ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK Dean of Men, University of Illinois

FIRED

THE boy dropped his head and covered his face with his hands to hide the tears which he could not keep back. He was trying to realize what it all meant. "Can't I have another chance?" he asked. "You've already had many chances, the older man answered, and you've let them slip by."

It is a fallacy of youth that the individual alone suffers for his own sins and delinquencies. What happens to you happens in equal measure to all those related to you. Your family, your associates, your friends, your neighbors, all suffer with you.

HER FIRST SMOKE

GLADYS belonged to what they were pleased to call the "younger set" of her village. Her family was eminently respectable. Her mother was an officer of the Ladies' Aid society, and her father was a trustee of the local Baptist church.

THE DRAMA OF SERVICE

Have you ever noticed that people who are very sure of what they want travel so directly that there seems to be little of drama in their lives, while huge dramatic forces work through them as agents? Up in Westchester county, New York, last fall, there was an election for one county office that people were watching in and out of the state with keenest interest.

MARY SUCCEEDS ON MAIN STREET By LAURA MILLER BREEDING ENTHUSIASM FOR THE FARM

Porter, Mo., used to be a community with its tall between its legs. At the schoolhouse, for instance, flapping wall paper, fallen plaster, broken panes at unshaded windows corresponded with the peeling paint, ripped clipboards, treeless yard of a neglected rural school. Tramps added filth. Porter children went to Kirksville to school—later to Kirksville or elsewhere to live—if they could possibly escape the blight at home. Farming was becoming a despised pursuit.

FIRST DUTY OF HONEST REPUBLICANS

John W. Davis, in his own elegant and forceful way, has declared honesty in government to be the chief issue of this campaign. Mr. Davis did not create this issue; the people did not create this issue. It was created by the dishonest acts and corrupt practices of dishonest and corrupt Republican officials. The reactionary and Tory leaders of that party have emphasized the issue, first by attempts to defend and shelter the accused officials; secondly, by attempting to obstruct investigation, and now which challenged by the Democratic nominee for President they further emphasize issue by a conspiracy of silence.

With honesty in government as the inevitable chief issue in the campaign, despite the refusal of Republican reactionary leaders to discuss it in their speeches, and the refusal of the Republican organization to refer to it in their printed propaganda, what is the duty of honest Republicans in this campaign? The same reactionary and Tory leadership which was responsible for placing in office dishonest, corrupt and incompetent officials who brought disgrace upon their party and their country, is responsible for the nomination of the Republican presidential and vice-presidential candidates. These leaders who nominated Mr. Coolidge would either dominate his administration, if by any remote accident he should be elected, or would repudiate it utterly, rendering it impotent, if Mr. Coolidge should develop the inclination and the courage to assert any independence, of which he has as yet shown no signs.

The Republican party can never hope to regain the confidence of the people until its dishonest, corrupt, reactionary and Tory leadership is repudiated. Honest Republicans can render the most effective aid in restoring confidence in their party and in their government as well, thus performing a double duty, by voting for John W. Davis, who declared in his speech of acceptance that "It is the supreme need of the hour to bring back to the people confidence in their government."

"PICTORIAL FARMING"

The witty remark of John W. Davis in his Omaha speech that he is not even a "pictorial farmer" recalls to mind the recent pictorial propaganda of the Republican National Committee in which candidate Coolidge is depicted in various bucolic stunts. One shows him presenting a sap bucket to Henry Ford, which ought to have been given to William M. Butler; another portrays him in overall pitching hay, which for a combination of portaditure and landscape effect artistically ranks with the celebrated jeu d'esprit entitled "Secretary Stamp Making Hay on the Meadows of Dan."

There are cynical persons who scoff at the idea of palming off Mr. Coolidge on the public as a farmer when it is well known that for the last twenty-five years he has successively held eleven public offices. These should remember that office holding does not interfere in any way with pictorial farming, and that in the hands of a Republican National Committee not overburdened with conscience, the camera as a farming implement is as mighty as the plow. At least it is a valuable aid to a candidate in diverting the mind of cautious voters from the candidate's actual qualifications for the office he seeks. The danger of substituting the camera for the plow, the hay rake or other agricultural implements is that many millions of THINKING voters will see the deception, which the slight of hand Publicity Director is attempting to put over on them.

It is greatly to the credit of John W. Davis that he is not lending himself to any cheap subterfuges, but is always his natural self, devoting his time to a discussion of the issues of the campaign, specifically pointing out the country's needs and presenting a constructive progressive program to meet them.

LAW ALONE NOT ENOUGH

The trade union movement is economically, socially and politically sound to the core. Its principles lead to a better and a brighter life of all. Society, the state and civilization will never be safe until the great mass of the people—those who give service, work and produce—are lifted above justified discontent and placed in a position to exercise their inalienable rights to freedom, justice and liberty. This can best be done by and through the application of trade union principles.

Labor is mindful of the rights and the liberty of all women and men who give service, and readily and freely agrees that all engaged in the giving of service are entitled to the full reward of the results of and for the kind of service given.

We are not destructive. We seek to build up conditions under which production and distribution shall be carried forward and in which there are opportunity to live out our lives free from avoidable suffering, privation and starvation, and in which no enormous unearned fortunes exist.—G. W. Perkins, President, Cigar-makers' International Union of America, in American Federationist for September.

BENEFITS WHOLE STATE

During last quarter, the Hecla mine in the Coeur d'Olene district of Idaho produced almost nine tons of silver and 5,000 tons of lead. The total dividends to date are $11,800,000.

Mining has always been the peculiar asset of the individual owner; states have seldom attempted to do so, finding it more profitable to let private enterprises take the risks, make the profits and pay the taxes. It is probable that a state mine even in the fabulously rich Hecla would have failed to make such a record; it is even possible that there would have been a political deficit. Because it would have cost more to operate, this would tend to a raise in metal prices to all the rest of the world, a definite blow to industry; while the local public would eventually lose the whole industry if it did not pay.

The world, trying to come upward towards American standards of better living, needs both the spiritual and the financial incentive of free competition and personal reward to make this goal possible.

The record of the Hecla mine is a forceful argument to show any state the advantage of encouraging its mining industry by fair laws and reasonable taxation. Such a policy will pay big returns to the people in the way of wages, taxes and money spent for all manner of material and supplies.

The neighbor-busybody is called a snoop, but the person who gets paid for the same thing is called an investigator.

 Each morning sees him broke.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

ONE-WAY STREETS

One-way streets, well worked out, are an excellent solution for congested traffic conditions. Each one-way street should have an adjacent one-way street to carry traffic in the opposite direction.

Establish safety zones for street car stops. One has only to watch a line of vehicles blocked by a street car to realize that safety zones materially speed up traffic movement.

Street cars should interrupt vehicular traffic as little as possible. The skip-stop plan and street car movement. Cars outside of the business district stop at every other corner on the outward trip. Incoming cars stop at corners skipped outbound.

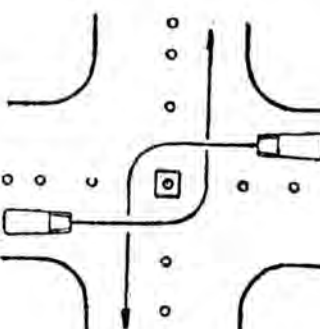

BUFFALO POINTS THE WAY

Buffalo, N. Y., finding that white painted lines fail to direct the footsteps of "jaywalking" pedestrians has resorted to chain barriers and warning placards. During heavy traffic hours a chain barrier looped over steel standards and broken only at street intersections is set up between the car tracks in the center of the downtown streets. Placards bearing, "Danger—Cross at End of Block," are hung at intervals.

Boy Scout troops with movable rope barriers are also pressed into service in emergencies.

Buffalo has synchronized traffic control in its downtown area. The city offers many object lessons to the student of traffic.

BLOCK OUT PATHS THAT ARE WRONG

Use of low iron markers painted white as an aid to keep traffic in proper paths. White lines are useful, but not as effective as markers.

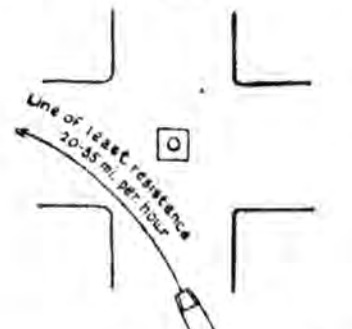

STUDYING TRAFFIC

The accident statistics committee of the Public Safety Section of the National Safety Council believes that the practical solution of the public safety problem depends upon a comprehensive analysis, first, of the facts for traffic movement in cities; second, upon adequate facts on traffic accident occurrence; and third, upon the intensive study of localized traffic movement and traffic accident problems.

The first effort of every city should be to describe the facts for its traffic movement. It should prepare a traffic artery map to show the main traffic arteries of each community into the heart of the city, with its entrances which drain adjacent areas.

Traffic congestion in most cities is due to the ineffective use of street areas rather than to the lack of them.

PATHS OF LEAST RESISTANCE

About 68 per cent. of the traffic follows this shortest and easiest course despite all contrary regulations. Note vehicle moves fast and on wrong side of two streets.

TAX ANTICIPATION BONDS TO BE SOLD BY STATE

Phoenix.—An issue of state tax anticipation bonds amounting to $750,000 and bearing interest at the rate of 3 1/2 per cent will be sold by the state funding and loan commission on Saturday, September 20, it was announced by Wayne Hubbs, state treasurer, and secretary of the commission.

More than thirty requests for bids on the issue were sent to all parts of the United States Monday by Mr. Hubbs. The bids will be dated October 1 and expire on December 15.

The decision to issue the bonds was made at a meeting of the state funding and loan commission.

The issue of bonds amounting to $750,000 will be redeemed on December 15 with the proceeds of the collection of state taxes for the first half of the tax year of 1924, which will be paid into the state treasury by the county treasurers on or about December 1. The first installment of the 1924 taxes become delinquent in November.

The proceeds of the sale of the bonds to be issued will be used by the state in meeting the first state school apportionment for the school year of 1924-25 which will amount to about $390,000, and also in paying current running expenses of the state.

KANSAS CITY DOCTOR INVENTS NEW TRUSS

New Discovery Heals Rupture Without An Operation

Kansas City, Mo.—(Special)—A new discovery which experts agree has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known Hernia Specialist, Dr. Andrews, 226H Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of the Santa Cruz Patagonian who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Mail Box of Concrete Combines Beauty with Utility

Combining utility and attractiveness, a concrete rural mail box designed by the postoffice department is said to be proof against the weather and rust. Providing ample space for the postal matter of three persons, the container has an overhanging roof to prevent rain or snow from seeping inside. The supporting pedestal of the same material is molded to the box. Entrance is gained through strong metal doors securely fastened in the cement.

Hundred Miles an Hour Birds Fly Day without Stop

Flying at a rate of a hundred miles an hour, some birds can continue on the wing for a day without stopping. The vulture, it is said, can travel great distances at this speed and often stays in the air for a full day of flight. Many wild ducks and similar fowl attain almost as great speeds when migrating, while, among smaller birds, the swallow has been known to reach ninety miles an hour and to keep up that record for long stretches. The eagle, despite its strength and big wings, seldom flies as fast as a mile a minute. The crow, though seeming to be a slow mover in flight, makes about twenty-five miles an hour and the carrier pigeon does an average of sixty miles in the same time. The tiny sparrow can travel at twenty miles an hour but only for very short distances. The wild goose does one hundred for hours without appearing to slacken its pace during the entire time it is flying.

Ornamental Handles for Auto Doors

A number of the lower-priced automobiles have the inside handles of door catches made in a very rough style. The crude appearance of these handles can be improved considerably by dressing them down on an emery wheel or grindstone so that the dust caps used on automobile valve stems will fit over them snugly.

Ten Dozen Pies from One Pumpkin Are Served at Banquet

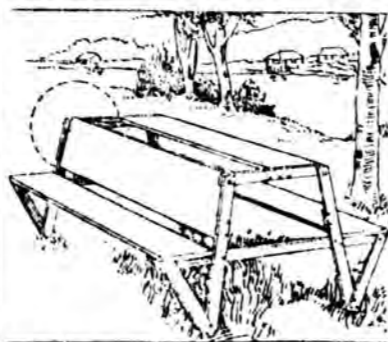

One plump pumpkin, grown in a California field, furnished joy for scores of inmates in an old people's home not long ago when it was presented to them and made into 125 pies for a dinner. More than sixty pounds of "meat" were extracted from the pumpkin, which weighed nearly ninety pounds as picked from the vine.

Combination Camp Table and Bench

The combination camp table and bench shown in the drawing is easily made and is more useful than the ordinary table, as the top consists of two boards which can be swung over to form backs for the benches. In their normal position on the table these two boards rest on pins or cleats fastened to the inside of the upper crosspieces; they pivot at both ends on long bolts passing through the brace, crosspiece and into the board. Both sides of the boards should be smooth as one side is used as a back rest and the other as the table top.

Removing Stuck Bullets

A lead bullet stuck in a rifle barrel can be easily removed in the following way: Get a piece of wire of the kind and size used for barrel hoops and long enough to reach the bullet from the chamber end of the barrel. Flatten one end of the wire by hammering it out cold, forming it to a blunt point like a flat drill, and file the edges sharp, rounding off the corners to fit the bore. If a breast drill is handy the wire is tightened in the chuck and the bullet drilled out. If a carpenter's brace is used it is necessary first to flatten the end of the wire to fit the chuck snugly. As lead is very soft it is a matter of only a few moments to drill out the bullet. The rifle should be thoroughly cleaned and oiled before firing a loaded cartridge.

By holding classes only in the morning the summer heat has not caused any lack in efficiency according to Dr. Huffaker.

Correct Beyond A Doubt

"Now," said the teacher, who had been giving a grammar lesson on singular and plural nouns, "what is the difference between 'man' and 'men'?" "Well?" asked the teacher as Billy's hand shot up. "Please, sir, 'man' is one man, and 'men' is lots of mans!"

When a man and his work lie down together neither sleeps.

DR. A. E. DOUGLAS TELLS OF MARS WONDERS

Tucson, Sept. 18.—Speaking before an audience composed of students and faculty members of the University of Arizona Summer School recently, Dr. A. E. Douglas, director of the Stewart Observatory made known some of the important things that have been done at the observatory this summer in connection with their study of Mars.

In explaining how records of their work are kept, Mr. Douglas stated that perfect pictures, varying in size from one-fifth to one-half inch in diameter have been secured of the planet and are said to be some of the best ever obtained. "If it could be possible," Mr. Douglas said, "to secure a plate one thousand times as sensitive as the present ones many mysteries surrounding the planet could be solved."

Hundreds of maps and drawings are being made to trace the daily changes on the planet and it is expected that before the summer is over, some definite announcement can be made in regard to the changes of the size of the "dark spots."

At the present time, Dr. Douglas explained, it would be possible for Mars to signal us by means of giant mirrors and for us to return the signal by means of ark lights costing in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. However, he said, no one is willing just now to spend this much money on so big a gamble.

"The interest in the planet," he said, "is because of the fact that it is so much like the earth. It has poles and rotates like the earth with resultant changes in seasons. The presence of clouds and wind indicates some water but just how much has not been determined. That there is vegetation is practically proven."

"At the present time it is spring in the southern hemisphere and the ice and snow is melting away from the southern pole. This cap of ice or frost will probably disappear entirely within the next month or so and will reappear on the Northern Pole. Dark areas and clouds are beginning to show in the northern hemisphere."

Evidently production, consumption and feed prices, all play an important part in regulating butter prices in a tariff-protected market like the United States. The cost of feed may regulate in the long run, but over periods of a few years it has little to do with the selling price of butter.
