The AMERICAN LEGION

LEGION MEN O. K. SCOUT MOVEMENT

A few months ago, leaders of the American Legion in southern California despaired of being able to keep membership in the Eagle Rock post interested. Today that post has been completely revived because of interest in sponsorship of the boy scout movement in the community.

The whole membership is now at work outlining plans, teaching the youngsters and doing actual scout duty themselves because of this interest. The post has furnished three scoutmasters. The post sponsors all troops in the community regardless of the fact that it has troops of its own.

According to a survey made of posts of the Legion, sponsorship of the boy scout movement has been one of the particular community activities. Reports of nearly a thousand posts indicated that in some way the Legion men are at work in aid of this movement, not to encourage militaristic tendencies, but rather to make a harder and more self-reliant race.

In some posts, this movement is particularly a post affair, with certain regulations imposed on the lads regarding membership in the sponsored scout units. These require that the boys be blood relatives of ex-service men. Other posts have adopted a troop of scouts or several troops in their own cities and are carrying on the work through their organization. In Toledo, O., because most of the posts in the county council had supplied a high type of men for scoutmasters, the leaders of the movement inaugurated a school, and Legionnaires numbered the principal portion of the class.

The recent "scout week," coinciding as it did with the drives of most Legion posts in interest of 1924 membership, proved a great incentive to the scout movement. The former service men in several communities throughout the country took it upon themselves to "sell" the scout idea at the same time that they talked for the Legion and its membership. As a consequence the scout movement in many cities, particularly in Connecticut and New Jersey had added a great many friends. National officials of the Legion have always contended that every former soldier would find something to interest him in the organization. To some this has been the care of the disabled; others in the reunion with former comrades; to certain ones just come a sense of realization of community spirit; and this is exemplified in the case of the Eagle Rock post in California and scores of others now directing and sponsoring the scout movement.

Disabled Men to Have Wisconsin Summer Camp

A summer camp for disabled men in Wisconsin will be opened by the American Legion in that state as a part of the Legion's service program. This camp will be on state lands in the northern section of the state, wherein the basis of the tourist books "abounds the muskie and the trout, the bass and the pickerel."

No attempt will be made to keep the camp military, though the sanitation will be carefully watched by experts. Shacks constructed will provide housing facilities for a veteran and his family and he is expected to prepare his own meals. Only disabled men will be accepted as guests, according to the present plans. Many applications have been received at department headquarters for allotment of space.

Louisiana Legion Men Get After Loan Sharks

Usurious rates of interest charged by "loan sharks" and sharp business tactics used by such persons in Shreveport, La., has come to the attention of the Lowe McFarlane post of the American Legion. As a consequence the Legion men have gone on record favoring steps by the public for protective measures for persons unfamiliar with sound business practice.

A resolution was passed by the post membership expressing the fear that continuance of such evil will result in sowing of the seeds of crime among the victims of the usurers and that these persons are enslaving men and women, both white and black, in the city. By the terms of the resolution the Legion is pledged to abatement of the evil.

Experience as Nurse Causes Mrs. Fleming to Endorse Tanlac

Practical Nurse for 16 Years Tells of Recovery Thanks to Tanlac—Recommends It to Patients.

"I would never have believed any medicine on earth could help me like Tanlac did," is the precise statement of Mrs. Cella Fleming, 1915 Addison St., Berkeley, Calif., a practical nurse of sixteen years' experience.
"In 1904 a serious operation weakened my system so I never saw a real well day until I took Tanlac three years ago. I never seemed to be hungry, my stomach was so disordered I could scarcely retain a thing I ate, and I lost weight till I was almost a shadow. I was very anemic, and shattered nerves and sleepless nights contributed even more to my already miserable state.

"Tanlac built up my appetite and digestion wonderfully, and every single ailment went away. Then, with returning strength came a 32-pound increase in weight, and from that day three years ago my health has been splendid. I recommend Tanlac to many of my patients, for it is indeed a remarkable medicine."
"Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 40 million bottles sold. Accept no substitutes.

Machiavelli

Machiavelli was an Italian statesman, historian and man of letters (1469-1527). It is said the object of his book, "The Prince," is to show that all is fair in diplomacy. The term "Machiavellism" has come to mean political cunning and duplicity, the art of tricking and overreaching by diplomacy.

Health and good looks —the reward of internal cleanliness

HEALTH and good looks go hand in hand. If you do not keep clean internally, your looks and health are undermined together. A clogged intestine breeds poisons that reach every part of the body. These poisons ruin the complexion and undermine health. Constipation brings on such ailments as headaches, bilious attacks, and insomnia—each of which saps your health and vitality. Soon much more serious conditions follow.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation
Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation.

Physicians Favor Lubrication
The lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine
Nujol is not a laxative and cannot gripe. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world.

Don't give disease a start. Adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. Nujol is not a medicine. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

CALVES ARE REARED FREE FROM TUBERCULOSIS

Thirty calves dropped by tuberculous cows in the valuable breeding and experimental herd of the U. S. Department of agriculture in Alaska from 1917 to 1920 have been successfully raised and adjudged free from tuberculosis. While ordinarily the practice of retaining such stock in the herd is to be condemned, and should be allowed only in extremely exceptional cases, the success of the Alaskan experiment proves that a very valuable animal which has become infected with tuberculosis need not be slaughtered; and that the excellent qualities which such an animal would transmit to its offspring can be transmitted and perpetuated in the offspring without incurring any risk of transmitting the disease.

Considerable effort has been expended in developing a breed of cattle suitable for Alaskan conditions by crossing the Galloway breed with Holstein-Friesians, which in spite of all known precautions having been taken the disease made its appearance in the herd. Measures were adopted to retain the diseased animals and to raise calves from them because of their value.

The diseased cattle were placed in quarantine 15 miles from the healthy herd and treated as sound cattle, being given free access to pastures and receiving the usual feed. For the first 24 hours after birth the calves were allowed to remain with their dams in order that they might draw off the first milk, or colostrum, from the udders. They were then removed to separate quarters and fed the pasteurized milk from the tuberculous mothers. Milk together with grass and such other forage as was eaten at will, constituted the entire ration until six months of age. When old enough, they were tested, and upon being pronounced healthy were added to the sound herd.

Breeders of purebred cattle probably will not retain reactors for breeding, except in rare cases, even though the affected animals are valuable. The experiment proves, however, that highly prized reactors need not be slaughtered. They can not be cured, but they can be isolated and bred for the production of healthy offsprings.

A PROCLAMATION CREATING THOMAS JEFFERSON MEMORIAL WEEK

WHEREAS, Thomas Jefferson was the author of the Declaration of Independence, the founder of the University of Virginia, and the third President of the United States, whose far-sighted state-manship resulted in the Louisiana Purchase, and

WHEREAS, He was the first great advocate of a general system of education, introducing bills for the institution of primary and secondary schools in the State of Virginia; and while the bills met with defeat in 1796, he succeeded in securing the approval of the bill for the establishment of elementary schools; and

WHEREAS, The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation has been formed for the purpose of purchasing and maintaining "Monticello," Jefferson's home, as a National memorial, this home built wholly from Jefferson's own plans; and Arizona has been asked to raise the sum of $8000 as its quota for the purchase and endowment of this memorial, and it is the desire particularly of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation that the financing of this memorial, as far as possible, be done by the school children of America; and

WHEREAS, The committee assigned to raise this fund in Arizona has set aside the week of April 6 to 13 as a period devoted to recalling to the people of this State the memory of Thomas Jefferson and the ideals which he sponsored.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Geo. W. P. Hunt, Governor of the State of Arizona, do hereby designate the week of April 6 to 13, inclusive, as Thomas

JOYS OF MOTHERHOOD

Often Prevented by Female Trouble

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brings Joy to Homes by Removing Cause of Trouble

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I was working after I got married and the young lady who worked next to me asked me if I had any intentions of having a child. I told her I would be the happiest woman on earth if I could become a mother, but I always had terrible cramps, backaches and headaches. She then told me of a woman she knows who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the same troubles and it helped her greatly. I took about a half bottle and found that the following month I did not suffer any pain, so I kept on taking it. I have a wonderful baby boy six months old and he is as strong and fat as any one could wish a baby to be. I still take the Vegetable Compound regularly because I have looked fine all the time and felt fine and my mother told me that was the reason. I will be glad to have you publish my testimonial with my name and address."

and I was afraid that I could never have any more, for I had been told that I never could have a living child for I was not strong enough to carry one. But they were mistaken and I had a nice baby boy and now I have five children. I can't praise your medicine enough. My youngest sister has taken it, too, and praises it!" — Mrs. G. L. WISWELL, 48 Mechanics Row, Auburn, Maine.

These cases are similar to many others reported to us. It is well for women to carefully consider such statements and to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. It may bring great joy to your home.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 per cent of these replies are "Yes."

That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This goes to prove that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure-all—can and does do good work. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a medicine for women.

For sale by druggists everywhere.

"GOING 'EM ONE BETTER" IN THE POST OFFICE

"I can do what anyone else can do," a small girl out in Arkansas took as her motto. Then she added to it, "If it's worth while I can even go 'em one better!"

Thereupon life "called her bluff" as the boys say. Lucymay Schuer had started the family record by being the first of five small Schuers. She was within an ace of winning a coveted school record at graduation, when—failure, an empty family purse, Lucymay landed a teacher's job.

Then the Hot Springs paper—did I say Lucymay lived in Arkansas down at the very end of a branch railroad?—carried a letter from Uncle Sam to Lucymay. Extra luck? Hardly. It was just an announcement of examinations for post office clerks. Lucymay felt a bit of a thrill when she went into a "first-class office" of the United States government.

Then, "women can't earn their salaries," she was informed, but she set herself to qualify for a special clerkship. The department rules that a clerk must handle letters at the rate of 10 per minute, and has, on test, climbed up to 72 without error. But she held no political "pull," and special clerkships were jobs handed to the faithful. She stuck to the job. Four years ago came the merit ruling; semi-annual examinations to determine those eligible for special clerkships. "When my winning day arrived," she says, "it was on merit alone."

Outside the office she has mothered two younger sisters, gone into the local Y. W. G. A. and learned team work by gaining members for the post office clerks' organization. When a new organization that seeks out successful women reached Hot Springs, it didn't require political pull to make Lucymay Schuer successively local and state president of the Business and Professional Women's club. She still holds, so far as she knows, the post office record. "Of post office work," she says, "I believe a good woman worker can succeed better than a man. Her hands are quicker and her brain travels faster." And as for living in the smaller place she suggests, "One must prepare herself for a special line to succeed."

"MANY A MICKLE MAKES A MICKLE"

If Old-Lady Fortune ever provided you with an automobile headed "way south on the Dixie highway," you discovered a clean white-and-green town which set you to wondering who had a hand in making Orlando, Fla., unusual.

Well, one of the makers, who yet insists that her part is only a minor one, is named Julia Chapman. It's the spirit she's put into her two jobs rather than the size of her bank account that you find yourself interested in. For she sells tickets in the railroad station and insurance and loans on those white Orlando houses. Those sound like unexciting occupations to carry on in the home town, don't they? Unlikely to bring success or fame or even contentment?

Miss Chapman developed the habit of doing the little things to the best of her ability. As just one result, the card of her insurance company now carries in the upper right-hand corner, "Julia K. Chapman, Sec. and Treas."

Orlando, a village when little Julia Chapman, twelve years old, was orphaned, as a winter resort now attracts thousands of tourists. Miss Chapman sees in her ticket office work not a monotonous, hateful job, but a chance to help all who enter the office; an opportunity to take special care of the great number of the white haired who come hunting sunshine to warm old bones or to cure deep-seated old-age diseases.

She must have made a pleasant memory in the minds of many of the 10,000 who annually pass her window. For she has discovered that all over the United States have spread stories of the efficiency of her office.

The war crystallized her reputation. Uncle Sam, through the railroad administration, beckoned a lean finger at Julia Chapman and said, "I need you." A ticket seller's school for young women was established at Atlanta. Miss Chapman trained the girls to help win the war by selling railroad tickets—not just any way, but Julia Chapman's way.

Whatever success and recognition have come, she feels, are based on the fact that "I have made good in the town I've lived in since I was nine years old. A young woman in a Florida town has great advantages she could not find in a strange city. Here she can grow and expand as the town does."

Sympathetic.

Armor for Dogs

Armor for dogs may be a new idea for modern hunters—and in most cases useless—but it was a necessary part of the ancient huntsman's equipment for the chase. Count Byron Kula de Prorok, who has been directing the excavations in the sunken harbor of old Carthage at the modern site of Alexandria, has recovered a beautiful mosaic of a hunting scene in the Third century, A. D. This mosaic is in a perfect state of preservation, vividly colored, and sets forth a hunting scene, showing the use of nets and hounds. The hounds are encased in a protective suit of armor to guard them against the murderous tasks of the boar.

The mosaic has been mounted on cement and will be placed on exhibition by M. Pinsot, director of the service des antiquites, at the Bibliotheque des Tunisi until the opening, in the spring of 1924, of a new museum at Carthage.

A man went into a bakery the other day. "I'm getting married next week," he began, "and I want to buy a wedding cake." "I suppose you know," said the girl behind the counter, "that it's the latest thing to choose wedding cakes which harmonize with one's business or profession. For instance, an athlete would have a cup cake, a man who gouges his friends a sponge cake, and so on. What, may I ask, is your calling?" "I am a doctor," the

New Use for Needles

Used steel phonograph needles are valuable for fastening the backs in picture frames, especially when the frames are small and delicately constructed, says Popular Science Monthly. The needles will not split the wood and can be pressed into place without hammering.

FLOORS AS A FOUNDATION

Floors are the foundation of the room and in order to appear to lie in their proper place, they must be darker than the walls. This, of course, refers to the wood of the floor, as well as the rug or carpet that covers it.

Furthermore, floors are to be walked on, and there is no feeling that one is treading upon the heads of innocent flowers. In other words, the design should not be so assertive that one is conscious of it.

I remember being in the club home of an organization in whose insignia the serpent played a part. Upon the floor of their really lovely living room was a large one-toned rug, in the center of which was worn the insignia with the serpent very prominent in the design. The normal reaction was to avoid stepping on that snake. That one thing threw the whole room out of balance. It was as though there were a huge bump in the floor which one must always walk around.

This is an exaggerated example, of course, but the same feeling may be created in a lesser degree by any over-assertive floor covering.

If one possesses a really fine rug which is strong in color or in design, or both, it may be used to better advantage in the dining room or library, where the decoration is a bit more subdued and there is less detail to consider. To place such a rug in the living room is to hamper one greatly in the choice of colors or design in the textiles used for hangings and for furniture.

The soft colors and the indeterminate patterns found in most oriental rugs add to their value as floor coverings because they possess the quality of serving as a quiet foundation.

The one or two-toned rugs in neutral tans or grays are always excellent, as they not only harmonize with walls done in these colors, but with any color scheme which may be selected.

The rug rug is not to be despised. In fact, a well-made rug of this sort in good colors is much to be preferred to a more costly rug, flamboyant in color and design. There are certain rooms where a rug rug, because of the character of the furniture, seems more in keeping than any other kind. Braided rugs and the lovely old hooked rugs may be mentioned in this same connection, as they may be used with the same type of furniture as the rug rug. Whatever the method of floor treatment or the type of covering selected, as the foundation of the room, it must seem to stay in its place. If it does not, the harmony and balance of an otherwise satisfying room will be destroyed.

CHEMISTRY IN THE HOME

Chemistry is a subject which most girls instinctively avoid during their school days. It is all right for the boy who is preparing to be a doctor, an engineer, or he may take it for its general interest, but what earthly good will it ever do her is more than the average girl can see.

The truth is that a practical course in chemistry will be more useful throughout her life than many other things which she may deem essential. A required course in household chemistry would be of lasting value.

Every time the housewife prepares a meal, she has performed a series of chemical experiments. A knowledge of the fact will enable her to be a little more certain of her results.

The action of soap and of washing powder is chemical. The effect of these and other agents used in various cleaning processes is something which the housewife should know, and this is chemistry.

Acids are found in all fruits, and we use some of these acids for household purposes, lemon for removing rust spots, or milk for ink stains.

Strong alkalies destroy wool. Cheap soaps contain free alkali. The housekeeper who knows these two facts will act accordingly when she washes the woollens of the household.

Salt and vinegar are used to set colors because they form chemical compounds which render the colors fast.

There is no mystery about chemistry. It does not require a certain kind of mind to grasp its meaning. It binds a world of interest and is extremely valuable. It is a subject which is applied in manifold ways in everyday lives. We may find occasion now and then when we are kind of our ability to speak a foreign tongue, but we have a daily opportunity to be grateful for a knowledge of chemistry.

The problem of the housewife is to plan the family meals with a view of including all the food principles so that she may maintain her family in a physically fit condition.

Washing soda or soaps containing free alkali, will make silks yellow. Undiluted or in a strong solution, it should not be used, as it is injurious to all fabrics, especially wool.

A nice breakfast dish is fried sausage, with rings of nicely fried apples to circle the platter as a garnish. Serve with griddle cakes and a cup of coffee; this will sustain a fairly hard worker until the noon meal.

A rich lemon syrup in which chestnuts are cooked until slightly candied is another favorite way of preparing this popular nut.

CARE OF BABY CHICKS

By L. C. Boggs, Extension Poultryman.

The most delicate stage of a chick's life is the baby chick period. This means that great care must be taken in raising chicks and getting them past that critical age.

When the chicks hatch put the hen and chicks in a small coop, which can be made from a large dry goods box, or a specially constructed A-shaped coop is very good. Place this coop out in the yard and build a small fence about it so that the chicks can have a place to scratch and exercise. If it can be arranged so there is green grass of some kind in this little plot much better results will be obtained. If there is no green stuff growing in the yard you must cut some each day and throw it in to them. Young barley, oats, lettuce, alfalfa, or clover are very good. Cut it up fine for the mat first.

If the hen could get out she would be up early in the morning and get the little chicks out into the damp grass and get them wet, which would result in the death of many. Also, later in the day hawks might get some of the chicks before they could get to shelter, while if the mother hen is kept in the coop they will always stay near enough so they can get back to the coop in time of danger.

Keep a clean litter of straw or hay on the floor of the coop for the chicks to sleep on at night. Change this litter whenever it becomes damp or dirty. Spray the coop well with some good disinfectant to get rid of all mites and blue bugs.

If it is possible, keep sour milk or buttermilk in front of the chicks at all times. Fresh, clean water should also be in front of them at all times. Put both the milk and water in some kind of container the chicks cannot get into.

Shade during the hot part of the day is another essential thing for baby chicks. This can be furnished by stretching sacks over a frame work of some kind in the pen.

Now comes the matter of feeding. There are a great many baby chick feeds manufactured and recommended by feed companies. These feeds give very good results if fed properly. Do not feed the chicks anything for at least 48 hours after they are hatched. Remember now that the hen must have feed all the time, and if she does not get feed at the time the chicks hatch she sometimes gets nervous and leaves the nest before all the chicks are out of the shell. Place a board across the bottom of the opening in front so that the hen can reach out over it to eat, but yet the chicks cannot get to it and eat until 48 hours old. Keep her milk and water inside the coop at first.

If you do not have any kind of feed that you have tried out and are satisfied with, the following feeds and methods will prove satisfactory:

When the chicks are at least 48 hours old give them a light feed of rolled oats. Feed this to them on shallow pans or papers to teach them to eat. In this first feed also sprinkle a small handful of fine chick grit or coarse sand. Remember that this grit is the chick's teeth and it is very important that it gets this in order to grind up the feed that it eats. Feed five times a day with the rolled oats, but only what they will clean up in about 15 minutes. Start in on about the fourth day to mix with the rolled oats a chick mash. Gradually make the change from the rolled oats to the mash. At the end of the first week start feeding a chick scratch twice a day instead of two of the mash feeds. This makes it two feeds of scratch and three of mash each day. At the end of the second week you can put the mash in hoppers and leave it in front of them at all times. When this is done you should feed them scratch three times a day. Be sure that you do not give them any more than they can clean up each time. It is best to feed this scratch feed in a fine litter to make them scratch for it.

When they are four or five weeks old you can begin turning the hen loose with them during the day; but keep them in until the dew is off the grass in the morning.

Making an Inexpensive Crystal Receiver

There is a wide field for a simple and inexpensive crystal detector, both among beginners and "old-timers." The beginner does not usually want to invest much money in a set, until he thoroughly understands the principles involved, and a crystal receiver is ideal for him; the more advanced radio enthusiast, also, can use a crystal set to advantage as a standby for the not infrequent occasions when his large set "goes on strike"—usually when a particularly interesting concert or lecture is "on the air."

The crystal receiver described in this article is easy to build, is always ready to use, will give excellent results up to a distance of 20 miles, and costs only about 65 cents to build.

The coil, which is of the spider-web type, is wound on a form consisting of a slotted fiber disk, 1/2 in. thick, and 5 in. in diameter. There are 13 "spokes" in the form, and, if fiber is unobtainable, heavy cardboard may be used instead. Fifty turns of No. 25 single cotton-covered wire are wound on the form, the wire being led through a small hole drilled near the center of the disk and then wound on the form from the center out over and under alternate spokes. The turns should be counted every time the starting point is passed, and, when the winding is completed, the end of the wire is passed through another small hole and drilled in the end of one of the spokes.

The coil is screwed to a small block of wood, 1 in. square and 3/4 in. high, which in turn is tacked or glued to a 1/4 by 8 by 11-in. baseboard. A bolt may be used if a hole is drilled in the small block and base, and the bolt passed through both. A strip of wood, 3/4 in. thick and 1/4 in. wide is then cut to a length of 6 in., and the ends rounded. Two small holes are drilled in this strip to take No. 18 insulated fixture wire, and a hole drilled for a screw or bolt. The strip is mounted on a block of wood 1 in. high, and screwed or bolted to the base so that the arm can move freely. The binding posts, detector, and .00025-mf. condenser are then screwed to the baseboard, the condenser being screwed to the underside, between the phone posts.

A length of No. 18 fixture wire with one end bared and doubled over as indicated in the detail, is threaded through the holes in the contact arm, and the other end connected to the aerial binding post. The arm is then moved so as to mark the path of the doubled end of the wire over the coil, and the insulation is carefully scraped off each turn along this path. This is best done with a small piece of emery cloth, doubled and used on edge. Care must be taken that no two turns touch at the bared spots, and the doubled end of the bared contact wire must be cleaned, and adjusted to make good contact with the coil turns.

The starting end of the coil is now connected to the ground binding post, and the other end to the crystal side of the detector. The "cat-whisker" of the detector is connected to one of the phone posts, the other phone post connected to the aerial post, and the condenser connected across the phone posts, all this wiring being done under the baseboard, as indicated in the drawing.

A strip of wood, 3/4 by 3/4 by 8 in., glued to each side of the base, completes the instrument.

Connect a good pair of phones to the phone posts, solder or clamp a lead from the ground post to a water pipe, and connect up the aerial lead, and the instrument is ready for use. If an overhead aerial cannot be used, the reader can still get good results by laying three complete turns of ordinary bell wire around the picture molding of the room, leaving one end "open," and connecting the other end to the aerial lead.

The cast has been selected from the best talent in Nogales, and numerous popular song hits, clever dances and snappy dialogues will be on the program.

The full program and cast of characters will be given at a later date in the Patagonian.
