whom will be Mr. Hoover. The university will appoint seven members of this body, who, with the president of the university ex officio, and the president of the Carnegie corporation, ex officio, will make the committee number nine men.

To Begin Work July 1. "The institute will begin its work on July 1 next, and the Carnegie corporation will provide a fund of $700,000 for its support for a period of ten years.

"James R. Angell, president of Carnegie corporation, who has just been called to the presidency of Yale university, announces that Leland Stanford Jr. university has agreed to make its scientific laboratories available to the institute. It is not intended to duplicate the equipment of research laboratories working in the field of nutrition, but as far as it is practicable to have the institute co-operate with other agencies working in the general field.

"The directors to be appointed will head three separate divisions. One will be an expert in the field of physiology and chemistry of nutrition, one an expert in economics and food distribution, and one an expert in chemistry of food manufacture and agriculture. They will work co-operatively from three avenues of approach upon fundamental issues of widest human significance. It is also provided that the institute may receive from time to time such specially qualified students as it may be possible to instruct without disadvantage to the primary research purposes of the organization.

"A small group of fellowships will be available for graduate students of high intellectual promise. These students will receive wholly unusual training for public service while at the same time contributing valuable assistance to the work of the institute.

"Carnegie corporation, after the institute is once established, will abstain from any attempt to direct or control its work."

School Children to Teach Aliens

Give Valuable Aid in Campaign to Americanize New York's East Side Immigrants.

SEEK CORRECTION OF EVILS

Harry H. Schlact, Head of the Commission on Immigration Aid, Has Unique Plan to Protect New-comers Against Exploitation.

New York.—The scriptural dictum that "a little child shall lead them" is being applied 10,000-fold in Americanization of New York's east side immigrants.

Its practical demonstration was described by Harry H. Schlact, head of the commission on immigrant aid at Ellis island, who has conceived a unique plan to protect newcomers from exploitation by their unscrupulous predecessors and radicals.

Through the downtown chamber of commerce, membership of which is limited to foreign-born merchants, bankers and other business men who have gained wealth in this country, Mr. Schlact has developed the idea of placing each immigrant family—fresh from the bewilderment of official red tape and the fantastic New York skyline—in the custody of an American, or Americanized, school-girl.

Ten thousand of such girls are spending their evenings and spare hours infusing their charges with American ideas and the rudiments of the English language.

Rewards for Teachers. Stimulated not only by innate interest in the quaint, dejected and often victimized and disillusioned seekers for new homes, but also by rewards from the chamber of commerce for meritorious results, these girls can be seen every evening, by dim lights, spelling out c-a-t, r-a-t and other simple words to enraptured old patriarchs, scarcely aware that they are transplanted in a strange and yet not dissimilar country from that whence they came at such a sacrifice.

"But before I tell you in detail of this Americanization work and its results," interposed Mr. Schlact, "let me tell you something of why they may easily fall prey to radicalism."

He then told of how he was aroused to the necessity for this work by some poignant experiences he had gone through Ellis island disguised as an immigrant. Mr. Schlact mingled with the immigrants throughout their trials at admission and learned, he said, that thousands had been induced to migrate by members of an organization which had swindled them of everything they owned before taking them on shipboard.

Since he has been on the island Mr. Schlact said he had investigated these organizations, which he characterized as "professional film-flammers," and has caused the indictment of several individuals, some of whom have fled the country and the cases of some are still pending. Numerous others, he said, who had luxurious offices in New York have scamped away and disbanded operations. He described their operations, while in full swing, somewhat as follows:

They canvassed east side homes to learn if they had relatives on the other side whom they wanted brought to America. Invariably such was the case. These "friends" then told the east siders they were going to Europe and, if they liked, would bring back the desired relatives. Delighted with this "kindness," the east siders would offer up all the money they could scrape together to help their loved ones on their voyage.

Exploited by Radicals. Equipped with these foreign addresses, the only thing that really interested the exploiters, these "agents" would set out for Europe to transfer their operations to new fields. But instead of turning over the money sent by anxious relatives, they would demand all they could get from the poor Europeans before taking the necessary steps to place them on ships bound for America. If they could get enough they could do this through questionable methods with passport bureaus and shipping companies, Mr. Schlact said.

"So you see," he declared, "they swindled them both going and coming. This wholesale exploitation," he continued, "is what makes it necessary to do intensive Americanization work among these poor families, who, through no fault of their own, land among us without education and without anything but a misconceived idea that America is a worse place to live in than their home countries. They are ripe for further exploitation by radicals who enlist their willing aid in flaunting false ideals of capitalism."

While it is imperative to correct this immigration menace at its source, Mr. Schlact said, those who have been dumped into this country through influences other than their own volition must be looked after. This is what the "Junior American Missionaries," as these schoolgirls are called, are doing successfully, he said. "Not a family placed in their care has failed to make good," he said.

FIND MONSTER CEDAR TREE Enough Lumber in Forest Monarch Discovered in Washington to Build Nine Houses.

Seattle.—Timber cruisers working in the forest near Forks have discovered what is believed to be the largest living cedar tree in the United States. It measures 64 feet in circumference and 10 feet above the ground is 17 feet in diameter.

gradual decrease in size being slight until the first limbs, about 125 feet above the earth. The tree has grown up in a thicket of other cedars, many of which are 6 to 10 feet in diameter. One of its neighbors is so close as to touch the giant, and three more guard the other sides about 10 feet distant.

It is estimated that this big cedar, if solid, and it appears to be in good living condition, contains approximately 300,000 feet of lumber. Carpenters say that the average six-room house contains about 30,000 feet of lumber, so that this one cedar tree has in its big trunk enough lumber to build nine or ten such houses.

It is doubtful if it will ever be touched by the woodsmen's ax, for it now stands in the vast territory which former President Roosevelt set aside as a forest reserve. Cruisers working for lumber companies often survey into the reserves before they are aware of it, but the watchful ranger knows it immediately.

 H. C. MARSALES, Sales Manager

Are You One of the Wide-Awake?
 If so, you will attend this sale Opening Day, Saturday, April 2nd. You will be elbowed some, but by pleasant people. With a little bit of your time, a little bit of judgment, and a little bit of money you can surprise yourself most agreeably.
