What Farmers Need Costs More In 1924

Prices of Agricultural Implements Show Large Increases While Farm Products Decline or Remain Stationary.

Washington, D. C.—Farmers were paying higher prices for the necessities they bought on January 15, 1924, than on the same date of the previous year, according to a report of the Department of Agriculture recently issued. At the same time agricultural producers were receiving less for many of their products last January than in the same month of 1923.

In the latest Year Book of the Department of Agriculture (page 1152) appears a table showing "prices of articles bought by farmers, 1923, and January 15, 1924." There are 62 articles in this list. All but fourteen of them cost the farmer more last January than on January 15, 1923. The increases in 1924 over the prices in 1923 range from a fraction of 1 per cent to 10 and 15 per cent.

Four of the fourteen articles which were cheaper in January this year than last were the farmer's own products—bacon, beans, flour and linseed meal.

Agricultural machinery and implements showed considerable advances in 1924, when cereal grains were selling for less money than for a long time previously. Harrows that cost $53.36 on January 15, 1923, were priced at $57.74 on January 15, 1924; horse-drawn riding plows that sold for $85.10 in 1923 were $95 in 1924; grain binders were $201.61 in 1923 and $222.81 in 1924. Wagons increased from $123.26 in 1923 to $135.68 in 1924; two-horse sulky hay rakes, from $40.67 to $44.91; 5-foot mowers, from $74.39 to $81.22; centrifugal hand cream separators of 50 gallon capacity, from $79.10 to $85.31.

The same relative increases are to be found throughout the list. Barbed wire went from $4.87 to $5.19 a 100 pounds; dairy milk cans (10 gallons) from $4.85 to $5; binder twine from 13 2-10 cents to 13 6-10 cents a pound; leather horse collars from $5.06 to $5.40 each; rubber boots knee length, from $4.28 to $4.32; wire nails from 5 8-10 cents to 6 2-10 cents; 2-inch framing lumber from $37.37 to $37.51 a 1000 feet; and so through the list of utensils, furniture, clothing, etc. For example, a suit of clothes that cost a farmer $25.83 in 1923 was nearly 5 per cent dearer

Registrar Gives Out Religious Data

According to figures obtained from the office of the registrar at the University of Arizona it was revealed that 331 students have no church preference, 201 are Methodists, 175 Presbyterians, 120 are Catholics, 97 are Baptists, 79 belong to the Christian Church, 63 are Congregationalists, 35 are Mormons, 30 are Christian Scientists, 15 are Lutherans and 12 are Hebrew.

The two men drew slowly together. Their hands came up; their fists showed glistering knuckles, their jaws were set, their feet moved cautiously. Then suddenly Bud Lee sprang forward and struck. Read about this terrific fight in "Judith of Blue Lake Ranch," starting in next issue of this paper.

In 1924, and socks and overalls were, respectively, 11 and 15 per cent higher.

Republican politicians and newspapers are telling farmers that the tariff is an advantage to them. It is evident, however, that while the tariff on agricultural products is practically worthless to the producer, it is collectible from him on what he buys from others in the way of necessities.

There is an attempt to prove that the tariff does not influence the cost of agricultural machinery and implements because these are on the free list. Farmers are not told that the iron and steel from which these machines and implements are manufactured are taxed heavily. This tax increases the cost of agricultural machinery and implements about $100,000,000 a year.

UNCLE SAM---"MY MOST DISGRACEFUL RECORD"

SUMMARY OF BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN THE 12TH FEDERAL RESERVE DIST.

By John Perlin, Chairman of the Board and Federal Reserve Agent, Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, September 29, 1924.

Hesitant improvement characterized the business situation in the Twelfth Federal Reserve District during August. A definite expansion in industrial activity was noted, but seasonal gains in volume of trade at wholesale and retail were smaller than usual. The trend of the general price level was upward, although counter movements were frequent, and not all commodities shared in the advance. Funds for financing business continued in ample supply at low rates, and member banks were able to care for the slightly increased needs of their commercial borrowers without recourse to the Federal Reserve Bank.

Fact and opinion concerning present and prospective returns to farmers for their 1924 crops are exerting a particularly important influence on the general business situation this year. Although definite statement must await completion of harvesting and disposal of a larger proportion of the crops than has already been marketed, it is safe to say that recent increases in prices of agricultural products have done much to improve the outlook in farming sections. Crop production for the district was generally smaller in volume this year than in 1923, and slightly below the average of recent years.

Reports of increasing industrial production, which were quite numerous during the latter part of July, have been confirmed by the statistical report for August. Lumber mills and metal mines of the district have increased their output in response to a growing demand for their products on a strengthening market. The building industry has continued active at levels only slightly below the record figures of a year ago, the number and value of building permits issued in 20 principal cities of the district during August, 1924, being 12.1 per cent and 11.3 per cent, respectively, larger than during July, 1924, and 12.1 per cent and 15.1 per cent smaller than during August, 1923. The latter decrease must be interpreted in the light of a decline of 8.1 per cent in building material prices over the year period. The fruit canning season is now drawing to a close. Commercial factors estimate that the pack in California will be slightly smaller, and that in Oregon and Washington approximately the same as last year. This year's pack is meeting a steady market demand at prices which have tended upward as the season advances.

The total volume of trade transacted in the district, as indicated by debits to individual accounts at banks in 20 clearing house centers, declined slightly during August as compared with July, but was still slightly above estimated normal and well above the low point reached in June. Retail trade activity increased by less than the usual seasonal amount during August and the increased buying, which appeared in July, subsided, so that trade at wholesale again presented marked irregularities. Here also, however, the August figures reflected a more favorable situation than that which prevailed in June. The number and liabilities of business failures within the district during August were less by more than 15 per cent than during July.

Increases in commercial demand for credit, resulting both from seasonal needs of trade and from recent slight increases in business activity, have been met by member banks out of their own resources. Commercial loans of 36 reporting member banks in the principal cities of the district increased on September 15, 1924. A reduction of $4,000,000 in loans secured by stocks and bonds, and of $2,000,000 in investments provided the funds necessary to care for this increase in commercial borrowing. Demand deposits of reporting banks have increased further, and at $781,000,000 on September 15th, were at record levels. Earning asset of the Reserve Bank increased slightly during the month as a result of purchases of government securities and of acceptances. Discounts of the bank, at $100,000,000 on September 15th, were at the lowest point reached since the latter part of 1917. Interest rates have remained at low levels.

One of the worst things about banked loans is that the money is often being used to buy securities and other things which are not productive.

Business men who were promised Bush times with a Republican victory in 1920 have had an awakening equally sad for bad as is the record of bank failures. It is no more disastrous than that of commercial failures.

RECORD OF BANK FAILURES GROWS

Suspensions Since January, 1924, Exceed Number in Three Years of Wilson Administration.

BUSINESS SUFFERS EQUALLY

Total of 13,290 Commercial Bankruptcies Reported up to Sept. 1, Against 25,314 in Period from 1918 to 1920.

Washington, D. C.—Bank failures in the first six months of 1924 were nearly three times as numerous as the bank failures during the entire last three years of the second Wilson administration, it is revealed by statistics recently compiled by the R. G. Dun Mercantile Agency. The liabilities involved in the bank failures between January 1 and August 31, this year, were more than eight times greater than those incident to all the failures during the thirty-six months of 1918-20, both inclusive.

The story of commercial failures in the first eight months of the present year (January to August, inclusive) is even more dismal. The total of these failures in these eight months was 13,920 and the liabilities $396,427,173. The number of these failures in three-fourths of a year was more than half as great as the number reported in the three years from 1918 to 1920—during the second Wilson administration. The liabilities in the same eight months were within two-fifths as much as those for the three years of the Wilson administration cited.

Story of Disaster

The figures from the records of R. G. Dun's agency show the following with regard to bank failures:

Table showing Wilson Administration Bank Failures and Liabilities for 1918, 1919, 1920, and Total 3 years.

Table showing Harding Administration Bank Failures and Liabilities for 1921, 1922, 1923, and Total 3 1/2 years.

Table showing Commercial Failures (Second Wilson Administration) for 1918, 1919, 1920, and Total 3 years.

Condition Worse in West
That panicky conditions have been particularly bad in the farm and stock raising States of the West, for which the Republican leaders promised a panacea for all ills in the emergency tariff act, subsequently replaced by the Fordney-McCumber law, one or the other of which has been in effect since the spring of 1921, is indicated by Treasury figures, published in the press in July, 1924, showing that of the bank failures recorded, 342 were in the States west of the Mississippi River. They included 267 State and 75 national banks—the latter number being greater than the total of all national banks failing throughout the entire country in the seven years of the Wilson administrations from 1914 to 1920, inclusive.

This appalling record of distress in the Western States shows a total of 66 failures in North Dakota alone during the first six months of 1924, 48 in North Dakota; 46 in Montana. Of all the States west of the Mississippi only Nevada was not in the casualty list. And as this is written, reports are still coming in, one press dispatch relating the closing of six banks in Wyoming within two days.

Business men who were promised Bush times with a Republican victory in 1920 have had an awakening equally sad for bad as is the record of bank failures. It is no more disastrous than that of commercial failures.

BRUSHED WOOL IS IN STYLE; FALL BLOUSES ARE NOW HERE

When it comes to ultra style, much of the new fall knitted outerwear seems to "say it" with brushed wool. Not that brushed wool in itself is an unknown quantity, but it is because of its fascinating knitted interpretations, that we are experiencing new thrills this season. Designers have succeeded in lifting the brushed wool theme out of the commonplace, until today it is the outstanding expression of knitted style distinction.

Part of the scheme of displaying brushed wool at its handsomest is to contrast it with something else. For when new blouses for fall began to arrive they brought in their company the tunic-blouse. There is never any question as to the welcome that awaits blouses each season; the overblouse has made a comprehensive success, paving the way for its next of kin, the tunic-blouse, which has already established itself among the new modes for fall and winter.

instance, in case of the effective sweater here pictured, the brushed wool assumes a greater shagginess and attractiveness because of its wide trimmings of fiber silk at collar, hip and sleeves. This mode of finishing is a decorative feature emphasized throughout the brushed wool collections this season. Note, also, the new Russian neckline.

It varies as to length, having grown longer with the advance of the season, and employs all the fabrics at hand for making afternoon or evening costumes—as georgette, brocaded chiffon and other brocades, crepe de chine, velvet and laces. It impresses embroideries, headings, platings into its service for adornment and undertakes all the responsibility of afternoon or evening dress when worn with plain satin skirts. One of the earliest arrivals in tunic-blouses is shown at the right of the picture in which black and white all-over laces are combined with colored georgette. Edges of the

It have to be up-to-the-moment in modishness. These favored middles are knitted in shaggy white with plain knit fiber scarlet trimmings, in buff with blue and the most recent cool weather arrivals stress ruddy browns, cocoa and beige.

If a brushed wool sweater with fiber silk knit details be not chosen, it is only because it has been outwitted by a fiber silk or rayon sweater reversing the order, by using the brushed wool for its trimming. Brushed wool bandings, collars, cuffs and belts on plain smooth-knit sliver garments is one of the ways designers have in setting forth a new fashion. Sometimes straightline knit frocks are elaborated with borders of shaggy knit wool. The fact that such novel effects as brushed wool, also clipped or sheared wool, have come into play this season adds a refreshing note to the styling of present-day knitted outerwear.

In the fall showings hip-length jackets of brushed wool striped in colorful patterns are featured, also fanciful scarves of brushed wool.

black lace are finished with binding of black satin.

Tunic-blouses and overblouses reveal variety in necklines, with the "V" shaped neck opening, high at the back, a favorite. Convertible collars, which may be worn up about the throat or open at the front, scarf attachments and several styles in high collars are points of interest in autumn blouses.

Crepe de chine continues to rank first among fabrics for making the overblouse, but cotton crepe, knitted bengaline, georgette, lace and metal brocades are all represented—the last three for blouses to be worn with the costume suit. Simple models for afternoon are shown in long and short-sleeved designs and are very often trimmed with embellishments of flat lace or narrow val lace edgings—both. Val lace frills and a lattice decoration of narrow ribbon give a good account of themselves as a finish for the simple and pretty blouse pictured here.

The road is an extension from Crane and will be used mainly for transporting lumber. Back in 1877 a survey was made through Burns for a railroad, but the plans fell through.

Another unexplained delay in the departure of the Zik-3 for the United States from Germany gave rise to speculation as to whether the big dirigible will cross the Atlantic this year. It is pointed out that unless the flight is made before Nov. 1 the trip would be fraught with more storm perils than the Zeppelin Company would want to face, and a postponement until next spring would be in order.

Records of all traffic arrests are to be turned over to Chief Collins, who plans to use them in a publicity campaign to supplement the anti-speeding drive.

Enormous coal deposits were discovered in Ellesmere land by Capt. Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, who arrived at Wisconsin, Maine, after a fifteen months' sojourn in the Far North. The coal was found near Eureka sound in seams at some places twenty-five feet thick. Samples of the coal, which he said was bituminous, were brought back by the explorer.

Reducing the dairy herd of the state hospital in order to obtain more milk, cream and butter for the patients is the paradoxical undertaking of state authorities to be carried out along scientific lines. Fewer cows, bigger producers, is the aim of the management. Some of the cows in the present herd don't pay for their board, others are fair producers but cannot receive the individual attention which brings the greatest results.

Bob Dalton, Jr., son of Bob Dalton, member of the Dalton gang, and who was killed in the robbery of Coffeyville, Kan., bank Oct. 5, 1892, was arrested at Douglas by Deputy Sheriff's Hayhurst and Morris as he was about to board a train for California. One of the most successful lettuce seasons in the history of the state is forecast for Arizona this fall and winter by George M. Bridge of Sonerton, president of the Arizona Farm Bureau Federation. For the first time, Arizona growers are considered secure from a flooding of the market by the Imperial Valley, the tremendous volume of which has generally depressed prices. Mr. Bridge reports that the water shortage in the Imperial Valley is becoming so acute that any production of early lettuce there at all is exceedingly doubtful, and that at least the average will be so small as to be immaterial. Inasmuch as the Imperial Valley supplies the greatest part of the nation's winter lettuce, the situation there is considered by Mr. Bridge as assuring a heavy demand for the Arizona product, with excellent prices.

WORLD FLIGHT ENDS

MAJOR MARTIN, ORIGINAL COM-MANDER OF EXPEDITION,
WELCOMES COMRADES

Sand Point Field, Seattle, Wash.—The United States army aviators officially completed their flight around the world when they landed here Sunday.

The three world girdlers arrived over the field at 1:30 o'clock and after circling over Lake Washington amid the blowing of the whistles and the ringing of bells on the boats in the lake and the cheers of the thousands surrounding the field they again crossed the field preparatory to making their final landing of the four that began in April. Three airplanes accompanied them to the field and landed.

The conditions on land and about the flies were ideal at the landing field. The sun was shining brightly as the airplanes came down and the weather was warm, approaching sultriness.

One of the first to greet the three famous aviators and their three lieutenants, Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold, Lieut. John Harding, Jr., and Lieut. Henry H. Ogden, was Maj. Frederick L. Martin, the original commander of the flight, whose airplane met disaster in the Aleutian Islands.

Ropes were strung around the famous aviators and their reception committee gathered to greet the flyers. Each of the flyers received at the field a large bouquet of dahlias, which they took with them to a private luncheon aboard a yacht.

A huge welcome sign 150 feet long spelled in letters twenty feet high greeted the aviators as they circled over Sand Point. As the planes flew over Seattle whistles and automobile horns sent up shrieking greetings.

During the 28,000-mile journey, the planes Chicago and New Orleans had seven engine changes, while the Boston I, sunk off Faroe islands, had six engine changes before the final arrival in the North Atlantic.

Questioned on the feasibility of the route followed, Lieutenant Smith said that the return of two of the four original cruisers was the answer.

"The United States gave the biggest reception for us on our return," said Lieutenant Arnold. "But that was partly due because we were Americans and our honor is the nation's honor. In nearly every country we visited great crowds greeted us."

Two minutes after they stepped from their planes at Sand Point, each of the six army aviators completing their world flight was handed the following telegram from President Calvin Coolidge:

"On final completion of your flight I desire to again offer my congratulations and express to you the thanks of your country."

"Under the law I do not understand that I have authority suitably to reward you by promotion and other appropriate action."

"I wish, however, to announce to you that on the convening of Congress I shall recommend that such authority be granted in order that your distinguished services may have a practical recognition from your country."

League Commission Adapts Peace Plan Geneva.—The disarmament commission of the League of Nations assembly adopted the Baines report on the draft protocol of arbitration and security. Changes in Sun's Spots

By means of photographs of the sun, Prof. G. H. Peters, of the United States observatory, showed members of the American Astronomical society in session at Haverover, N. H., how the number of spots on the sun had decreased and increased during a period of many months. Few spots in August, 1923, after several months of decrease in numbers and followed by a sharp increase in September were taken to indicate the ending of a cycle of 11 years of solar activity and the beginning of a new period of similar length.

Famous Character in Popular Books

"Oliver Twist," as at first born in the brain of Dickens, was a different creation from the Oliver we know. It was a visit by Dickens to Cruikshank's studio that changed the life story of the workhouse boy. There the author saw a series of sketches illustrating the career of a London thief. There was a sketch of a fugitive's den. There was the Artful Dodger, Charley Bates and Bill Sikes. All these Dickens worked into the book which the world knows so well.

Sir Rider Haggard won greater fame by his strange creation, the never-dying queen, "She," than by anything else he wrote. "She's" origin was the legend of the Queen Majull, well known to the natives of the hills around Zoutpansberg, which Sir Rider Majull has really been dead for many years, but the natives believe she still lives, hidden in some mysterious cavern of the mountains of the Transvaal.

Swamp-Root a Fine Medicine

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition they may cause the other organs to become diseased. You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependant; it makes any one so. But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Col. Cephas C. Bateman Becomes Legion Member

The San Diego (Cal.) post of the American Legion is proud of the distinction that has recently come to it in the enrollment as a member of Col. Cephas C. Bateman, chaplain, U. S. A., retired, and the oldest member in point of unbroken service as chaplain in the United States army. Colonel Bateman was born in Michigan in 1857, came to the Pacific coast in 1871 and was educated and ordained as a clergyman in California. He was appointed chaplain in the regular army by President Benjamin Harrison in 1890 with the rank of captain, and was made a delegate to the World's Congress of Religions at the Columbian exposition in 1893. He served with Shafter at Santiago in 1898. He also served twice in the Philippines, more than a year with troops in expeditions directed against the Moros. At the outbreak of the World war, Captain Bateman was active in the united war work drive and was later organizer and first director of the chaplain's school of the army now situated at Fort Leavenworth, retiring in 1921 on account of age.

After a lifetime of travel in service to his God, country and flag, Colonel Bateman has selected San Diego as his home and the American Legion is proud of him and his splendid record. A loyal, active Legionnaire, Colonel Bateman has taken a keen interest in the work of the local post and finds himself thoroughly in sympathy with the aims and objects of the ex-service men.

Will Hold Big Celebration Twenty-two posts of the American Legion in Luzerne county, Pennsylvania, will unite on November 11 in a gigantic celebration of Armistice day. ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK Dean of Men, University of Illinois. (© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.) NEIGHBORS

"WHO is my neighbor?" the querulous lawyer asked the Christ, and it was the simple story of the despised Samaritan which was told him to illustrate the point. It is a story familiar to most people, no doubt. A certain man sets off for Jericho along a road and through a country difficult, dangerous, beset by perils. He is held up on the way, beaten, robbed, stripped of his clothing and left bleeding and broken by the roadside. Thirst and hunger and pain rack him, but the way is lonely and the travelers few. It is time a priest, educated, pious, well-fed, comfortably clothed comes down the road and hearing the groans of the unfortunate man lying by the way walks over and gazes at him curiously.

"How unfortunate," he probably murmured, but the man was no friend of his, he had been a fool to take such a journey alone and unprotected. Anyway it was the business of his friends to look after him, and the virtuous priest walked on. It was a Levite, a religious aristocrat, who came next down the road. Hearing the groans of the other side so that his ears might not be annoyed by the cries of the sufferer or his body made unclean through physical contact with him. What was unpleasant, he would avoid. He was the selfish, self-satisfied, self-complaisant citizen.

It was the Samaritan, despised and socially outcast, from whom nothing should have been expected, who recognized the demands of brotherhood and whose tender heart turned toward the unfortunate man. He was a neighbor to him. There was a letter in the mail this morning from John, asking for a loan of "three dollars." He was sick in a hospital in Hot Springs he said, and needed a few comforts not supplied by the management. He would return it when he came north in the spring.

John, you should know, is a "knight of the road" who does our house cleaning every spring. His buttons are not all on tight, I'm afraid. Lending him money is not a wholly safe investment, I'm sure. John has few neighbors. But he does his work faithfully; he is loyal and honest, and just now he has fallen among thieves of a sort who have robbed him of his strength and his power to make a living. "Better send it to him," Nancy said, and I, thinking of the Good Samaritan, went out and mailed him the "three dollars."

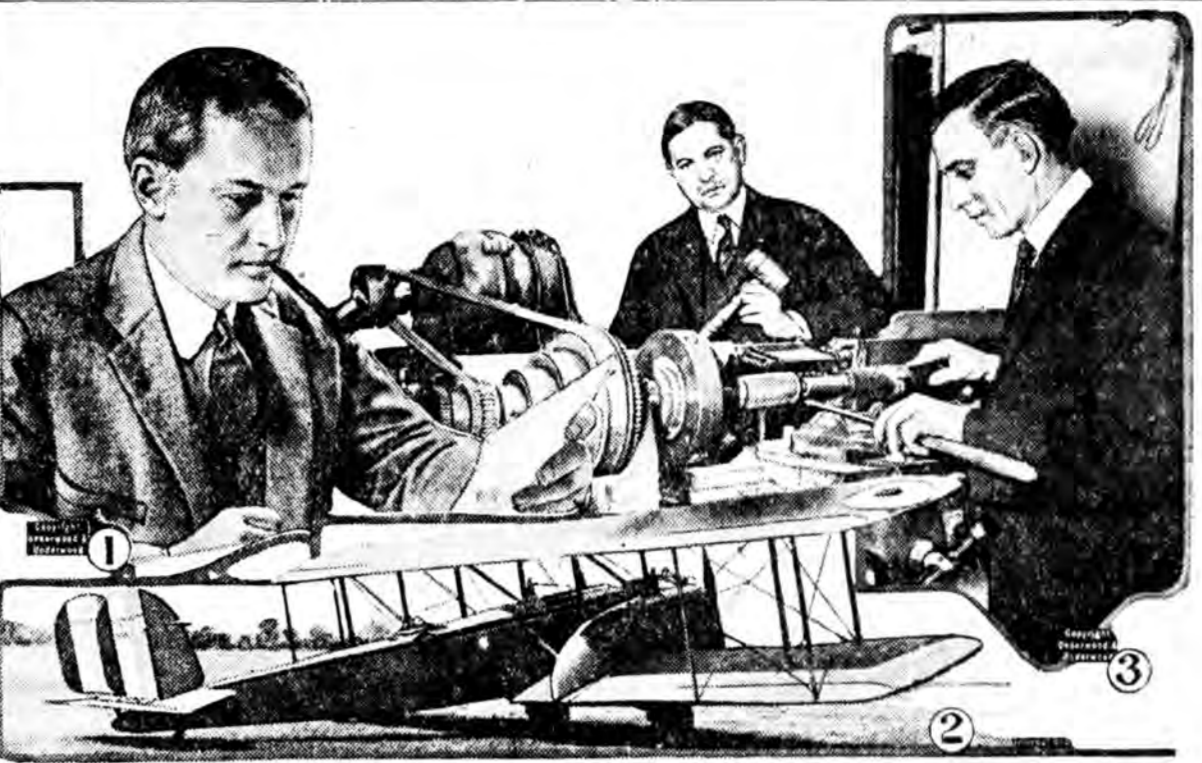

BUTTONS AND BADGES

MY FRIEND Gordon was wearing a parti-colored button in his lapel the meaning of which was unintelligible to me. "Just joined the 'Boosters' club," he explained. These badges of accomplishment are as numerous as flies around a can of maple syrup; they decorate all sorts and conditions of men; they reveal the most personal and intimate relations of life. We conceal nothing in these days of what we have done, of the organizations to which we belong, or of the activities in which we are engaged. The conductor who received my fare as I rode home on the electric cars was wearing on the lapel of his coat a huge gold-plated trophy announcing that he had secured membership in some secret industrial or fraternal order with whose insignia I was unfamiliar. The professor who occupied the seat with me announced by the button on the lapel of his coat that he had been in the Civil war and by the keys dangling from his watch chain that he had accomplished no little in a scientific way and that while in college he had maintained a scholastic average of 90 or above.

The traveling man facing me told his business by the organization badge on his coat, and the number of degrees he had taken in Masonry by his watch fob, his signet ring giving away another series of facts concerning his fraternal affiliations. It was as easy to pick out the college boys and girls as to tell a policeman by the star that he wears.

We take no stock these days in not letting our left hand know what our right hand is up to. Instead, we shout it out until every individual in the neighborhood knows fully our comings and goings, what we have been doing and where our money has gone. If we give a quarter to charity, we announce the fact with a button; if we join anything we publish our membership through the medium of a pin or a watch chain. I have wondered sometimes if the widow spoken of in sacred writ who dropped her farthing into the contribution box at the temple asked for a button when she was leaving the building, or if the Good Samaritan ultimately dangled a Carnegie medal on his shirt front or from his watch chain. It is quite possible if it was the style in those days.

Salary Grab of 1873 The "salary grab" by members of congress in 1873 stirred up the whole country. Near the end of the term an increase in salary was voted congressmen, and the outgoing congress made the bill retroactive. For a long time Congressman John Philip Hill of Maryland has been trying to get a court ruling on that point, and now he has been indicted by a federal grand jury in Baltimore and will be tried on those counts: 1. Manufacture of 25 gallons of wine at his home on September 27, 1923. 2. Unlawful possession of wine on the same date. 3. Manufacture of 30 gallons of elder at his home on September 18, 1924. 4. Quite recently the congressman's friends gave him a elder press with which he made some 2.75 per cent elder which he served to several hundred guests. He invited Prohibition Commissioner Haynes to the party and dared the dry agents to arrest him. Mr. Haynes did not attend the festivities but in other respects is giving the congressman the chance he wanted to determine whether 2.75 per cent drink is intoxicating. Congressman Hill to Obtain Ruling on Alcoholic Content of Home Brew.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WHETHER it is a violation of the prohibition law to make and possess home-made elder and fruit juices which contain an alcohol percentage of 2.75—a question that interests thousands of farmers and other American citizens—may soon be decided by a federal court. For a long time Congressman John Philip Hill of Maryland has been trying to get a court ruling on that point, and now he has been indicted by a federal grand jury in Baltimore and will be tried on those counts:

- 1. Manufacture of 25 gallons of wine at his home on September 27, 1923. 2. Unlawful possession of wine on the same date. 3. Manufacture of 30 gallons of elder at his home on September 18, 1924. 4. Quite recently the congressman's friends gave him a elder press with which he made some 2.75 per cent elder which he served to several hundred guests. FOR a few days Manila, known as the wettest city under the American flag, was threatened with a dry regime, for the United States officials ruled that foreign ships destined for that port and carrying liquor should not be given bills of health by American consuls. But the Filipino customs officials have got around this by imposing only nominal fines on vessels arriving without bills of health, and normal conditions are restored in the bars of Manila.

THAT monumental liar and former German spy, Gaston R. Means, has forced himself upon the front page again. He gave to Harry Daugherty a signed repudiation of his testimony before the senate investigating committee and declared that most of the other witnesses against the former attorney general also had perjured themselves at the procurement of the "prosecution." Daugherty immediately sent a copy of this confession to John W. Davis, who had been saying some very severe things about him and the Department of Justice under his conduct, and called on the Democratic candidate to retract. Mr. Davis replied with a reiteration of his statements and made it clear that they were directed against Daugherty personally, and charged him with obscuring the "red" issue of the campaign. In the inquiry, said Means was trying now to keep himself out of fall, being under sentence in New York for bootlegging. Wheeler added that Means told him over the long distance phone that he had been dealing with Blair Cavan, and asked him to get the senate committee together again so he could present new documentary evidence "involving President Coolidge." The administration is wisely taking no part in this controversy. Anyone who makes use of Means gets his hands smeared with mud, as did both Daugherty and Wheeler.

IT IS now revealed that the anti-Soviet revolt in Georgia and Azerbaijan was provoked deliberately and promoted by the Bolshevik authorities in Moscow. The Russian government was afraid of a widespread revolution in the Caucasus, knowing it would have difficulty in suppressing it and that it would be supported by Turkey if time for its organization were allowed. The entire Red army might be needed in the disaffected region, and that would give opportunity to the enemies of the soviets both within and without Russia. Therefore it was determined that an abortive revolution in Georgia should be provoked after enough troops had been placed strategically and precautions taken to cut off communication with the outside. The check is executing suspects by the thousand, and the scanty news that is permitted to leak out of Georgia indicates that the scheme of Moscow will be successful and the revolution smothered in blood.

NO REALLY serious fighting has taken place yet between the forces of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin and General Wu north of Peking, but those two commanders are gathering their armies for what promises to be a great battle that will decide the fate of the capital and of what Chang calls the corrupt clique that rules there. The Manchurian leader is well supplied with airplanes and bombs and with them he bombed Wu's headquarters at Shanhaiwan and a troop train, claiming to have killed many. The Peking troops, however, using armored tanks with machine guns, repulsed attacks by Chang and advanced into Fengtien. On the Shanghai front both sides are preparing for a big offensive.

IF THE proposed protocol for security and arbitration submitted to the League of Nations assembly is ratified by at least three of the four great powers—Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan—and ten smaller nations, it is proposed that a disarmament conference shall be called, to open on June 15 next in Geneva. The program will be prepared under the direction of the league council, and the United States, Russia and Germany will be invited to participate. The arbitration and security protocol contains a clause providing that non-member states can accept it "so as to assure a specific solution of conflicts with signatories of the protocol."

Great Britain last week told Germany to join the league, and the cabinet in Berlin decided to do so, but with provisions that indicate how much Germany has been coddled of late. A note was sent to the ten powers represented on the league council setting forth ten concessions to be made before Germany would apply for admission. The three most important are: First, Germany must be given the status of a neutral. If the league agrees in any armed undertaking against a covenant-breaking nation Germany cannot be considered non-combat territory to be crossed by league troops or troops of other powers acting under the league. Second, Germany, in throwing in her lot with the league, does not recognize her war guilt, as admitted in the Versailles treaty. Third, Germany must receive a permanent seat on the council as one of the great powers.

Germany also expressed a desire for evacuation of the Ruhr earlier than the date fixed in the London agreement, and wishes to be given guarantees for her former colonies. It is understood Germany cannot join the league during the present session of the assembly. If the league, after granting the conditions laid down before the next meeting, Berlin could be persuaded to apply then. Government circles in Berlin believe this note will receive a favorable reply. Meanwhile the nationalists and junkers have let up in their attacks on the government in order to help along the floating of the loan provided for in the Dawes plan. Some of the American bankers now in Germany believe the United States will easily absorb $100,000,000 of the loan. Others are not so optimistic. Beginning October 1, an import tax of 20 per cent will be levied by France on all goods from Germany. This was authorized by parliament three years ago but not put in force.

CAPT. DONALD B. MACMILLAN has just returned to the United States after 15 months in the Arctic regions, and he brings the interesting though not surprising information that Doctor Cook did not get anywhere near the North pole. This he learned from one of the Eskimos who accompanied Cook in 1909.

The explorer in reaching Axel Heiberg land got within 500 miles of the pole, Doctor MacMillan said, and had he not tried to claim the glory of reaching the pole would have been greatly honored for what he had accomplished. Doctor MacMillan quoted the Eskimo as saying that if Doctor Cook went to the pole he must have gone there while his Eskimo companions were asleep. Cook and his Eskimos slept two nights in a snow hut 12 miles off shore on the Polar sea and there the doctor raised an American flag, declaring he had reached the pole, although Doctor MacMillan declared he was 500 miles south of it.

ENDING their flight around the world, the army aviators have reached their official starting point in Seattle. They actually completed the circuit of the globe when they arrived at Rockwell field, San Diego, Cal. At Santa Monica the flyers landed upon a field covered with roses and each was given a purse of $1,000 in gold.

CARPENTERS' hall in Philadelphia was the scene last Thursday of big doings in celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the meeting there of the first Continental congress, and incidentally of the two hundredth birthday of the Carpenters' company. Among the invited guests were the governors of the 13 original states and the military organizations of those states which date back to the Revolution. In the evening President Coolidge delivered the chief address. Next day the celebrants all went to Valley Forge where a fine pageant was arranged.

BIG GEN. CHARLES E. SAWYER, who was President Harding's personal physician and for a time in charge of hospitalization for the army, died suddenly of heart disease at his home in Marion, Ohio. At the time of his death he was chairman of the Harding Memorial association. Two other noteworthy deaths of the week were those of R. J. Gaudin, former United States senator from South Dakota, and W. R. Green, member of congress from Massachusetts. Mr. Green, one of the oldest congressmen in point of years and of service, died as a result of an accident.

GOV. AL SMITH of New York, having changed his mind about being a candidate for another term, was renominated by the Democratic convention without opposition. The New York Republicans put up Col. Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, for governor, despite a determined fight against him. They adopted a platform containing a plank denouncing the Ku Klux Klan by name.

In California the La Follette-Wheeler independent electors were barred from the ballot by a decision of the state supreme court, the result being that the Wisconsin senator must also the Socialist electors there. In North Dakota the Republicans have asked the courts to keep the La Follette electors, incorporating as Republicans, off the G. O. P. ticket, alleging that La Follette is trying to steal the election there through fraud, deceit and trickery. Summed up briefly according to the Republican viewpoint, the "Socialist Third party" electors seek election as Republicans, but have renounced their allegiance to Coolidge, are supporting La Follette and will vote for him if they are successful. ABOUT BREADLINES

Every once in a while, some demagogue goes up and repeats the falsehood about panics, unemployment, "breadlines" and "soup-houses" under Democratic administration of days gone by.

Latest figures from the Republican Department of Labor show that there is greater unemployment today and has been every year of the Harding-Coolidge administration than during any one year from 1916-1920, inclusive and that it is approximately fifteen per cent greater today than it was a year ago.

As for "soup-houses" and "breadlines," the following signed statement by John G. Hallwood, President of the New York Bowery Mission, printed in the New York World of Sunday, Sept. 21, is interesting:

"We know that when the attendance at our meetings and the applications at our Labor Bureau are unusually large, the problem of unemployment is once more confronting us. At such times men out of work and penniless herd together in the lodging-house section of our great city.

"As evidence of this, during the first week of this month, we had 1,642 men in our meetings, and of this number we found 1,368 had to be fed or housed or clothed. I write these lines in the hope that some of your readers may be able to help up in securing work for these men."

The day before the above statement was printed The Evening World printed a report from New England showing that 200,000 textile mill workers were out of employment in that section alone, and that an even greater number were employed only part time. This is the situation actually existing under the highest tariff rates ever known, rates that give special protection to the textile manufacturers - yet cannot keep their booms running - and rates which President Coolidge has said have "raised the wage-earners to a higher standard than he ever occupied before anywhere in the world," and rates he asserts have ended complaint of unemployment.

BENEFITS OF DEMOCRATIC TAX REDUCTION

Millions of income taxpayers have profited by the present Democratic tax reduction law, which was forced through the Republican Congress and prudently signed by President Coolidge after his Secretary of the Treasury and the leaders of his party had opposed the measure for many months. There income taxpayers had a new proof on September 15 of the benefit the new Democratic law gives them. They will derive even larger advantage from it next year when the normal rate on taxable incomes of $5,000 and less is reduced from 4 to 2 per cent.

The new Democratic law makes a flat reduction of 25 per cent in the amount of income taxes payable this year on incomes earned in 1923. The first deduction authorized by the new law was that on tax bills paid last June. On September 15 an additional deduction was made by income taxpayers and on December 15, another saving will be in order. Next year the tax rate on incomes of $5,000 and less will be only 2 per cent, thus giving further considerable relief.

The deduction allowed on income taxes payable this year will save small taxpayers all the way from a few cents to $100 in 1924, while the lower rate effective in 1925 will still further decrease their burdens.

EATING YOUR CAKE AND HAVING IT TOO

"Living cost not increased by tariff" says the Republican Campaign Book of 1924 in its index, and in discussing the tariff elsewhere tells us "there had been a decrease in prices during the last year, throughout which the Fordney-McCumber tariff was in full force." A few lines further along, it says "the tariff cannot be held responsible for any increase in the price of particular goods since September 1922," when the Fordney-McCumber act became effective. Again it says, speaking of the duty on sugar, "the tariff had nothing at all to do with the price advance."

The author of the above quoted lines must not have been the same individual as the author of the chapter on "The Farmer and the Tariff" for he said, among other things: "Tariff kept price of wheat in American market above that in Canada;" "tariff kept prices of dairy products above those elsewhere in world;" "Tariff gave U. S. potato grower better prices than his foreign competitor;" "sheep industry saved by tariff;" "wool growing industry faced ruin until tariff was enacted" and "Briefly, it operated to maintain a higher level of prices in the United States, for all kinds of agricultural products, than in any other country of the world."

And now, since the wooden handle has been welded to the silver spoon, since the sun is dry and the earth is wet, the sun shines by night and the moon by day, we know that black is white and that the tariff raises prices and lowers the cost of living.

"BEST MINDS" SOMETIMES CHANGE

Six months ago, President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon were denouncing the Senate Couzens Committee's proposal to investigate the Income Tax and Prohibition law Enforcement units of the Treasury Department as an "unwarranted intrusion."

Now, Secretary Mellon is offering to cooperate with the Couzens Committee in such an investigation, and Senator Couzens, after a visit to the White House, tells Washington newspaper correspondents the President thinks the investigation may "be constructive."

What has transpired to make an inquiry that was an "unwarranted intrusion" six months ago "constructive" now?

The answer is easy: Senator Couzens has announced that the committee will not begin its investigation for another six weeks, or until after the November election.

A pre-election investigation is an "intrusion," but a post-election investigation is "constructive."

H. Q. Mash, Secretary of the National Civil Service Reform League, makes the charge that appointees in the Prohibition Law Enforcement Unit of the Treasury Department are "chosen on account of political influence and indorsements" and that many of the agents are no more fit for the job jobs than a "corrupt ward politician is to be a bishop." Mr. Mash's charge is one of a number of things the administration would rather keep quiet about until the election is over.

"It is impossible to escape the conclusion that high taxes make high prices," said Calvin Coolidge in his inaugural address as Governor of Massachusetts.

"The tariff cannot be held responsible for any increase in the prices of particular goods which may have taken place since September, 1922," says the Republican Campaign Book of 1924.

President Coolidge and the author of the Republican Campaign Bible should get together.

Upon one page of the Republican Campaign Book appears a quotation from Abraham Lincoln on "Reverence for Constitution and Law" and one from President Coolidge on "Good Government Without Price." If a copy of the book should fall into the hands of Albert B. Fall or Charley Forbes, they will find the quotation on page 350.

According to the Republican Campaign Book, "the history of the development of our nation in territory, prosperity and world esteem is the history of the Republican Party."

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

RESPECT TRAFFIC OFFICER

Be attentive to the traffic officer. He will then be more considerate of you. Then too he is a human being and entitled to respect.

Traffic regulations include the right of the police to vary regular rules where necessary or desirable under unusual conditions, or at congested points and in case of emergency, and they are to be obeyed accordingly.

Remember that the traffic officer is at work to help move motor and pedestrian traffic as rapidly, safely and smoothly as possible. In your relations with him be courteous, thoughtful and reasonable. It pays. The traffic officer hasn't the easiest job in the world. That's worth keeping in mind.

"WATCH OUT FOR THE CHILD"

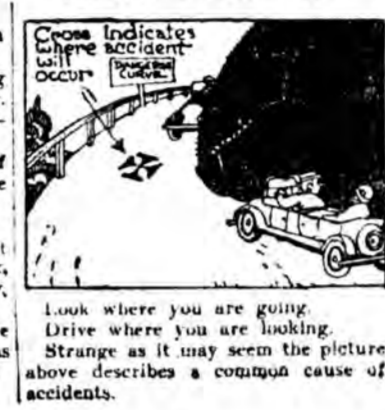

In Washington during the summer months one will see signs which read: "Vacation days. Watch out for the child." A very good sign but the warning is of just as much importance during the 12 months of the year.

Cities must provide adequate playgrounds for children and then must be sure that the children play there. It is a curious fact that so many boys prefer to play where motor cars and trucks are speeding by. Boys like to take chances and parents must assume the obligation of teaching their boys and girls never to take a chance.

KEEP TO THE RIGHT ALWAYS BE CAREFUL

Keep to the right. That is a motor car axiom in America. Keep to the right in passing another car and in rounding a corner. Keep to the right when approaching hilltop, cross roads or street.

Accidents by the score would be prevented if this simple rule was observed carefully day and night. Keep to the right.

AN OBJECT LESSON STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912.

The object lesson our people have had in watching a man like Owen D. Young work out the European reparations tangle in the capacity of a private citizen has helped crystallize the American mind in favor of more business and less politics in governmental affairs.

Commenting on the work done by Mr. Young, President Lowell of Harvard, said: "Owen D. Young, a masthead builder, through a wilderness, of highway on which the nation may travel and find the road to justice and peace."

Politicians can talk about plans to help the farmer but American business men in working out the Dawes plan and securing its adoption have done more to furnish markets for the farmer's produce and stabilize agricultural conditions for America and the world than has ever been done before in the world's history.

That's business, not politics.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION FOR STATE FAIR, IN NOV.

An industrial and manufacturing exhibit featuring Arizona products will be a feature of the 1924 State Fair to be held in Phoenix November 10 to 15, it has been announced by the State Fair Commission.

The exhibit will be similar to that at the 1923 fair, in which some 25 Arizona manufacturers and wholesale distributors were represented, and like that of last year will be under the direction of the Arizona Industrial Congress.

The exhibit will be housed, like the previous one, in the structure on the fair grounds formerly known as the educational building, one of the choice locations on the grounds. This structure will provide about 20 choice inside booths, and almost as many will be available in the outside surrounding space.

The manufacturing display has been arranged primarily to create greater interest in Arizona's industries, and to that end manufacturers will be especially invited to make exhibits of their products and processes.

All manufacturers in all parts of the state are being invited by the Industrial Congress to make displays at the exhibit, and owing to the limited space available, importance of sending in applications for booths at once is stressed.

Because of the continued lack of rain in the vicinity of Cochise, Arizona, the University of Arizona experimental farm at that place was a complete failure this year, it was announced this week by R. S. Hawkins.

Experiments were being conducted in an attempt to discover better means of growing crops where there is little rainfall but the unusual lack of rain killed the entire crop.

Total registration for the present semester at the University of Arizona has touched the record number of 1318, according to an announcement just made by Dr. A. O. Keal, registrar. This is more than an eight per cent increase and taxes the facilities prepared for an estimated increase of but five per cent.

THIRTEEN DANGERS HIGHWAYS ENGINEERS SHOULD REMOVE

Engineers of the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture, who have made a close study of the causes of highway accidents in order that Federal-aid roads may be built as safely as possible, have listed the following causes of accidents:

Blind curves and road intersections; sharp curves on embankments; unprotected embankments; narrow bridges; sharp convex vertical curves; slippery road surfaces; steep grades; narrow road surfaces; low or rough shoulders; steep crowns; sharp curves at bridges and underpass approaches; grade crossings; unsuperelevated curves.

This list takes into account only the dangers which the highway engineer should eliminate, by removing the cause if possible, and if this can not be done, by erecting proper warning signs. A complete solution of the problem can be effected only by building safe roads and educating drivers to use them in a safe way.

General Hines Will Visit University

Major General Ernest Hines, commander in chief of the Eighth Corps Area, will pay an official visit to the University of Arizona on the morning of October 2, it was announced this week by President C. H. Marvin.

General Hines will inspect the R. O. T. C. unit of the University and during the latter part of the morning will address the student body in the auditorium.

"So you have, and it hasn't spoiled you a bit. Oh, it didn't take me long to run you down. But I didn't go breezin' up to your house, like I might 've done if I hadn't been considerate of you. I didn't want no scandal about it, on your account. So I just laid low for awhile. That is how I found out about Grant."

"About Grant? What did you find out about Mr. Grant?" He made to draw her closer to him, but she held him at bay. "Oh, you're innocent, ain't you, Zen? What about Grant? That's a good one. Your husband would enjoy that!"

"If you're going to talk to me like this we can't be friends, Mr. Drakz. (Still no sign of help). 'My friends mustn't think evil of me.'"

Drakz laughed. "They say a friend is one who knows all about you and loves you just the same," he leered. "That's me, Zen. I know all about you—you and this Grant fellow. How he's been visitin' you when your husband was away, and sometimes when the maid was away, too. I've kept pretty close tabs on him. Hasn't been comin' around so often lately. Well, true love never did run smooth. Now I could tell your husband all this, and perhaps I ought to; Transley and me is old friends, worked together for years, but I ain't that kind of a fellow. You see, Zen, I know all about you, and I love you just the same. I love you—just—the same!"

He forced her toward him, and she knew that she had spun out her reprieve to its end. She was in the power of this madman. She tried to break from his grasp, but her efforts were puny and wasted against his passionate strength. She struck out wildly, but he crushed down her blows; wrapped his arms about hers; drew her face to his.

"I came to collect an account, Zen," he hissed, "and now you are goin' to pay!"

Transley, returning by an earlier train than he had expected, found Sarah at the house and Wilson engaged in dialogue with the family pig. The lad, on hearing the motor, rushed to his father's arms.

"Well, well, what a big boy you are!" cried Transley, swinging him up to his shoulders. "And how is the pig? And how is your friend Grant?"

ment of surprise, the ferocity of a lion. He had broken Transley's first grip of advantage about his throat and seemed in momentary prospect of reversing the situation. There were no talk, no cries, no oaths; it was a silent fight save the grunting and panting which became more and more labored as the minutes drew on. In their clutches Drakz's stubbled face rubbed into Transley's well-groomed cheek; his snarling teeth snapped, but missed, at Transley's jaw.

Then it was that Transley remembered his revolver. Breaking Drakz's grip by a superhuman effort, he drew the weapon and fired. The shot went wild, and the next instant Drakz was upon him again. In the struggle the revolver fell from Transley's hand, and both men began fighting toward it. As Drakz's fingers clutched it Transley kicked his feet from under him, and the two went down together. Rolling about on the rocky floor of the quarry they approached, slowly, unconsciously, the edge of the precipice that fell away to the river.

On the very edge Transley realized this new and hideous danger, and scrambled to his feet, dragging Drakz with him. Drakz realized it, too, and gleefully, fiendishly joined again in the combat, deliberately forcing the fight toward the river.

"I've got you, Transley!" he hissed, speaking for the first time since Transley's fingers had clutched about his throat; "I've got you, and you're goin' over there—with me. Zen tried to drown me once; now I'll drown you, if I have to go with you. I've got you, Transley!"

"Drakz!" Transley exclaimed, a light of recognition breaking upon him. "You!"

"Yes, me—Zen's old lover, and you give her to me, or we go out together!"

"You're mad, Drakz, mad!" Transley cried. "Why?"

But at that moment Drakz, by a sudden contortion, whipped a knife from his pocket. Transley felt its sting—once, twice, three times; then darkness fell. Zen, recovering from her stupor, sat up in time to see her husband staggering in the arms of Drakz.

Half a mile away Dennison Grant had been lazily plowing up and down his prairie field when he suddenly saw

They were sane, quiet eyes now; the light was over; only the eternities lay ahead.

"Grant—tell me one thing," he murmured. "You have been straight—with Zen?"

"As God hears me," Grant answered.

For an instant the eyes of the rivals—and friends—met; rivals no longer; friends only, forever. Then the form of Transley slithered in the arms of Zen and Dennison Grant; slithered, and settled into eternal sleep.

The sun of another summer was flooding the tawny flanks of the foothills when Zen and Dennison Grant rode together over the old trail to the Y. D. Since Transley's death Grant had not spoken to Zen of love; he seemed to know that at the proper time Zen herself would break silence. And now she had asked him to accompany her to her father's home, and to spend a few days roaming their old haunts in the foothills.

Y. D., older, but in unimpaired vigor, greeted him boisterously. "Well, well, you old coyote! Had to come back to the hills! They all do. If I was a young man again I'd get me a herd of heifers an' trek into the back country, spite o' hell an' high water!"

The greeting of the rancher's wife was less effusive, but no less sincere. The evening was spent in hospitality. The next afternoon Zen appeared at the gate with horses saddled for two.

"Come, Denny, we are going for a ride," she announced, "and in a few minutes their mounts were pounding down the trail which led over the foothills to the South Y. D."

Zen was strangely silent upon their ride, and Grant, after futile attempts to engage her in conversation, was content to ride at her side and admire her horsemanship and her beauty. The suffering and the years had left her strangely unscarred; she seemed to Grant wholly as adorable as on that day of her unspoken confession when they had met at the ford. Soon she must speak! Well, he had waited; he still could wait.

They followed the trail, little changed by all the passage of years, down the slopes to the South Y. D. They forded the river, and Zen swung her horse about in the grove of cottonwoods.

"You remember this spot, Denny?" she asked. "It is where we first met."

"I remember," he said. No, he would not be tempted into a demonstration. She must lead.

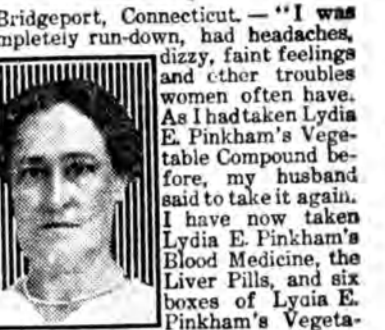

The sun was gliding the mountain tops with gold, and gliding, too, Zen's face and hair with beauty ineffable. For a moment she sat in the slanting light like a statue of bronze. For an instant her eyes met his; then fell. She spurred her horse to a plunge and galloped ahead up the valley.

Miles passed, and the quick twilight of the foothills was upon them before she drew up again. This time it was by a great bowlder, a sort of flat rock stranded on the sloping shoulder of a hill. Something seemed to burst in Grant's throat as he recognized it—the rock on which they had spent that memorable night so long ago when the world and they were young! Thank God, Zen was young still! Romance burned in her heart—who but Zen would have thought of this?

He sprang from his horse, and she from hers. He approached her with open arms.

Found Relief in Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Always Recommends It

Bridgeport, Connecticut.—"I was completely run-down, had headaches, dizzy, faint feelings and other troubles women often have. As I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before, my husband said to take it again. I have now taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, the Liver Pills, and six boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets. I am feeling very good now and shall continue taking them for a while. I have been telling my cousin about the medicine and she wants to take it, too. I always recommend it."—Mrs. HENRY C. SMITH, R.F.D. No. 3, Box 6, Bridgeport, Conn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved those symptoms by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Smith's experience is but one of many.

Joke on Admiral When the new swimming pool at the Naval academy was opened, Admiral Henry B. Wilson issued orders that women were not to be permitted to swim in it. The officers' wives and their friends were to use the old pool. But the word was passed about—and it reached the ears of the admiral—that a certain young woman had been in the pool, not once, but frequently. And the admiral started an investigation. It was quickly called off when he found the "young woman" in the pool was none other than Violet Ray—a means used to cleanse the water.

GETTING THE PULLETS INTO PRODUCTION

By L. O. Boggs, Extension Poultryman

With eggs wholesaling at $15.00 per case and the price steadily increasing, no poultryman likes to see six months old pullets loafing around eating high priced feeds, (which are also soaring in price) and not show signs of laying in the very near future.

In quite a few cases where the pullets have not been properly developed they will need quite a good deal of forcing to get them into production at six months of age.

By the time a pullet is five months old she should be consuming a regular egg production ration, i. e., egg mash, oyster shell and grit should be before her in a hopper at all times, two feedings of scratch and one of green feed per day. If the birds are slow in maturing it is a very good plan to supplement this regular feed with one feeding each afternoon, of a moist mash, just what they will clean up in about twenty minutes. Make it just moist enough to be crumbly, not sloppy then be sure there is enough room at the troughs so that they can eat at the same time. This prevents the more aggressive ones from driving the weaker ones, which are the ones that need this food the most anyway. Moistening too with sour skim milk or buttermilk will add a great deal to the rate at which they will consume it and the results obtained.

As soon as pullets show signs of egg production, they should be dusted or dipped for lice and placed in a laying house that has been sprayed or painted thoroughly for mites and ticks.

Some people seem to think that they haven't time or cannot afford to thoroughly go over a chicken house with some good disinfectant in order to rid it of mites and ticks so as to insure a hen a comfortable place to live and to lay eggs. In sections of this State where poultrymen are most successful, some have gone to the trouble of tearing down wooden chicken houses that have become infested with mites and ticks, thoroughly painting all sides and ends of each piece of lumber with some good disinfectant, and then rebuilding the house, never to be bothered again as long as he uses average precaution about keeping the roosts disinfected. Some say it does not pay, but these men who have tried it find it profitable.

WOMEN SPEAKERS TO HAVE MANUAL

Democratic Committee Issues Special Text Book for Use of Fair Campaigners.

RECORDS OF PARTIES GIVEN

Principal National Issues Explained in Form Readily Understood by Female Voters.

Washington, D. C.—For the first time in the history of politics, a text-book of campaign material, giving party records, sample speeches, "don'ts for women speakers" and a selection of political jingles and songs has been issued for the use of women campaigners. The book, which is just off the press, is "The Women's Democratic Campaign Manual" and is issued by the Democratic National Committee.

The Women's Manual is issued in attractive form and typing, and besides containing the usual campaign powder for attacking the Republican Administration and party record, it also has instructive information for the campaigner, and in the songs, jokes and jingles offers her a selection to add a lighter touch to her speech.

The manual opens with biographies of John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan, which are written in human interest style, with emphasis upon the points in the careers of both men most inclined to interest women. Of Mr. Davis it is said "that his record as a public servant shows him a supporter of the matters that pertain to Democratic interests and sympathetic to the things for which women stand in politics." Mr. Bryan's statement, made in his acceptance speech, welcoming the participation of women in politics, is quoted.

A review of the respective attitudes of the Democratic and Republican parties toward women voters is given, and it is claimed that as "first aid to the innocent in politics, as a guide to women in their determination to stand for progress measures and candidates the Democratic party is far in advance of its Republican opponent."

The history of the fight for the suffrage amendment is given in brief, and the prominent part played by the Democratic party and President Wilson in obtaining the vote for women is outlined.

Discusses Chief Issues

The major portion of the book is devoted to setting forth the six chief issues in the campaign. In a form readily understood by women voters and quickly available for women speakers. These issues are Conservation, in which is given a review of the Naval oil reserve scandals; the Tariff, in which it is explained how the high protective Fordney-McCumber Act is a great burden on the housekeeper and wife, as she expends the family budget; Foreign Relations, in which the attitude of the Democratic party is set forth in comparison with the Republican party's attempted backdoor "bootlegging participation" in the World Court; a comparison of the records of the two parties in sponsoring social welfare legislation; a comparison of the labor records, in which it is shown that Mr. Davis' labor stand is 100 per cent, and concluding with a relation of the civil service scandals in the Republican Administration of 1921-1924.

A chapter in the book is devoted to setting forth the record of the Democratic party on Child Labor laws, showing how the only two Federal laws ever enacted were by that party. Mr. Davis' record and campaign utterances on Child Labor are given in full, including his statement that if he were a member of a State legislature, he would vote to ratify the Child Labor amendment.

Women are invited to study the record of Calvin Coolidge, when as Governor of Massachusetts he was reputed to have halted the Boston police strike, thus laying the foundation for the "Coolidge myth of calmness, coolness and courage," the book states. The stand of Charles G. Dawes, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, against union labor and favoring the open shop is given. An "Oil Primer" of facts on the Naval oil reserves scandal and a list of Republican scandals are other chapters intended to furnish material for attack upon the opposing forces.

In "Mother Goose in Politics" a number of rhymes are given, of which this is a sample:
"POOR TOMMIE!"
"Little Tommie Tucker pines for his supper—
But what can he eat? He can't afford butter.
And how can he slice bread without any knife?
This Republican tariff has blasted his life!"

A number of prominent women have contributed to the book including Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York; Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee; Mrs. Iselta Jewell Brown; "Ma" Ferguson; Mrs. Halsey W. Wilson, director of the Schools of Democracy; Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank; Mrs. William Atherton DuPuy, and

G. O. P. CONGRESS BROKE FARMERS

Senator Owen Charges Deflation of Farm Prices and Values Due to Republicans.

BIG INTERESTS GET TIP

Thousands of Agricultural Producers and Small Business Men Ruined Since 1920, and Depression Not Yet Halted.

Washington, D. C.—Frequent mention of the "deflation" of agricultural prices and values has been made by speakers and newspapers since the present presidential campaign began several weeks ago and is likely to be heard even more often before November 4. Senator Robert L. Owen's speech on this subject in the Senate is gaining wide circulation because of his charge—never denied by the Republican Senators who heard him in the Senate or by any other Republican—that certain big individuals and interests had a "tip" in advance that the "squeeze" was impending, while farmers and others were unaware of the plan for stopping credits and depressing values.

Senator Owen declared that the Republican Congress and then the Harding administration were responsible for the "deflation" which has ruined thousands of farmers and small business men since 1920. Senator Owen said in part:

"That Republican convention (1920) declared in favor of a policy of deflation. . . . In his (candidate Harding's) acceptance speech he declared in favor of a policy of deflation. The time for action had come. . . . All of the arrangements for bringing on the panic had been made. The Farm Loan banks were closed; the War Finance Corporation was closed, and the Republican Congress had fastened on the Federal Reserve banking system that cruel and criminal progressive interest rate amendment, under which the panic of 1920 and 1921 was brought about and under which a bank in Alabama was charged 87 1/2 per cent. They never disclosed to the public their purpose to produce a panic until it was too late for the farmers, merchants and bankers of the South and West, and honest business men of the country generally, to take the steps necessary to protect their interests. . . ."

Farmers Taken Unaware

"Think of the banking system of the Nation—the currency and credit facilities of a hundred millions of people—being manipulated in the interest of a favored few to the embarrassment and hurt and injury of a hundred millions of people!"
"One day I was speaking in the Senate on this phase of the deflation panic, and when I finished a Republican Senator from the West, himself a millionaire, came to me and said: 'You are right about them sending word to certain people that the panic was coming. They sent me word several days before it came and suggested that I do the thing necessary to protect myself and prevent losses.' He told me that the panic cost him thousands of dollars."

"The laboring men and the wage earners were not notified. The doctors, lawyers, preachers, and teachers were never told that business disaster was drawing near, that a financial panic was on its way to destroy prosperity and devour the substance of the people. Why were the big financial highbrows singled out and notified in advance of the panic and the masses of the people left without warning to the furies of a storm that left wreck and ruin and death in its wake? . . ."

TARIFF HURTS FARMERS

Republican Law Fosters Price-Fixing And Raises Living Costs.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Republican partisans who point to the tariff as a boon to farmers and a blessing to labor are read a good lecture in an editorial in the Milwaukee Journal a few days ago.
"Under the system of price-fixing fostered by the Fordney-McCumber tariff," says the Journal, "the average farmer has no chance to save money long. For the tariff enters into nearly everything he does not produce on his own land, and as farm prices go up other prices keep a leap ahead."
The editorial then declares that "labor, too, is told that the tariff has maintained good wages and upheld the standard of living," and then points out that "all the time large employers were bringing thousands of foreigners into this country."

Fun For The Family

"The average woman has a vocabulary of only eight hundred words." It is a small stock, but think of the turnover.—Exchange.
