SKIMMING THE DROSS FROM THE WEEK'S NEWS

First news of the Japanese earthquake estimated an approximate money loss of $100,000,000. Later reports boosted this figure to at least ten billions. After reliable figures were gathered the Japanese foreign office estimated the loss at $933,000,000.

This uncertainty in news is most apparent when disasters occur. First reports seldom are correct; the facts either are exaggerated or underestimated. In some cases the truth remains obscured for days or weeks.

Reports of less sensational news often fluctuate in a similar manner. Statements made one day are contradicted the next. Sometimes one small item will grow into a story of several columns, while on the other hand a big piece of news may prove in a short time to have no substantial foundation of fact.

The Santa Cruz Patagonian tries to give its readers each week this foundation of fact in our News Review of Current Events. Written by Edward W. Pickard, this resume of world happenings comes to you as predigestion. Mr. Pickard is a seasoned newspaper man, writer and traveler. He is in touch constantly with most of the reliable sources of world news.

It is not his duty to censor, but merely to refine this vast supply of raw material into clear, intelligible and unbiased accountings of what has happened, together with an expression of its relative importance to all of us.

Many of our subscribers are congratulating us for securing for them this weekly report of national and international news. The Santa Cruz Patagonian at all times seeks to offer the most interesting and important local news. If we didn't we couldn't continue. By offering this News Review of Current Events, we believe we are satisfying the demand for accurate information concerning the world at large.

PROCLAMATION OF FOREST PROTECTION WEEK

WHEREAS, The President of the United States has designated and set apart the week of April 21-27, 1924, as Forest Protection Week, and

WHEREAS, Every year thousands of acres of our National Forests are destroyed by fire, in many instances caused by the carelessness of those using the forests; and

WHEREAS, The protection and conservation of our National Forests is necessary for the prosperity, comfort and welfare of the people of the United States,

THEREFORE, I, George W. P. Hunt, Governor of Arizona, in compliance with the request of the President of the United States, do designate the week of April 21-27, 1924, as Forest Protection Week, and do urge upon our people that they exercise the utmost care and precaution during this week and during the coming summer and that camp sites be left in a clean and orderly condition, and that they make sure that all camp fires are extinguished before leaving their camps, and that they co-operate with the forest officials in preventing fires and the destruction of our National Forests.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State of Arizona to be hereunto affixed.

Done at Phoenix, the capital, this 12th day of April, 1924. (Seal) GEO. W. P. HUNT, Governor of Arizona. Attest: JAMES H. KERFF, Secretary of State.

A farmer carrying an express package from a big mail order house was accosted by a storekeeper. "Why didn't you buy that bill at goods from me? I could have saved you the express, and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and builds up this locality."

The farmer looked at the merchant a moment and then said: "Why don't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know that you had the stuff I have here."

VOICE APPEALS TO PUBLIC

Henry G. Boice, president of the Arizona Cattle Growers' Association, last week issued the following appeal to the citizens of Arizona to keep the hoof and mouth disease from entering this state:

It appears from recent reports that the hoof and mouth disease in California is beyond the control of the federal and state authorities in that state, and there is very grave danger that the disease will spread to Arizona in spite of the most rigid quarantine.

It is impossible to estimate the results if we get the disease in Arizona. It would affect every industry in the state, as well as the livestock and agricultural interests.

If the hoof and mouth disease appears in Arizona other states will quarantine against us for all livestock, products of the soil, manufactured goods, and may even stop travel out of Arizona. It would, in fact, be nothing short of a calamity for this state, and may go so far as to bankrupt many of our industries.

It is very important that the citizens of Arizona co-operate with the authorities in maintaining the strictest and most drastic quarantine against all districts in which the hoof and mouth disease has appeared or which have by any means become exposed to the disease. Even though the quarantine may work a hardship upon some, it behooves all who have the welfare of Arizona at heart to lend their efforts towards keeping Arizona free from this calamity.

AUTOS STOPPED AT STATE LINE

Quarantine guards stationed on the Yuma road estimate that at least 500 cars crossed the line between California and Arizona during the 24 hours immediately preceding the closing of the border last Friday morning, when a rigid quarantine was put in effect barring all automobiles from entrance into Arizona from California, says a report from Yuma.

Shortly after the road was closed three cars appeared seeking entrance into the state, but were turned back. All cars arriving since that time have been refused entrance to Arizona in accordance with the regulations of the quarantine.

MEXICAN LANDS ARE SOUGHT BY JAPS OF CALIFORNIA

From Mexico City comes the report that more than 32,000 Japanese agriculturists are ready to emigrate from California and settle in various Mexican states. The information was given out by the department of the interior in the southern republic, in the following message:

"Arturo J. Braniff, Mexican financier, personally interested in the matter, reports that more than 32,000 Japanese farmers with ample means are ready to emigrate from California, where they are residing, because of the prohibition against continuing leases or buying lands in the United States. Mr. Braniff's representative has been conferring with the Japanese ambassador in Washington, who desires to learn whether the Mexican government objects to the arrival of these colonists in Mexico for the purpose of dedicating themselves to agriculture.

"Various Latin-American governments have made proposals along similar lines. Because of the great importance of the matter the governors of Colima, Nayarit, Sinaloa, Sonora and Jalisco have been asked to give their opinions since the Japanese colonists prefer lands in these regions.

"When these opinions are received the interior department will formulate its conclusions for submission to the ministry of agriculture and development, and meanwhile the project is in abeyance pending decision."

STATE POSTMASTERS MEET

Postmasters of Arizona met in Nogales yesterday, when their annual convention was held. Many big huff-ends of the railway mail service and postal inspection service also were present. Nearly every city in the state was represented at the convention.

The P. M.'s met at 10 o'clock at the Pinnac Club, in City Hall, and registered, after which a business session was held. The convention was addressed by Edward McGrath, superintendent of the 8th district of railroad service. Following the talk of McGrath, the meeting was adjourned for lunch.

Mayor Harrison delivered an address of welcome at the afternoon session, and the afternoon session closed with the annual election of officers.

A banquet was given in the evening at which Captain Beatty, Nogales postmaster was toastmaster. Rev. O. A. Smith delivered an address to the diners on "The Influence of the Postmaster and His Duties to His Patrons."

The association had a 5-by-8-foot silk flag of the state of Arizona made which was sent in the postmaster general at Washington, D. C., following the convention.

FIRST NATIONAL OF NOGALES TO MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

The First National Bank of Nogales officials have given out the information that the banking business will be moved from its present location in the Brickwood building to its own building on the corner of Morley avenue and International street. The new location will be in the Trust building, where the banking firm will occupy the entire first floor and basement. The Southern Trust Company also will have rooms on the first floor of the Trust building.

It is planned to make the new quarters of the bank ideal in the way of equipment and finish and everything will be modern in every detail.

The change will likely be made about the beginning of next year, as time will be required for remodeling their new quarters and securing delivery of equipment.

FORBES IS INDICTED BY JURY

Baltimore, April 16.—Former Director Forbes of the Veterans' Bureau was indicted by the federal grand jury at the close of the investigation of the sale of army supplies alleged to have been worth three millions to the Thomson-Kelly Company for a price said to have been $600,000.

Nathan Thomson, head of the company that bought the supplies and Commander C. O. O'Leary, U. S. N., who was chief of the supply division of the bureau in Maryland at the time the goods were sold, were also indicted.

ELKS TO ENTERTAIN VISITING BRETHREN ON SUNDAY

Sunday morning, April 20, approximately 600 Elks of the domain of Arizona will spend the day in Nogales, where they will be royally entertained by the Nogales R. P. O. E. Lodge.

A committee of the Nogales lodge has made arrangements for the biggest event in the antlered history of the state.

Following the arrival of a special train bearing the Elks from Tucson, a general gathering will take place in front of City Hall, at 11:15 o'clock, where the parade will be formed headed by the 25th Infantry band. Following the parade, visiting and local Elks will adjourn to Ephraim's Canyon, where a barbecue will be held and refreshments served. The picnic will be staged on the international boundary, but on one side and drink on the other—if you like.

A program of sports, including boxing matches, foot races and other athletic stunts will be held at the picnic grounds, followed by an old-time "badger fight." Charles V. Fowler will furnish the badger, which he is said to have recently captured in the wilds of Sonora, near Pitiquito, where he is engaged in raising cotton.

Nogales Elks say they are making special efforts to make this the biggest gathering of "Bills" in this part of the southwest. All Elks should attend.

VAUGHN

Henry Wood made a trip to the San Rafael Valley for seed corn last week.

Cede McPherson was a Vaughn visitor last week from the San Rafael valley.

Henry Barton and son of Canille called at the Frank Jolly ranch the first of the week.

George Beebe purchased a fine team of mares from Ed Ellis to use on his ranch. Mr. Beebe has one of the best equipped dairies in this part of the county, stocked with about 60 cows and two registered Jersey bulls. He owns about 125 acres of land and has two large silos which are filled, as a rule, twice a year. The policy is good stock and good feed.

Among the Elmites to attend services at Vaughn last Sunday were the following: Jim Bontrous, Mrs. Reeves and children, Mrs. Eva Barnett, and Roland Kirby.

MEETS DEATH IN AUTO CRASH

Duvid Richardson, 26, son of the late founder of the Richardson Construction Company of Sonoita, was killed Sunday night on the road between Cajone and Esperanza, Sonora, Mexico, and two other passengers of the Ford car were seriously injured.

The body of young Richardson was taken to Los Angeles Wednesday by his mother, a sister, Mrs. Andrew Baldwin, and the latter's husband, who arrived from the coast that morning.

The Richardson Construction Company is one of the largest agricultural enterprises in Sonora and the dead man held a high position in it.

REAFFIRM JAP EXCLUSION VOTE

Washington, April 16.—The senate, having by a vote of 71 to 4 reaffirmed the vote of yesterday on Japanese exclusion, the interest in this phase of immigration was turned today to the attitude of President Coolidge's future course with reference to the question. He has, with Secretary Hughes, opposed the incorporation of such a provision affecting the Japanese, and there has been intimation that he might veto the measure, but congressional leaders have predicted that he would sign it.

MANY ATTEND JEFFERSON DAY BANQUET IN NOGALES

The Jefferson Day banquet, held in the Santa Cruz Club assembly room, Monday night in Nogales, was well attended. Two hundred and twenty tickets were sold and the hall was crowded with ardent Democrats, who came to do homage to their patron saint.

Judge W. A. O'Connor acted as toastmaster. State Senator C. A. Pierce of Patagonia gave a five-minute talk on "Our Democracy" which was historical in character, followed by a short address by Judge Lockwood of Tombstone, who also made a short address, giving way to the principal speaker of the evening, Charles L. Hardy, justice of the peace of Nogales.

Mr. Hardy was at his best and delivered a masterful address on the life and works of Thomas Jefferson and incidentally brought in the League of Nations and the late President Woodrow Wilson. At mention of the late president's name the audience broke into applause, showing that the speaker had touched a responsive chord in their hearts.

Before the speakers of the evening were introduced by the toastmaster, Attorney Leslie Hardy offered a resolution on the death of the late Senator Marcus A. Smith of Arizona, which was unanimously adopted, as follows: RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, The Almighty God, who presides over the destinies of the universe, on the 7th day of April, A. D. 1924, called the Honorable Marcus A. Smith to that land from whose hours no traveler ever returns, and

WHEREAS, Marcus A. Smith for 40 years labored faithfully and honorably in the service of the people of the State of Arizona and the nation, during which time he was the recipient of responsible public honors bestowed upon him by the people of the State of Arizona through the medium of the Democratic party, and

WHEREAS, The knowledge of the death of Marcus A. Smith brought a deep feeling of bereavement to the members of the Democratic party of Santa Cruz County, Arizona; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, That the Democrats of Santa Cruz County, Arizona, and their guests, assembled at Nogales on this 14th day of April, A. D. 1924, to pay tribute to the memory of the immortal Thomas Jefferson, whose noble philosophy, in our empyrean principles of freedom and liberty Marcus A. Smith so consistently espoused, do hereby express profound sorrow at the death of our beloved friend and distinguished patriot.

The toastmaster called attention to the fact that there is a movement on foot in the United States to raise funds for the purchase of Jefferson's old home, Monticello, in Virginia, and that those that do donate to the fund, Arizona's quota has been fixed at but $5000, which will require but a small amount from each person wishing to hold this worthy cause.

The Parent Teacher's Association furnished the supper, which was a huge success from every viewpoint.

Many out-of-town persons were in attendance.

Report of Dawes Committee on German Problem—Johnson Won't Quit.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
THE plan submitted is fair and reasonable in its nature, and, if accepted, is likely to lead to ultimate and lasting peace. The rejection of these proposals by the German government means the deliberate choice of a continuance of economic demoralization, eventually involving her people in hopeless misery.

Saying which, at the close of his covering letter, General Dawes submitted to the reparations commission the long-awaited report of the committee of experts which he headed. At the same time the report of the second committee, on German concealed moneys, was presented. Both documents must be considered by the reparations commission before the governments concerned act on them.

The Dawes report is a triumph of business sense, skillful adjustment and diplomatic wording. As the chairman said: "It must be considered not as inflicting penalties but as suggesting means for assisting the economic recovery of all European peoples and the entry upon a new period of happiness and prosperity unmenaced by war."

"It declares Germany's production will enable her to meet her own requirements and to make payments on the reparations account from taxes, the railroads and industrial debentures, of 1,000,000,000 gold marks the first year, 1,200,000,000 the second year, 1,450,000,000 the third year, 2,000,000,000 the fourth year and 2,500,000,000 the fifth year and thereafter. This last sum may be increased progressively in accordance with Germany's prosperity. German taxation must be at least as heavy as that of any of the allied powers; her railway system should be converted into a joint stock company and mortgaged for 11,000,000,000 gold marks; her industries are expected to provide 5,000,000,000 gold marks, represented by first mortgage bonds. A gold bank of omission with headquarters in Berlin and under control of the allies, with a capital of 400,000,000 gold marks will redeem the renten mark in ten years. The allies are asked to restore to Germany free economic activity within her territory, which means the surrender by France of economic control of the Ruhr, though not necessarily the abandonment of military occupation. The experts say Germany will need help from abroad to the extent of 800,000,000 gold marks, partly to capitalize the new gold bank and partly to meet expenditures while the budget is being balanced.

A general board of control, including an American, with allied, neutral and German members, is the experts' solution of the difficult problem of guarantees that Germany will execute the terms of eventual settlement under their plan.

According to the report of the second committee, the Germans have 6,750,000,000 gold marks abroad, and means are suggested for attracting this capital back to Germany.

pay?" and "How much can she pay each year?" the experts "have responded positively and clearly. They have said Germany can pay and how much she can pay annually. Not only did they answer the question but they have constructed a machine for payments which is a remarkable piece of clockwork. Tomorrow, if desired, the machine can be put into movement. If it is desired! That means Germany. What is Germany going to do? The only question for the reparations commission to put up to Germany is demand a yes or no answer. And the only thing France has to say to her allies, 'Do you underwrite the work of your experts? If you underwrite it, will you help to make it work? Will your pressure go to the extent of using force?'"

The Temps thinks the Dawes plan offers the best basis of settlement of the reparations problem which has yet been proposed, and says the French army is ready to back it if necessary.

Great Britain is pleased with the Dawes report, generally speaking, but doubt is felt in London that France will agree to the abandonment of the Ruhr control and the four years' partial moratorium for Germany.

HUGO STINNES, the richest man in Germany, if not in the world, died Thursday after several operations in a Berlin hospital. He was only fifty-four years old, but through relentless methods and extraordinary business genius he had built up an enormous fortune that made him the most hated and feared man in Europe. He took every possible advantage of the misfortunes of his country and his countrymen, and so far as is known never did anything to relieve the distress which soft-hearted Americans have given and are giving millions to alleviate. The passing of Stinnes may have some effect on the reception and success of the Dawes committee plan. It was believed in Germany that his peculiar talents qualified him especially to take a leading part in the economic readjustment of the country.

Stinnes has been a prominent member of the National party, which last week scored big victories over the Socialists and Communists in the Bavarian elections.

SENATOR IHRAM JOHNSON of California sustained a severe blow in his fight for the Republican presidential nomination last Tuesday, when Illinois in its primary election gave President Coolidge a plurality of something like 130,000. Michigan and Nebraska Republicans also declared their preference for Coolidge emphatically, the three states adding at least 110 delegates to his column. Mr. Coolidge was thus placed within 22 votes of obtaining the nomination on the first ballot in the Cleveland convention, according to the estimates of his managers.

There were rumors that Senator Johnson was about ready to abandon his campaign to the extent of stopping his speechmaking, but this he denied in a formal statement, asserting he was "neither discouraged nor despairing." Johnson had banked heavily on the three Middle West states that have so heartlessly turned him down. To date he has the 13 delegates from South Dakota, and LaFollette has Wisconsin's 28 votes. But the delegates already chosen instructed for Coolidge or favorable to him are 533 in number, and only 555 votes are necessary to choose. Twenty-one states still have to elect their delegates to the convention.

Michigan Democrats expressed a preference for Henry Ford over Senator W. N. Ferris. In Nebraska they chose an uninstrusted delegation, and in Illinois their "regular" organization succeeded in preventing the election of any McAdoo delegates.

MUCH publicity having been given recently to the huge contributions made by Doheny, Sinclair and others to help pay the campaign expenses of both parties in the last presidential campaign, Senator Borah and some progressive Republicans and Democrats of both houses are preparing a law to put an end to excessive election expenditures and to secret and large contributions to party funds. They plan to have it passed at this session of congress so it will apply to this year's national election. It will provide for:

- 1. Limitation of the total campaign expenditures by any political party.
- 2. Limitation of the amount that may be contributed by any individual.
- 3. Publicity of contributions to liquidate deficits in party hands after an election, as is required of contributions before the election.
- 4. Penal punishment for violation of any provisions of the law.

SENATOR LAFOLLETTE has made public the radical platform which his Wisconsin delegates will submit for adoption at the Republican national convention. It includes all the senator's well-known ideas and is designed to appeal to almost all progressives or radicals. Its rejection by the convention is certain, and it is supposed the Wisconsin bunch will then withdraw and join with other elements in nominating LaFollette on a third ticket.

CHAIRMAN SMOOT of the senate finance committee introduced in the senate the tax reduction bill as approved by the committee. The measure carries the Mellon income tax rate schedule, the provision for a 25 per cent reduction in the income taxes of 1923 payable this year, a 25 per cent reduction on earned incomes up to $10,000, and repeal or reduction of many of the excise taxes.

The senate committee toward the end of the week took up consideration of the soldiers' bonus bill and the indications were that it would be reported substantially as it was passed by the house.

SENATOR BURTON K. WHEELER, the implacable prosecutor in the senate investigation of the acts of Harry Daugherty, was indicted last week by a federal grand jury in Great Falls, Mont., on a charge of unlawfully receiving money as retainer fees to influence the issuance of oil and gas prospecting permits by the secretary of the interior and the commissioner of the general land office. With him were indicted Gordon Campbell and L. C. Stevenson, oil men. It was alleged the offense was committed after Wheeler was elected senator but before he qualified for the office.

Wheeler rose to defend himself in the senate Wednesday, giving a brief outline of his career and his version of the transaction upon which the charges are based. He said he tried and won a case in Great Falls for the Gordon Campbell syndicate before he went to Washington and was paid $4,000 of his $10,000 fee, but that he had refused to appear for Campbell before any department of government in Washington. He declared the indictment was "part of one of the most damnable conspiracies ever started in the United States" and that the foreman of the grand jury which indicted him is one of the most bitter political enemies he has in Montana. At Senator Wheeler's request, the president pro tem, of the senate, Albert B. Cummins, was instructed by resolution to appoint a committee of five to investigate the circumstances surrounding the indictment of Wheeler.

CONSIDERABLE testimony was heard by both the Daugherty and the Teapot Dome committees last week, much of it suggestive but none of it at all conclusive. The oil lease investigators were hurrying to conclude their work. Howard D. Manning, who was wanted by the Daugherty committee to tell about the "little green house" and the alleged deals concocted there, arrived from France and was at once subpoenaed.

A charge of first degree murder against Beatrice Hunter for complicity in the shooting of two Salt Lake City police officers by her companion, William Lee, last Jan. 15, has been dismissed.

Ralph W. Seyboldt, convicted of murder in the first degree by a jury in the District Court at Salt Lake City for the slaying of Patrolman David H. Crowther of the Salt Lake City police force, was sentenced to be shot to death at the state prison on Wednesday, June 4, next.

The Colorado river conference, which was to have been held at El Centro, April 12-13, has been indefinitely postponed on account of the foot and mouth epidemic. It was announced in Los Angeles by the California Real Estate Association, under whose auspices the meeting was to have taken place.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized the North & South Railway Company to build a $11,000,000 line from Miles City, Mont., to Ilco, Wyo., and from Miles to Casper, Wyo., reaching into the Teapot dome oil section. The commission authorized the company to acquire any lines now being constructed over the proposed routes.

The mystery which has surrounded the death of J. J. Maguire, the aged blacksmith of Los Olivos, near Santa Barbara, Calif., who was killed by a dynamite blast on the night of Dec. 14, has been solved according to an announcement from the office of District Attorney Clarence Ward as a confession by Harvey Stonebarger, one of the men held on suspicion that he had knowledge of the killing.

Albert E. Cuthbert, former evangelist, who sold 75-cent Bibles for $3.75, is serving a three months' term in the Orange county (Calif.) jail. Cuthbert was said to have built up a mail order Bible business by scanning a newspaper death column each day and mailing a Bible C. O. D. to each bereaved widow whose name appeared. In pleading guilty to a charge of using the mails to defraud, he explained he found these widows "were in a proper frame of mind to buy Bibles at his price."

Two large mine laying submarines, 1,700 tons each, are to be constructed for the Japanese navy by the Kawasaki dock yard of Kobe, Japan, according to announcement by dockyard authorities. Work is to be commenced immediately and the submarines will be launched in November. German patents will be followed in most of the construction, although Japanese naval architects are said to have introduced some new devices. The submarines will be able to carry forty mines each.

Returns from Italy's parliamentary elections indicated an overwhelming victory for the Fascisti. The government candidates appeared to be leading in nearly every region. Final returns from Genoa gave the Fascisti 24,576 votes; Unitarian Socialists, 14,649; Catholics, 4,793; Liberals, 3,709; Communists, 2,096. The Independents, headed by Deputy Giuffrida, were running second to the Fascisti in Catania, with the other parties trailing. It was estimated that the Fascisti would poll fully one-third of the entire vote.

Patrick E. Crowley, who a half century ago quit his father's little farm to become a railroad messenger boy, was elected president of the New York Central lines, one of America's wealthiest and biggest transit systems. He was chosen to fill the vacancy created a month ago when a fall from a horse killed A. H. Smith. Mr. Crowley's salary, it was understood, would be $100,000 a year.

Wage increases of approximately 5 per cent less certain concessions and compensations to the railroads were reported to have been virtually agreed upon as the basis of an agreement which was expected to be reached soon by negotiators representing thirty-one western railroads and their subsidiaries and the Order of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. Approximately 80,000 men would be affected and the railroads' annual pay rolls would be increased something like $5,000,000 if the reported basis of the negotiations is incorporated in the final agreement.

AFTER AN OPERATION

Mrs. Wilke Couldn't Get Back Her Strength Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rochester, Minnesota.—"I had a very serious operation and it seemed as if I could not get my health back after it. I suffered with pain almost constantly. My sister came to help take care of me, and she was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nervousness and a run-down condition. She had me try some of it, and in a very few days' time I began to feel better. In two weeks I hardly knew myself and after taking a couple of bottles more I was up and helping around, and now I am strong and healthy again and am still taking it. It is a pleasure for me to write this to you, and I hope that many other women who are suffering like I was will find out about your medicine. I will give any information I possibly can." —Mrs. JAMES WILKE, 383 E. Center Street, Rochester, Minn.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Wilke.

Tropical Plant Eats Mice
A most unusual plant, that reverses the natural order of things by eating animals, has recently been put on display at the London horticultural hall in England.
This extraordinary meat-eating plant is a native of the tropical East Indies. Its principal prey is mice, which are attracted to it by a very pungent odor emanating from the mouth of the blossom, formed into almost a perfect hole. The mice crawl into this opening and patural bristles on the petals close about the victim as it makes an attempt to escape. Digestive juices similar to those secreted in the stomachs of animals are given off and the victim is slowly consumed.
It has long been known that plants breathe and sleep, eat and drink much the same as animals; but this is the only plant known that eats meat.

HOME HINTS AND DIET

By INEZ SEARLES WILLSON

CHEESE COOKERY

Cheese is cooked when it is melted, and it melts at a comparatively low temperature, therefore these factors must be taken into consideration when preparing dishes in which it is one of the ingredients.

The cheese should be finely divided, either by grating or shaving in very thin slices. When well ripened it grates easily, but new cheese, although soft, may be broken into small bits. Old cheese is usually a few cents a pound more than the new, but as its flavor is more highly developed, its use is economy, as less will give the desired taste.

As a high temperature or long cooking tender cheese tough and stringy, the other food materials should be cooked before they are combined with it. Onions, green peppers and chives are splendid flavorings to use with cheese, but as they require longer cooking to make them tender, they may be boiled first in a little water or cooked in butter.

When eating potatoes au gratin or macaroni and cheese or similar dishes, one should be conscious only of the piquant flavor of the cheese in the smooth white sauce. There should not be, as there so frequently are, little lumps of tough cheese, due to the fact that the protein has been coagulated by improper methods of cookery. If the white sauce is made and then the cheese is completely melted before the sauce is poured over the potatoes or macaroni, which have also been cooked, this condition will not result and the finished product will be a more digestible article of food.

It is a frequent complaint that it is difficult to always find a cheese which melts easily, and while one well ripened and so readily grated does melt more quickly than one which cannot be so finely divided, there is no reason why any cheese will not form a smooth mixture if properly handled.

The American cream or "store" cheese is one of the most commonly used for general purposes of cookery. When new, it is soft and has a mild flavor. When old, it has a sharp flavor and is very easily grated.

There are many varieties of imported cheese which are available in the markets of the larger cities and towns. English dairy cheese is one of these. It is very similar to the American or Cheddar except that it is harder and therefore easily grated. It is a trifle more expensive than the American.

Among these cheeses which are used as a supplement to other foods, we find Roquefort, Brie and Camembert which are characterized by their strong odor and distinctive flavor.

PROTEINS AND THEIR FUNCTION IN THE BODY

Protein is the term applied to those substances in our foodstuffs which contain nitrogen. They are the most important constituents of our food because they build body tissue as well as repair that which is broken down by the wear and tear of our ordinary expenditure of muscular energy.

The body of the average man is about 18 per cent protein by weight. It forms the basis of the bony structure, the muscles and other tissues.

Protein may be utilized as fuel for the body just as the fats and carbohydrates are sources of energy. To furnish energy in the form of protein is an unnecessarily expensive method, however.

To protein, and to protein alone, belongs the function of building and repairing the body tissues.

This is the reason that protein must not be absent from the diet. Of course, it could not be entirely absent because most foods furnish a small amount of protein, but it should be present in amounts sufficient to do the necessary building and repairing.

Proteins are found largely in that class of foodstuffs known as "protein rich foods." These are either of animal or vegetable origin. The former is found in meats, fish and the dairy products. The latter comes from the dried seeds of such plants as beans, peas and peanuts.

Animal protein is expensive. Economy, therefore, demands that protein from cheaper foods be substituted for meat.

Milk is the best source of protein for children and every growing child should have a diet in which milk plays an important part. There is less protein in milk than either fat or sugar, but it is of an especially valuable kind.

Children require more protein in proportion to their size than adults because they not only have tissue to be repaired, but they are increasing the size of the body structure.

The normal diet, which maintains an individual in health, will be found to supply sufficient protein, provided care is taken to include those foods known to be rich in protein.

The housewife's problem of planning well-balanced meals is simplified by a knowledge of what protein means to the body and what foods are abundant sources of this valuable food principle.

The American Legion

WILL PROVIDE FOR LEGION'S VISITORS

I. E. Gottlieb, a "duck" private during the war, will represent the largest post of the American Legion in St. Paul, Minn., when delegations gather there for the annual convention. Gottlieb, son of a Russian immigrant, was elected to his position as commander of a St. Paul post because of his work for the Legion, and because his comrades realized his organizing ability.

On the principal post in the convention city falls much detail work. From the ranks of that post must be recruited the hard workers, the men who do most toward entertaining their comrades, the men who must be on hand practically for 24 hours a day, if necessary, for the success of the affair.

So when the 1924 officers for St. Paul post No. 8 were to be chosen, the thousand members cast about to see who fitted this description most accurately. Regardless of the fact that the members were mostly Irish, this did not deter them from selection of Gottlieb, a Jew. Race had nothing to do with this election. As it happened, but fifteen other Jews are members of the post, and on the night of the election only five were present.

But Gottlieb has had a long record of achievement in Legion organizing. He was a member of the Legion within forty-eight hours after his arrival in the Minnesota city with his discharge from service in his pocket. Since that time he has served as post entertainment officer, post finance officer and has taken an active part in local, county and department activities. When the Ramsey county central committee of the Legion was organized, he played a principal part. He formed the successful post drum and bugle corps, which carried off department honors in 1922 and 1923. He formed the Ramsey County Legion Bowling league, one of the most successful in the Legion. If there has been a productive activity of the Legion in St. Paul, Gottlieb very likely figured in it.

Gottlieb was born in Russia and came to America with his parents in 1893. He is the second son of a family of eight. Five of the family served in the World War—three in France. His high school education was never completed, as he left during his first year to become a printer's apprentice, which trade he still follows. With another World War veteran he came back and opened his own shop in the Minnesota city, which he still operates, though he says it is likely his attention to it will be little during the few months previous to the St. Paul convention, in view of his present post.

Out-of-Doors Camp to House Legionnaires

An out-of-doors camp to house visiting Legionnaires who attend the department convention of the Legion in Asheville, N. C., will be established. This is believed to be one of the first instances that the Legion men will, like the Grand Army of the Republic, encamp in this manner.

It is believed that hotel facilities will be overtaxed during the convention and the Kiffin Rockwell post has arranged to open a huge camp, which will require 600 tents, 12,000 blankets and 3,000 cots to care for the visitors. A small charge will be made for accommodation, which will include meals, bus tickets, and to all attractions planned for the Legionnaires during the three-day stay.

Says Former Service Men's Party Will Come

Political mudling has cost the former American soldiers so much during the last four years that the climax will be establishing a former service men's party, according to Joseph Schwartz, a member of the American Legion in Atlantic City. Schwartz made this declaration in speaking before the Lions club of that city.

"The time is coming when the former service men will enter politics," Schwartz said, "a service man doesn't want money, but he wants a soldier party."

POULTRY

IMPORTANT FACTORS IN CARE OF CHICKS

The care of the baby chick is of greatest importance during the early part of the chick's life. Careless handling often results in loss of chicks and stunted growth, points out D. H. Hall, extension poultry specialist at Clemson college, who adds the following suggestions.

In caring for the baby chicks the first thing that should be done is to see that they have a good place to sleep at night. The coops or the house where the baby chicks sleep should be kept clean, dry, and sanitary; should be free from lice and mites, and should afford protection from cats and nocturnal vermin, such as rats, which prey upon chicks.

The mother of the baby chicks should be confined in a coop or house, and the baby chicks should be allowed free range. If the mother is confined, the baby chicks will range around the mother, but will remain within a limited area of her. In case of rain or hawks, the mother can call the baby chicks to her and protect them in the coop. When the mother is allowed free range, the weaker baby chicks will be lost or become so weak that they will die on the range. The mother will take the baby chicks out through damp grass and early morning dew, thereby chilling them and weakening their bodies down to where disease may easily overcome them.

The baby chicks should be confined in early morning, while the mother hen should be confined at all times, if best results are to be obtained from the care of the baby chick, and the house should be kept dry and clean.

Proper Amount of Feed for Flock of Chickens

As to how much to feed, a question frequently asked, we can do no better than refer to the advice offered by the United States Department of Agriculture: "The feeder must use his own judgment in deciding how much grain to give the hens, as the amount of feed which they will eat varies with the different pens and at different seasons of the year. They will eat more feed in the spring while laying heavily than in the summer and fall when laying fewer eggs. A fair general estimate is to feed about one quart of scratch grains and an equal weight of mash (about 1 1/2 quarts) daily to 13 hens of the general purpose breeds, such as the Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds or Wyandottes, or to 16 hens of the smaller or egg breeds. This would be about 7 1/2 pounds of scratch grains and mash daily to 100 Leghorns and about 9 1/2 pounds each to general purpose fowls. If hens have free range or large runs containing green food a general purpose hen will eat about 75 pounds of feed a year and a Leghorn will eat about 55 pounds. In addition to the green stuff consumed."

Preventive Measures to Guard Against Diseases

Early in the spring, when everything else around the farm is being cleaned and put in shape for the summer, a coat of whitewash will add greatly to the appearance and sanitation of the interior of the poultry house. It is the cheapest of all paints and may be used on the exterior of the building, too, if so desired.

Whitewash is made by slaking about ten pounds of quicklime in a pail with two gallons of water, covering the pail with cloth or burlap and allowing it to slake for one hour. Water is then added to bring the whitewash to a consistency which may be applied readily.

A weatherproof whitewash for exterior surfaces may be made as follows: (1) Slake one bushel of quicklime in twelve gallons of hot water; (2) dissolve two pounds of common salt and one pound of sulphate of zinc in two gallons of boiling water; pour (2) into (1), then add two gallons of skim milk and mix thoroughly. Whitewash is spread lightly over the surface with a broad brush.

It seldom pays to keep a hen after her second laying season.

A young duck should begin to lay at about five months of age.

Leghorns can get along on three square feet of henhouse space; the larger breeds need four square feet.

How often the old litter should be removed and replaced by new depends on the number of birds in the house, and dryness of the floor.

Do not take all the eggs to market. Let the children have all they want for breakfast. It will pay you.

Give the little poult a fresh supply of clean water at least twice a day and thoroughly scald the water dishes twice a week.

Ducks will seldom eat enough grit from a box or hopper, hence many feeders mix coarse sand or fine grit in their mash feed in the proportion of about five per cent of the bulk by measure.

TAX EXEMPTION CURSE

In commenting on the necessity for doing away with the tax-exempt bond, the Commercial Appeal of Memphis, says:

"All over the country there has been a demand that no more tax-free bonds be issued. The reason is plain. It is privilege. Practically, it invites capital to seek inactive harbors.

"The country grows through industrialism. The country is great because railroads cut all through it and because there are mines, steel mills, lumber mills, factories, automobile plants, furniture factories, cotton mills and packing plants.

"Now if these industries issue bonds the year taxed, and, being taxed, they must pay a high rate of interest. The public must, therefore, pay bigger money for the products of these industries because their taxes are high.

"The public pays the taxes on so-called untaxed bonds. The government needs money to run. The holder of an untaxed bond pays nothing. A producer who pays an income tax makes up the deficit along with buyer using taxed products.

"Under the present system certain securities are escaping taxation. This

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE SANTA CRUZ COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Nogales, Arizona, March 3rd, 1924. Office of the Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors met pursuant to adjournment of February 14th, 1924. Present: Chairman Jas. L. Finley, Members O. F. Ashburn and S. F. Noon, and Clerk Dumbauld.

The matter of the removal of the Amado stock yards at Amado station was brought to the attention of the board. It was the opinion of the Board of Supervisors that action should be taken to obtain a driveway to the yards that would not necessitate the driving of stock through Amado station grounds.

The following monthly reports of county and precinct officials were presented, read and ordered filed: County Assessor, County Recorder, Clerk of Court, Sheriff, Superintendent of Outdoor Indigent Relief, Superintendent of Health, Justice of the Peace Precinct No. 1, and County Treasurer for month of January, 1924.

The following contracts and bonds were presented and approved: F. R. Carroon, for burial of indigent dead; G. G. Morgan Printing Co. for county supplies; the Santa Cruz Patagonian, county printing; Wong Wing Seen, feeding prisoners; Manufacturing Stationers, county supplies, and J. C. Schell, automobile service for county officials.

A road viewers' report on the School District No. 21 road was presented to the board, recommending that same be declared a county road. The same was accepted by the board and the clerk ordered to post same for hearing as provided by law, setting April 7th as the date for hearing of objections and claims for damages.

The matter of the H. Wood road was again brought before the board, and the following persons were appointed as viewers on this petition for the thing has cursed governments from the beginning. It is the first start of privilege.

It is remarkable the length of time congress can resist this tax reform which is so necessary to equalize present day tax burdens.

There is one salutary thing the Republican administration has done—quite unintentionally—for the enlightenment of the man and woman who vote at the presidential election next November. The Tapot Done oil scandal has also thrown light on the way in which individual and corporate plunderers got what they wanted in the Fordney-McCumber profiteers' tariff.

The administration has granted an increase of the tariff on wheat from 50 to 42 cents a bushel. In other words, the wheat growers who can't collect any of the present tariff are to have a higher duty on exactly the same terms.

HAPHAZARD FARMING OBSOLETE

An Iowa county agent described the real cause of most of the agricultural distress, as follows:

"Most of us have been so busy watching the up-grade movement of the high prices of land that we have forgotten almost all the fundamental principles that underlie all farm values. While we want and hope that our land will be high priced, we do not want it to be so high priced that it will bring fair returns. The value of the produce from our land is the thing of supreme importance to every farmer and every land owner. A very considerable bit of serious thought must be given to the carrying on of production in the business of farming. Haphazard methods of farming, waste land, poor seed, inferior stock, all must go by the board if we are going to succeed in this new and large venture of high priced land.

The methods of our fathers and grandfathers can not possibly be used for successful results. We must use our most modern methods and must discover and plan new methods if our success is to be maintained. The scrub must be relegated to the scrap heap the same as the old horsepower threshing machine an dthe old reaper. This is no idea that has been hatched in a pipe dream or in idealism but in cold facts that stare us in the face. It is for us to go to work and plan out for ourselves the things that are going to put the best stock and the best equipment on our farms and to make them produce interest on their valuation.

STIMULATE SILVER OUTPUT

The senate old and silver commission in a report to the senate advocating a bill to direct the treasury department to purchase 29,000,000 ounces of silver under the Pittman act says:

"The best interests of the nation demand that capital invested in the development of its natural resources create new wealth, and unless the proper relation between costs and selling prices is restored to present conditions must inevitably result in waste of invested capital, loss of developed ore reserves, loss of taxes, potential unemployment, low standard of wages, and an imperiling of national safety, by bringing near the dependence of the United States upon foreign metal supplies.

"The mining industry has so far outgrown the governmental machinery for maintaining sound conditions in the industry that a number of serious problems have been allowed to develop."

The clerk of the board was authorized to issue an order for lineoleum for the hallway between the County Recorder's office and the County Treasurer's office.

Upon motion duly made and carried, the board passed the claim of Dora E. McDonald in the sum of $200.00 for damages due to the approach and fill in front of property in Patagonia.

On motion of Noon, seconded by Ashburn and carried, the Board of Supervisors upon request from the Sheriff bought from Ingram & Russell a new motorcycle, at a price of $391.00, the old motorcycle to be taken in payment on same at the price of $125.00, the balance of $266.00 to be paid by demand upon the county.

Upon motion duly made and carried, the following demands and claims were presented to the board, the same being audited, allowed and ordered paid out of the various county funds:

Table listing various county funds and amounts, including Dora E. McDonald, Josefa S. Arvizu, Margaretta Elias, etc.

The following names appearing on the payroll for Santa Cruz County for the month of February, the same were ordered paid out of the County Salary Fund:

Table listing names and salaries of county officials, including M. Marsteller, Robert L. Lee, E. Ruth French, etc.

Upon motion duly made and carried, the County Treasurer was authorized to transfer the sum of $4,200.00 from the County General Fund to the County Salary Fund, and a further sum of $2,200.00 from the County General Fund to the County Expense Fund.

There being no further business to come before the Board they adjourned to meet April 7th, at 10 o'clock a. m.

JAS. L. FINLEY, Chairman. A. DUMBAULD, Clerk.

Office of the Board of Supervisors, March 15th, 1924, Nogales, Arizona.

The board met pursuant to a call from Chairman Finley. Present: Chairman Jas. L. Finley, Members O. F. Ashburn, S. F. Noon, and Clerk Dumbauld.

The purpose of this meeting was to meet with representatives of the First National Bank for consideration of taxes on the Parker ranches and cattle and also the Elbert lands and personal property.

Mr. T. Richardson appeared before the board representing the First National Bank, asking that some adjustment be made if possible in the above mentioned taxes, stating that if an agreed to them that the assessment were in excess of the amount of personal property owned.

S. P. TO BOOST WEST ABROAD; EUROPEAN AGENTS TOUR COAST

European agents of the Southern Pacific company touring the west in order to get a better knowledge of the attractions of Pacific coast states. They will "sell" the west in Europe. From left to right—G. Ruhr of Hamburg, V. Merello of Genoa, H. Desmidt of Paris, R. G. Bonsor of London and V. Mylrea of Liverpool.

THE Pacific coast is to become better known to business men and travelers from Europe. As a part of a comprehensive plan to "sell" the Pacific coast to Europe, the Southern Pacific company has brought five of its European representatives here for an intensive course of study. They were accompanied west by L. H. Nutting of the Southern Pacific's New York office. The visitors left El Paso April 1 to spend a month in visiting every section served by the Pacific System of the company in order that a thorough knowledge of the coast states and their advantages could be obtained. In Arizona the foreign agents made the trip over the Apache trail, visited Phoenix, Tucson, Yuma and Nogales and made a side trip over the company's Mexican west coast lines to Tepic. Six days were set apart for a study of conditions and for sight-seeing in southern California. This included visits to San Diego and through the scenic Carrizo gorge, an inspection of points of interest in the Imperial valley, a three-day visit in Los Angeles and a stop at Santa Barbara. Leaving Santa Barbara, the itinerary called for visits at Del Monte, Watsonville, Santa Cruz and other points around Monterey bay. After a period devoted to sight-seeing in San Francisco, Oakland and other parts of the bay district, the European representatives are scheduled to leave on April 22 for a tour through the San Joaquin valley visiting Fresno, Bakersfield, Merced and other cities with a side trip to the famous Yosemite valley with Sacramento the next point of call. Several days are to be spent by the foreign agents visiting Portland and other points in Oregon and Washington. Enroute to the east, the visitors will visit Reno and Truckee and also make a side trip to Lake Tahoe, Ogden and Salt Lake City are also to be visited. "We expect that the visit here of our representatives in England, France, Germany and Italy will do much to make the Pacific coast better known to Europe," it was stated by G. W. Luce, freight traffic manager, and J. H. R. Parsons, passenger traffic manager of the Southern Pacific. "The itinerary of the visiting agents was so arranged that all sections were visited by daylight under guidance of local representatives who could explain in detail the many advantages of our country. "Upon returning to Europe, our representatives will have that first hand knowledge that undoubtedly will enable them to do a great deal of good for the Pacific coast in their contact with foreign business men and travelers."

WHILE THE PEOPLE SLEEP
 Our form of government has changed under our eyes into a despotic bureaucracy. We are governed not by statutes but by rulings of this department and that commissioner whose orders have the force of law. Our rights are determined for us not by courts and juries, who hear our cases in public, but by inspectors and investigators and bureaus, who collect evidence where they find it and announce decisions in the true Turkish fashion. That, of course, is not democracy. It is not even efficient, but if it were, free government should not be sacrificed to efficiency. Who will rid us of this pest of bureaucracy and restore the American ideal of popular government? Only a congress that will display some courage and statesmanship, and a little devotion to the Constitution of the United States. Certainly not a congress in which Democrats are concerned mainly about besmirching Republicans, and Republicans about blackening Democrats, and few concerned about truth and justice or the heavily burdened taxpayer. But to get the right kind of men in congress the people must elect them.—San Francisco Bulletin.

"There I got into trouble over a woman. I wasn't a young man, by any means, but I'd been a fool all my life, and I ought to have known better, and didn't. Her husband was a representative of one of the big mining companies, what had got wind of us being on the trail of something, and sent him up to investigate. He was away for days at a time, and the woman was all alone in the camp."

"I got into trouble over her. Her husband come back and found us together. He tried to shoot me, but I was handier, and I got the drop on him and killed him."

"We three was alone in the camp at the time: the woman, me, and the man I'd killed. It was a wild country, but murder was a game no man could afford to get up against. We left him lying there and took the horses and rode for our lives."

"He had friends, and they set the police on us. We got away, though, and made for the native territories. You know how I came to be a sort of chief there. 'King' Seaton, I'm called, all over the country. After a while I come back. I thought it had been forgotten."

"It ought to have been, but De Witt had known me in the old days and he recognized me. And he's held me in his power ever since by threatening me with the law. So that's how I come to steal Mr. Garrett's diamonds."

"What did you do with the woman?" shouted De Witt, springing to his feet and waving his arms furiously. "You've told the court this much—now go on and tell the rest!"

Judge Crawford hammered with his gavel, but the uproar in the court was too loud for him to make his words heard. Some were hissing, others trying to howl them down. But all through the scene Judge Davis sat, impassive and still, in his place in the gallery.

De Witt pushed his lawyer away. "There's more to the story by a d—n sight," he shouted. "You've heard that much, and now I'll tell the rest!" "You can be heard at the proper time, Mr. De Witt!" cried the judge angrily.

"There's no time like this," answered De Witt defiantly, striding forward. "Put me in the witness-box!" he shouted to Brown. "Put me there if you dare, and I'll tell the jury the rest of it."

Brown, nonplussed over this new development, hesitated. But a glance at the faces of the jury showed him that he could not decline the challenge. He nodded to Seaton, who stepped down. De Witt entered the box. The clerk handed him the testament, but De Witt brushed it aside, and now, so keen was the interest, even the presiding judge failed to notice the irregularity.

"I'll tell you what I know," shouted De Witt, addressing himself to Davis in the gallery. "You've thrown me over after I've worked for you these ten years and more, you smug old canting hypocrite!" he cried. "Look at him! There he sits, clean and sanctimonious, like a little tin god up in the skies!"

Judge Davis certainly did look sanctimonious. His eyes were fixed upon De Witt's gravely. To those on the floor of the courtroom Judge Davis looked at that moment the very type of the Pharisee. But some of those near him in the gallery noticed that the old man's eyes had in them a look of strained horror, as if he was expecting some dreadful revelation.

"I'm done with you now!" cried De Witt, flinging out his arm with a sweeping gesture. "He knew what I was doing for him; he knew from the first to last every bit of the dirty work that nobody else would do. But he wouldn't soil his own hands with it. He wouldn't listen to the details. It was always, 'Go ahead, De Witt, if you think it proper, but don't do anything unrighteous or uncharitable.' Uncharitable! There's not a single drop of charitable blood in the old scoundrel's body!"

"Yes, he knew everything, gentlemen, and yet there was one thing that he didn't know, and now his turn has come, and he's going to know it. Ask him to take off his collar and show you his throat, gentlemen. You'll find a bullet-hole there. It's healed up long ago, but it's burning like the rage he felt when he tried to shoot back, just one second too late. That's the hole left by Daddy Seaton's bullet, and Daddy Seaton's been running for his life for twenty years because of a man he never killed."

"Look at him again, gentlemen! Ask Daddy Seaton to tell you if there was only the woman in the camp, or if she didn't have a baby of six months with her, that she wouldn't leave behind, although he wanted her to. Ask him who Sheila Seaton is. Then look at that old rogue up there once more. There sits the man that printed insults in the Chronicle against his own daughter, not knowing that she was his. And tell Daddy that he knew whose child Sheila was, but that he didn't know till this moment that the man he shot and thought he killed is the man who's sitting up there!"

A cry broke from Seaton's lips. The old man staggered in the dock. The lawyer put an arm about him to steady him; and, leaning back against the supporting shoulder, Seaton watched De Witt, whose last blow had been the culmination of all his years of persecution.

But the old man in the gallery rose slowly to his feet and thrust out his hand. The square white beard worked up and down as the jaws champed. He raised his arms, and for a second the motionless old figure and the old figure below looked at each other fixedly.

Then, with a strangled cry, Judge Davis dropped unconscious.

CHAPTER XIII

Death's Harvest.

Winton was only vaguely aware of the quick termination of the trial, with its expected, though illogical verdict of "not guilty." He saw Judge Davis lifted and carried out by his supporters; saw De Witt, his face twitching nervously at the verdict, stride from the courtroom; then he was pushing his own way outside among the excited, buzzing groups, and perceived old Seaton moving slowly among the crowd, which parted to make way for the man whose tragedy affected them with horror.

"Where are you going, Daddy?" asked one man, trying to stop him.

"I'm going to find my gal," mumbled Seaton. "She's been all I've had. Maybe I ain't her father, but I'm going to her."

Slowly he walked away, and nobody attempted to stop him. Winton, after a moment of doubt, realized that it would be useless for him to interfere.

He watched Seaton's departure with a mind that was too numb to enable him to understand the fullness of his success. There was no doubt that the legality of the syndicate's acquisition of his shares could now be questioned. He could regain the majority and keep control, if Seaton's acquittal were followed, as it must be, by De Witt's arrest and his conviction.

But there was more than that. Winton began to realize, in a dazed sort of way, that the disclosure had given him Sheila. She knew she loved him, in spite of all her bitterness in the past. He would go to her, make her his wife, and take her home to his own country, where the past should never trouble her.

He was brooding over this when he heard two revolver shots ring out in quick succession. Looking up, he discovered that he was alone. The crowd was running toward the south side of the square, where there seemed to be some commotion. Winton saw a struggle in progress; the heaving shoulders of a horse appeared above the crowd; and suddenly the horse and its rider emerged at a furious gallop, scattering the crowd right and left.

Through the gap thus formed Winton could see a man lying upon the ground, resting on his elbow. His hand clutched a revolver.

The rider was De Witt. Amid the yells of the mob he dashed in a cloud of dust across the market square and turned down the street leading to the new suburb. The horse bounded across the rivulet, topped the ridge of the diamond ground, and disappeared. The fallen man was being helped to his feet. He staggered in the arms of his supporters, and the blood was streaming from a bullet-wound in his shoulder.

Winton gathered what had occurred from the excited conversation that followed. The sheriff had attempted to arrest De Witt on the strength of a court order hastily secured. De Witt, who had had a swift horse ready outside, in the anticipation of just such a contingency, had shot the sheriff and galloped away.

So swift was the maneuver that Malopo found itself totally unable to cope with the situation. There was wild talk of forming a posse to pursue the outlaw. But De Witt's horse was the fastest in Malopo, and in the case of Van Vorst, pursuit seemed impracticable.

While an impromptu mass meeting was being held Winton made his way back to the claim. He understood now all that the verdict meant to him, and the thought of Sheila filled his heart.

It was growing dark. Early the next morning he meant to ride out into the hills and bring her back with him, and they should never be parted again. He thought with infinite pity of her sufferings, with tenderness of her loyalty. It seemed most fit that his lips should be the first to tell her what would remove the dark cloud from her forehead.

As Winton turned into the road that led toward his claim there came the sudden sputtering of heavy drops, and then a deluge. He covered the last hundred yards at a racing pace, but he was drenched to the skin before he reached the cottage.

After the long months of drought the rains had broken. The thunder growled in the distance; the brilliant lightning flashes lit up the heavens.

The rains poured in torrents upon the desert, which sucked them up and stored them in its hidden springs.

Winton felt utterly worn out after the day. An unreality hung over the past; it seemed as if everything had been a dream since the night in Sheila's house.

Winton was about to go to bed when there came a feeble tap at the door. When he opened it he saw Judge Davis standing there, wet through.

He was shocked at the change in the judge's aspect. He seemed to have aged a dozen years; he was an old, broken man. He came forward uncertainly and sat down.

Winton tried to get him to take off his wet clothes, but the judge shook his head vacantly, as if he hardly understood.

"You remember what we talked about that day?" he asked, with nothing in his voice in the least like a quaver.

"That day I came to you for the loan?"

"About gaining the whole world and losing one's soul? Mr. Garrett, I lost my soul long ago. I thought I'd gained the whole world, but it's all slipped away—it's all slipped away."

"You've found what you wanted most, Judge," said Winton, pitying the old man with all his heart. "You've found your daughter."

And suddenly the conviction was borne in upon him that the old queen of the village was Davis' wife. The shock of the realization was paralyzing. He said nothing of this—how could he tell him that his wife was living? He said nothing as the judge went on:

"Yes, I've found her. I've been a fool and I've been punished, but all the past is finished now. I used to pray, Mr. Garrett, that God's vengeance might overtake the mother; but God must have dealt with her years ago, and it's myself He's taken vengeance on. Aye, He's mocked me and made a fool of me. But I'm going to find my girl or I take her away. I know where she is. She's living with Nickama's tribe, up in the hills. My God, to think of my child living like an outcast among the Kafirs!"

He stood up and clenched his fists furiously. "I was face to face with Seaton today, and I didn't kill him," he said. "Let him cross my path again and he'll die!"

"He didn't know," said Winton. "He wronged me. He brought all this on me. That snake De Witt is nothing. I care nothing about his long drought. Cloud-banks were already heaping up in the sky, but there was not likely to be another downpour until nightfall; the first rains are not continuous, as in later weeks. The day promised intense heat, but the long, rolling ridges of the desert had already a sub-tinge of green.

Hour after hour, the two men rode side by side. Occasionally Winton ventured some remark, but the judge hardly answered him; he was brooding, with his head sunk on his breast. Winton was lost in dreams of Sheila. After a long time, in the broiling heat of the noon sun, he saw the faint outlines of the distant hills before him.

First they were a blue line against the sky, then a patch of green against the brown of the desert. He pointed them out to his companion, but the judge only looked up, nodded, and resumed his brooding. Presently he raised his head, and Winton was alarmed to see the light of the deadly purpose in his eyes.

"He'll make for there, Garrett," he said.

"Seaton?"

Judge Davis nodded. "They told me last night," he answered. "That's why I wanted to give him a night's start. He'll have made that place by now. I've been there—long ago. We'll meet. It will be the fulfillment of a quest that occupied a great part of my time years ago, Garrett; I put it aside, but I never abandoned it altogether, and now I've taken it up again."

It occurred to Winton that if Judge Davis went mad, he would go mad in precisely that cool, methodical way. He wondered if he was armed, and what he would do if he and Seaton met. And he cursed himself for not having reflected that such a meeting was highly probable.

He had a fleeting idea of attempting physical restraint, but he abandoned the idea instantly. Whatever needed to be done must be done when the time arrived.

The distant hills grew nearer. Green valleys and precipitous heights appeared. The sun was at the zenith. The horses walked with hanging heads, panting. Not a living thing appeared on the vast plain except the steeds and their riders.

But presently Winton caught sight of something on the far horizon that looked like a vast flock of sheep. Yet surely no man had ever owned so large a herd. It formed a wide arc, miles in length, along the edge of the desert.

It was a mirage, of course. But, even so, somewhere the reality existed; and Winton, more puzzled than ever, followed it with his eyes as he rode on, wondering when it would disappear. It did not disappear. The entire herd seemed moving in the direction of the hills, now about four miles away, traveling almost parallel with the horses, yet with sufficient inclination to make it probable that, if it were indeed a real herd, it would pass into the valley toward which the riders were making.

At last Winton called the judge's attention to the flock. But Judge Davis, seeming hardly to be aware of his presence, shook himself impatiently and rode on, immersed in his morbid introspection.

The flock appeared to keep pace with the horses, and it was now clearly converging toward the pass. Winton, watching it, abandoned the idea that it was a mirage. Yet it could not possibly be any man's flock. There were hundreds of thousands of the animals, moving, apparently, without herdsman.

The valley opened before them. Winton recognized his location; the native village was not far away. The riders were already ascending into the foothills. As they rounded one of the bases of the mountain chain Winton looked back, and saw the herd much nearer. Then it was lost to sight, and he thought no longer of the prodigy in thinking of Sheila.

They rode along the winding pass, ascending, descending, until at last the cluster of beehive huts appeared in the distance.

Suddenly Winton saw that Judge Davis was clutching a revolver in his hand.

The slight shock had less than the look which Davis' face had now assumed. If Seaton was in the village there would be murder. Winton tried to take the weapon gently from Davis' hand; but with an adroit movement, as if he had been on guard all the time, the judge wrenched himself away, and suddenly spurred the horse he rode, which darted on ahead down the valley.

Liberians Pawn Children.

Sons and daughters are frequently pawned in Liberia when the head of the family is in need of money, and seldom are they redeemed. Girls are highly valued by the natives in the interior of Liberia, because the parents receive a dowry from the husband when a daughter marries, and even after the wedding they can, at any time, demand more from the husband. Fourteen years is the age at which many of the girls marry.

By LAURA MILLER

PLUCK!

If you had some musical and mathematical ability, a family tradition of matrimony as your only course, an orphan's flattened purse, a horizon bounded by the ten souls in your village—and if the little-girl-who-was-you faced all these conflicts and difficulties, would she rail at fate, marry the first man who asked her, or work out a career?"

Norwood Baker—that masculine-sounding name proves she's a real Southerner, you know—faced all this and worked out a career. The chronicle runs thus:

"For years I kept thoughts of earning my livelihood to myself, to avoid argument that a girl of the aristocratic Calhoun family could have only one career. A teacher discovered a talent for music. At the little college of music I became discouraged by methods all new to me—I taught at the handsome sum of thirty dollars a month, six of it going for transportation. Meanwhile, a wealthy gentleman, who had studied shorthand and typewriting, instructed me in return for legal work."

"That summer, I arranged to teach at the State Church orphanage for just my board and laundry. I left home at midnight, arriving at 8:30 a. m., to be told my place had been given to a young lady the night before. Imagine my disappointment! Though I was only nineteen, I was made a 'cottage mother' to supervise, alone, 15 children ranging from six to sixteen. The second week I had to entertain the governor's wife. Of course everything went wrong. The world seemed topsy-turvy."

"Next, I was to become social worker in a mill village. The day I should have commenced work the mill office assistant resigned. Would I substitute temporarily? Then, for the first time, the tide turned. The president asked me to stay in the office. From him, a fine executive, and the manager, a detail man, I got wonderful training. I found when it came to figures I could cut 'em up with glee."

"During the war I gloried in running a construction quartermaster's office for Uncle Sam, handling thousands of dollars daily. Now I have another 'man's job,' as treasurer, endowment fund manager and students' banker for Converse college, Spartanburg, S. C."

Though she modestly says this final success is due to "accident," others credit the power of her smile, combined with firmness and decision you would not think of resisting."

BEAUTY IMPORTED

Main Street is stupid. Main Street is blind. Main Street drives out youth and joy and vision. So says in substance the creator of a now famous book. So say the girls who try to escape from humdrum lives by escaping to the city, each from her particular Main Street sort of especially hateful Main Street.

Down in Kentucky there are some folk who reverse this process. Humdrum gray lives there? Yes, indeed! Escape both wise and necessary if the Kentucky mountain folk are to grow into Americans with their fair chance at life, liberty and pursuit of happiness? Absolutely. Let's bring it out! Move to Louisville, St. Louis or Chicago? By no means! Let's bring it out, the best that Any Place has discovered to these mountains and mountain people! So say the interested folks down there in Kentucky.

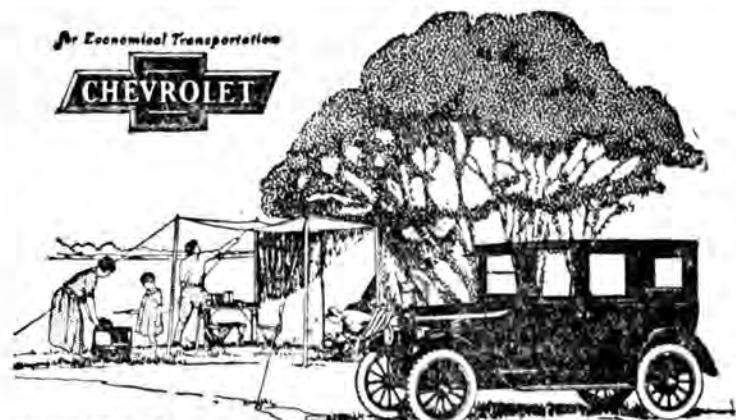

This story is of a gracious woman at what she calls her "life's sunset period, with wonderful real lights over the mountains to the east and the blue grass of the north. There are equally high colors in the lives of 225 mountain boys, who range from fifteen to thirty-five years of age, and from the A B C to the eighth grade certificate. It is pioneer work. No woman has ever lived with these boys, and I live a very thrilling life at old well-known Berea college."

Perhaps one must have known Laura Drake Gill of Boston and New York, magazine writer and one-time college dean, personally, to sense how much charm and richness of life experience she is contributing to the "thrilling" pulsing life of Berea on the edge of the mountain country.

What every woman may know, Miss Gill feels, is that no Main Street is too isolated for the joy de vivre, as the French gallantly phrase the joy of living, to come in, that many of the good community organizations are eager to be of service, and that all they lack is a hearty invitation from some one who wants more of the beauty of life imported into her town and who will get her fellow citizens to help distribute it.

Origin of Cambridge

The origin of Cambridge university is obscure. It probably grew out of a local educational movement during the Twelfth century. The first of colleges was founded by Hugo Bishop of Ely in 1257. At present seventeen colleges compose the university.

Uncle Sam Builds Highways Enough to Circle Earth

More than 8,000 miles of roads of all types were completed with federal aid during the year which ended June 30, 1923, according to a government report. This, added to the mileage completed previously, brought the total for finished projects up to 26,536 miles, or more than enough to circle the earth. The projects under construction at the close of the year amounted to 14,772 miles, and were estimated at 53 per cent complete.

Lamp Is Lighted by Wireless Transmission of Power

Just a glimpse of the future possibilities of the wireless transmission of power was given in the east recently, when an ordinary 110-volt incandescent lamp was lighted while being held a foot from a vacuum tube containing 2,000,000 cycles of alternating current. A 100-watt incandescent lamp was also used. It was a large disk, about three feet in diameter, and connected by wires and a vacuum tube with the mouthpiece. The device did away with the nozzle noise, and proved it could reproduce the voice at almost any magnitude.

Payroll Card System Helps in Avoiding Mistakes

Time, expense and mistakes in computing pay of employees of a large eastern company who work on an hourly basis are saved with the use of a system of cards that indicate the length of time a man has worked and the exact amount due. When a task is started, a card marked in fifteen-minute intervals from 7 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening, is punched to show the beginning hour. Another perforation is made on quitting. This card is placed upon a master card which shows the labor price in progression from fifteen minutes up to and including eleven hours through the perforations. For the various kinds of work, seventy master cards are used in the factory. They are kept in a handy index so that they may be found immediately.

Facilitating Handling of Rowboats

Ordinarily it requires the efforts of two men to launch a rowboat, but one man can easily do the work if the rowboat is provided with a small bronze roller as shown in the drawing. The detail shows how such a roller is attached; a wooden skeg keel is fastened to the main keel at the stern by means of iron plates and lag-screws, and a recess is cut in the skeg to accommodate the roller, which is held in place by means of two bronze side plates. The roller must, of course, turn freely between these plates. A steel or iron roller should not be used, as it soon rusts and then becomes useless. The roller should be kept well greased in order to obtain the best results.

Two-Element Tube Needs No B-Batteries

Makers of reflex-circuit sets will be interested in a tube that has recently made its appearance. The tube has but two elements, hence its name—the "diode." It is said to combine the clear reproduction of the crystal with the sturdiness and reliability of the tube, and to operate on less than 1/2 amp. from a single dry cell. No B-batteries are required. It is adapted for use in all reflex circuits, and requires no adjustments for changes in wave length.

AMERICA'S GREATEST DISASTER

"SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH"
Secretary Wallace says that Department of Agriculture means "scientific research." From the results obtained considering the amounts expended this is the modern way of spelling "awful." Secretary Wallace further is quoted as saying that the department of agriculture cannot properly take part in organization of co-operatives. Secretary Wallace should have said that the department of agriculture can not take part in PROPER organization of co-operatives. However, this is a bureau connected with the department of agriculture that does and is taking part in organization of co-operatives and that minority bureau system absolutely bars any form bureau unit from obtaining as a unit the true and only solution of agriculture's problem.

Article XX, Farm Bureau Code

No country farm bureau as an organization shall engage in commercial or shall it hold stocks and be in organizations undertaking activities.
Scientific research has kept Secretary Wallace and Mrs. Agriculture of this country for the past ten years from seeing the proper solution of your problem. The great question is: Were they born to do this or did it just happen. You have a right to your own opinion and I have a right to acquaint you with the facts and, further, you have a right to suspect, as the following process, of scandals, Teapot Dome, duplicate bond forgeries, Veterans' Bureau, shipping board pirates, aeroplane matters, harness rubbers, our thieves, extortion, defrauding, corruption, bribery, discrimination, unjust taxation and blatant thievery.

Architects, study your industry. Sincerely and thoughtfully,
M. W. EASON, Chandler, Ariz.

How to Clean Tools

To keep tools clean and bright rub a little mercurial ointment over them, which will form a moisture-resisting coating. Mercurial ointment is also known as blue butter. It is somewhat poisonous, so should be handled carefully. Another good mixture to keep tools from rusting is made by taking six parts of lard and one part of resin. Heat these together slowly until the resin is melted. The mixture should be heated in the open air in case of fire, and benzine added in about the proportion of one part of benzine to half a pound of the mixture. When cool, the mixture can be rubbed lightly over the light-colored articles. Tools thus treated will resist the corrosive action even of salt water.

Hot Weather Forms Ice in Coal Mine

During the summer, ice is mined from a coal pit located in an eastern state. Cold air seeping through earth fissures in winter cools the rocks to a temperature far below freezing, but no ice forms because the atmosphere is too dry. At its depth the heat of summer cannot reach the vault. During warm months, the shaft becomes moist, and when coal was being dug there recently, it is said, the miners had to remove three or four car-loads of ice every morning before they were able to get to their pits. As a result, the working was abandoned as a dangerous and, hence, entirely free for a natural refrigeratory.
