The Farm Bureau Club program given at Elgin last Friday night was very much enjoyed by those in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee H. Gould were in town Saturday morning.

Oliver Bothrock passed through Patagonia on his way to Nogales last Friday. He just received a new artificial foot, and says "it's a good fit." He says he is confident that as soon as he gets used to the new limb he'll be in as good shape as ever.

Miss Katherine arvel, teacher in the Nogales school, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Farrell of Harshaw, last Saturday.

James Babcock of the Rupert mine was a Patagonia visitor Saturday.

STATE COMMANDER AMERICAN LEGION ENTERTAINED

One of the best and biggest barbecues ever held in Nogales, says the Nogales Herald, was staged Sunday afternoon by members of Ridge-Igo Post of the American Legion.

After weeks of preparation, appointment of committees and unceasing work the grand event was presented Sunday without a flaw or hitch.

Colora Stoddard, state commander of the American Legion, was the guest of honor, having arrived the afternoon of Saturday in company with Perry Landin, local adjutant.

Following a parade, the procession went to Ephram's Canyon, along the international line, where the affair was held. An excellent program was given, the badger fight being considered the "piece de resistance."

Great preparation was given for this event, and Captain Wynn of the 25th Infantry was chosen to do the honors. With great precision, as well as precaution, the captain officiated. The event was highly applauded.

Excellent barbecued meat was served by the Tovea famous staff, and liquid refreshments were served by M. I. Merritt and his very able and speedy assistant, Malcolm Middleton. The refreshment stand was placed south of the Volstead act.

The barbecue was marked by the highly commendable feature of having had no speeches, it being reported that everyone, including Colora Stoddard, was having too good a time to be bothered.

MAY 31, NEXT MEETING OF THE FARM BUREAU CLUB

Remember that the next meeting of the Patagonia Farm Bureau Club will be held at 8 p. m. at the Opera House, Thursday, May 31.

Mrs. C. A. Pierce will be in charge of the evening's program. Besides the many entertaining numbers, the "Patagonia Stev" will be a feature. Everybody come!

STANLEY BALDWIN, BRITAIN'S NEW MINISTER

Stanley Baldwin has been appointed prime minister of Great Britain. His appointment is a popular one with the masses. He was given a great reception by the press of London.

MINES AND MINERS

James E. Babcock returned last Saturday from Los Angeles, where he has been on business. He has a bond area lease on the Rupert mine, in the Santa Rita mountains.

J. C. Holmes of the 3-R district was in town for mail and supplies last Saturday.

Lee Reagan was in town Tuesday and was accompanied by his brother, James Reagan, to Nogales. Reagan brothers recently won a suit against owners of the Continental Commission Company of Hayden Junction, near Winkelman, in a mining deal involving large capital. Purchase of the property is being considered by several large mining companies.

E. F. Bohliger is having assessments done on the Andes, Fluz, Josephine, Hermosa and other mines belonging to the Richardson Real Estate, Mining and Commercial Corporation, of which he has charge.

Dan Dawson has taken a contract to do the assessment work on the Molly Gibson mine, near Mowry.

J. J. Farley has started assessment work at the Chief mine for the Washington Trading Company. Charles hauled out the supplies Tuesday.

Louis D. Ferry of the World's Fair mine was in town Tuesday.

Four carloads of ore were shipped from Patagonia Tuesday. Two of the cars were loaded with Morning Glory ore, one from the American mine and the Santa Rita made up the other.

Mike Hogan and C. L. Scheler of the Black Eagle mine were in town Tuesday.

P. P. O'Neill, owner of the Rupert mine, left Wednesday for Pasadena to visit his wife, who is ill.

GRINGO MINE MAY BE OPENED UP BY NEW YORK MEN

The Gringo mine, near Patagonia, may be put on the active list soon, it what Thomas Woods, a mining man of New York, says is true. He was in the district lately with Samuel Abramson, a New York attorney.

BONDING COMPANY PAYS UP

Nogales' treasury is $12,128.18 richer this week, through the delivery by Bracey Curtis and Otto Herold, acting agents for the United Fidelity and Guaranty Company, of a check for that amount to City Attorney James V. Robins. The check was in payment of a judgment against the company in favor of the city of Nogales on the bond of W. H. Smith, former city clerk of Nogales.

Man is an able creature, but he has made 32,647,389 laws and hasn't yet improved on the Ten Commandments.

"MILK AND BUTTER"

People of Arizona do not drink enough milk to give them a balanced diet making for health and physical efficiency. More important, children of Arizona do not drink enough milk, the food which builds strong and healthy bodies.

These are two facts which Arizonans will be asked to consider especially next week, May 27 to June 2, in the "Milk and Butter" campaign conducted by the state dairy commissioner in cooperation with the state board of health, the livestock sanitary board, the Arizona Industrial Congress, Farm Bureau, Parent-Teacher associations, the Arizona Dairy Producers, and other state agencies and civic organizations.

Milk as a food is being neglected by most of the people of the state, in the opinion of officials sponsoring the campaign. But that is not so serious as the fact that a majority of the children of the state do not get enough milk to give them health and strength, for milk is the greatest enemy of malnutrition and the greatest aid in building bone and muscle.

Here are ten reasons, proved by science, why milk is one of our best foods, and the one best food for the young, as given by J. R. Jennings, state dairy commissioner:

- Milk strengthens the body to resist disease.
Milk contains lime which helps build healthy teeth.
Milk helps keep the digestive tract in proper condition.
Milk contains the vitamins needed for growth and health.
Milk supplies the fuel needed for the body to do its work.
Milk helps repair the wear and tear of the body.
Milk builds strong bones.
Milk prevents malnutrition among children.
Milk gives proper balance to the diet and insures the greatest efficiency.
Milk gives more food value for less cost.

RIGHT TO "CUSS" GOVERNMENT

The safeguard of America is a free press, free speech and free courts.

The Chicago Tribune severely criticized the city administration of Chicago and the public officials sued it for $1,000,000 damages on the ground that they were the city.

C. J. TRASK CAPTURES TWO MEN ILLEGALLY IN COUNTRY

Wednesday morning Immigration Officer C. J. Trask captured two men who were trying to get into the United States without going through the formality of passing inspection at a port of entry. They were taken to Nogales and were placed in jail on suspicious characters.

One of the men was a Russian. It is thought, and had a $1000 bill in his possession beside $20 in smaller denominations. The other man had about $20 in his pocket.

Mr. Trask is very watchful, and there are very few aliens get by him without showing the proper credentials.

MR. AND MRS. WHITMAN BURIED SIDE BY SIDE IN TUCSON

Santa Cruz county residents were shocked to hear of the murder of Mrs. Annabel F. Whitman by her husband, F. B. Whitman, and the latter's suicide immediately following the killing of the woman Thursday of last week.

The news reached the Patagonian too late for insertion in last week's paper. The dead couple were well known in this county, having made their home in various places for several years past.

They had lived on several ranches in the Sonora district and had resided for a time in Nogales.

The murder and suicide took place in an apartment house in Tucson, where Mrs. Whitman had been living with her daughter, Emily, apart from her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Leonard of Atlanta, Ga., the latter a sister of the slain woman, arrived in Tucson Monday and made arrangements for the funeral of the dead couple, the sister deciding that Whitman was insane when the tragedy took place.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Whitman were buried side by side in Tucson Tuesday morning.

For some time prior to the tragedy Mr. and Mrs. Whitman had not lived happily together, owing to the jealousy of the husband, and they had decided to separate. Details of the separation have not been completed, as there was a disagreement over possession of the daughter, Emily, a small child. It is thought heading over the separation had unbalanced Whitman's mind and he committed the rash acts while temporarily unbalanced mentally.

Emily, the orphaned child of the victims of last week's tragedy, has been adopted by the Leonards, and will make her home in Atlanta, Ga.

1000 CATTLE SHIPPED

A shipment of 100 head of Mexican steers was made Wednesday by W. Beckford Kibby of Sonoita, Mex., from the famous Hidalgo el Alamo ranch near Magdalena. The cattle were dipped and inspected by Cattle Inspector Arthur D. Page at the port of Nogales, and were forwarded in bond through the United States to their destination in Durango, Mexico.

It was the largest shipment since the Cananea Cattle Company of Cananea, Sonora, Mex., shipped about 3000 head to the western market of this country about a month ago.

MANY DIE IN FIRE IN MEXICALI

Mexicali, Lower California, was the scene of a disastrous fire Tuesday night in which at least 14 persons lost their lives. Police are still searching the ruins for more bodies.

Insurance companies estimate the loss by fire as high as $5,000,000.

MINE ASSESSMENT WORK MUST BE FINISHED JULY 1

A little over a month remains for all miners to complete their assessment work, which must be completed by July 1, according to a new ruling of the government.

The assessment work must be done by midnight July 1, as claims not having the work completed may be jumped July 2.

Under the old law, when assessment work had to be finished by January 1, the actual work had to be done by midnight December 31. Under the new ruling an additional day is allowed, permitting the work to be finished before midnight, July 1.

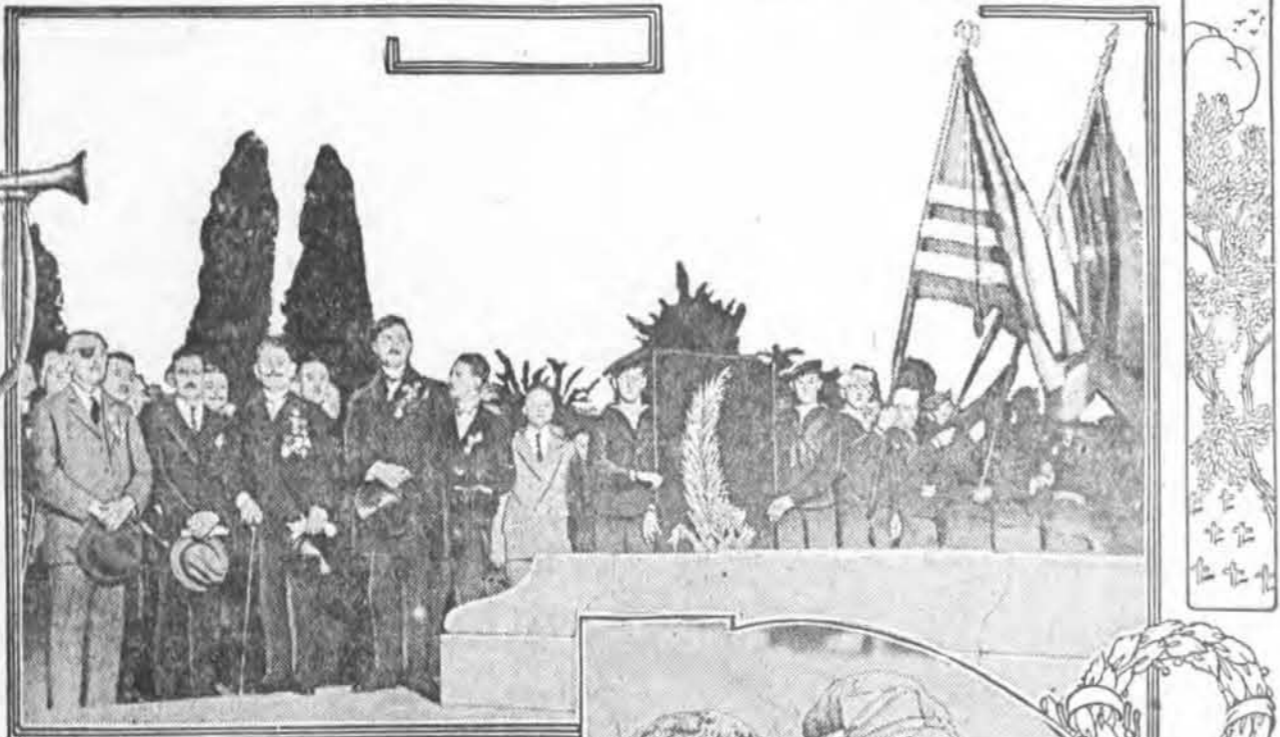

If all the mines and mining claims in and near Patagonia followed this rule, Patagonia would be a lively and prosperous place, as there are upward of 400 mines and prospects within a radius of 20 miles of our town. It is safe to say that many valuable properties are liable to be "jumped" by anyone looking for mining property. Some miners are holding more claims than they are allowed under the assessment work rule of doing $100 worth of work for each claim held.

Stockmen, Farmers of County to Meet at Elgin Schoolhouse June 1

A meeting of stockmen and farmers will be held at the Elgin schoolhouse at 8 o'clock p. m., Friday, June 1, when a plan for real, unselfish cooperation will be presented.

Mal W. Eason has arranged a program of entertainment and the women folk will supply refreshments. Everything will be free and all stockmen and farmers should be present with their family.

Spirit of Memorial Day 1923

Sleep on, proud heroes of America's wars, wherever you may lie. The fight you have made has been a blessing to mankind, and Americans in America see in a new light the tower of liberty that now faintly illumines the darkest recesses of the world. Your lives have not been given in vain. We weep because you are our kin, but we are proud that you so nobly fought and so nobly died and rejoice that you are in God's keeping.—Representative Charles Pope Caldwell of New York.

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN
SPIRIT of Memorial Day, 1923!

We all know the purpose of Memorial day. We Americans assemble to commemorate our Nation's soldier dead—to express our love and gratitude for their service and devotion by strewing flowers on their final resting places, by recounting their deeds of valor and patriotism, by seeking new and deeper understanding of this national holiday, sacred, sanctified, glorified.

In one way it is a day of celebration, of hero worship unstinted and unshamed. We won our independence by fighting for it. We are not a warlike nation, but we are a fighting nation. There is no fighting man like the American fighting man. The Star Spangled Banner has never been lowered in defeat. So we celebrate the deeds of our fighting men.

But we do not assemble to awaken bitter memories of battle and slaughter. We do not meet to rekindle the vengeful fires of hate and passion. We do not gather to exult over the defeated. We do not come together to glorify war or to exalt militarism. We meet rather to dedicate anew the power and wealth and strength of the nation to liberty, humanity and justice.

Sea-fights and land-fights, grim and great,
Fought to make and to save the State;
Weary marches and sinking ships;
Cheers of victory on dying lips;
Days of plenty and years of peace;
March of a strong land's swift increase;
Equal justice, right and law;
Stately honor and reverent awe;
Sign of a nation, great and strong.
To ward her people from foreign wrong;
Pride and glory and honor—all
Live in the Colors to stand or fall.

This is part of what Memorial day means to the good American.

Too far away are Flanders fields
Upon his grave to lay
My roses and forget-me-nots,
My rosemary and bay;
A scarlet poppy on my breast
Will speak Memorial day!

Many a poppy will be worn in America on Memorial day. There are eight national cemeteries in Europe, six of which are in France, one in Belgium, and one in England. There are 30,587 bodies at present in Europe, distributed as follows:
Meuse-Argonne American cemetery, No. 1232; Romagne-sous-Montfaucon (Meuse), France, 13,938. Unknown, 483.
St. Mihiel American cemetery, No. 1233; Thiaucourt, Meurthe-et-Moselle, France, 4,231. Unknown, 157.
Somme American cemetery, No. 636; Bony, Aisne, France, 1,830. Unknown, 154.
Oise-Aisne American cemetery, No. 608; Serres-et-Neules, Aisne, France, 6,071. Unknown 608.
Aisne-Marne American cemetery, No. 1704; Belleau, Aisne, France, 2,220. Unknown, 224.
Suresnes American cemetery, No. 34; Suresnes, Paris, France, 1,497. Unknown, 2.
Flanders Field American cemetery, No. 1252; Waereghem, Belgium, 365. Unknown, 29.
Brookwood American cemetery, No. 107-E; Brookwood, Surrey, England, 435. Unknown, 66.

Many of these American graves overseas—perhaps all—will be strewn with flowers. American initiative will do much. Admiring and grateful hearts will take many a Frenchman, Belgian and Briton to these graves with blossoms. It will be long before Europe forgets the American fighting men. Who won the war? Never mind; there is glory enough for all. Just the same the American doughboy left his impress. France may be irritated with America just now, but French mothers are still telling their children of the great size of the Americans, of their tender care of the young, of their kindness to the aged and infirm, of their romping over the barbed wire entanglements and jumping the trenches and storming the pill-boxes and routing the Hun. And they will go on Memorial day to the American cemeteries to strew flowers and to bless the nation that came with her men and her women; her material, money and efficiency—the nation that fed the hungry, succored the injured and freed the world.

Full soon the shell holes fill with grass
And battlefields and shell holes pass
Into the mist of yesterdays;
But still there lingers word or phrase—
A touch of Western breezy slang
To lend Provencal speech a tang.

Stern battles, though the flags be furled,
Will boom in "Say—I'll tell the world!"
And sparks of many a valiant fight
Will flash in "Listen!" and "Good night!"

Boy faces grinning, wistful, kind,
With each brisk phrase will come to mind;
Boy faces, grim and gray and drear,
That still could manage "Whoops, my dear!"
Who called the world's worst war "the fuss,"
In vivid speech incongruous;
Who joked like boys and fought like gods,
And caroled: "Booey! What's the odds?"
Reduced the hell of Marne and Roze
To crisp and long-recalled patois.
Those boys who said, "So this is France!"
And, gayly gallant, "took a chance."

There was a parade up Fifth avenue of the Seventy-fifth division of the A. E. F. Far ahead of Maj. Gen. Robert Alexander and his staff, in front even of the police escort, marched 30 men, each carrying a banner bearing 100 gold stars. Behind these 30 men and the banners with the 3,000 gold stars was a gap three blocks long. Said a thick-witted man in the reviewing stand:
"Why, these banner-bearers are out of place."
"You fool," stormed his neighbor, "The dead are passing now."

If all the patriot dead look upon the services of Memorial day, there is a host indeed. For it is almost a century and a half since the struggle to gain and maintain our freedom began.

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world.

There were giants in those days and no American but is the better American for thinking of them—Washington, Jefferson, Adams, Franklin, Sherman and Livingston, who drafted the Declaration of Independence; Alexander Hamilton; Nathan Hale, who regretted that he had but one life to give for his country; Greene, who outwitted and outfought Cornwallis; George Rogers Clark, who took and held the northwest to the Mississippi; John Paul Jones.
In the War of 1812 the Constitution and the United States and the American privateers out-sailed and outfought the British on the seas, to the astonishment of the world. Andrew Jackson won the Battle of New Orleans—a decisive American battle that saved the Mississippi. And the successful defense of Fort McHenry called forth Francis Scott Key's national hymn, "The Star-Spangled Banner."

O! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand
Between their loved homes and the war's desolation:
Blest with victory and peace, may the heav'n-
rescued land
Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a nation.
Then conquer we must, when our cause is just,
And The Star-Spangled Banner in triumph shall
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Another generation and the war-drums beat again and the bugles blew, "On to Mexico!" Palo Alto, Resaca, Buena Vista, Monterey and Chapultepec are names to conjure with even now. In the short and brilliant Mexican campaign Winfield Scott won fame. Zachary Taylor's record made him President. There Grant earned his first laurels.

And did you know that on the pension rolls of a grateful nation there are yet 52 names of veterans of that war, though it closed 75 years ago?

When Abraham Lincoln left his Illinois home for the White House he said to his neighbors, assembled to wish him Godspeed:

There has fallen upon me a task such as did not rest even upon the Father of His Country, and so feeling I cannot but turn and look for that support without which it will be impossible to perform that great task. I turn, then, and look to the great American people and to that God who has never forsaken them.

He was a true prophet. All Christendom stood astounded at the magnitude of the struggle that followed, and the spirit of the combatants. It was American against American. Nor did the American people fall Lincoln. Nor did God forsake the American people. The outstanding fact in American history is the hand of Providence in the affairs of the nation.

But the Civil war is over now and its wounds are healed. Recalling what were the issues of that war and remembering that Appomattox settled those issues right and for all time, we can strew flowers alike for Grant and Lee, for Sherman and Jackson, for Sheridan and Stuart with:

Love and tears for the Blue,
Tears and love for the Gray.

As for Lincoln—he stands beside Washington in the hearts of a reunited people.

It was this mighty struggle of American against American that gave us Memorial day. And it was Gen. John A. Logan who, as commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic in 1868, established Memorial day. Logan has been in the tomb for 37 years. And now his widow has gone to join him. She was always his constant helpmate and inspiration; it is likely that she herself brought about Memorial day. Flowers for her grave; the memory of her words will live.

It was only 25 years ago this year that the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor. That meant war, of course. The summer saw it begun, fought and won. And it was an important war. It saw a reunited North and South again fighting under the Stars and Stripes. It made the United States a world power over night. It showed the world that America would fight for the cause of humanity and could forego the fruits of victory. It was notice to the nations that the 1898 American was the same old fighting man on land and sea.
Wouldn't you like to have been on "Fighting Bob" Evans' Iowa at Santiago and seen the band perched on the forward turret, grimy and half-naked, just as they came from the guns, and heard them blare out:

There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight!

It seems only yesterday that the Lusitania went down. And that meant war, too—America's entrance into the World war, the greatest of all history. Doubtless the quietness of the nation's thought on Memorial day will be in the offerings at the tomb of our "Unknown Dead" in Arlington. Fitting indeed are these words of President Harding, spoken at the burial of this Unknown Soldier:

"We do not know the entrance of his birth, but we do know the glory of his death. He died for his country, and greater devotion hath no man than he. He died unquestioning, uncompensating, with faith in his heart and hope on his lips, that his country should triumph and its civilization survive. As a typical soldier of this representative democracy, he fought and died, believing in the indisputable justice of his country's cause. . . . We gather him to the Nation's breast, within the shadow of the capitol, of the towering shaft that honors Washington, the great father, and of the exquisite monument to Lincoln, the martyred savior. Here the inspirations of yesterday and the conscience of today forever unite to make the republic worthy of his death for flag and country."

French Wound Two Germans

Berlin.—Special dispatches to the Berlin newspapers report "an orgy of street shooting" by the French in Mannheim in which as many as 150 shots were fired and at least two Germans seriously wounded. The Germans say the French patrol on Friedrichs bridge fired wildly in all directions, some of the shots hitting nearby houses, while a street car filled with passengers was directly fired upon. The cause of the outbreak is not given.

ILLNESS FORCES BONAR LAW OF BRITAIN TO TAKE ACTION

London.—Andrew Bonar Law has resigned as premier of Great Britain. A statement issued at 10 Downing street, the official residence of the premier, said:

"Mr. Bonar Law's voyage did not improve his health. On his return to London he was examined by medical advisers, in consequence of whose advice Mr. Law immediately placed his resignation in the hands of his majesty, the king, who graciously was pleased to accept it."

King George received a letter from Mr. Bonar Law in which the retiring premier said that, according to the urgent recommendations of his medical advisers, he decided to resign the premiership and as first lord of the treasury.

In accepting the premier's resignation, King George expressed the deepest regret and inquired solicitously as to Mr. Bonar Law's health.

The bulletin issued by Mr. Bonar Law's physician said:

"In spite of his rest, the prime minister's voice still is unsatisfactory and we are unable to promise an improvement within a reasonable time. The state of the prime minister's general health is not good."

Thus ends his brief but eventful administration, and it ends with important and perplexing problems, particularly Great Britain's relations with France and Russia, unsettled.

The king will summon one of the Conservative leaders to form a new cabinet. It is generally accepted that Marquis Curzon will be the next premier.

The crisis comes upon the government in the midst of the holiday, when parliament is dispersed and few members of the government are in London.

A few days ago, when the result of Mr. Bonar Law's consultation with physicians in Paris became known, this end was foreseen, but the country was not prepared for it and will await developments with anxiety and regrets over the untimely dropping of a trusted pilot.

One consolation, it is generally conceded, Mr. Bonar Law will have, is that he has no enemies and that no one will withhold from him sympathy. He accepted his high office with reluctance; he leaves it, amidst unforgotten regrets on the part of both supporters and opponents.

Mr. Bonar Law's resignation was taken to the king at Aldershot by Colonel Waterhouse, the prime minister's private secretary, and Sir Frederick Sykes, his son-in-law, who motored from London.

The tragedy of Bonar Law has affected Great Britain deeply. The news of his resignation will not be known to the country until the people read it in the morning papers. It will be no surprise, although few expected it so soon. From both political and personal standpoints it will be received with regret, from the political standpoint almost with consternation.

From the well known specialists called in consultation Mr. Bonar Law's illness is universally inferred to be a parallel to the last days of President Grant.

Hull Asks Cut in Sugar Tariff

Washington.—Chairman Hull of the Democratic national committee renewed his request of President Harding for a fifty per cent reduction of sugar tariff rates under the flexible provisions of the new law. "The recent action of Canada in reducing the tariff on raw sugar forty cents on one hundred pounds, and on refined sugar fifty cents on one hundred pounds," said Mr. Hull in a statement, "immediately resulted in a reduction in like amount of the price of refined sugar to Canadian consumers, as reported in the press."

Death Sweeps Kentucky Hills

Harlan, Ky.—The flash of gunfire, with its inevitable aftermath of tragic death, sweeps the Kentucky foothills today with a regularity only duplicated in the popular vein of fiction which recounts her most famous blood feuds. In this one county, high in the Blue Ridge mountains, seven lives were taken recently in a trio of gun battles. Four of the seven were slain in a fierce battle waged between mountaineers and a posse of federal and county officers.

French Wound Two Germans

Berlin.—Special dispatches to the Berlin newspapers report "an orgy of street shooting" by the French in Mannheim in which as many as 150 shots were fired and at least two Germans seriously wounded. The Germans say the French patrol on Friedrichs bridge fired wildly in all directions, some of the shots hitting nearby houses, while a street car filled with passengers was directly fired upon. The cause of the outbreak is not given.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER
COPYRIGHT BY WILLIAM BROWN UNION

CHARLES NORMAN

Billie Brownie was just as excited as he could be. He could hardly talk so anyone could understand him.

It was all because of his excitement. "Mother Nature," he said, "I must see him at once! Oh dear, dear Mother Nature, I didn't mean to speak like that. I didn't mean to say it in such a commanding, rude way. But I am so excited that I said that I must see him when I meant to ask you, dear Mother Nature, if you would be so good as to let me call on him just as soon as possible?"

Mother Nature smiled her big, generous smile and said: "But Billie Brownie, I don't know whom you want to see. You must tell me! That's my command! Do you want to see the flowers or the butterflies and understand what they have to say?"

"They're all at their best now that the summer time is here."

"Oh, no," said Billie Brownie, "much as I love the flowers and the butterflies, I don't want to see them now, even though they are at their best in the summer time, which is the present time."

"I want to see none other than Charles Norman!"

Now Billie Brownie was often given permission by Mother Nature to talk to her children so he could understand their languages.

"Of all I've ever seen or ever want to see I know Charles Norman heads the list," he said.

So Mother Nature gave Billie Brownie her gift of understanding for she knew at once of Charles Norman.

And so it was with joy that she sent Billie Brownie forth to talk to Charles Norman.

He was on a porch out-of-doors, in a big white carriage, and he was dressed in the best clothes he had and that was saying a good deal. He had most beautiful clothes. Sometimes, when the big people were looking at him and smiling at him and loving him with their sweet voices and their affectionate looks he would chuckle to himself: "They do pay me so much attention, and how much they give me. I have the most extensive wardrobe, yes, the most extensive wardrobe."

"Extensive" was a word Charles Norman was very fond of.

"Yes, they've given me everything to wear. They just have showered me with garments. But that day will cease when they present me with clothes. When I grow up I don't suppose all my mother's friends and relatives and my daddy's friends and relatives will come and say:

"Here's a fur-lined coat for you, Charles Norman." Or, "Here's a pair of rubber boots and five pairs of ordinary ones and a suit for every day in the week!"

"Hello, Charles Norman," said Billie Brownie, "I am mighty glad to see you."

"Glad to see you, too," said Charles Norman, who had been given a very cordial, sweet nature by his mother as one of her gifts to him.

"What's your news?" Billie Brownie asked.

"My daddy takes snapshots of me to his office and instead of doing work all the men look at my pictures. That's showing you what I do! I interrupt business, but what is business compared to my pictures, my daddy says, even if some of them are poor, for I'm not going to look straight at the sun even if the sun is magnificent. And sometimes there is no sun and then I can hardly be seen in the pictures."

"They call me a little squawler and they say I have a powerful voice, but it is when my voice is still that my mouth is handsome. My latest game is to count the number of times my mother says how sweet and wonderful I am and the number of times my daddy says so, and see who says it more often than the other. They're even in the race at present."

"I've a beautiful mother, clever too, and so awfully nice, and my daddy is just all a daddy should be. As for my grandfather—well, there's a noble man if ever was one! So I'm just a little bit nice it is all because I live amongst such people that I'm getting the habit!"

"You're a splendid boy," Billie Brownie said, "and I admire your golden hair and your dark, bright eyes, but most of all I admire you—and I am so glad you came to this world, for you're a mighty addition to it even if you are but a baby."

Forest Exhaustion Brings High Prices

Denver, Colo.—Lumber production in the United States has been steadily decreasing for 13 years and this in the face of a need unparalleled in the history of the country. According to a bulletin just published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, of 37 eastern and southern lumber producing states, 36 showed a decreased cut and only one a slight increase in 1920; while Pacific Slope States all report substantial increases, showing that the center of production is shifting to the Western States, the last of our softwood reserves. Thirty years ago after the depletion of New York and Pennsylvania white pine sections, the American lumber market was drawing its supply from the Great Lakes States. When the source in those sections became exhausted and the forests no longer able to supply the demand or furnish enough to keep the mills in operation, the industry moved to the Southern Yellow Pine region, and is rapidly duplicating the same procedure there. The inevitable result follows that within the near future we shall be wholly dependent upon this reserve of all-purpose softwoods, the Pacific Slope. Not only is this the only remaining domestic source of softwoods, but a recent survey of the world's supply of this commodity discloses the fact that there are no foreign forests of this character that we may draw upon when our own are exhausted.

Counterfeiting Gang Broken Up

San Francisco.—Through the arrest of Benjamin K. Rolph, federal authorities declared that the nation-wide counterfeiting conspiracy has been broken up. They charge that Rolph, the "master mind" of the organization, taught counterfeiting to dope addicts and depended upon them to dispose of the spurious product of his ring. He was seized after a battle by secret service operatives and police. Edward Roberts and Mrs. Jennie Hastings were arrested in his company.

Army Horse Test at Colorado Springs

Washington.—An army horse endurance test of recognized breeds will be conducted in Colorado, to last five days, starting July 30. The start will be made at Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, and for five consecutive days the competing horses will cover sixty miles a day. This test is conceded by army officials to be more severe than a similar one which will be conducted at Avon, N. Y., at the same time, due to the fact that on some days between 1,500 and 2,000 feet altitude will be gained and on other days 1,000 feet will be lost.

Children Die from Starvation

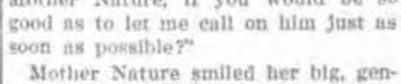

San Bernardino, Calif.—Two deaths from starvation in the same family, within forty-eight hours were revealed when Amella Gusman, 10 months old, died at the home of her parents at Ontario, near here, from improper feeding, according to the death certificate signed by the coroner. Two days ago Herman Gusman, 7 months old, died. "Both children had actually died from improper feeding," declared the coroner.

Slogan of Shriners Illustrated

"Park your camel with Uncle Sam" is the slogan of the Shriners in Washington who are now awaiting the arrival of thousands of Shriners to the capital city for the convention in June. This is the official picturization of the slogan as the committee has interpreted it. And an interesting point is that the gentleman pictured as "Uncle Sam" is really known by that name at the Soldiers' home in Washington where he resides.

MEMORIAL DAY PLANS PREPARED

AMERICAN LEGION IS RAISING FUND OF $100,000 FOR GRAVES IN FRANCE.

POPPY THE OFFICIAL FLOWER

Blood-Red Blossom of Flanders' Field Will Be Put on Resting Place of Every American Who Died in the Service.

By EDWARD B. CLARK

Washington.—In Washington in this month of May the soldiers of our wars are preparing for Memorial day. In Arlington, the national cemetery, lie thousands upon thousands of soldier dead. Within the last three years the bodies of 8,000 comrades of the World war have been laid to rest under the trees shadowing God's Acre on the Virginia hill which rises from the bank of the Potomac within sight of the country's capital.

This year members of the American Legion are trying to raise a fund of $100,000 to be set aside to bear interest which can be used to purchase flowers for the decoration of the graves of the dead in France. In addition, an attempt is being made by the Legionnaires of the District to raise another fund, the interest of which is to be used through the years for Memorial day purposes in Arlington and in the smaller cemeteries of the capital city. The preparations for Memorial day in the capital this year are on a larger scale than ever before. Thousands upon thousands of ex-service men die during every year, and never can there be a lack of names on the soldier death list until war for all time shall pass away. No grave is neglected, whether it be that of one who fought in the Revolution, or of one for whom taps was sounded after he had laid down his rifle as a soldier in the regular army of today.

Poppy the Memorial Flower.

Some time ago the largest organization of ex-service men of the World war voted to supplant the poppy of France with the daisy of America as the Memorial flower of the Legion. Quickly after this action was taken it was reconsidered and the poppy has come back into its own. It is difficult to find any man who served in the war for civilization who does not hold to the poppy as the proper floral emblem of an order whose men fought in the fields where the blood-red flower grows.

In Washington today poppies are being sold for the benefit of the Memorial day fund for the graves of the soldiers of the World war. Possibly it is not generally realized how many women there were who actually entered into the armed service of the United States. Many women were enlisted for semi-military duty. Some of these duties involved personal danger to the enlisted. This month in Washington the ex-service women are engaged in the work of making poppies. It is difficult to tell without the use of the sense of touch that the flowers which they are making are not the poppies of Flanders' Field. On every grave of a veteran of the World war in France and in the United States on Memorial day poppies will have a place with the flowers of the homeland.

In France the greatest Memorial day exercises will be witnessed at Romagne, where about 20,000 American soldiers lie awaiting the reveille. The French gave to the United States forever the great tract where the majority of the American dead lie buried. From a height near Romagne can be seen Mount Faucon and the shadowy outlines of the Argonne forests with all the fields of battle which lie in between. There on mountain, on hillside, on plain and in valley Americans gave up their lives for liberty. Most of them lie virtually where they fell, and on May 30 of this year and on May 30 of all the years to come they will not be forgotten.

Fund of $350,000 Is Needed.

It is understood that the sum of $350,000 will be necessary to insure that on every Memorial day flowers of America and France will be placed upon the resting place of every American soldier of the World war. The fund will remain untouched, the interest only being used. A liberal computation has been made, and it is believed that if the sum of fifty cents for each grave be set aside it will be sufficient to remember worthily the dead of the World war.

It has been said that there is satisfaction in the ranks of the veterans of the World war that the poppy of Flanders, of the valley of the Marne and of the Moselle, and of the fields bordering the stretches of the Meuse and the forests of the Argonne.

For centuries in France the poppy has been regarded as the war flower, or, perhaps, rather as the flower of war's aftermath. Its color is significant of sacrifice, and as it grows abundantly on virtually all of the battlefields of France, and as the whole country at one time or another has been a battlefield, the poppy has come to be looked upon as a fitting memorial of the dead heroes of the land.

The French soldier looks upon the poppy as a symbolic flower. Today American soldiers who served side by side with the French look upon it likewise.

Lodge and the World Court.

What action will the senate committee on foreign relations take on President Harding's proposal for American membership in the International Court of Justice?

The answer to this question perhaps is more vital to the subject matter of the President's proposal than is the result of the President's appeals as they make themselves manifest in the attitude of the people of the country. Every politician and every student of the world court matter is looking ahead to next December, and in the meantime is trying to learn something in advance of the possible action of the senate committee which will have in charge the work of making a report on the plan to the greater body of the senate.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, the chairman of the foreign relations committee, already has issued a statement on the court plan generally. The senator did not commit himself definitely one way or the other, but he said enough to make it known that if he continues to feel as he feels today he is likely to favor some changes in the President's proposal when the matter goes before his committee for consideration.

Senate Committee Will Be Changed.

The foreign relations committee will not be the same body next winter that it is today. The committee still exists, because senate committees have continuous life just as the senate has, but several of its members dropped out of congress as a result of the last election and their places must be filled as soon as the new congress convenes in December.

The administration, because of its advocacy of membership in the world court, of course desires that senators favorable to its plan shall be given places on the committee which is to give the plan consideration and to make report thereon. The administration, however, cannot appoint senate committees, and neither is it supposed to exercise any influence in the appointment matter. Senators are extremely jealous of their prerogatives.

The new Republican and Democratic members of the foreign relations committee will be appointed by the senate, the Republican majority picking its men and the Democratic minority picking its men for the vacant places.

These three Republican senators on the committee were defeated for reelection at the polls last November: McCumber of North Dakota, New of Indiana and Kellogg of Minnesota. Two Democratic members of the committee, Pomeroy of Ohio and Hitchcock of Nebraska, were defeated for reelection, while Senator Williams of Mississippi, also a committee member, declined to be a candidate to succeed himself.

Compromise Is Expected.

So it will be seen that there are six vacancies in the committee. Every one of the Republicans remaining in the committee is bitterly or almost bitterly opposed to the League of Nations. From what one learns from Senator Lodge's recent statement on the court matter, and from what one or two other of the senators have imparted quietly to the party managers, it is evident that there is a likelihood that most of the Republicans on the committee will accept the President's court plan but will urge some reservations or changes.

Concerning the Democrats on the committee, it seems likely that most of them will be favorable to the court proposal, but a committee which is dominated by the Republicans would much prefer that the body make a report backed by Republican votes rather than by a bare majority made up of committee members of both parties. Therefore it seems likely that the Republican majority will attempt to reach some finding which can receive the votes of all its members.

No one knows yet definitely what Republicans will be appointed to fill the three committee vacancies, nor for that matter is it known what Democrats will be appointed to fill the Democratic vacancies. It can be said definitely that the hopes of the friends of the administration's court plan are that opponents of the proposal not be chosen for committee membership.

If the country shall show an unmistakable approval of the administration's court plan the senate committee will give its approval, for it probably would not care nor dare to oppose the nation's will in the matter.

His Shop Always Open.

A Greenwich village shoemaker has devised a method for receiving shoes for repair when his shop is closed. His innovation consists of a large hole in the floor on the principle of a letter slot.

"Since I adopted the scheme," he said, "my repair work has doubled. No matter what hours you keep your shop open there is some one who can come only at another time."

"Now these people drop their shoes through my door slot with written instructions for the repairs. They also tell me when they will call for the shoes, and I can get them ready accordingly."—New York Sun.

"What was that?" asked Blake.

TOO MANY LAWS INCREASE OUR TAXES

Governor Richardson of California hits the nail on the head when he says much regulation results in too many laws. In his fight for tax reduction he has urged the cutting of law-making to a minimum.

In an effort to gain public favor by "passing a law" to regulate "the other fellow" politicians in every state have built up an enormous overhead to administer or enforce the multiplicity of laws.

Aspirants for public favor in the next congress are already preparing legislation covering numerous phases of individual and industrial activity. It would be a godsend to the country if the new congress refused to pass any laws. Business catches its breath and gets somewhat stabilized between sessions of our national legislative assembly only to be disrupted and made uneasy by the volume of legislation that is imposed immediately the members of congress readjourn.

Instead of gauging a man's ability by the number of bills he can propose or pass, the people would reduce the cost of government and get better service if they sent representatives to their state and national assemblies who made records for passing the least legislation and for reducing, rather than increasing, the overhead burdens of government.

HOME OWNERS VS. RACE SUICIDE

Periodically we read something about race suicide in this or other countries. The latest statement is in our own United States that apartment house life will be the cause of decrease in our own population. There is no question about that, for the average apartment allows only dogs—not children.

The remedy is to urge our people to move out of the congested districts and build themselves little homes on the abundance of cheap residential property that surrounds all of our great cities.

This would accomplish two results: First, a home-owner makes a better citizen because he has an interest in our government and becomes more financially independent than the rent payer; second, it would help to hold down and maybe reduce the inflated values for a large portion of apartment house property and rents. The average apartment house rent of from $75 to $150 a month would soon pay for a fine home for any family.

An honest architect and contractor can put up a home cheaper today in proportion to your income than would have been possible in 1913. Don't let the high rent artists scare you about building. They build and are making money off of you. You can build and pay that money back to yourself and at the end of ten years have a valuable asset instead of some worthless rent receipts.

TOUGH LUCK FOR THE POOR WORKING MAN

Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, states that there are 160,000 secretaries of labor unions in the United States, and that they are paid $60,000,000 a year in salaries and expenses. The funds come directly from the workers.

We call that "tough luck" for the poor working man, who probably would not be able to pay a secretary—or anybody else—if it were not for organized labor and its secretaries. The $60,000,000 Mr. Allen probably believes is wasted is more than made up in increased wages paid organized workers.

THE STRIKE TRAGEDY

In cautioning iron and steel workers against over-use of the strike, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis says:

"Let us be slow to use the strike weapon. The tragedy of every strike, it seems to me, is that ultimately it is settled by negotiation or compromise. After men have been idle for months, after women and children have been brought down to the last crust of bread, the representatives of both sides get together around the counsel table and reach a settlement. They go right back to where they were when the months of misery began and in almost every case both the worker and the employer have lost by the conflict. Instead of conference after months of industrial battle I would have counsel before the strike is called."

Never was a saner statement made to both employes and employers. It sums up the strike evil in a nutshell so that any working man can understand it thoroughly.

MADE ODD BOUNDARY "LINE"

Explanation of Compound Curve That Settled Dispute of Early Colonial Days.

When William Penn obtained a grant in Pennsylvania he was very desirous of owning the land on Delaware bay to the sea, and procured from the duke of York a release of all his title and claim to New Castle and a radius of 12 miles around it, and to the land between that tract and the sea. Lord Baltimore protested, but in 1685 the Lords of trade and plantation made a decision in Penn's favor.

The tracts which now constitute the state of Delaware, Penn called "The Territories," or the "Three Lower Counties on the Delaware." They were governed as part of Pennsylvania for about 20 years. In 1776 the inhabitants declared them a separate state. Then ensued a long-drawn-out dispute between Delaware and Pennsylvania over the northern boundary line. Because of the inaccuracy of the original survey of 1701, no single curve could be made to pass through the stones set up to mark off a radius of 12 miles around New Castle. An attempt to rectify the line was made by the United States Coast and Geodetic survey, but when a number of Delaware residents found they would be geographically in Pennsylvania they raised such a howl that the survey was dropped, and a joint boundary commission was appointed to settle the dispute. A compound curve was found to conform very closely to the original line, so it was adopted.

Airplane Saved Marooned Party.

Far up in the mountains at the head of American Fork canyon, Utah, two men and a woman were marooned and starving in a mine cabin. Heavy snows had cut off the two miners and the woman from civilization. An air mail service plane was sent to the rescue. The pilot circled the cabin and dropped a package of supplies sufficient to maintain the party until they could get out to civilization.

Dressed for the Occasion.

Ten thousand Chinese soldiers guarding Tientsin, the pass to Tibet, are having their clothes sewed on their bodies. Garment after garment of heavily padded cotton is sewed into place on the body to remain undisturbed until the suns of summer return. The pass is the coldest place on the border.

Rich Silica Deposits.

Czecho-Slovakia possesses a deposit of silica mineral of volcanic origin which can be used directly in the manufacture of glass without adding any of the common ingredients used in making up the glass batch. This mineral resembles lava and the deposits are very large.

Student of His Own Time.

"Did you read Cicero's orations when you went to school?"
"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "I was afraid it would give me classical ideas that would spoil my form for the gatherings I addressed at the post office and general store."

CANADA'S IDLE WATER POWER

Estimated That 94 Per Cent of Available Potency Has Yet to Be Harnessed.

Canada's waterfalls developed 3,000,000 horse-power of electrical energy during 1922. The revenue to manufacturers from this power amounted to $51,000,000, according to a report issued by the federal water powers branch of the Dominion government.

Ontario, with Niagara Falls as its chief source of power, led in production among the provinces with 1,330,000 horse-power, the report shows. Quebec followed closely with 1,100,000 horse-power, and British Columbia was third with 310,000. The remainder was distributed among Manitoba, Alberta, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Despite the high cost of construction, hydro-power development installed last year totaled 529,000 horse-power. Total capital invested in water power is estimated at $620,058,731. Horse-power development amounts to 337 per 1,000 of Canada's population.

"Demand upon industrial centers for greater production is increasing with the cultivation of new stretches of farm land in the West," the report states. "Industrial experts are urging rapid installation of hydro-power plants with a view to providing machinery and other farm supplies at a lower cost, and thus stimulate the greater settlement of lands."

Water power now in use represents a little over 6 per cent of Canada's total water power resources, which are estimated by the report at 41,700,000 horse-power.

JUDGE'S IDEA OF JUSTICE

Explanation of Why Mercy Was Shown to Defaulting Banker and Severity to Chicken Thief.

Judge Swartz' resignation after 86 years on the bench in Montgomery county reminds me of a letter which I once received from him, "Girard" writes in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

He had sentenced a man to several years in prison for stealing chickens. The value of the booty was only a few dollars.

It happened on the same day that another judge in a central Pennsylvania county had sentenced a bank president to one year in prison.

The banker had misappropriated over $100,000, and for a period of many years he had falsified the accounts of the bank as returned to the comptroller of the currency. These two items were printed together in a Philadelphia newspaper as showing the difference in judicial severity.

The letter I got from Judge Swartz said it appeared on the face of it as if he had punished his man too hard, but the fact was the chicken thief was an old offender, to whom a term in prison meant no mental stress.

The bank president, argued Judge Swartz, would be punished the more severely by his brief term in jail, due to his higher standards of life.

Tree Planting in Massachusetts.

Massachusetts will have the biggest tree planting bee in its history this spring when 2,000,000 pines and spruces are set out by cities, towns and private citizens on waste land. Most of the young trees will be sold at nominal cost by the state.

"There has been a decided awakening in Massachusetts to the need of forest conservation," said Chief Forester H. O. Cook recently. "In the state nurseries, in which we raise pines and spruces, we have 1,500,000 trees of the best age for transplanting. There is such an increased interest in this subject that we expect to produce transplantable trees in our nurseries at a rate in excess of 4,000,000 annually."

The lowest estimated cost of the forest plantings is two cents for each little tree. The entire cost probably will exceed $40,000. In 50 years the trees should be worth $200,000.

Plant Pine and Spruce.

Pittsfield will plant 75,000 trees this year, mainly spruce, in the campaign for forest conservation started by foresters of New England at a meeting in Boston this winter. Other community forest plantings will be made in various parts of the state.

In general the trees to be set out in the western counties are spruce. In the eastern counties the plantings will be of white pine. As a means of combating the serious ravages of white pine blister rust, the state is offering the immune Scotch pine to be mingled in the new forest areas.

Rain-Making Not Feasible.

Rain-making is a futile undertaking, according to the weather bureau, United States Department of Agriculture. To produce one inch of rainfall over an area of an acre, approximately 113 tons of moisture would have to be drawn up into the air and then precipitated. There are 640 acres in a square mile, for which 72,320 tons of moisture would be required. A square mile, however, would be scarcely a dot in the center of any section where drought prevails, as in Arizona or parts of Texas. It would be less than one-seventh of the area of the District of Columbia.

Valuable Anesthetic.

BUTIN, a new drug, is a substitute for cocaine in dental and eye work and, also in minor surgery. It is a synthetic product and it is said the anesthesia produced is more profound and prolonged than that produced by cocaine. It is not a derivative of cocaine and has no attractions for the drug taker.

ADDING TO WAR'S CASUALTIES

Buried Shells Continue to Do Deadly Work in France—Tragedy in Parisian Hotel.

Shells buried in northern France during the war continue to explode occasionally when struck by peasants' plows, adding to the war casualties four years after the cessation of hostilities. The question is often asked whether an unexploded shell ever becomes harmless. Some experts say never, unless exposed to the air, while others contend that live shells because "duds" after many years.

The theory of the latter group is hardly borne out by an incident which recently occurred in a Paris hotel. A projectile of the time of Napoleon III had long been used by the hotel employees as a pestle, and had several times been fitted with new handles to replace those pounded off. Recently it was left in close proximity to the hotel furnace, with the result that the hotel engineer has gone into the class of casualties of the war of 1870, and the hotel is undergoing important repairs.

Irrigation in Egypt.

Important new irrigation work is about to be undertaken by the Egyptian government on the Blue Nile. The construction of a reservoir at Djebel Auulla will aid Egypt in cultivating almost any quantity of rice, will abolish the rotations concerning cotton; will supply the water necessary for irrigation by ditches, and will improve the uncultivated areas.

Experts in the Egyptian Irrigation service believe the reservoir will prevent the inundation of a large area of land in southern Sudan, and save to the Egyptian government large sums which it has been paying as compensation for damage done in areas.

The cost of the new undertaking will be about $15,000,000.

SUBSCRIBE; SAVE MONEY

SUNSET is the only general magazine of national circulation published west of Chicago, and the only periodical of that nature which is steadily fighting for national recognition of the west and its possibilities, its rights and its claims. It has been doing this for 25 years.

We are offering this high-class magazine in combination with the Patagonian for $3 a year. New or renewal subscribers may take advantage of this wonderful opportunity to secure Sunset and this newspaper—your home paper—for a very low figure. This offer may not last long. Hurry your order before it's too late.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF NEW YORK WORLD IN 1923 AND 1924

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly; No Other Newspaper in the World Gives So Much at So Low a Price.

The wide, wide world has become so narrowed by science that news from all around the globe is printed in the current New York World, together with the views of nation builders, master men and leading women everywhere, and particularly in the United States. No other newspaper is better equipped to give the news of the world at the time it is news than the New York World.

The Thrice-A-Week edition of The World is the greatest example of comprehensive journalism in America. It will keep you as thoroughly informed as a daily, which would cost five or six times as much. It is a unique newspaper, published three times a week, for $1 a year. This is the regular subscription price, and it pays for 156 newspapers.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and the SANTA CRUZ PATAGONIAN together for one year for $2.25. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3. You save 75 cents by this clubbing offer, and receive four papers a week.

The above offer is good for renewal subscribers as well as new ones.

NOT ALL GOOD FOR HEATING

Much Variation in Soapstones—Classification of Properties Would Be Most Valuable.

Soapstone is a term that has been loosely applied to several varieties of rock with differing chemical and physical properties. Some soapstones are hard, being only slightly different from serpentine, and others are soft and contain more talc. Some varieties have a definite grain and others are composed of interlocking prismatic crystals.

The difference in properties affects the suitability of various soapstones for different uses. In the construction of fabricated forms hardness, toughness and absence of grain are most important, but in the manufacture of foot warmers, griddles and heating stoves for fireless cookers resistance to heat and retention of heat are more important. Thus soapstone from certain localities in Virginia is more valuable for fabricating than for heat retention, and certain Vermont soapstones are superior for heating purposes. An investigation of the properties of various soapstones and classification by such properties would be most valuable.—New York Herald.

X-RAY LITTLE UNDERSTOOD

Not Much More Known of It Than When It Was First Made Public by Roentgen.

Wounds are no longer probed for bullets; fractures are not set by guess; flawed teeth are examined without being pulled.

But the extraordinary fact concerning the X-ray is that practically nothing has been learned about it since it was first introduced and experimented with by Roentgen. Enough has been found out about the laws that govern it to make it a practicable instrument for diagnosis, but as a scientific phenomenon it is almost isolated and is far from being understood. It remains, for the lay mind at least, an inexplicable demonstration of the lack of solidity in matter.

If there is a kind of light and a kind of sight that go through flesh and blood, then flesh and blood are subject to laws of which the race is so far almost completely ignorant. When the existing clews are developed it is fairly certain that Roentgen's contribution to science will loom larger even than at the present time.—New York World.

Woman Expected Real Service.

"White Plains! Dobb's Ferry! Tarrytown!" thundered the announcer. A middle-aged woman dragged her young son before the herald. The youngster's eyes were dimmed by tears. "Does your train go to Pittsburgh?" she asked.

"No, ma'am; this is a Tarrytown local," was the ready response. She walked away and sat down for a moment and then returned. The youngster was crying to beat the band. "Are you sure this train doesn't go to Pittsburgh?" she reiterated.

"Now, lady, I think you understand English. I told you before that it doesn't. Now, what's the idea of bothering me for nothing?"

"Well, you needn't get excited," she offered. "If you had listened you would have heard my little boy crying because he wants to go to Pittsburgh. A lot he knows the difference. Now, would it have hurt you to say that the train did go there?"—New York Times.

Geese Sixty-Seven Years Old.

Wild geese are sometimes said to be centenarians, but there has been difficulty in proving the statement. Some evidence has been presented, however, by Henry Stark, for, says Outdoor Life:

In 1855 an uncle of Henry Stark captured two Canada geese in a net spread along the beach of the Chickanoa islands in Chesapeake bay. Since that time this pair of geese have been paddling around farms owned by members of the Stark family.

A few years ago the uncle died at the ripe age of eighty-one, but the two Canada geese are still thriving and alert and seemingly in the prime of their youth. No one knows how old these geese were when captured, but Mr. Stark says he has evidence that they are sixty-seven years old now and he hopes they will prove the statement that wild geese live to be one hundred.

Mother of Invention.

Ingenuity was manifested to a notable degree in Spain and France at the time of the last solar eclipse. The windows in Madrid, Paris and other cities were filled with a great variety of devices for viewing the passage of the moon across the sun's disk without danger to the observer's eyes. There were black spectacles, black glass monocles, black glasses set in pasteboard handles of 20 different forms, and also devices for viewing the phenomenon by reflection. But the people made many contrivances of their own, such as pinholes through paper or through the tops of derby hats. Some viewed the eclipse in the streets or on the roofs by reflection from pans or pans of water to reduce the glare, and some saw it through cambric handkerchiefs or thin umbrellas tops. The bookshops abounded with paper-bound treatises on eclipses.—Washington Star.

From Poverty to Fame.

Maxim Gorky, the Russian novelist, and Chaliapin, the newest great discovery in the operatic world, were brought up in the same poorer class street in Kazan, the capital of an eastern province of Russia.

"AVERAGE" OWNERS OF CARS

More or Less Interesting Statistics Concerning Fortunate Ones Who "Honk" at Pedestrians.

Philosophers, politicians and others have spent a great deal of time and devoted a world of high-powered thought to finding Mr. Average Citizen. In order to carry it along further, a finance corporation has been working to discover who and what is Mr. Average Automobile Buyer.

Through vital statistics the survey in question was taken from the medium to higher-priced cars, thus eliminating entirely all the low-priced lines, says Farm Life. This was done to get an impersonal view of the average man who drives the average car of the higher grade.

Thus we learn that the average age of motor car buyers is thirty-four years; that 74 per cent of them have wives; 82 per cent of them have money in the bank and 60 per cent of them carry life insurance. Basing the next deduction on figures obtained by the acceptance corporation on sales between January 1 and June 1, we find that 85 per cent of the purchasers have owned cars before and that 45 per cent of that number bought on credit.

MUST USE EGYPTIAN DESIGN

Only One Way to Mount Scarabs, Just Now Coming Into Great Popular Favor.

Speaking of scarabs, and the wave of Egyptian influence brings the scarab again into prominence, Leonide C. Laveron, Chicago, a recognized authority on jewelry design and kindred subjects in art, says:

"To mount scarabs correctly, follow the design of the Egyptians used when the scarab was worn by the kings in the Valley of the Nile. Any departure from this design is utterly lacking in artistry.

Miss Laveron sketched off in pencil the correct design. The king wore the scarab in a ring. A gold bar passed through the body of the scarab ending in knobs at either end, so the scarab revolved on the bar. This was attached to a ring, on the sides flanked with twisted gold wire. The cartouche of the king was on the obverse side of the scarab. The king used the ring as a seal. The other correct mountings, according to Miss Laveron, is the scarab in the center of a bar pin, flanked by wings or by the head of the sun god or the asp. All of these motifs were used in the days when scarabs were worn as a sign of rank.

Ask for Large Sum.

Something like $25,000 is required to establish women's colleges at Oxford, and while women have been taking advantage of the educational opportunities offered there, no women's colleges have yet been possible. The London Times in an editorial calls attention to the fact that many of the endowments have been made by women and that "piety," never lacking in the national character, should inspire all those who have had the advantage of such endowments to help the good cause of the "women's colleges" at Oxford. It is hard times in England and it is not easy to raise such a large sum, although the editorial asserts that "no one in theory grudges the money, or would deny a university education to as many women as are worthy of it."

Harvard university in Radcliffe college has long had a woman's college of which it is justly proud.

Sunset is emphatically a magazine for the whole family, and it is not duplicated in any sense by any other periodical. Despite heavier costs of production and mailing expense, due to 'zone' postage rates, Sunset maintains a fair subscription price of $2.50 per year; but permits western newspapers to offer it in attractive club combinations. Sunset readers are given the benefit of a Special "Western" Editorial section (Pulse of the West), a home-makers' and home-builders' section (The Home in the West), The Book Corner, The Service Bureau, the Guide Post (for travelers and tourists) and interesting Westerners—annual stories of unusual (western) people; besides a high quality of fiction and special articles.

You may not soon again have the opportunity to get this high-class magazine at a reduction. By special arrangement with the publishers of Sunset we are offering it in combination with the Patagonian (for a limited time only) at a saving of $1.50 per year for the two publications. You want your "home" paper, and you should also be a subscriber for a distinctly "western" magazine. Sunset will fill that need.

Every person in the west who subscribes for Sunset magazine is really helping the west—and himself, as well. Get the Patagonian and Sunset for $3 a year—a saving of $1.50. That's a good business proposition, isn't it?

A man who said he was James M. Clark, was arrested in Los Angeles on charges of having defrauded many persons in a number of American cities by the alleged sale of land in the Peace River district of Canada.

In response to a telegram from Houston, Texas, officers asking if James C. Dunham was wanted in San Jose, Cal., Police Chief J. N. Black of San Jose replied that Dunham was wanted in connection with the deaths of his wife and five other persons May 20, 1890, at Campbell, seven miles west of San Jose.

That a prehistoric race of people—plants, in fact—lived in California and Arizona, 607,000 years before King Tutankhamen of Egypt, is conclusively proven, Samuel Hubbard, Oakland archaeologist, declared recently in telling of evidence he has found in the Grand Canon of Arizona to support such a belief.

The War Department was requested to place the monoplane T-2, in which Lieut. Oakley G. Kelly and John A. McCready made their recent non-stop transcontinental flight in the war memorial building at San Diego, as a permanent historical exhibit, in a resolution adopted at Riverside, Calif., at the state convention of United Spanish War Veterans.

Miss Wilma Ruth Rayburn, a member of the graduating class at the University of California, was presented with her degree at the university infirmary at Berkeley and died a half hour later. Miss Rayburn, 22 years old, a daughter of the Rev. Clinton H. Rayburn of San Francisco, collapsed during the final examinations and was removed to the infirmary.

Stephen H. Love, of Salt Lake City, president of the United States Sugar Manufacturers' Association, sent notice to members in twenty-nine states that a conference would be held at Colorado Springs, Colo., on May 29. The general sugar situation and the federal probe of sugar sales will be among the questions discussed, Mr. Love said.

WASHINGTON

Fifty thousand American business concerns, representing a total investment of at least $2,500,000,000 are affected by a federal decision holding void the purchase of stock through personal notes in all corporations organized under the laws of the state of Delaware.

Public lands in three states were opened to entry by ex-service men under an order issued recently by the Interior Department. The tracts include 287 acres in Baca county, Colorado; 160 acres in Fergus county, Montana; and 100 acres in the Salt Lake land district, Utah.

The remains of two men found near the wreckage of an airplane on Cuyamaca mountain, east of San Diego, were positively identified as those of Col. Francis Marshall and Lieut. Chas. Webber of the aviation corps of the U. S. army. The discovery of the bodies ends a search for the missing aviators which has been carried on for months.

Free on $500 bond and his trial set for June 15, Upton Sinclair, author and socialist, arrested at San Pedro on a charge of unlawful assemblage and suspicion of violation of the criminal syndicalism law, declared in Los Angeles he would take no further part in the existing longshoremen's strike and devote his entire efforts toward winning his own case.

Intensive drives against all forms of tobacco have been inaugurated in all parts of the country, with the avowed object of "burying tobacco in the same grave with John Barleycorn." Jess Bloch of Wheeling, W. Va., president of the Tobacco Merchants' Association of the United States, told 400 members of the association who met in Washington recently.

Great Britain alone of the allied powers has replied to the American suggestion of April 2 last for concerted action to bring about a permanent solution of the relief problem in the Near East. The British, it was said at the State Department, expressed willingness to participate in any sound plan for permanent relief measures, but advanced no suggestion as to the form such measures might take.

George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, declared upon his arrival in New York City on the steamship George Washington that he knew nothing about reports that he had resigned, or planned to resign, in order to direct a campaign for the renomination and re-election of President Harding.

Director Scobey of the mint announced that purchases of silver by the government under the Pittman act had reduced the amount required to fulfill the terms of that law to approximately 10,000,000 ounces.

The strike of the Belgian state employees has reached serious proportions. Work in the larger cities was at a standstill.

The Ukrainian government has sent a note to Lord Curzon, the British foreign secretary, with a copy to Ramsay MacDonald, the opposition Labor leader, expressing the hope that there will be no break in the relations between Russia and Great Britain.

As a result of the House of Lords' decision in the case of Art O'Brien, the British government is requesting the Irish Free State government to return to England all the prisoners deported to Ireland, Home Secretary Bridgman announced in the House of Commons.

The Earl of Carrarvon, discoverer of the tomb of Tutankhamen, left an estate of £368,927, it developed when his will was filed for probate in London. He bequeaths his race horses and his personal estate to his wife. This includes his collection of Egyptian treasures in London.

In the Shantung hills back of Lincheng are, according to the latest available information, fourteen men and two women—foreigners—together with an unknown number of Chinese, who have been held by Chinese bandits who raided the Shanghai-Peking express and kidnapped the passengers.

A villa was rented in the name of Henry Ford of Detroit, at Muri, a fashionable resort near Berne, Switzerland. The villa adjoins one of Herr Muhlhan, former director of Krupp's, who became a pacifist and wrote "The Destruction of Europe." The lease, which was registered at the town hall, runs for the entire summer.

Reports received in Paris, France, tended to confirm that the woman killed in the airship crash at Montrose was Miss Juanita Bates of Ithaca, N. Y. The woman, who was traveling alone, gave her age as 32. The cause of the accident, which resulted in the death of six persons, including, besides Miss Bates, Laurence Von Post Schwab of New York, has not been determined.

That the leaders of the bandits who are holding more than a dozen foreigners in the hills back of Lincheng are highly educated, intelligent men, determined that their demands shall be met and showing little if any faith in promises made by Chinese authorities, are among the statements made by Roy Anderson, American, who returned to Tientsin, from a trip to the robbers' stronghold.

GENERAL

Fire and Police Commissioner John Alderman and two firemen were injured when flames wiped out an entire block in the business district of Fort Worth, Texas, the main buildings of which were occupied by the Gabert garage. The loss is estimated at $150,000 to $200,000.

Efforts are being made to funnel out the blaze of the Hughes-McClell well at Corsicana, Texas. A line of ten-inch casing has been laid on the ground running from the fire limits into the mouth of the well casing. A straight elbow or quarter bend is being placed on the end. This will cap the hole and deflect the oil and gas flow horizontally through the ten-inch line, it is believed. This method is calculated by oil men to shut off the oxygen supply and at the same time separate the flow.

A little bit gray and looking as mature as a retired farmer, the former champion of the world Jess Willard, stopped Floyd Johnson, the 23-year-old Iowa boy, after eleven rounds of desperate fighting in the feature bout of the greatest boxing show for charity in the history of the country. It was the show at the Yankees' new stadium in New York City for the benefit of the free milk fund of the mayor's committee of women, headed by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, and attended by 60,000 people.

The sanitarium at Colorado City, Texas, is filled with victims of the tornado which swept a strip of territory a mile wide and fifteen miles long near that town a few days ago. Sixteen bodies have been recovered. About 200 persons were hurt and property and crop damage will total millions of dollars, according to observers.

Hot Springs, Ark., is endeavoring to extricate itself from debris and ruin left by flood, fire and wind which wrecked the business district of the city with damage to property which is expected to run into the millions. Several persons are reported to have been killed. It is not expected, however, that the death list will exceed three or four persons.

Once proudly floating the American flag during a world-wide cruise of the United States navy and with a brilliant World War service record, the former navy dispatch boat Yankton was revealed as the run runner Yankton under British registry. As a result of her capture federal warrants were issued in New York City for eight men, alleged heads of a nation-wide run ring.

Lord Curzon's reply to the German reparations note expresses disappointment at the "inadequate sum" offered and at the lack of provision as to guarantees, and also voices a suggestion that Germany will "reconsider to expand her proposals" in such a way as to convert them into a feasible basis for further discussion.

Final passage of a bill to ban corporal punishment of convicts in Florida was effected when the Senate refused to reconsider its action in banning the whip. The bill goes to the governor.

Francis R. Otero, touring across Arizona en route from Texas to California, was instantly killed at Mesa when a revolver he was carrying in his pocket was accidentally discharged. Otero had stopped his automobile in front of a gasoline service station and as he started to remove his coat the gun was discharged.

"One consideration alone, the inadequate supply of experienced miners available, is today preventing the rapid increase of production of copper in the mines and smelters of Arizona," says the Arizona Daily Star, a Tucson publication, reporting an interview with H. A. Clark, superintendent of the C. and A. smelter at Douglas.

Intimation concerning the status of the Tucson National Bank, the youngest of the federal reserve banks of the Old Pueblo, and established five years ago in April, 1918, culminated when a notice of the closing of its doors was posted on the premises recently. The notice placed on the main entrance to the bank bore the signature of the national bank examiner in charge for the comptroller of the currency, H. J. Brewer, Jr.

The Rev. Fred Wedge, whose arrest on a charge of criminal syndicalism by Los Angeles police occurred recently, formerly was principal of the Benson high school, which office he resigned under fire. Before and after this experience as a school master, Wedge studied in the University of Arizona, and last year attracted considerable attention when he entered Harvard University after beating his way across the continent.

Wayne Hubbs, state treasurer, has received a check for $2,085.42 as partial payment of the inheritance tax due the state on the estate of Lionel Jacobs, who prior to his death was a well known banker in Tucson. The check represents, Mr. Hubbs said, the payment of the tax on $102,000 of the estate which is valued at approximately $250,000.

Andrew L. Hepler, alias L. H. White, and W. H. Henry, is under arrest in Phoenix on a charge of embezzling $200,000 from citizens of Butler, Pa., through an insurance and mortgage concern. Officers fired three shots at Hepler and bent him into submission after he had attempted to escape and then engaged them in a fist fight.

That Arizona will not be officially represented at the League of the Southwest conference on the Colorado river in Santa Barbara, Calif., next month was the prevailing opinion in Arizona when it became known that the board of directors of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce had refused to comply with the request of Arnold Kruekmann, secretary of the league, that they name Arizona delegates.

The Pinal Bank and Trust Company of Florence, Ariz., has closed its doors. Representatives of the state bank examiner's office took charge. Dugald Stewart of Florence is president of the bank, which had deposits of $274,124.84, according to a statement of April 3.

More than 300 students are expected to be in attendance at the school session in Bisbee this summer, according to President Marvin of the University of Arizona. Eleven instructors will be in charge of the summer session.

WALTERS IS READY TO BUCK THE LINE

Declares Tanlac Ended Indigestion and Put Him in Pink of Condition.

"I would stake my last throw on Tanlac, for it can't be beat," says Floyd E. Walters, 1008 E. 18th St., Kansas City, Mo.

"My appetite was such a stacker I could hardly eat enough to keep going, and all the disagreeableness of indigestion, bloating, heartburn and palpitation fell to my lot. I would tremble from nervousness, sleep was almost a stranger to me, and my head and back ached so bad I could hardly stand it. I was as pale as a sheet, and that 'all in' feeling was nearly throttling me.

"But today I am in the pink of condition, feeling as hale and hearty as when I used to play football back in Leavenworth, Kansas, and the Tanlac treatment is what turned the trick for me. Yes, sir, I feel as fine as a fiddle, and am greatly indebted to Tanlac."

Mrs. Robinson Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Amarillo, Texas.—"My back was my greatest trouble. It would ache so that it would almost kill me and I would have cramps. I suffered in this way about three years; then a lady friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had better health since, kept house and am able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends as it has certainly given me great relief."

—Mrs. C. B. Robinson, 608 N. Lincoln St., Amarillo, Tex. The Vegetable Compound is an splendid medicine for women. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful times, irregularity, tired and worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. Robinson writes as well as by one woman telling another. These women know what it did for them. It is surely worth your trial. Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

Making a Lawn. "My place is new," remarked a man who bought a home on Alter road, "and the soil doesn't seem to be able to produce a stand of grass. I have been told to plant oats with my grass seed. When the oats come up they are to be cut off and allowed to wilt and die. But their roots help to form a sod. This was a new one on me, and whether it's old or new, good or bad, I don't know."—Detroit News.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Secretary Hughes Declares League of Nations a Failure in Enforcing Peace.

FRIENDSHIP IS ONLY WAY

President Harding's Comment on New York's "Wet" Legislation—Greece Threatens to Fight Turkey—Great Britain and Russia Likely to Reach Accord.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SAN FRANCISCO, Cleveland, Chicago and Buffalo are seeking the Republican national convention of next year, with Chicago apparently in the lead. Which one do you think should be awarded the prize, and why?

SECRETARY OF STATE HUGHES has definitely joined the ranks of those Americans who are opposed to American membership in the League of Nations. Since his campaign statement in 1920, in which he and 30 other Republican leaders urged the election of Mr. Harding as the most effective way to obtain changes in the covenant that would make it safe for the United States to join the league, Mr. Hughes has observed what he thinks is the utter failure of the league to enforce peace and has concluded the machinery set up by it for that purpose is impracticable.

Mr. Hughes' utterances, which it is fair to assume had the advance approval of the President, were made in an address to the National Conference of Social Work in Washington. He did not mention the league by name, but here is what he had to say on that subject:

"The more we reflect upon the essential conditions of peace the more clearly it appears that they are not to be found in any artificial arrangements, important as these may be as facilities; that it is the disposition of peoples that counts.

"Any sort of contrivance will fail if peoples are not disposed to peace, or are not able to find ground for belief in each other. It is idle to talk of proscribing war unless the peoples are intent on maintaining peace. You cannot maintain peace by force, for who will supply, who will control, who will direct, the force?

"Great nations may indeed discipline a weak power, provided they are united in policy and provided always that the weak power is not a necessary weight in some contrived balance of power. But when great nations do not agree among themselves, who shall guard the guardians? In that case, all the arrangements made to depend upon their harmony of view are bound to fail.

"If those who are keenly desirous of enduring peace will descend to the contemplation of realities, it will be seen that there is only one way to the goal—a long and difficult way—that is, by the cultivation of the spirit of friendship and good will among the peoples through which alone the sources of dangerous strife can be dried up.

"If you find anywhere in the world—as, for example, we happily find in the case of our relations to our neighbor to the north—a complete assurance of lasting peace, it is not because of treaties or political arrangements of any sort; it is simply because the roots of amity strike deep in the thoughts and convictions of both peoples.

believe from personal knowledge and experience that it would be destructive of the best interests of his country to become enmeshed in the politics of Europe is branded as a candidate against President Harding."

THIS leads to consideration of the report from Washington, after a series of political conferences in the White House, that Attorney General Daugherty will not manage Mr. Harding's campaign for renomination owing to his continued ill health. Indeed, it is believed he may soon resign from the cabinet for the same reason. His successor as pre-convention manager for Harding was not selected, but among the men discussed for that work were Charles D. Hillis of New York, Will H. Hays and A. D. Lasker, retiring chairman of the shipping board. Those participating in the conferences had no doubt, seemingly, that the President would win a renomination.

These leaders had a good deal to say about the situation in New York state where they fear the effects of the prohibition issue. There was a rumor that Theodore Roosevelt would offer himself as a gubernatorial candidate next year, his admirers asserting he is the one man who might defeat Al Smith.

PASSAGE of a bill repealing the New York prohibition enforcement acts led a citizen of Newburgh to write President Harding urging that congress be convened and that every legislator who voted for the bill and Governor Smith, if he signs it, be suspended as traitors. In replying, the President reiterated the statement that his administration would use every means to enforce the prohibition amendment to the Constitution, and continued:

"I venture that, if by reason of the refusal or failure of any state to discharge its proper duty, the federal government is compelled to enter upon the territory and jurisdiction of the state and to set up those police and judicial authorities which would be required, the most difficult and trying situations would inevitably arise.

"More or less conflict between state and federal authorities would seem unavoidable in such circumstances. The impression would be created that the federal government was assuming to interfere with the functions of the states, and the distressing results that would ensue readily suggest themselves."

FROM various government agencies in Washington there came last week reports further confirming the stories of enormous general prosperity in the United States. The railroads are doing a record-breaking business in hauling the products of factory and farm, and although agriculture has not yet come in for its full share of the good times, the increased buying power of the farmer is shown by the spring orders of general stores and the new business of mail-order houses. In its report on industrial employment conditions for April 30 the Department of Labor says there is little unemployment anywhere in the country, and increased demands for all classes of skilled labor, skilled mechanics and farm hands were general during April. The predicted shortage of competent farm labor already is a fact.

What is declared to be a "serious situation throughout the country" confronts the building industry, and representatives of all its branches who met in conference in New York last week adopted a resolution recommending that all new building construction be deferred for a few months in order to check the steadily mounting cost of both material and labor. Projects under course of construction, it was agreed, should be completed.

It is stated that building projects totaling $100,000,000 in New York city and $75,000,000 in Chicago already are held up indefinitely by high costs. In the face of this some of the building construction unions in both cities are demanding further advances in wages, and dealers in materials show no disposition to lower their prices.

AT THIS writing the Americans and Europeans held as hostages by the Chinese bandits near Lincheng have not been released, and anxiety over their fate is increasing. The outlaws have enlarged their demands, and there is likelihood that they will be incensed to the murder of their captives by the fact that the government, instead of withdrawing its troops from the region, has kept it surrounded. Worse yet, a detachment of bandits that was moving to join the main band was attacked by soldiers and driven back. Through the courageous efforts of several foreign residents food, clothing and medicines have reached the captives, some of whom are in serious condition.

IF THE peace conference at Lausanne adjourns without definite result it seems likely that war between Greece and Turkey will follow. Venizelos informed Ismet Pasha that Turkey's demands for reparations from Greece must be dropped, since his country would fight rather than pay a cent. The prospect of renewed hostilities caused rejoicing in Greece and the economic and financial conditions there improved immediately. The Greek army in Thrace, numbering about 150,000, was said to be under orders to be ready to march on Constantinople. The French foreign office has made it clear that France will support Greece, asserting that it had positive information that responsibility for the war in which she was beaten does not devolve on Greece.

By a financial coup a British syndicate has purchased control of the famous Berlin-Bagdad railway, a pet project of the former kaiser of Germany. It is, of course, but partly completed and is in poor condition, but its potential value is immense. The concessions connected with it conflict with the Chester concession, especially along the Mosul frontier. This achievement by the English has enraged the French government. It is said, as they and the Americans now have obtained the two biggest things in Anatolia.

RELATIONS between Great Britain and Russia probably will not be ruptured despite Curzon's ultimatum. That fierce note, it seems, was really dictated by the foreign minister's offended amour propre and was not backed up by the business men of England. The soviet government, also, was not desirous of trouble and Leonid Krassin flew from Moscow to London in an airplane to try to smooth over the difficulties. He declared Russia was quite willing to adjust any complaints, and was graciously received by the British officials. It was predicted in London that the net result would be that relations with Russia would be strengthened and made closer instead of being broken.

Rumania, however, has shown sharper disapproval of the soviet regime. Envoys from Moscow were in Bucharest to negotiate a commercial treaty. They demanded that Rumania recognize the soviet government, and Premier Bratianu replied that if this was necessary to the making of the treaty, his country would get along without the pact. The Moscow envoys were then given their passports and sent home.

SETTLEMENT of the costs of the American army of occupation was reached last week so far as it could be by Elliott Wadsworth and the allied representatives in Paris, but it may be Washington will not accept the plan. The allies agreed, as Mr. Wadsworth asked, that the sums advanced by America for the costs of its army of occupation shall be repaid over a period of 12 years; second, these payments will be made by the reparations commission from the cash sums paid by Germany on the reparations account with absolute priority of 25 per cent on each year's payments for 12 years.

But these conditions were attached: First, the United States is to negotiate separately with Germany for the payment of 1,000,000,000 gold marks; second, such payments when agreed on, are to go through the reparations commission, undergoing the customary process of the Belgian priority before the American share is taken out; third, the United States promises not to pass any "recovery act" or high import tax on German goods.

NOT so serious as at first reported but had enough was the disaster that befell Hot Springs, Ark., known as the "American Spa." Following a terrific flood, fires broke out and many buildings, including several hotels, were destroyed. The property loss was estimated at $1,000,000, but no lives were lost.

FARM BUREAU MAKES GOOD IN LOUISIANA

Brought Order Out of Chaotic Produce Market by Forming Marketing Association.

The Farm Bureau federation is making good on its promise, made when it entered Louisiana one year ago, to bring order out of the chaotic farm produce market.

During its first year of existence the Louisiana Farm Bureau federation has set up five marketing associations, with 9,000 members, capable of stabilizing the prices of the various commodities for which they were organized, while two others are in process of formation.

It has organized and put into operation a purchasing department which has demonstrated the effectiveness of collective buying of farm necessities toward restoring the value of the farmer's dollar.

It has worked out a comprehensive plan for the co-ordination of work among the agricultural forces of the state which promises great results in farm development. This plan takes into consideration complete and effective co-operation between the farm bureau, the state extension division, and the farmers themselves through their various selling associations and community organizations.

When Harry F. Kapp, organizer for the American Farm Bureau federation, first came to Louisiana in February, 1922, he brought the doctrine of orderly marketing as the basic principle for the organization of the farm bureau in this state. To that time the national federation had not definitely committed itself to fostering the development of commodity marketing associations, although it had gone on record as approving the movement. It has since established a division of marketing, headed by Walton Petzet of Texas, with the object of standardizing the entire marketing system of the country.

The commodity associations already established are as follows: The Louisiana Lespedeza Seed Growers' association, doing a business of $40,000 yearly; the Louisiana Farm Bureau Rice Growers' association, which is handling a business of $1,500,000 this season, and is preparing to take over the greater part of the rice crop of the state during the next year; the Louisiana Farm Bureau Cotton association, organized to do a business of $10,000,000 in 1923; the Louisiana Farm Bureau Strawberry Growers' exchange, and the Farm Bureau Perique Tobacco Growers' association, both ready to do business this season.

The Louisiana Farm Bureau Potato Growers' exchange, Truck Growers' exchange and Farm Bureau Wool Producers' association are now in process of formation, and plans are complete to launch a selling organization for the growers of sugar cane as soon as present organization work is completed. Total membership in the farm bureau and the various associations is approximately 9,000, with prospects of reaching double that figure before the end of the year.

Under the plan, as it is now in operation, the farm bureau maintains supervision over the field forces of all commodity associations, and will co-operate with the extension division in the endeavor to secure delivery of all produce under contract to the selling agencies. The associations will set up their own administrative offices, but will be relieved of the expense of soliciting new members and securing delivery of the commodities under the contract.

Paul Hoffman Secretary.
Paul Hoffman of Gettysburg, Pa. county agent of Adams county, has been appointed secretary of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Federation.

PATRONAGE DIVIDEND OF $8,000 DECLARED

Members Also Enjoy Advantages of Combined Strength in Marketing.

The Michigan Elevator Exchange has declared a patronage dividend of $8,000 on the business from April 1, 1921, to April 1, 1923. Payment of the dividend to the members will be made immediately after the prorated is figured out. Every member elevator of the elevator exchange will participate. Elevators not members of the exchange cannot participate in the dividend, according to the rule of the exchange.

In 1922 the Michigan Elevator Exchange sold about $4,500,000 worth of grain, hay and beans for its membership. It has been in business about three years, and no co-operative elevator has ever lost a cent through failure of a Michigan Elevator Exchange sale. Elevator exchange members enjoy the advantage of their combined strength and volume in the markets, in doing business with the railroads and other interests. Organized, they are big enough to afford the lines of direct wire and telephone communication which puts the markets of the world at every co-operative elevator association member's elbow every day. This information is the life blood of successful marketing.

The patronage dividend of $8,000 and the net worth of $33,000 and the splendid sales organization of the Michigan Elevator Exchange are not all that the organization has done for grain-growing farmers. The elevator exchange has provided farmer competition which has improved prices to the farmer in many communities. The elevator exchange assures the farmer the market price every time.

The Michigan Elevator Exchange was started as a marketing department of the Michigan state farm bureau and is one of the farmer-organized and controlled marketing organizations that the state farm bureau has helped build.

CO-OPERATIVE LAW IN FORCE

Farmers Authorized to Incorporate and Contract for Sale of Members' Products.

Twenty-three states now have on their statute books the co-operative marketing law fostered by the American Farm Bureau federation. The first project of the department of co-operative marketing is a success.

When Walton Petzet became director of co-operative marketing for the farm bureau he announced that a proper preliminary to a unification of farmer marketing activities was the securing of a uniform co-operative marketing act in all the states. Much of his time during the first months with the American Farm Bureau federation he spent on this project. The law is now in force in 23 states.

The law authorizes the incorporation of farmers into a nonprofit association, either with or without capital. It permits this association to contract for the sale of a member's products for a specified period of years. It authorizes the proper financing of orderly marketing. It legalizes the co-ordination of co-operative handling similar products into state and national groups.

With the law now adopted in 23 states the way is clear for the co-operative marketing department to rapidly push its plans for the national unification of co-operative marketing projects.

"YOU'RE FIFTEEN—AN"

SYNOPSIS.—To the Three-Bar ranch, Arizona, owned jointly by Sandy Bourke, "Mormon," Peters and "Soda-Water Sam" Manning, a fine colt makes its way, in the last stages of exhaustion, inscribed on its collar says its name is Grit, "property of P. Casey." Scouting a desert tragedy, Bourke and Sam mount and let the dog lead them. The two find a dying man, Patrick Casey, pinned under an overturned wagon. Kneeling beside the wagon is his young daughter Molly, fifteen. They extricate the old prospector, who dies repeating "Molly—mine!" "I'll look out for that, pardner," says Sandy. It is agreed that Molly stays as mascot of the ranch, she and the "Three Musketeers" becoming partners in the mines. Sandy insists upon an education for Molly. Jim Pilmoss, gambler, visiting the ranch, insults Molly. He claims he grabbed Casey, which made him the old man's partner. Mormon drives him off. Starting with a gold eagle, Molly's luck piece, Sandy, with Sam, plays faro at Pilmoss's place, winning $10,000.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

"They're through. That's enough," said Sandy. "We ain't killers." "Got two of 'em," said Sam. "Good shootin', Sandy! I reckon I missed clean. I fired to the left." "The man who's down is Butch," said Sandy. "I'd know his finger in a coal shaft. I've a hunch the other was Hahn. Hit him somewhere in the hand; spilt his teeth in a while. Let's get out of this. They've quit." "Wonder if Pilmoss will with 'em. How about the hawkses? Can you whistle Pronto back?" "Reckon so," Sandy whistled shrilly through his teeth. After a minute he repeated the call.

There came a sound of pounding hoofs. Then that of others, coming from the town. "Better lead up, Sam," said Sandy grimly; "we ain't out of this yet. That'll be Jim Pilmoss's brother-in-law, likely." "Here come our ponies." As yet they could see nothing advancing, but a horse whinnied from the plain lying between them and the Three Star road.

"Pronto," said Sandy, shoving cartridges into his guns. A body of mounted men had come out from town and ridden fast upon the bridge. The foremost stopped with an exclamation at the missing boards. All wheeled in some confusion and slid their horses down into the arroyo to scramble up the bank again and spur for Sam and Sandy just as the plato and the roan curved up to their masters. The two cowmen leaped from their seats, Sandy temporarily sheathing one gun. They faced the townsmen, who formed a half-circle about them.

"You, Sandy Bourke an' Sam Manning, stick up yore hands!" "You got good eyesight!" returned Sandy. "What's the idee? Ef you shoot, don't miss, I'm holdin' to'able close tonight." His tone was almost good-humored, tolerant, full of confidence.

"You was shootin' in town limits. May have killed someone. Ag'in the law to shoot inside the Herefo'd line. I'm goin' to take you in." "You air?" Sandy's drawl was charged with mockery. "How about the Herefo'd man who stashed the fireworks? Ef you want our guns, Sheriff, come an' take 'em. First come, first served."

There was no forward movement. A man swore as his horse began to dance. "You go back an' tell Jim Pilmoss to do his own dirty work, if he's got any guns left to try'n. Me, I'm goin' home." The sheriff and his hastily gathered band of irregular deputies, working in the interests of Pilmoss, knew, with sufficient intimacy to endow them with caution, the general record of Sandy Bourke and Soda-Water Sam. None of them wanted to risk a shot—and miss. Sandy would not. Even a fatal wound might not prevent him taking toll. Sam was almost as dangerous. They were politicians rather than fighting men, every one of them. And they were tolerably certain that Pilmoss had ambushed the two from the Three Star. The sheriff blustered.

no bullets came near the pair. The fusillade was sheer bravado. For almost a mile the two rode at top speed, then they settled down to a lope that ate up the miles—a walk at the end of three—then lope and walk again, until the giant cottonwoods of the Three Star rose from the plain. Mormon tiptoed heavily onto the creaking porch with a husky, "Hush!" "What fo'?" "Molly's asleep. 'Sisted on waitin' up for you."

"Well, we're here, ain't we?" demanded Sandy. "Me, I got a scrape in my arm an' some son of a wolf spilled my saddle. Sandy, he sorter evened up fo' it." "Bleedin'?" asked Mormon. "Nope. Tied my bandannaer round it. Cold air fixed it. Shucks, it ain't nuthin'! Sandy's got a green kale plaster fo' it."

"You won't?" "Did we win? Wait till we show you." Molly met them as they went in, her eyes wide open, all sleep banished. "Was it a luck-piece?" she demanded. Sandy produced the package of bills, divided it, shoved over part. "Your half," he said. "Five thousand bucks. Bu'sted the bank. An' here's the 'riginal bet." He showed the gold eagle, put it into her palm. "Served me, now you take it." He said, "I'll git you a chain fo' it. It's sure a mascot—same as you are—the Mascot of the Three Star."

She looked up, her eyes, cloudy with wonder at the sight of the money, shining at her new title. They rested on Sam's arm, bandaged with the bandanna. "There's been shootin'," she said. "You're hit. Oh!" "More of a miss than a hit," replied Sam. Molly turned to Sandy. Anxiety, affection, something stronger that stirred him deeply, showed now in her gaze.

"You hurt?" "Didn't hardly muss a hair of my head. Jest a lil' excitement. Main p'int is we got the money for yo' education, like we planned." The light faded from her face. "Air you so dead set for me to go away?" she asked. "See here, Molly," Sandy leaned forward in his chair, talking earnestly. "You've got the makin' of a mighty fine woman in you. An' pah't of you is yore dad an' pah't yore maw. Sabe? They handed you on down an', if you make the most of yo'se'f, you make the most of them. Me, I've allus been troubled with the saddle-litch an' I've wanted the out-of-doors. So you see I lost out on a heap," said Sandy. "An' I'm a man. I can git along with less. But fo' a gal, learnin's a grand thing. An' there's the big cities an' theaters, fine clothes an' fine manners. Like livin' in another world."

"You-all Are D-d Good to Me," She Said.

"But," said Molly, wide-eyed, "that's the life I like. I mean out here. I don't want to be different." "Shucks," said Sandy. "You won't be. Jest polished up. Skin slicked up, hair fixed to the style, nails trimmed an' shined. Culchured. Inside you'll be yore real self. You can't take the gold out of a bit of ore any more than you can change iron pyrites into the real stuff. But, if the gold's goin' to be put into proper circulation, it's got to be refined. Sabe?" "I ain't refined. I reckon," said Molly with a sigh. "I don't know as I want to be. I can allus come back, can't I?" "You sure can."

Sam, I'm goin' to soak that place on yore arm with iodine. Good night, Molly." She got up immediately, went to Mormon and to Sam and gravely shook hands, thanking them. "You-all are d-d good to me," she said. Opposite Sandy she hesitated, then threw her arms round his neck and kissed him before she ran from the room, with Grit leaping after her. Sandy's bronzed face glowed like reflecting copper.

CHAPTER VI

Paseo Cabras.

They did not make butter on the Three Star. Since the arrival of Molly an unwilling and refractory cow had been brought in from the range and half forced, half coaxed to give the fresh milk that Mormon insisted the girl needed. Until then evaporated milk had suited all hands. But butter—to go with hot cakes and sage-honey—was an imperative need for the riders. The butter camp over weekly from the Bailey ranch to be kept under the spring cover for cooling. Usually the gangling young Ed Bailey brought it over in the crochety fiftiver. When Sandy saw the sparsely fleshed figure of Miranda Bailey seated by the driver he winced in spirit. This second visitation looked like mere curiosity and gossip and offset the opinion he had begun to form of the spinster—that she was sound underneath her angularities and mannerisms.

It was twilight. The three partners and Molly were on the ranch-house porch after supper, and there was no escape. Miranda nodded at the three partners, who rose as she came up the steps. "You sure need some new clothes, child," she said to Molly. "You got to have 'em. Now then, I come on business. Sandy Bourke, you ain't any of you the legal guardian of that child, air you?" "Nothin' illegal in what we're doin', I reckon."

"I didn't ask you that. You-all ain't got papers?" "Jest what's the idee?" Sandy asked. "Someone figgerin' on makin' her stay at the Three Star unpleasant? Fur as jest gossip is concerned, it don't have any weight with none of us an' there ain't no sense in mentionin' it."

"Pears you ain't givin' me over an' above credit for sense," said Miranda, a bit grimly. "This ain't gossip. Here 'tis. I got it direct from my brother, who's heard the talk goin' round. You've run foul of Jim Pilmoss—or he foul of you, which is more likely. Pilmoss an' Eke Jordan, the sheriff, are like two peas in a pod. Now for the meat of the nut. They're figgerin' on gettin' control of the gal away from you-all. They'll use argymints for the general public that she's too young to be kept in house for three unmarried men, leastwise three men who ain't livin' with their wives." She looked pointedly at Mormon. "They'll rouse up opinion enough for a change. They'd like to appoint a guardian of their own kidney. Mebbe we can block that if one of us comes out an' offers to take her. I'd be glad to, for one, an' do the right thing by her."

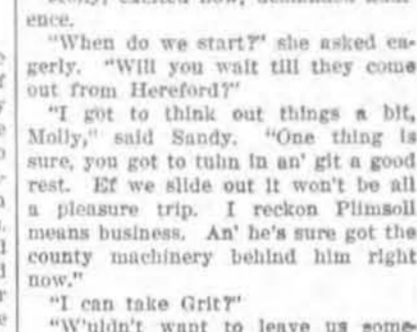

Molly walked over to Sandy's chair and stood behind it, her eyes widening, her breath beginning to come quickly. "There's some talk about her father's claims over to Dynamite lookin' up. Party of easterners over that way lately, nosin' around to find out owners, lookin' up assessment work an' so on. Talk of a boom. I reckon Pilmoss's twiggled that. Lawyer Feeder, who run for state senator an' whose record's none too dainty, is in cahoots with Jordan an' Pilmoss. Ed heard they figger on goin' before Judge Vaniman, one of their crowd, to get an order of court. She's a minor. They can git her away from you. If we crowd them too hard for them to appoint one of their own ring—an' they're figgerin' on Pilmoss, he claimin' to be her father's partner—they'll likely have her put in some institution. An' it's goin' to be done right sudden."

Molly stepped out, eyes flashing, fists clenched, talking passionately. "I won't go with 'em. I'll run away. They can't take me. Jim Pilmoss is a d-d liar. You won't let 'em take me?" She turned to Sandy, her arms stretched in appeal. "No, Molly, I won't. Will we, boys?" "You can't get everything you got an' ever hope to own we won't," said Sam. "That goes for me," echoed Mormon, but he scratched his fringe of hair in some perplexity. "Talk don't beat an order of the court," said Miranda Bailey. "Mebbe I seem sort of vinegary to you, child, but I'm not a bad sort. I figger if you came home with me today we could manage to git you placed with us. There's been tittle about you stoppin' here. You're fifteen—an' . . ."

"Some folks is jest plumb rotten," flared Molly. "I'm no kid. I . . . oh, if Dad was alive!" Sandy stood up and slid an arm about her shaking shoulders. She wheeled and buried her head on his shoulder, sobbing.

FOR A BETTER SCORE

Record Honey Crop. The largest honey crop in the history of British Columbia was garnered in 1922, registering as it did a value of $177,830, at wholesale prices. The year's output represents the remarkable average of 61 pounds a hive, that is 61 pounds a hive from 11,951 hives in 23,435 apiaries. In 1921 the average was 30 pounds a hive, from 10,839 hives in 2,072 apiaries. In 11 years the province's output has grown from 20 tons to 355 tons.

A FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs. Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root. It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs. It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses. It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Are Usually Due to Constipation
When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

FRECKLES
Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots
There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the "double-strength" is guaranteed to remove these honey spots. Simply get an ounce of Othello from any drug store and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than no more is needed to completely clear the skin and give a beautiful, clear complexion. Be sure to ask for the double-strength Othello, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

CHURCH NOTICE

EX-ARMY CAPTAIN MURDERED IN GIRL'S ROOM IN PHOENIX

W. E. Remington, 36 years old, an ex-army captain and well known in Santa Cruz county, who was employed as an automobile salesman by M. P. Barret, Inc., was shot to death in the apartment house room of Mrs. Leila Crandall, at 650 North Sixth street, Phoenix, at 9:45 o'clock Tuesday night. He was killed instantly. The woman then turned the gun, a Colt's automatic, on herself and inflicted wounds that may prove fatal. Mrs. Crandall was taken to St. Joseph's hospital.

There were no eye-witnesses to the tragedy. Opinion as to the number of shots fired varies. It was stated that five shots were fired, but inmates of the house placed the number at four. Two of the shots too keffect on Remington and one on Mrs. Crandall. Other bullet marks were found on the floor and walls of the room.

Remington was instantly killed.

CATTLE RUSTLING INVESTIGATED

Tuesday County Attorney W. A.
