BIGGEST RACING MEET STATE EVER HAD NOV. 12 TO DEC. 8

Phoenix, Oct. 18.—Combining the most important racing meet ever held in Arizona with a State Fair that marks a new era in events of this kind in the southwest, the Arizona State Fair Commission has announced that its program for the 1923 fair, to be held in Phoenix from November 12 to December 8, with the week of November 12 to 17 devoted to the state fair proper in connection with the races, has been completed.

The program as yet far the most ambitious ever attempted in Arizona. More than $500,000 will be expended in purses for the racing alone, with 500 running horses and 100 harness horses competing. These horses will represent the finest stock of the Reno, Tanforan, and Tijuana tracks, and for the first time in the history of the state the November meet in Phoenix will give Arizona an opportunity to see these horses in action. In connection with the races the pari-mutuels will be operated.

During the week of the state fair there will be six big running races a day, and on November 13, 14, 15 and 16 there will be three harness races of three heats each, every heat a race. The purses in the harness races will be $1000 in each event. This is the largest purse program in the United States at this time. For the three weeks following the fair there will be eight races a day, Sundays excepted.

Opening the fair on Monday, November 12, will be the football classic of the southwest this year. This game will bring the University of Arizona and the Pacific Coast together before what is expected to be the largest crowd ever gathered in the state fair grounds. In conjunction with the football game there will be six running races—the opening of the racing program. On Saturday, November 17, the football teams of the Phoenix High School and El Paso High School will clash, and this day will also see the closing of the State Fair racing program.

On the other days of the fair there will be running races, harness races, and a specially selected array of special entertainment features, so that every minute in the grandstand will be filled with amusement and entertainment. Wednesday will be Indian day, and on all other days there will be unusual and special features.

A unique feature of the State Fair will be the number of bands, chief among which will be the band of President Obregon of Mexico. All in all the entertainment features of the November fair will eclipse anything of the kind ever attempted in this state.

The exhibits are far out of the ordinary. First comes a manufacturing exhibit, the first in the history of the state fair, under the direction of the Arizona Industrial Congress. This exhibit has reached such proportions that the State Fair Commission has been forced to build an auxiliary building in which to contain it. The exhibit is also a most important part, and this, like the agricultural, mining, livestock, fine arts, domestic arts and sciences and other exhibits, has been organized.

One exhibit which is attracting attention through the entire west, from El Paso to Vancouver, B. C., is the dog show, which is being made this year the most important event of its kind ever presented to Arizona spectators. This exhibit already has secured a fine array of pups and prizes, donated chiefly by the mines of the state, and entries are coming in fast.

Because of the importance of the State Fair this year, and as an indication of what is thought of it, the railroad companies have granted a special rate from all California, New Mexico, Arizona and West Texas points of a fare and a third for the round trip with the tickets good for 32 days, from November 10 to December 12. Tickets will go on sale on November 10 to 17, and will allow visitors to the fair to remain in Phoenix for 30 days, taking them an opportunity to see a great part of the state while here.

All information concerning the state fair may be obtained from J. P. Dillon, secretary, Arizona State Fair Commission, box 1216, Phoenix, Arizona. One session will be in charge of Stuart M. Bailey, 499 1/2 Heart building, Phoenix.

Gov. Hunt Designates Monday, Nov. 12, as Holiday

Phoenix, Oct. 18.—Making of all the roads in Arizona, with maps and mile find, for the guidance of tourists, is one of the plans being worked out by the state highway department. The plan, it is announced by the department officials, will be presented to the legislature at its next session. Officials say that approximately $2000 will be necessary to get the work under way.

The plan being worked out by the highway department is one in vogue in Wisconsin, where it is located, in one of our best states.

JUST LIKE THE ICE MAN

An Associated Press report from Los Angeles states that metropolitan Chicago bookstores have indicated the joint selling of hundreds of copies are being sold when the customer banks a card in the window, according to federal agents.

WHAT WOULD YOU HAVE DONE HAD YOU BEEN THE JUDGE?

Last week two boys 14 years of age were brought in to the Patagonia justice court charged with having the "hides of deer in their possession from which evidence of sex had been removed." They were fined $10 each and the costs of the case were divided between them.

Here are the facts, as presented to the court: Both boys had a hunting license, the deer season is open, the heads of the deer were missing and there was no way of determining the sex of the animals. No evidence was introduced to prove the animals were does. The fact remained that the boys had broken a game law.

The boys, being under 18 years of age, could not be sent to jail, and having no money, their parents were the ones who were punished by a fine. One of the boys is the son of a widow, who has a hard time supporting her family of three children; the other boy is the son of a man who recently met with severe financial loss and was not in position to pay a heavy fine. If one of the boys had been fined heavily for his misdeed, the other would, in all justice, have been fined an equal amount.

The local justice took the case under advisement for a few days in order to get the opinion of the county attorney as to the punishment prescribed by statute for the offense. That official said the boys were guilty of a misdemeanor and could be fined from $1 to $200 at the discretion of the court.

The judge was criticized by some of our righteous citizens for allowing the boys to take the carcasses of the deer away with them. What would you have done with them. There are no charitable institutions in Santa Cruz county large enough to use two deer, and the law is too busy to build a lion's head large enough to burn them and there isn't anything in the "book" about the disposition of the carcasses. The game warden, Robin Montgomery, who swore to the complaint against the boys, took their hunting licenses from them, which was, perhaps, more severe punishment for them than their experience in court.

If the courts had been of more mature age, the punishment would have been more severe. But this being the first time one of the boys had been hunting and as both bear excellent reputations, the court dealt leniently with them.

What would you have done under the circumstances?

25TH INF PRAISED BY LEWIS

Major General E. M. Lewis, corps commander, U. S. A., who has made his annual inspection of the 25th Infantry maneuvers, at Fort Huachuca Friday and Saturday, prior to the return of the soldiers to their border posts, praised the officers and men for their efficiency. On leaving, General Lewis informed Colonel A. J. Maenab that he was highly pleased with the showing made by the regiment.

SCHOOL NOTES.

(By Beth Fortune, School Editor.)

Miss Elder, teacher of the second grade, is going to give a half hour lesson in art every week in each room.

Girls of the fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth grades were organized into a sewing class last Friday. An hour will be devoted to the classes every Friday afternoon. Mrs. Fortune has charge of the class. The boys of the same grades will take hand work at the same period under the direction of Mrs. McDonald.

John Evans, who had been sick for a week or two, has returned to school.

Three new pupils have entered the first grade—Merl Hanks, Ernest Quisenberry, and Renaldo Sanchez.

The following children of the second grade know their 49 number combinations: Rudolph Paraly, Marcella Saldaña, Francisca Naxarra, Paula Valles, Renata Valenzuela, Fred Flory, Manuel Sanchez, Elaine Phony, Eloise Altamirano, and Jose Daniel.

The sixth grade has entered a perfect half holiday, having 49 perfect half days.

The past week the third grade has been studying about Indian life for its language work. Pencil and cuttings of games and vocables were made.

YANKS WINS WORLDS SERIES

By defeating the Giants four out of six games, the Yankees became the world champion aggregation of baseball players. The Giants held the 1922 championship, and had hopes of holding on to it another year, but the superior hitting of the Yanks shattered their hopes. Babe Ruth finally got in to batting form in a world series—maybe that's the answer.

BULLWHACKER TO RESUME

Jack Hoy, well-known former Patagonia mining man, has organized a company known as the Movers and Arizona Mining and Development Company to operate the old Bullwhacker and adjoining properties. Mr. Hoy is manager of the company and the directors are Mrs. Katie Hoy, James V. Robinson, J. C. Kenney, John A. Ryan, John Hoy, Frank J. Duffy and Don A. McKenzie.

TOWN & WOODS GET CONTRACT

Town & Woods, well-known Nogales contractors, were awarded the contract to build four of the nine bridges on the Nogales-Tucson highway by the state highway department when bids were opened October 2.

MRS. HINCKLEY NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Memphis, Tenn.—“Two years ago I was completely run-down and my nerves were a wreck. I could not sweep a room without reeling. I could not do my work except a little at a time, and the doctor's medicine did not help me. One day some one threw your little book on to my porch, and in it I read several testimonials of women who had been like myself. I went right out and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and before I had taken the whole of that bottle I knew it was helping me. I took six bottles, and then in about three months I took two more. Now I am in perfect health. I do all of my own work and could do more. I can truly say that I know Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound gave me my health.”—Mrs. O. J. HINCKLEY, 316 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

Insist upon genuine "California Fig Syrup" which contains directions.—Advertisement.

Lightning's Pranks. Lightning plays pranks which are not so easily explained. Some years ago a Russian steamer crossing the Black sea was struck by lightning three separate times within seven minutes. Though set on fire, her crew managed to put out the flames and get her back to port. A wheat ship on Lake Huron was struck twice within three minutes, each time in the same spot. The second flash set her on fire and she sunk.

Since Gowns Are Longer. "Has the flapper disappeared?" "Not entirely," replied Miss Cayenne, "but her ankles are not so conspicuous."

Back Given Out? It's hard to do one's work when every day brings morning lameness, throbbing backache, and a dull, tired feeling. If you suffer thus, why not find out the cause? Likely it's your kidneys. Headaches, dizziness and bladder irregularities may give further proof that your kidneys need help. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands have been helped by Doan's. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

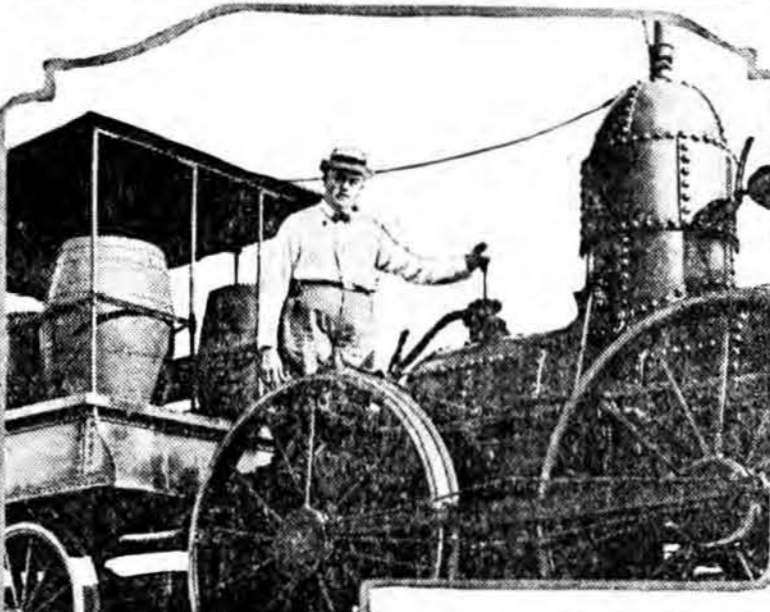

A Wyoming Case W. Edwards, 117 Buffalo St., Rawlins, Wyoming, says: "My kidneys acted too frequently and I had to get up at night to pass the secretions. My back was sore and stiff and when I stooped I had a catch in my back and I could hardly straighten again. After using one box of Doan's Kidney Pills the backache became less severe. Doan's cured me completely of the attack."

FEDERATED GROWERS MOVING BIG TONNAGE

Hold Dominant Position in Apple and Potato Markets.

The autumn harvest of the 25,000 growers comprising the Federated Fruit and Vegetable Growers, developed at the first of this year by the marketing committee of 21 of the American Farm Bureau federation, is centering the largest tonnage of fruits and vegetables ever to go through a centralized, national co-operative sales service.

With 175 branch offices and representatives covering practically all carlot markets of the United States, and with sales contracts in Canada and abroad, the grower-owned and controlled sales service has gained favor rapidly, resulting in an increased membership of co-operative organizations of growers, and a well-balanced list of products to be sold during the remainder of the year.

Sixteen co-operative associations in Michigan organized this summer into the Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc., are marketing a heavy tonnage of grapes, largely Concord, through the Federated; also peaches, apples, pears, and plums. Apples and pears are being sold for the Illinois Fruit exchange, which with 900 members organized into a chain of local associations joined the national sales organization early in the season.

During the summer season a number of the western members of the Federated, such as the Wenatchee-Okanogan Co-operative federation and the Inland Empire Co-operative federation, which have well organized fruit and vegetable associations in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, have extended their organization activities to control a large per cent of the products from those states now being handled by the Federated.

With a heavy tonnage of apples and pears, the 1923 deal of the Western New York Fruit Growers' Co-operative Packing association is now active. Peaches and some early apples have been going to the market for the past few weeks; fall apples are now being harvested and a heavy tonnage of winter varieties are to come later. Last year this Federated member shipped 3,600 cars. The distribution shows the fruit was sold into 211 markets in 26 states and three foreign countries. The member's apples were shipped steadily from October 7 until the first week in May with no greater variance than ten cars per week from an average shipment of 70 cars per week throughout the entire seven months' period. The continued merchandising of the "Catact" brand of apples for this member has placed the product in an enviable position in the carlot markets of the country.

Co-operative fruit tonnage from Colorado has come into the "limelight" this season with the organization of the United Fruit Growers' association, which through its affiliation with the Federated has been placing branded peaches, apples and other fruits upon the carlot markets of the country.

The government co-operative packing plant at Inwood, W. Va., operating through the Inwood Fruit Growers' club, and putting up a superior pack known as the "Johnny Apples" brand, joined the Federated sales service this year.

The strengthening of the local units of the Ohio Fruit Growers' Co-operative association has greatly increased membership and tonnage of the Ohio growers. Bartlett pears, Elberta peaches, prunes and apples from a number of newly-formed co-operative associations in Utah, similar tree fruits from the organized growers of Idaho and New Jersey are adding important tonnage that for the most part is the result of the first year's efforts in co-operative marketing.

Although apples occupy the heaviest one commodity tonnage of the newly-organized associations, and grapes, pears and other tree fruits comprise a generous amount in the fall harvests, co-operatively marketed potatoes make the Federated a dominant factor in the vegetable markets of the country. The Federated is marketing a tonnage of 10,000 cars of tubers for the Maine Potato exchange.

Late onions, chiefly yellow, are moving in quantity to the carlot markets of the country through the Federated for the Indiana Farm Bureau Onion Growers' exchange, recently organized with 60 per cent of the onion growers of that state signed on a five-year contract.

The citrus fruit sold by the Federated was greatly increased by the tonnage of the Mutual Orange distributors, which recently joined the national, co-operative sales service. This organization is the second largest, non-profit co-operative citrus association in California, and insures the Federated of a heavy tonnage of oranges and citrus fruits out of California.

The Gulf Coast Citrus exchange, in line with the rapid development of the Satsuma industry in southern Alabama, also joined the Federated recently, thus centering the tonnage in this fruit out of that district through the co-operative plan.

The watermelon growers of Georgia, organized in the Southwest Georgia Watermelon Growers' association, received higher prices this year for their watermelons than ever before, and in a season when practically every early watermelon district reported poor results. According to reports just received from that area, the Federated plan of national, co-operative selling will be followed next season by the great majority of growers in that entire territory.

FRUIT ASSOCIATIONS UNITE

Michigan Growers Control Tonnage of More Than 4,000 Cars—Push Organization.

The Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc., is making wonderful progress in the organization of Michigan's co-operative fruit marketing industry. Within the past few months it has organized 75 per cent of the co-operative packing house output in the state and today controls a tonnage of more than 4,000 cars of peaches, apples, grapes and pears. It is working forward to a goal of 5,000 cars of fruit to be marketed through the farmer-owned and controlled Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc.

The Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc., is affiliated with the Michigan State Farm Bureau under the commodity control type of organization. Offices at Benton Harbor have been opened, with Secretary F. L. Bradford in charge.

Industrial Disputes. The first provision for the settlement of industrial disputes seems to have been the tribunal established before the French Revolution at Lyons, France, for the settlement of controversies in the silk industry. Though this tribunal was abolished in 1793, it had proved so effective that Napoleon, in 1801, created councils of experts having similar functions.

HOW MAINTENANCE OF ROADS SHOULD BE PAID

"Tax the automobile and build the road for the revenues," is a principle which has been expressed by the non-informed voter too many times. But education and sound economics as enunciated by bankers and statesmen has changed the cry. Few who now concern themselves with road financing, but understand that the right way to pay for a road is either by road bonds based on general, not specific taxation, or from current general funds.

The experience of years proves that the fees from taxed road vehicles must be spent for maintenance. Maintenance is always being used up; vehicle taxes are always coming in to provide that maintenance. To use the maintenance fund for building more roads is as un-economic as the procedure of the man who builds a house for rent and, instead of using some of the rent to keep his property in condition, and insure it and paint it, spends it for another house, letting the first go to ruin. He will end in the poorhouse, and the county or state which does not provide a steady maintenance fund for road upkeep will be bankrupt in good roads long before the roads are paid for.

MINING—A BASIC INDUSTRY

From the very beginning of time the steps of civilization have been marked by progress in the mining industry. The search for gold and silver has attracted our bravest and strongest specimens of American manhood.

It is to these dauntless spirited men—the pioneer gold miners, you may say—that is due the credit for the settlement of the western states.

The search for metallic wealth which sends ahead of all beaten trails the strongest and gamest of men, is one of the most fascinating pages of history and of the wonderful development of the great west.

Mining, one of the greatest basic industries, has made the United States the wealthiest nation on earth and statistics prove the mining share markets have created more quick wealth and fabulous profits for industries than any other class of securities.

While the past production record of the proven mining districts amount to untold billions, it is stated by intelligent men who have devoted their life to a study of mining that this production is insignificant compared to future production from these properties. Furthermore, with the scientific inventions and discoveries of the 20th century, mining has been placed upon a safer and more profitable basis than ever before.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING

The tariff convention held in Denver this month in an effort to take the tariff question out of politics and have it considered as a business, rather than as a political, issue, is of tremendous importance to western states. As producers of raw materials which

HIDALGO THEATER, NOGALES, SONORA, BURNS

A square block of residences and business buildings in Nogales, Sonora, were destroyed by fire Saturday night when fire, supposed to have originated in the historic old Hidalgo theater building, broke out and got beyond control of the Mexican firemen. The Nogales, Ariz., fire department was called on for help and succeeded in checking the flames, which threatened to spread over a much wider area.

The damage is estimated at $80,000. This was the third serious fire to occur in Nogales, Son., recently.

GRAND CARNIVAL AT AJO

Plans and arrangements have been made to hold a grand carnival at Ajo, Ariz., October 20-23. In addition to the usual carnival features, there will be a score or more of novelty booths containing worthwhile merchandise and novelties never before offered to the public in Arizona. There will be a '49 tent dancing girls, also a vaudeville and free outdoor vaudeville show, a surprising array of talent having been secured for this feature. Free boxing bouts will also be staged each evening.

The entire carnival has been planned by the different committees in charge, with the sole object of pleasing and amusing the public, and the numerous high-class entertainment features secured for the event will make the trip to the lively little mining camp worth while and a real good time is assured to all.

The proceeds from the carnival will be used in the erection of a Catholic church at that point.

$5,000,000 FOR 'GAS' IN ARIZONA!

Digesting some figures of the secretary of state, internal revenue collector Frank H. Stewart has figured that Arizona this year will spend nearly $5,000,000 for gasoline, or $14.38 per inhabitant, including children and Indians. About 1,800,000 gallons a month are being sold, giving a state revenue of about $54,000. Half of this is given to the counties, according to their ratio of consumption. Maricopa receives the sum of approximately $8200 per month.

GIFT OF THE DESERT

"AFRAID OF ME?"

SYNOPSIS—On the isolated Meager ranch, on the southern border, Deborah Meredith, trained nurse, is in attendance on Mrs. Meager, whose husband has recently been killed. Immediately after the death, Bob Meager, Mrs. Meager's stepson, arrives and takes possession. He insults Deborah and she resolves to leave, but there seems no possibility of her getting away. Meager glances over Deborah's plight. He tells her he has sent for a justice of the peace, who will marry them tomorrow. Horrified, the girl accuses a neighbor, the justice, Cornelius Garrity, a scoundrel and bosom friend of Meager, of having stolen her. She escapes and reaches her room. There she stuns Meager with the revolver and rushes to the stables, hoping to secure a horse and escape. There she meets the "Frisco Kid." Somehow he inspires her with confidence and she explains the situation. The "Kid" tells her his name is Daniel Kelleen, that he is no friend of Meager. They ride off together into the desert. Presently she realizes that Kelleen is the "Frisco Kid."

"How did you know?" she questioned, suspiciously.

"Oh, it's part of my trade to learn the country I'm working in."

"Your trade?"

"Sure; you never supposed I was here for my health, did you? I've got a trade, all right, and perhaps I'll tell you about it some time. It's enough now for me to say that it has taught me as much about this desert as any Indian ever knew. I've rode it alone, east, west, north, and south, and one of the strange places I stumbled into—by good luck, not more than two days ago—was this Devil's gulch I'm heading for now. If we get there by daylight we'll have this game blocked."

"You believe no one else knows the place?"

"Sure, someone does, but not this outfit. I doubt if old Tom Meager ever knew of it, but I have some reason to believe Bob may. It has been a thieves' den in its day, no doubt, if the story was known."

"A thieves' den?"

"Likely—yes. You do not know this country very well, Miss Deborah, but it has been the headquarters for cattle rustlers and smugglers for years, and correct for all I know. In some respects it is as bad today as it ever was. Mexico is just over yonder," and he made an expressive gesture with one hand, "and this desert stretches along both sides the line; on every side mountains and wild country. The Meager ranch is the only oasis in a hundred miles. I don't know how the place was ever found, but I'll bet it was held by the rifle."

"It was," she said, eagerly. "Old Tom told me the story. He came in here, a young man, prospecting, and discovered these hundreds of acres, with water, grass, everything, even a considerable bunch of wild cattle. There was no one in the country then, and the cattle were not even worth stealing. He lived here alone for years, found gold somewhere, and got enough to develop this property. The Indians never troubled him much, but rustlers did, both Yank and Mexican. They had a regular trail through those hills to the east. It is used yet occasionally; I rode out there with Tom Meager once, and it is like a road—"

"Yes, I've seen it," Kelleen interrupted, "running through Goretta canyon. There's another trail also down Box creek."

"Thousands upon thousands of stolen cattle were driven along there north and south, and oftentimes they tried to pick up some of the Meager stock in passing. For years they were fighting almost all the time. Then soldiers came and patrolled the border, and broke the trade up very largely."

"You have a pretty clear idea of the situation, young lady!" the man said, quietly. "Tom Meager ran this ranch straight and fought for his rights like a man. Everybody along the border knew that, and respected the old man. But this rub of his is another proposition. The whole border brood contains nothing worse than Bob Meager. He is low-down mean, and has been a thief, and an associate of thieves, all his life. It doesn't make any difference how I know all this—I do know it." There was a bitterness to Kelleen's voice which startled the girl.

"You hate him?"

"Oh, no; I cannot afford to do that, but you have got me started, and I might as well finish up. I reckon you know the fellow fairly well yourself. I get him from another angle. It is not clear in my mind yet exactly how he got possession of this property. Of course, I know he is old Tom's son, and the natural heir, but I met the father once or twice, and cannot believe he ever put the ranch unreservedly into Bob's hands, giving his widow nothing. I'd like to see what will, for I'll bet all I'm worth it's phony. Garrity drew it, as I understand, and still holds it. The instrument is duly recorded, but the original remains safely in possession of the judge."

"Is that regular?"

"Perhaps so; not being a lawyer, I can only guess at the regularity. Of course it will have to be produced in court for final settlement of the estate; but I don't think they anticipate any serious questioning as to the validity of the document."

"Could it be contested?"

"The widow could claim her dower rights."

"But Mrs. Meager would not dare. She is an invalid, and in deadly fear of her stepson."

"And you have heard of no other will?"

"Not a word. Mr. Meager's death was very sudden, an accident."

"He was found dead on the trail, I heard?"

"Yes, his horse came home without him. There was an inquest, the evidence going to show that his horse reckon. Now we've got to throw them off the trail."

He grasped her bridle rein, the two horses moving forward at a walk, circling to the left of the stone marker. A hundred feet beyond, the faint sound of horses' hoofs gave evidence that they passed along a narrow ridge of rock. Suddenly Kelleen came to a pause, leaning forward in the saddle to see more clearly.

"You have no memory of how things are here?" he asked.

"No; only that the springs are over to the left yonder."

"Then listen; there is an outer opening of rock which swerves here to the right, and runs almost directly east for two hundred yards. Follow that carefully; go just as far as possible, and then wait there for me. There is no danger, so you keep close to the rocks. Keep to the center so the horse will leave no imprint."

"And what are you going to do?"

"Ride straight ahead down the trail; then circle back through a gully, and meet you out yonder. Don't be afraid; just wait. I'll come, although it may require half an hour or more for me to make the trip safely; I've got to cover every trace after I once strike out into the desert."

She watched him ride away vanishing quickly into the gloom, his horse's hoofs making no sound in the soft sand. Instantly she began urging her own mount along the narrow rock ridge, watchful that he did not stray from the narrow path of rock. Where this very plainly ended she drew the animal to a halt and sat upright in the saddle, staring wonderingly about into the silent desolation. Her mind traveled back over all that had happened that night. She had no time before for thought; she had been continuously forced onward by circumstances beyond control, driven blindly. But now everything which had occurred so swiftly during those past few hours swept over her in memory like a flood. What was the end now before her? It all seemed more a horrible dream than any reality of life. It was beyond belief, beyond experience; that such things were even possible seemed utterly beyond reason.

Yet memory would not die or be deceived. It was true—all of it was true. The death of old Tom Meager; the return of the renegade son; his brutal assumption of control; the glow of lust in his eyes at their first meeting; and then—the happenings of this last night. And now—now she was there waiting, and all this desolation, for the return of a strange man, whose face she never had seen. The whole situation seemed impossible, yet she could not doubt its actual reality. She was not dreaming; she was wide awake.

Yet as she reviewed all the events leading up to this situation the girl could not perceive where she might have done otherwise. The impossibility of leaving the ranch unaided; the openly avowed purpose of Bob Meager; the forced marriage; the drunken assault; the blind effort at escape, believing she had killed the man in self-defense; and the unexpected meeting with Kelleen—all these had been utterly beyond her control. Even after that scarcely a choice had been left her. The man had to be accepted as a friend, or else left behind as an enemy. He was in position to either serve or betray her, as he chose, and there was that about his personality which had won her faith. What it was she hardly knew, nor did she have the slightest conception still who the man actually was. His evident dislike of Meager and Garrity meant nothing, except perhaps as thus explaining his willingness to befriend her against them. She had seen him as only a dark, ill-defined shape in the night. She had gained no glimpse of his features, but she liked his voice, the genial yet respectful way in which he addressed her, the cool assurance with which he had taken complete control; whatever the fellow's past might have been, she felt confidence in him, believed firmly that he was really endeavoring honestly to serve her in this emergency.

It seemed a long while, so long as to almost frighten her, before she became aware of his approach. Indeed, he was actually beside her on foot before she recognized his presence, approaching silently from the opposite direction from that anticipated. Her startled gaze had scarcely distinguished his dim outline, when he spoke, his hand already grasping her horse's rein.

"There, that is over with," he said gently. "Now I'll lead you for the next five hundred yards. After that we'll do some real riding."

Where their course led she could not clearly determine from the saddle, but they moved forward slowly. After some hundred yards had been traversed, the path led upward once again, the horse's hoofs now sinking into deep sand. Then a horse whinnied just in front of them, and the next instant she could make out the darker shadow. Kelleen released his grip, with a little laugh of relief.

"Lonely, old fellow? Well, I won't leave you again. Now we've got a straightaway ride for it, Miss Meredith. I'll lead off, and you follow. You'll have to keep us pretty close to see me in the dark, and there will be no noise to guide you in this sand."

"But—if I should lose you?" she asked, starting about, half frightened by the thought.

"No danger; the horse you're on won't get lost. But if you miss me call out; there's no one to hear in this desert. Ready now?"

"What is That Ahead?"

He swung into the saddle, and faced her smiling.

"Yes."

"Then we'll ride fast, and don't be afraid; it's level as a floor."

The girl rode low in the saddle, her head bent forward to protect her eyes from the shower of grit hurled against her by the ceaseless wind. She was conscious now of her extreme weariness; she could only cling grimly to her seat, aching in every muscle, blindly following his lead. She knew the horse under her was panting for breath, his sides wet with sweat, but Kelleen never once drew rein, or, to her knowledge, even glanced back to assure himself of her presence. There were moments when she felt she must actually cry out, her nerves failing her, but she crushed the desire back, and rode on, lulled with fatigue.

Her eyes and thought centered on the figure of the man riding steadily in front. She could obtain no glimpse of his face, not even its contour, yet how straight he sat in the saddle, his shoulders thrown back, his left hand grasping the rein lightly. His seat was that of the trained, disciplined cavalry man, rather than the cowboy, and she could but mark how easily his body followed the slightest movement of the animal under him. Suddenly, but without glancing back he pointed into the plain, gray desert ahead.

"Do you see anything over yonder?" he asked. "Just ahead there—a hundred yards?"

She stared where he pointed, both halting their horses, but could perceive nothing except the same drear expanse of sand.

"No; what is it?"

"One of nature's marvels; the place I'm heading for. You can be within ten yards and never know it is there." He turned and faced her smilingly. "Made it straight through the night, too. Why, what's the matter?"

She was staring at him through the dim light, her lips parted, her eyes expressive of fear. For the moment she did not speak, and he asked again anxiously.

"What is it? Are you afraid of me?"

"I—I know now who you are," she managed to say. "You—you are the 'Frisco Kid.'"

A moment his lips shut tight, a bit grimly; then he laughed.

"Sure; but how did you guess?"

"I saw you ride in last night with Judge Garrity. I had a good view of your face from my window, and heard Bob Meager call you by name."

"No doubt that's all true enough, but what of it? Ever heard of me before?"

She hesitated, but only for an instant. It was her nature to speak truth.

"Yes, I have," she answered steadily, looking straight at him, yet in some mysterious way not the least afraid. "I have been led to believe you a most desperate character, an outlaw, a criminal, with a price on your head. I have been told many of your exploits—and, and; but why compel me to repeat all this?"

"Because it is extremely interesting, for one thing; quite flattering for even a better reason. If we are going to continue being friends—and I insist that we are—we shall have to come to a mutual understanding. What am I in your estimation? A robber and thief, I suppose? Who told you all this rot—Bob Meager?"

"You—You Are the Frisco Kid!"

"Oh, no; I heard all about you before he ever came back. That was months ago; there were soldiers through here searching for you, a major and twenty cavalrymen."

"What major?"

"His name was Reynolds."

Kelleen chuckled and lunched suddenly forward, placing his hand squarely on hers where it rested on the saddle pommel. Somehow she made no effort to withdraw her fingers from the contact, and their eyes met.

"I believe in you and am your friend."

BRITISH ACCEPT BELGIAN PLAN

ENGLAND AGREES TO SUBMIT REPARATIONS QUESTION TO ALLIED COMMISSION

ALLIES ARE UNITED

BERLIN IS ORDERED TO PAY THREE BILLIONS ANNUALLY

Paris. The British government's acceptance of the suggestion of the Belgian foreign office for a referendum of the Belgian reparations plan to the inter-allied reparations commission as the basis of a concrete plan in the pending negotiations for a settlement of the question of German reparations has been received at the foreign office.

This completes the general accord by all the allies, Italy having given her assent to the proposal and the reparations commission will proceed officially to study the Belgian plan with a view to ascertaining whether it can be used as the basis for a solution.

The Belgian document has been officially before the reparations commission for some weeks. Up to the present there has been no official discussion.

The broad outline of the plan provides for a minimum of 50,000,000,000 gold marks as Germany's indemnity to which is added 82,000,000,000 marks in "C" bonds. The plan notes that the first figure is recognized as being moderate; that it has been adopted by all the allies and even admitted as fair by the last international Socialist congress, held in Hamburg.

The plan gives 3,000,000,000 gold marks as the amount in yearly payments Germany can make. It gives the figures as arrived at, together with all tabulated documents. By reorganization of the German railroads along the lines elaborated, according to the plan, they could be made to yield 1,000,000,000 gold marks alone, while other monopolies, such as tobacco, wines, beer, mineral waters, sugar, salt, matches and coal, if managed as the experts advise, would provide an additional 1,500,000,000 gold marks. To these figures, the plan asserts, may be added 500,000,000 gold marks as the fruits of eventual participation by the allies in German industrial enterprises.

The Belgian government further suggests that as soon as the reparations commission has taken full official cognizance of its plan, a conference of the heads of the allied governments be held.

It was stated here that the Belgian proposal meets with the full and complete assent of the French government.

Says Bonus Fight is Error.

San Francisco.—Charles Kendrick, San Francisco business man past national vice commander of the American legion, bitterly scored the legion's policy on the bonus and what he called its "straddling" of the Ku Klux Klan question, and spoke warmly of its continued loss of membership in a caucus here which was presided over by Sanford J. McNider, past national commander of the legion. Kendrick was loudly applauded by the legion men present, said he realized that he was courting his own destruction as a legion leader, but added that his personal prestige was secondary to the welfare of the national organization.

Flames Threaten Pasadena.

Pasadena, Calif.—Two thousand men finally extinguished a fire that spread through Montrose, La Canada, Elmer Ridge, the fashionable Country club district, and La Crescenta and within two miles of Pasadena. Home droids fled from their homes, and scores of the fine country residences were in the path of the flames, which burned over an area of five square miles. The main electric power lines into Los Angeles from Big Creek, Fresno county, have been broken down, and electric service to Pasadena, Los Angeles and nearby towns was interrupted.

Self Defense Plea Wins.

Denver.—Thomas B. Glynn, 20-year-old vocational student, was freed of the charge of first degree murder by a jury in the West Side court. Glynn was charged with the murder of Fred Lewis, female impersonator, who was killed by Glynn in an alleged drunken party the night of June 29 in a rooming house at 1208 Glenora place. Glynn pleaded self-defense.

Bomb Wrecks Baseball Stadium.

Chicago. Damage in excess of $5,000 was caused by the explosion of a dynamite bomb which was thrown into the United States baseball stadium here. Police attributed the act to members of an outfit alleged to be opposed to the League of Nations under which the stadium was erected last year. Four brick bottles were hurled and exploded as far as a block away were racket and damaged. Telephone lines in the vicinity were put out of commission.

A pipe-smoker's challenge to other smokers

Is there a smoker in the audience who can answer this one?

Nearly every smoker is particular about the kind of tobacco that goes into his pipe. While he may smoke a pipeful from a friend's pouch for the sake of companionship, for day-in-and-day-out smoking he prefers his own brand.

And yet if you ask the average smoker what it is he likes about his tobacco, he may have difficulty in answering you immediately.

Mr. Joe Rivers, whose letter follows, is a confirmed Edgeworth smoker. In attempting to describe what he likes about Edgeworth, he coins the word "tasty-smellfulness." But as this does not entirely satisfy him, he puts the question up to other Edgeworth smokers.

Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va. Gentlemen:

Being a pipe smoker of no mean experience (having tried most pipe and pipe-tobacco) I've watched your smokers' letters in the magazine for some explanation of a taste that for me applies only to Edgeworth.

It is extremely difficult to describe this, because it seems to come as the smoke filters through the mouth and nostrils at the end of a draw from the pipe—a sort of combined "tasty-smellfulness" that most smokers the world over find it difficult to describe. Why don't you get some of your smokers who can write, to describe that?

Sincerely yours,
(Signed) Joe Rivers

Probably there are any number of reasons why men smoke Edgeworth. One friend actually admitted he smoked it because his wife liked the shape of the Edgeworth glasses to fit on her pantry shelf.

However, the one outstanding feature of Edgeworth, as seen by most smokers, is its uniformity. Year after year, smokers can be sure of getting the same high-grade quality of tobacco.

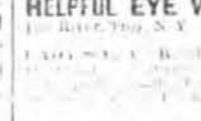

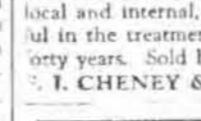

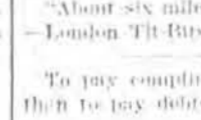

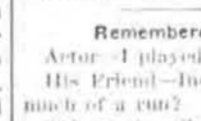

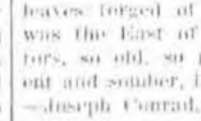

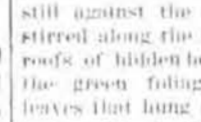

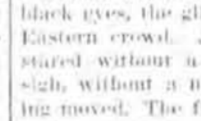

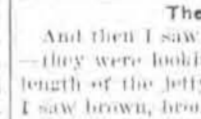

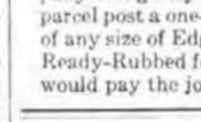

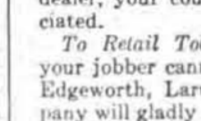

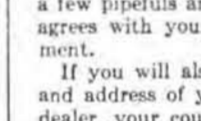

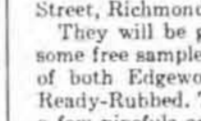

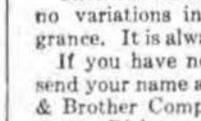

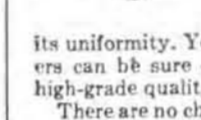

There are no changes in the blend—no variations in the flavor or fragrance. It is always a good smoke.

If you have not tried Edgeworth send your name and address to Larus & Brother Company, 75 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va.

They will be glad to mail to you some free samples, generous helpings of both Edgeworth Plug Slice and Ready-Rubbed. Then you can smoke a few pipefuls and see if Edgeworth agrees with your smoking temperament.

If you will also include the name and address of your regular tobacco dealer, your courtesy will be appreciated.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

Freak Band at American Legion Convention

Music from jugs may be the big feature of the national convention of the American Legion at San Francisco where this band will compete for honors. The only regulation instrument is the banjo, played by the leader, Will Ryan. The others extract weird rhythm from jugs, tin cans, cigar boxes, tin whistles and kazooks. The band was organized at Bloomington, Ill., by soldiers of the late war.

UNDERWOOD STORY STIRRED 'EM UP

REPORT THAT HE HAD TURNED AGAINST NATIONS' LEAGUE CAUSED EXCITEMENT.

FLATLY DENIED BY SENATOR

Politics Is Now the Chief Subject of Discussion in Washington—Both National Committee Chairmen To Hold Their Places.

By EDWARD B. CLARK Washington.—Politics in Washington was enlivened a bit the other day when the newspapers carried two stories check by jowl, one telling of a speech by Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, announced candidate for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, and the other giving account of a speech by Samuel M. Ralston of Indiana, also a candidate for Democratic honors.

In the story of the speech by Mr. Underwood it was said he had given over his allegiance to the League of Nations. In the story of the speech by Mr. Ralston it was said he reaffirmed his belief in the league.

It took only about twenty-four hours for a denial to arrive of the truth of the story of the Underwood speech. The Alabama senator repudiated in toto the report of his address. He said his belief in the league was what it always had been and that he was still its staunch supporter.

The League of Nations, despite recent happenings, probably will be very much of a factor in the coming nomination campaign and, of course, in the election campaign which is to follow.

As everybody knows, the Democrats, like the Republicans, have their ranks split on the general subject of trying to find some means to aid Europe, but there are many more League of Nationsites in the Democratic party or seemingly so, at least, than there are in the Republican party.

All Looking for Excitement. It is easy enough to understand the excitement which followed the story that Mr. Underwood had repudiated the league. It was said by some Democrats that this repudiation meant his defeat for the nomination. It takes a denial of a story a long time to catch up with the story itself. Sometimes it never catches up, but, of course, Mr. Underwood's friends are hoping for the best.

Politics will be the chief subject of discussion in this town from now until the election, one year from November, and now that the heat of the summer is past with its general accompanying dullness, it perhaps can be readily understood with what avidity in cool weather the politicians seized upon the Underwood-Ralston incident for street, office and closet conversation.

The Republicans are having some interesting discussions of their own on this thing and that thing these days. A Republican leader the other day delivered himself of a statement to the effect that President Coolidge was between the devil and the deep sea in the World court matter. The intimation was, of course, that if the President followed his own beliefs in the matter he would lose politically; that the devil of anti-court would get him on the one side or the deep sea of the court on the other, unless he compromised.

Some of the President's friends were angry at this statement of the Republican leader, for they said that in a way it was an insult to suggest that any President of the United States for purely political purposes would fail to follow his own convictions in any matter and would be deterred from doing right by any fear for his future.

National Chairmen to Stay. The chairmen of the two great national party committees seemingly are to stay put on their jobs until the conventions meet. This much seems to be assured, notwithstanding the fact that rumors have been flying about that Chairman Hull of the Democratic committee was not entirely acceptable to many of the Democratic brethren and that Chairman Adams of the Republican committee was, as the saying goes, "in bad" with a good many Republicans of high estate.

A national committee rarely or never removes its chairman. Probably it can't. Chairmen are supposed to stay in office until their successors are named. Nobody knows who will be the successor of either of the men now in high committee places.

When the conventions meet and the presidential candidates are named, each candidate expresses his desire in the matter of a national committee chairman. If the Republican nominee next year wants Mr. Adams to hang on, he'll hang on, and if the Democratic nominee wants Mr. Hull to hang on, he'll hang on.

Who Will Preside Over Senate? There is speculation in Washington as to the identity of the next president pro tem of the United States senate. Senator Cummings of Iowa was the presiding officer in the absence of the vice president for some time, but now that the vice president has become President, the president pro tem in effect will be the president permanent of the senate. It is said that Senator Cummings is not over anxious for a continuation of the honor which has been his.

The place in a way is a consolation, one, and one in which considerable honor attaches, but the Iowa senator is chairman of a powerful committee, and it is said he does not care for presiding honors, if they are to interfere with his duties as committee chairman. He may not take the high chair in the senate if by the transfer he has to lose the head chair at the committee table.

The presiding officer of the senate, whether he is the vice president or merely a president pro tem, does not have much to do but sit and look fairly wise. Occasionally he gets tired of sitting and wanders out, but for most of the time he is compelled to stick in his place and listen to dreary debates or to repeat time after time as bills reach a certain stage the word "yea," or else to confine his vocal exercises to giving verbal expression to the fact that the senator from New York or some other state has been recognized. Nevertheless the office of president pro tem of the senate is not to be despised. It has been held by several men who have become great in the country's history.

Frye in Chair Many Years. Senator William F. Frye of Maine was presiding officer of the senate for a great many years. He managed to perform the duties of head officer and at the same time carry on the work attached to the office of chairman of the great senate committee on commerce. Senator Frye was an indefatigable worker, and he was not in his latter years a strong man physically. He died at his home in Maine 12 years ago. Just after he had closed his work at a senate session of unusual interest and strenuous activity.

There is rather an interesting story connected with the time of Senator Frye's occupancy of the office of president pro tem of the senate. He was chosen to the place immediately after the election of McKinley and Hobart, in 1897. Mr. Hobart became vice president and Senator Frye used to take his place in the chair on the occasion of Mr. Hobart's absence. They became strong personal friends.

Vice President Hobart died in office and then Senator Frye became the actual presiding officer of the senate. His friendship with Vice President Hobart had brought the families of the two men into social relations. A daughter of Senator Frye, president pro tem of the senate, married a son of Garret A. Hobart, vice president of the United States and presiding officer of the senate.

There are several Hobart-Frye grandchildren who can claim the honor of being descendants of two men who at the same time were presiding officers of the United States.

Plenty of Candidates. If Senator Cummings shall decline the honor of presiding for the position of president pro tem of the senate, there will be no difficulty in selecting a man for the place because of lack of candidates. Of course, the next presiding officer will be a Republican, because the Republicans have control of the senate. The only senators who will not aspire to the honor are those whose committees are important enough to lead them to believe that their work as committee chairmen is of greater importance than the work of presiding over the senate, which in effect is not much work, but largely a place of honor.

Presiding officers of the senate frequently, to put it mildly, are bored stiff. They are compelled by sheer sense of duty to listen to all the speeches which senators seem desirous to deliver. They are many times in the United States senate when the only listeners to some senator's address are the presiding officer, the leader of each political party in the senate, and a handful of persons in the gallery.

Fate. It is a strange fact that since the death of President Taylor of the United States every fourth president has died a sudden death. After Taylor, the twelfth president, there were Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan and Lincoln. President Lincoln was assassinated while attending a theater. Then came Johnson, Grant, Hayes and Garfield. President Garfield was also assassinated. Arthur, Cleveland, Harrison and McKinley, who was the third United States president to be assassinated. Then followed Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson and President Harding, who died a natural but sudden death.

MAYOR THOMASON PRAISES TANLAC

Judge George Washington Thomason, Mayor of Tarrant City, Ala., and one of the most highly respected citizens of the state, is still another man of prominence and unimpeachable integrity to give his unqualified endorsement to Tanlac.

"Chronic indigestion brought me to the verge of a general breakdown three years ago and nothing seemed to afford much relief," said Judge Thomason. "I could hardly eat enough to keep going, and became so weak and nervous I could hardly attend to my duties."

"Finally I started on Tanlac and six bottles fixed me up so fine that I felt ten years younger, and my good health still remains with me."

Flag Placed in Coolidge's Office

Mrs. Frank Stearns, wife of the close friend and backer of President Coolidge, on visiting the White House recently perceived that there was no flag in the executive office. In a few days Mrs. Stearns herself saw to it that a beautiful silk flag was placed in the office. Photograph shows the President's desk just as he left the nation's business to eat luncheon with Mrs. Coolidge.

Mysterious Art in Oregon Forest

This woman's figure, masterfully fashioned in a solid rock, was discovered recently by Southern Pacific engineers while surveying a new railroad line near Crater lake in Oregon. Sculptors, artists and archeologists are deeply puzzled. Some declare it to be the work of nature, others say it is the work of a master who went out in the woods to do his stuff. The surface is so badly eroded that the means of carving cannot be determined.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912.
 Of the Santa Cruz Patagonian, published weekly at Patagonia, Arizona, for October 1, 1923.
 State of Arizona,
 County of Santa Cruz, SS.

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Howard Keener, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the owner of the Santa Cruz Patagonian and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management and circulation of the said publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the editor, managing editor, and business managers are: Publisher, Howard Keener, Patagonia, Arizona; Editor, Howard Keener, Patagonia, Arizona; Managing Editor, none; Business Manager, Howard Keener, Patagonia, Arizona.

2. That the owners are: Howard

Keener, Patagonia, Arizona.
 3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

HOWARD KEENER, Owner.
 Sworn to and subscribed before me this 5 day of October, 1923.
 (Seal) GRACE VAN OSDALE,
 Notary Public.

PARI-MUTUELS IN OPERATION AT ARIZONA STATE FAIR

Phoenix, Oct. 18.—That the first contingent of race horses due for the great race meet scheduled for Phoenix during and after the Arizona state fair is now on its way to Phoenix and that within a week between 300 and 500 of the finest racing stock in the west will be stabled at the state fair grounds. Here has been announced by J. P. Dillon, secretary of the Arizona State Fair Commission. Purses for the 23-day meet total more than $60,000, and the pari-mutuels will be in operation throughout the meet.

Opening on November 12 and closing on December 8 the combined state fair and racing programs for 1923 represent the most ambitious effort ever made in the history of Arizona to advance the interests of the state through the annual fair. The week of November 12-17 will be devoted to the state fair proper, and on November 19 the continuation of the racing program started during fair week will be initiated.

The state fair, aside from the racing program, is being made a most unusual event in every department. Every division of the state fair has been bettered, its premiums increased and its standard heightened. This is particularly true of the agricultural and livestock departments, while the manufacturing exhibit, an innovation at this fair, is reaching proportions exceeding even the expectations of the fair commission.

The reserved seat and box sale for the fair will open on October 22, and those who desire to make reservations should notify the secretary at once. All inquiries should be directed to J. P. Dillon, secretary, Arizona State Fair Commission, box 1346, Phoenix, Arizona.

BODY OF GEORGE EVERETT LAID TO REST IN MASONIC PLOT OF NOGALES CEMETERY

The body of George Everett of Duquesne, who died Wednesday, October 10, in a Nogales hospital following a fall into an abandoned mine shaft in the Duquesne district, was laid to rest Saturday, October 13, at 10 o'clock a. m., in the Masonic plot of the Nogales cemetery. Mr. Everett had been a member of the Masonic fraternity for 25 years.

Funeral services were held at the Episcopal church, Nogales, under the direction of Frank Carroon, the Rev. H. C. Smith delivering the funeral oration. The Nogales lodge of Masons attended the services in a body and at the cemetery read the Masonic funeral service.

Mr. Everett was 61 years of age at the time of his death. He had been a smelter man since he was 19 years old, and had been employed in Eustes, Canada; British Columbia, Venezuela, Mexico, and New Jersey before coming to Arizona 17 years ago. He had been in the employ of the Westinghouse Electric Company for 20 years prior to his death, working for that company in Copperfield, Vermont, and Duquesne, Arizona.

Deceased married Hattie A. Bartlett in 1888, who survives him as his widow. Besides George, Grace and Will Everett, children, he is survived by two brothers and a sister, one brother and the sister living in Canada, and a brother in New Mexico.

The bereaved family has the heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends.

45,000 AUTOS REGISTERED
 Arizona this year has registered approximately 45,000 cars, or 7000 more than were registered for the entire year 1922.

Maricopa leads the list with 15,000, nearly three times as many as either Cochise or Pima counties, next in order. The state highway department, to determine the relative use of the main highways, kept count for a day. A total of 18,954 vehicles was recorded. The heaviest traffic was around Phoenix, whence the Mesa road was used by 3729 cars and the Glendale road by 1725.

If it were not so, would it today be the World's Largest Chain Department Store Organization?

If it were not so, would it have grown from one small Store in 1902, to a Nation-Wide Institution of 475 Department Stores in 1923?

If it were not so, would it have been possible for its annual business to increase in less than a quarter of a century, from $28,898 to over $50,000,000?

If it were not so, would it be reasonably sure of doing the stupendous business in 1923, of approximately $65,000,000?

If it were not so, would it today be the choice of more than a million families in 33 States?

If it were not so, would it have sold nearly 1,404,000 pairs of men's overalls in 1922, and 2,534,087 pairs of shoes, and 2,672,835 yards of perscale, and 1,225,000 hair nets and other goods in equally large quantities?

If it were not so, would it enjoy the indisputable leadership in the mercantile field it does today?

No, indeed!

ARE YOU A BOOSTER OR A KNOCKER

When the Creator had made all the good things there was still some unpleasant work to do, so He made the beasts and reptiles and poisonous insects, and when He had finished He had some scraps that were too bad to put into the Rattlesnake, the Scorpion, the Hyena, and the Skunk, so He put all these together, covered it with suspicion, wrapped it with jealousy, marked it with a yellow streak, and called it a KNOCKER.

This product was so fearful to contemplate that He had to make something to counteract it, so He took a sunbeam, but in it the heart of a child, the brain of a man, wrapped these with civic pride, covered it with brotherly love, gave it a mask of velvet and a grasp of steel, and called it a BOOSTER; made him a lover of fields and flowers and manly sports, a believer in equality and justice, and ever since these two were made mortal man has had the privilege of choosing his associates.

PIGGLY WIGGLY is a builder, a booster in heart and practice. It gives to its customers a saving on each purchase. It boosts him to save and to buy a home—the foundation of all happiness.

The beneficial rains and snows which probably cause a slack in our business, brings joy to our many farmer friends, and gives them heart to go on and on, so PIGGLY WIGGLY is as thankful for the rains and snows as the farmers are, knowing that what benefits the farmer eventually benefits men in all trades and in all kinds of business.

Trade with PIGGLY WIGGLY and save the difference. A smiling face on our customers as they purchase goods of national reputation assures their satisfaction, and that is what we are here for.
