A Glance Backward at Political History

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, 1924

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

UNITED STATES SENATOR PAT HARRISON from Mississippi (who was christened Byron Patton), official keynote of the 1924 National Democratic Convention in Madison Square Garden, New York, will presumably keynote as sweetly to the various factions among the delegations as if he Father of the Republic had made the keynote the keystone of the political structure.

movement of public officers for political reasons. This last plank was aimed at the Democrats, inasmuch as the slogan, "To the victors belong the spoils," was first raised in the Jackson campaign of 1828. The Democratic Convention of the campaign of 1836 was held in Baltimore, May 30, 1835.

glas with 181 votes against 7 for Vice President John C. Breckinridge of Kentucky. The rump (Breckinridge) Democratic Convention met in Baltimore June 18-23, after adjournments from Charleston and Richmond, and nominated Breckinridge. Both the regular and rump Democratic Conventions reaffirmed the Democratic platform of 1856.

MARY SUCCEEDS ON MAIN STREET By LAURA MILLER

BARLEYCORN AND BUSINESS

A great honor descended on Ypsilanti, Mich., not long ago. President Harding was choosing ten delegates to represent the United States government at the International Congress Against Alcoholism held in Denmark in August.

The strenuous determination grew. So did the money. At the time I heard the story the unencumbered capital was, as I recall it, $20,000 or $30,000. Here comes in the sequel of the tale. I wrote Mrs. Calkins for the story of her real estate venture.

GIRTH-CONTROL LADY

Long Beach, Cal., despite its millions made in oil, has always been rather proud of being a "Main Street" community. Thousands upon thousands of its citizens are retired farmers and merchants from the Mississippi valley. They still keep the neighborhood point of view and the neighborly interests that they developed through years of hard work "back home."

Mrs. Hatcher's pet beauty cure is—exercise! To prove the value of a simple before-breakfast setting-up, she acknowledges her sixty years, lets an occasional woman pull her curly white hair to be sure it isn't a wig, and demonstrates to selected audiences the value of what has recently been named "girth control."

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK

Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

(Copyright, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

HIS JOB

THE little cab driver who used to come for me when, on rainy days, I took a taxi to save myself from the inclement weather was a cheerful soul. He was always careful, always courteous, always on time, always considerate of my comfort.

I don't know what your job is, for the problem of no two men in this world is quite the same. It may be getting to class regularly every day, or keeping up your college work while you earn a precarious living. It may be pursuing a difficult study or teaching a stupid class that you do not enjoy, or leading a clean life when a thousand passions are urging you on to the rocks.

WHO PAYS?

I've just been up at their country place visiting the Simpkins'. George remarked to me this fall, "Caddie, motorboat, house party, the board, no laundry bill, nothing to pay; pretty soft."

The Master of Arts is Mrs. Robert Lee Hatcher, wife of a big lumber dealer of Alaska, who found the winters in the Far North too trying and wanted something to keep her busy. Years of newspaper and publicity training—she was once president of the Illinois Women's Press association—and of work with big women's organizations prevented this latest business. The women of Alaska sent her two years ago on a personal mission to Washington to ask the President to appoint the man whom they could trust as prohibition enforcement director.

It is better on the whole for each man to pay his share of the bill. No one respects a boy who is always eager to sit in, but who never reaches for the check. If the home folks are willing to make the sacrifices and furnish the money, son ought to play the game fairly, to economize occasionally and to square his half of the account by a return of manly character and good scholarship.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

PRIZE-WINNER AS YOUNGEST MEMBER

The American Legion Auxiliary, Department of Delaware, offered a birthday cake to the youngest member of the organization. The cake was won hands down by the young lady whose photograph is reproduced. She is Elizabeth Louise Neely, and arrived only six months ago for a permanent visit to her parents.

rival was made strictly an all-Legion affair. Mr. Mills was commander of the local post of the Legion, and his wife, an overseas nurse, was a member both of the Legion and the auxiliary at the time. Doctors and nurses who attended little Miss Holloway Anne, for that is her name, were Legionnaires.

Favor Schooling for Americans in China

Interest in schooling for Americans in China has grown to such an extent that Legionnaires in Kings county, N. York, recently went on record favoring establishment of such institutions and offered their services in this direction.

Merchants Interested in Legion Indoor Fair

How far the generosity of local merchants went toward the American Legion in Geneva, N. Y., may be seen by the fact that donations for the annual indoor fair were insured for $20,000.

Favors New Gymnasium

Gov. C. C. Moore of Idaho has endorsed the project of the American Legion to construct a new gymnasium building at the University of Idaho. In a recent letter to Paul Davis, state commander of the Legion, the executive said that a memorial of that nature would be a constant reminder of the unselfish sacrifices of the men who served in the World War.

LOCAL PAPER CAN SAVE BUSINESS OF THE SMALL TOWN

By Ole Buck,
Field Manager, Nebraska Press Association

A common remark nowadays is that the big towns are swallowing the little ones, that the automobiles and good roads are taking all the business to the big towns, that soon there will be nothing left of the small towns but a depot, a grain elevator, a post office, a garage, and one or two little stores. Fred Anderson, founder of the Anderson Department store, in Cozad, Neb., has proved that this is not necessarily true. Cozad is a town of 1,300 population, located near two larger towns. Fred Anderson started in business there with a capital of $3,000, $2,200 of it borrowed. That was in 1906. He started in a little frame building. Last year he did a business of $300,000 and his store now contains 3,700 square feet of space.

The first ten years he did little or no advertising and just dragged along. Then he started advertising in the local paper. He has been at it every year and his business has grown steadily to its present proportions. He gives all the credit to advertising. Last year he spent 1 1/2 per cent of his income for advertising. He says he could afford to spend twice that much. He has a duplicating machine and does lots of direct-mail advertising and he improves any and every opportunity for keeping his store before the public. But space in the local paper is his chief reliance. He never uses less than a page and, sometimes, several pages in the same issue. He says he has bought the local paper many times but never got title to it. But he doesn't want title because it serves him so well as it is.

The Rosenbaum store in Harvard, Neb., another 1,300 town, is an example of what can be done by giving the public what it wants and doing enough advertising to make the facts known. Harvard is within easy driving distance of four or five larger towns, one of 60,000, one or two of 12,000 or more, and others much larger than it is, but this store draws trade for 50 miles or more.

These stores have proved that it is just as easy to follow the good roads in a Ford to a small town as a large one, provided the small town goes after the business. Mr. Anderson says that what they have done anyone can do by following the same methods. He says a merchant is justified in spending as high as 6 per cent of his income for advertising while he is starting. But no small town will ever get any place by bemoaning the fact that all the business is going to the big towns and then doing nothing to prevent it. And no country town editor will help the situation any by printing editorials and news items encouraging such a belief.

"I say, porter, did you find fifty dollars on the floor this morning?"
"Yes, suh. Thank you, suh."—Ex.

THE MINING SITUATION

April copper shipments totaled 234,000,000 pounds, bringing surplus stocks down to 231,000,000 pounds, or less than one-month's consumption. Yet copper is selling at a price that means a loss to some mines and small margin of profit for others.

Silver prices are holding fairly steady despite sales by China and slight modification of Indian demand. China will most likely change to the buying side and the Indian demand will be resumed on a much larger scale.

World consumption of lead has increased to a point where the rate of output is scarcely adequate to satisfy demands. This is attributed to heavy use of lead pipes and paint in the building industry of this country and Europe, to the large amount of lead required for telephone cables, for storage batteries for automobiles and in radios. The United States is now the largest producer of lead.

United States Geological figures show that 2,998,500 long tons of phosphate rock, valued at $14,396,000, were shipped from mines of this country during 1923, most of which came from Florida, Tennessee, Kentucky, Idaho and Wyoming.

Send us $2 for a year's subscription; you'll never get more for your money.

There are men in Patagonia who have much to say how our business men should conduct their affairs. But they get most of their experience on street corners. The fellows who really might say something worth while are usually too busy to talk.

Maudie Muller, on a summer's day, watched the hired man rake the bay; She laughed and giggled in her glee. When up his pant's leg crawled a bee. Later the farm hand laughed in turn. When a big grasshopper crawled up her'n.

TO BREED NEW VARIETY OF CORN FOR SHORT SEASONS

The development of a variety of corn that will grow and mature in a short season of cool weather is to be attempted by the corn investigators of the United States Department of Agriculture. Short-season varieties are already grown to some extent along the northern edge of the United States, some of which mature in less than 80 days, but they require high temperatures during the growing season. There

HOTEL BOWMAN
Nogales, Arizona
TUCSONIA HOTEL

are places in the Northwest, as in Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming, where the season is short and where there is not enough warm growing weather to mature these short-season varieties. The development of a variety that would mature under the climatic conditions of that section of the country is very desirable and would make it possible to extend the corn-growing area considerably.

With this project in mind, F. D. Richey, agronomist in charge of corn investigations, and R. A. Emerson, of Cornell University, recently made a trip to the Andean Highlands of South America to collect sample varieties of corn for use in combining with our short-season varieties. The corn in these high altitudes matures in a climate 20 degrees colder than that of this country and should supply the "cool weather" characteristics for combining with the "short season" characteristics of our own native early varieties. Some 200 samples were collected.

Wherever these South American varieties have been tried in the United States they have not proved to be adapted as varieties nor have our own native varieties proved successful at the high altitudes in South America. It is believed, however, that a combination of the desirable characteristics can be effected through crossing and breeding. It will be a long-time proposition, but the plant breeders are encouraged to believe in the feasibility of the project by the results obtained in other plant-breeding work at the department.

WOULD KILL TRUST LAW

In its enumeration of political demands for the coming campaign the American Federation of Labor deals among other things with injunctions and with the railroad question. It also demands the repeal of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law which is contended has been used principally "to deprive the wage earners of their natural and normal rights." In regard to injunctions and the railroad question the Federation says:

LABOR INJUNCTIONS.—Labor demands final and complete abolition of the power of courts to issue injunctions in labor disputes under circumstances where no injunctions would lie if no labor disputes were in existence. It must be made impossible for judges to issue injunctions commanding the doing of things which it is lawful to refuse to do and forbidding the doing of things which it is lawful to do. The injunction issue is one of the utmost importance. Rights guaranteed by the constitution of the United States have been set aside at will in scores and hundreds of cases through the use of the injunction. Issuance of injunctions is judicial repudiation of democracy and of the rights of man, an assertion of unsupported, unwarranted and intolerable judicial autocracy.

RAILROADS.—The Railroad Labor Board established by the Esch-Cummings act has proven a failure and has resulted only in disharmony and destructiveness. It must be repealed and the practice of voluntary negotiation and cooperation between railroad management and railroad employees must be restored. The American Federation of Labor and the bona fide organizations representing railway workers have caused to have introduced in Congress a measure which provides a plan of voluntary arbitration and conciliation.

This measure is intended to supplant coercion and restriction with cooperation and encouragement in the development of better relations and consequent better railroad service for the whole country.

GAME WARDEN WILLARD CORRECTS MISSTATEMENT

State of Arizona, Fish and Game Department, State House, Phoenix, Arizona, June 14, 1924. Editor Santa Cruz Patagonian: I have just read with interest the very interesting and illuminating article by candidate for republican nomination for governor, the Hon. Thos. Maddock, in a recent issue of the Silver Belt, narrating his observations on a recent trip through the Arizona Strip and the Kaibab Forest, wherein he takes a shot at the Forest Service as administered in that far away region and particularly the manner in which the game laws in the Grand Canyon Federal Game Preserve are enforced.

He recounts how a "poor old starving prospector" had been tracked down by one of these abhorrent Forest Rangers and a fine of $50 arbitrarily levied and collected.

I wish to say for the information of candidate Maddock that the records of this department show that instead of this fine of $50 being levied against a "poor old starving prospector," as alleged, it was paid and gladly paid by a man who operates a sawmill within the game preserve on a Federal permit. This, rather than the alternative offered him of facing a charge in the Federal court for killing a deer on a Federal Game Preserve, the minimum penalty for which is $1,000 fine and one year in jail.

I will add for candidate Maddock's further understanding that the Forest Ranger accused of these high jinks with the law, holds a non-salaried position as deputy game warden of this state (not Utah) and acted in this instance in the capacity, not as Forest Ranger, but as an Arizona game warden, and the fine so arbitrarily levied and collected was promptly transmitted to this department.

However, Forest Rangers and game wardens who do their duty are not what you might call popular with some people, and Mr. Maddock is in politics, and I am afraid he heard the buzz of the wrong bee while in the Kaibab.

For the information of the public, I wish to state that the tremendous over-grown deer herd in the Kaibab has been built up during the past nine or ten years under the sole protection of the Forest Rangers, who are also non-salaried deputy game wardens, and that this department has not, up to date, spent one cent in the enforcement of the game laws in that region. An further refutation of candidate Maddock's charges, direct or implied, against the Forest Service, I may quite properly state here that there are about fifty of its members within this state who hold commissions as non-salaried deputy game wardens, and that they do more in the prevention and punishment of game law violations than is possible to be done by the small force of salaried deputies that the lean funds at my disposal will permit me to employ.

G. M. WILLARD,
State Game Warden.

TOWBERMIK SUCCEEDS NERI OSBORNE, JR.

PHOENIX, June 17. Herbert Lawford of the Willeox post of the American Legion has been named as department adjutant to General Neri Osborne, Jr., who recently resigned. It was announced today by E. S. Stallard, department commander. This action was taken at a recent meeting of the state executive committee held at Legion headquarters.

Lowdermilk was formerly post commander of Tenley Lopez post of Willcox and was the first finance officer of the state organization. His several years' banking experience in Willcox, Tucson and Phoenix makes him especially well qualified for the post of adjutant, according to members of the committee.
