PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. James Parker, daughter, Marie; Miss F. J. Shumaker, Miss Bateman, all of the Vaughn district, were Nogales visitors Saturday.

Charles Shields of Los Angeles arrived in Nogales Saturday. He will pay an extended visit to relatives in Santa Cruz county.

The round-up of Fall X cattle started Monday at Tubac and will work toward the home ranch, the Pennsylvania, above Crittenden, belonging to Supervisor O. F. Ashburn.

F. P. O'Neil, owner of the Rupers mine, at Mansfield, was in town Monday for mail and supplies. He has some fine lead-silver ore out ready for shipment.

Two cars of ore were shipped Tuesday to the El Paso smelter. The Salero district furnished the ore for one car and the old Trench mine, near Harshaw, shipped the other carload.

Used and endorsed by millions, the old reliable Lucky Tiger Hair Remedy. Stops falling hair, corrects scalp troubles and promotes growth—druggists and barbers sell it under money back guarantee.—Adv.

Jim Kane, candidate for constable of the Second district, has moved his family to the Shields home on Railroad avenue.

J. H. Reagan was a Nogales visitor Monday.

Jim Kane, deputy sheriff, was an official visitor to the county seat Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Johnson and Mrs. C. J. Frank went on a hunting trip last Friday, and were successful in their ambition to bring down a buck deer. They will return to Patagonia probably today.

Black Jack Garden of Sulgro was in town this week for supplies for his camp.

WANTED—Clothing to clean and press; all work guaranteed satisfactory. Work may be left at the City Meat Market, Patagonia. Mrs. A. Ishpood.—Advertisement.

Ben Curtis, a former resident of the San Rafael valley, who has been in Los Angeles for the last year, has returned from the coast and expects to again locate in the valley.

R. A. Campbell, candidate for supervisor from the Second district, attended the Democratic political meeting at Tubac Tuesday night.

The County Farm Bureau Federation will hold its annual meeting at Sonita Saturday, October 25, at 2 o'clock p. m. The principal business to come before it will be the election of officers.

The dance Saturday night at the Patagonia opera house was well attended, many out-of-town people being present. Candidates, especially invited, were conspicuous by their absence, feeling secure no doubt because of lack of opposition.

R. N. Keaton and Miss May Hazelwood of the San Rafael valley were Nogales visitors Saturday.

E. D. Farley was a county seat visitor Saturday.

A. S. Henderson, Republican candidate for supervisor, and Harold Yost were Nogales visitors Saturday.

Little Billie Boggs, who has been on the sick list at the Commercial hotel, is rapidly improving under the care of Mrs. A. F. Henderson.

Insure your property in a sound, old, reliable company. Howard Keener has been appointed local agent. Call at the Patagonia office and get information and rates.—Adv.

Judge Richard Farrell of Harshaw was business visitor Tuesday in Patagonia.

W. H. Little of New York City, a brother of J. M. Little, mining engineer of Duquesne, was a Patagonia visitor Tuesday.

Miss Florence Heintz of New York City, national organizer for Camp Fire Girls, and Miss Lura Lee Bailey, assistant supervisor of vocational training, have been in this county on a survey trip. They will return soon and put on a training course in Camp Fire work. All women interested in this work will be invited to attend the course. It is planned to have a general Council Fire in Nogales for all Camp Fires in the county. Definite dates will be announced later.

Nick Bersich of Parker Canyon was a Nogales visitor Saturday.

Miss Marie de la Osa of Lochiel gave a dance party at the schoolhouse at that place Saturday night in honor of her sister, Constance, who is visiting from Los Angeles. An enjoyable evening of refreshments and fun was had.

Supervisor O. F. Ashburn was a business visitor Saturday in Nogales.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bethell were in the county seat Saturday on business.

Capt. A. H. Hardy, representing a well-known ammunition manufacturer, gave an exhibition in Patagonia last week of fancy shooting as an advertisement for his firm.

George D. Armer of Tucson spent a few days in Patagonia this week looking over range conditions. He expects to bring in a herd of cattle from Willcox within a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Northeraft and Mrs. C. A. Pierce were Nogales visitors Wednesday.

L. L. Beckwith, engineer for the Inspiration Mining Company, is in this district for a few days' inspection of mining properties.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Yost took their daughter, Dixie, to Nogales Sunday for medical treatment. The little lady injured her knee recently and blood poisoning resulted.

Tuesday night at the Commercial hotel the Farm Bureau orchestra practiced for the meeting held Thursday night, which was the first meeting of the fall season.

County Agent Lee H. Gould spent Tuesday and Thursday in Patagonia and Wednesday and Friday in Elgin organizing Farm Bureau clubs.

Robin Montgomery, a former resident of Patagonia, now located in Tucson, visited here Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery spent the summer in Seattle, Wash.

Miss Carolina Valenzuela of Tucson visited relatives here Sunday. She was accompanied by L. Montoya, who was a guest at the Commercial hotel.

E. F. Rohlinger motored to Nogales Tuesday on business. He was accompanied by Ed Hainline.

Herman Bender, Harshaw merchant, was a Patagonia visitor Tuesday.

Last week the Flux mine was inspected by Messrs. Douglas and Elsing, prominent mining engineers.

AT THE COMMERCIAL HOTEL The following guests registered at the Commercial Hotel this week:

Miss Fannie J. Shumaker, Tucson; George D. Armer, Globe; J. A. Echols, Fuller's Ranch; Ed F. Echols, Benson; W. A. Glenn, Benson; C. H. Miller, Glendale, Ariz.; L. Montoya, Tucson; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Anderson, Phoenix; W. H. Little, New York City; Lee H. Gould, Nogales; C. L. Beckwith, Phoenix.

HOME-COMING ON NOVEMBER 27 Annual home-coming day for Alumni of the University of Arizona will be Thanksgiving, November 27, it was announced recently by A. L. Slonaker, alumni secretary.

This year the game scheduled to be played in Tucson will be between the powerful eleven of the California Agricultural college and the Arizona Wildcats. A record number of Alumni are expected to return on the day of that game, Slonaker said.

Send us $2 for a year's subscription; you'll never get more for your money.

Beautiful Claire Windsor, interrupts her son's swimming exercises long enough to tell him how proud she is of her affiliation with the Democratic nominees, Davis and Bryan. Like all mothers, Claire has hopes that her boy will some day become the stamper of a President of a prominent political organization, preferably the Democratic.

SCHOOL NOTES.

(Leta Rae Mead, Editor)

The A Class of the Primary room are getting ready to make some phonetic booklets.

The B Class are on lesson thirteen in the chart.

Several are absent on account of sickness, but the attendance is good.

The A Class will dramatize The Wee Woman.

The Third Grade have been studying the three's.

The Third Grade have been learning the tell fables.

The Original Historical Play "The Discovery of America"—will be given Thursday at the Farm Bureau by the Fourth and Fifth Grades.

The Fourth Grade has twenty-two perfect half days.

Vivian Reagan has been on the sick list for the last four days.

School was dismissed Wednesday, October fifteenth for the circus which was at Nogales. Many Patagonians were down and enjoyed the day.

P. A. HONNAS OF SONOITA TO OPPOSE JAMES L. FINLEY

P. A. Honnas of Sonoita is the Republican candidate for county supervisor in the Third district. Mr. Honnas is a farmer and dairyman and is popular with his neighbors. He is one of the successful farmers of the county. His opponent is James L. Finley, incumbent, and a Democrat.

Mr. Honnas believes there are enough dissatisfied Democrats and independent voters in the district, which added to the Republicans in his district, to assure his election. He asks for your support at the general election, to be held November 4.

WILL RESPECT FOUNTAIN

That more respect should be paid to the memorial fountain in front of the Main Building on the University of Arizona campus which was erected in memory of the Arizona students who died in the World War, was the substance of a resolution passed at the last meeting of ex-service men attending the University.

A proper ceremonial is being planned for the near future, it was announced.

CLASS IN CLAY MODELING OCT. 25

Mrs. B. Lewis of Parker Canyon will hold the second class in clay modeling in room 17, High school building, Nogales, Saturday, October 25. Teachers who are interested in this work are invited to attend whether they have had the work or not.

DAIRY EXHIBIT FOR STATE FAIR

PHOENIX, Oct. 25.—Attention of Arizona dairymen is called to the dairy exhibit at the state fair, which according to J. R. Jennings, superintendent in charge, will be on a more extensive scale than ever before.

Every home dairy will have an opportunity of competing for the prizes as the awards are for both creamery and ranch products, including butter, cheese, milk (raw, pasteurized, and condensed), cream and cottage cheese.

The exhibits will be housed in one of the best equipped buildings in the county, a brick building with ceiling, floor and running water in every booth, with neat and ample show cases, connected with a new refrigerating plant, now being installed.

Prizes will be given for cows and heifers producing the most butterfat in three days. This contest goes hand in hand with the cow testing association work, in which all progressive dairymen are interested.

In addition to the usual awards, a large number of silver cups and other trophies have been put up as an incentive towards making the dairy industry one of the most important in the state.

ALUMNI CLUBS RE-ORGANIZED

Reorganization of practically every alumni club in the state and the organization of two new clubs at Willcox and Tombstone has been effected within the last week by Louis Slonaker, alumni secretary.

To present these clubs with the University plans for the year, Slonaker is planning an extended trip throughout the entire state at which time he will attend a meeting of every alumni club.

IDEAL STATE FAIR NOT PHOENIX SHOW

PHOENIX.—For the first time in its history, the Arizona State Fair is to be a real State affair rather than a Phoenix show designed to benefit the capital city and its immediate environs.

This declaration, by the state fair commission, is based on the fact that more people from outside points will attend the fair this year than ever before—there will be more outside exhibits in the way of minerals, agricultural and live stock displays than on any previous occasion.

"Are you going to the fair this year?" is being echoed around the city. The answer is, "Sure, we are, and meet us on the opening day, November 10."

With 500 running horses participating in the track events as the main attraction for this year, with three premier circus acts and with plenty of splendid music and carnival attractions, there will be "making in this year's event in the way of thrills and wholesome amusement."

Racing stables that have figured prominently on tracks on the big eastern coasts, in Canada and on the Pacific coast are being removed to the fair grounds at Phoenix as fast as express trains can carry them.

When stables that rated at Chicago, New York, Canada and Ohio were their intentions of racing in Phoenix it augurs well for the character of the sport during fair week, and incidentally shows the trend for Arizona's becoming a great breeding and racing center.

High class officials, plenty of horses and competent riders are assured. The judges will include E. C. Smith, presiding judge; W. W. Pinn and O'Neil Bayes; Arthur McKnight, well known official of the eastern tracks, will act as starter.

WALL STREET FOR COOLIDGE

The Magazine of Wall Street has been a straw vote and ascertained how the international bankers, the speculators and stock manipulators stand. The crooked canyon of concrete where Big Business dwells is a Coolidge stronghold. The offices where protective tariff schedules are devised and furnished to Republican Congressmen reside inside the directors' rooms where the railroad lines of the country terminate in the fingers of a few magnates who operate the roads not for transportation service, but for the profits on their stocks and bonds.

The back rooms where monopolies are favored and combinations in restraint of trade are brought about—all at the expense of a walling big majority of Coolidge. The center of modern financial intrigue which O. Henry used to call "Broadway on the Subway" lacks only a little of being solidly for the Republican Party and its silent candidate.

True, a scattering twelve per cent of the votes are cast for the other candidates but, as the Magazine of Wall Street says in summing up, the vote shows "a sufficient preponderance of favorable sentiment to indicate—so far as straw votes can indicate—that, if our investors and business men control the outcome, the Republican National Party will sweep to victory, on a veritable tidal wave of votes."

THE "HOME WEEKLY"—THE PATAGONIAN

When 38 years old he was appointed by President Wilson as Solicitor General of the United States. In this exalted position he presented the Standard Oil, Harvester and Steel Trust and set a record which has never been approached by any other man in the United States, in the number of cases assigned and won before the United States Supreme Court.

His appointment as Ambassador to Great Britain came in the fall of 1918, just before the close of the World War. There he earned fresh distinction.

Subsequently, in 1921, he was assigned to the United States to assume the position of live, busy, exhausted his entire personal resources in the service of his country of peace and abroad, and in 1922 was elected President of the American Bar Association.

He was nominated for President by the Democratic National Convention in 1924 despite his own desire to hold a hand to promote his own political people. This attitude, such as Standard Oil, Harvester and Steel Trust, and the whole manner of his conduct, had been approached by any other man in the United States, in the number of cases assigned and won before the United States Supreme Court.

A THUMENAIL BIOGRAPHY OF JOHN W. DAVIS

(By courtesy of Theodore A. Huntley, author of "The Life of John W. Davis.")

John W. Davis was born in the mountain community of Clarkburg, West Virginia, on the western slope of the Blue Ridge, on April 13, 1873. His education, character, and public service have been compared with those of Thomas Jefferson, who also was born on April 13, 1743—130 years earlier to the day—in a similar community on the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge. Davis, like Jefferson, came at a quarter for hours. His ancestors on the mother's side were Scotch Presbyterians, with a Quaker strain on his mother's side. His grandfather, John Davis, emigrated to Clarkburg from Woodstock, Virginia, about 1820, and was born in Harrison County.

He founded the West Virginia line which produced John W. Davis. He was a strict Governor, and an elder in the Clarkburg Presbyterian Church. His son John J. Davis, the father of John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee for President, likewise was a strong Presbyterian, and an elder in the church. The mother of John W. Davis was a leader in the religious and educational life of Clarkburg for upwards of half a century, and was widely known as an authority on the Bible. She was a brilliant woman, intellectually, speaking several languages, the Scotch inheritance was clearly revealed in the emphasis placed upon education. He husband for many years was the leader of the bar in Northern West Virginia. John W. Davis, their only son, who is now a member of the Central Presbyterian Church of Clarkburg, succeeded his father as leader of the local bar. In 1902, at the age of 29, he was elected President of the West Virginia Bar Association, an unprecedented honor for so young a man.

Such was the background and life of John W. Davis in his native State. For the first ten years of his life, his education was personally supervised by his mother. Subsequently he was graduated with honors from Panola Academy, and Washington and Lee University, Virginia, teaching a county school class for a year to earn money to go to college. Borrowing the remainder of the funds needed for his education, after his father had sold a small farm and exhausted his own resources to defray the expenses of his earlier schooling, young Davis made with him extraordinary money in a law school that he was offered an assistant post-graduate in law in Washington and Lee, one of the famous universities of the country. He taught law there for a year, thereafter returning to Clarkburg to enter the practice of law with his father.

He was elected to office twice, each time over his own and his father's protest. The first time a county convention nominated him by acclamation for the State Legislature, where he served one term. In that short interval, although but 25 years old, he won statewide fame by his stand for law and order in a legislative crisis. He was appointed chairman of the Judiciary Committee, and Democratic floor leader of the House of Delegates. Twelve years later, in 1910, he was nominated for Congress—again by acclamation and over his protest—and won by a substantial plurality in a heavily Republican district.

Thereafter, he served one whole term and part of another in Congress, winning new honors by his successful prosecution of John W. Archibald of Pennsylvania, corrupt Federal judge, whom the Senate convicted and removed from office, and by his battle for anti-trust legislation, for the right of labor, and the sanctity of the Constitution.

When 38 years old he was appointed by President Wilson as Solicitor General of the United States. In this exalted position he presented the Standard Oil, Harvester and Steel Trust, and the whole manner of his conduct, had been approached by any other man in the United States, in the number of cases assigned and won before the United States Supreme Court.

SPECIAL COTTON REPORT

(October 1, 1924)

The Cotton Reporting Board of the United States Department of Agriculture at 11:00 A. M. (E. T. Time), announced from the reports and data furnished by correspondents, statisticians, and correspondents, as follows: (a) Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Extension Department of Agriculture, the COTTON REPORT for the week ending October 1 was 56.5 per cent of normal, as compared with 55.4 on September 16, 1924, 59.6 on September 1, 1924.

Based on a condition of 57.5 per cent of normal on October 1 a total of 12,400 bales (500 pound gross weight) is forecast as the probable production. The total production for 1923 (gross weight) was 19,100,000 bales (500 pounds gross weight) and for 1922 it was 9,762,000 bales (500 pounds gross weight).

The condition of the Arizona crop October 1, 1924 was estimated at 73 per cent of a normal, this is three points higher than the figures reported September 16 this year. Based on a condition of 75 per cent of normal a total production of 95,000 bales (500 pounds gross weight) is forecast for this season in Arizona.

This report of condition and forecast of production published by the United States Department of Agriculture for the date of October 1 is issued in conjunction with an act passed by the last Session of Congress.

BIG SHENANDOAH IS COMING

BACK: SOME STATISTICS

EL PASO.—El Pasoans will have a second chance to see the Shenandoah, probably by daylight.

After the dirigible makes the journey up the west coast to Seattle it will return to Lakehurst, N. J., over the same route covered on the westward journey. From information now available, the schedule will be changed in order that territory covered at night on the outward trip will be flown in daylight on the return.

43 Men Are Abroad

Forty-three men were aboard when the dirigible left El Paso, including 27 men, 13 officers and three passengers. The ZR-3 was christened the Shenandoah on October 10, 1923, construction of the huge ship having been underway at Lakehurst, N. J., since September of 1919. The magnitude of the dirigible is shown by the following statistics:

Length, 680 feet, longer than any but the very largest ocean-going steamships and longer than any steamship of the Great Lakes.

Diameter, 70 feet, about the same as the largest lake steamships.

Grave lift with helium, 100,000 pounds, the vessel having a gas capacity of 2,000,000 cubic feet.

The motors are special six-cylinder engines built by the Packard company. Five motors are used.

"REGULAR" ONIONS COME FROM ARIZONA

EL PASO.—Albert Mathias, an exhibitor in his store on South Main, became a victim of a somewhat curious case. He was hit by A. B. Duxey, merchant and farmer of San Simon, Ariz. One of the onions measured 1 1/2 inches around and weighed one and one-half pounds.

"Well, four years ago," said Mr. Mathias, "every little fellow you would find around San Simon. Last year they shipped me 500,000 of them and I have a big crop this year."

American Bar Association. He was nominated for President by the Democratic National Convention in 1924 despite his own desire to hold a hand to promote his own political people. No Rents for a Year in This Little Village

View of the village of Lindentree, near Canton, Ohio, which, with its 45 dwellings, is waiting for occupants to move in with rent free for one year. Above are the mayor and town marshal. The village was bought at public auction recently by C. A. Kolp of Canton. It was prosperous until the mines closed, after which all the inhabitants left except four officials.

Tells Coolidge of Oregon Trail

Ezra Meeker, ninety-three, who made a trip to the West by oxcart years ago, founding the Oregon trail and a dozen cities, returned the other day to Washington by airplane to urge that the Oregon trail be made into a national military highway. He visited President Coolidge at the White House to interest him in the project.

Piasa Bird Again on Cliff at Alton

Again the Piasa Bird, a noted aboriginal carving, looks down from the cliffs of the Mississippi river at Alton, Ill. The original carving of the Piasa Bird, first seen by Father Marquette when he cruised along the Father of Waters 350 years ago, was the one great relic of prehistoric times which the government permitted to be destroyed by blasting away the cliffs. Recently a movement was launched by the boy scouts to restore the Indian petroglyph, and engaged Herbert Foreade, an artist, to paint a duplicate of the original on the rugged walls of the river cliff.

Protecting Aliens in Shanghai

A contingent of French sailors is shown here loading foodstuffs and weapons at the railroad yards in Shanghai. The French sailors, aided by British and Americans, have taken charge of the city and arranged for the protection of all foreign residents.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS A. CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois

ETIQUETTE

WHY do you not write a handbook of etiquette? Sir Phippen Pizee asked me last evening as I was dining with him at his lodging place. The question dattered me coming as it did from such a discriminating and talented writer, and, besides, there was upon me the urge of many experiences. I recognized at once the need of such a work though I was uncertain as to the demand.

Only that morning as I was strolling in a leisurely and unobtrusive way to my office, I had been pushed into the mud by a group of frizzled-headed young women who occupied the whole breadth of sidewalk as they strolled giggling down the street. When I uttered an involuntary word of protest, they gave me an insolent look.

A young hood, whose name I did not know, accosted me as "Tommy" as he rushed by me—a salutation not wholly conventional and one which I have been wont to reserve for acquaintances of a somewhat more intimate character.

Being of a logical turn of mind, I began at once to organize my material, to select specific illustrations, and to decide upon the topics to be discussed. I should of course have to say something upon the use of the telephone in social intercourse, of the increasing habit of smoking in the presence of ladies—or gentlemen—of the proper lighting of dance halls, of the eliminating or ignoring of the chaperon. The local custom prevalent among newly engaged couples, and followed somewhat by those who contemplate such a relationship, of the young man's clinging persistently and tenaciously to the young woman whenever they appear upon the street, I should devote a chapter to. Attention given to the teeth, or the nails, or the complexion upon the street or in public gatherings will need to be discussed. How properly to wear the galosh should be definitely settled. A score of pertinent topics rush into my mind in quick succession, so that I feel confident that there will be no dearth of material when the volume is under way.

It will not be out of place, I am sure, to say a word to say something in defense of conventionalities, of respect for authority and for the rights and feelings of others, of courtesy and kindness of heart, for some of these things are at the very foundation of the regulations which are supposed to control our social relations. There is a wide field for such a work, I can see.

THE DRY GOODS CLERK

EACH of us cherishes a secret ambition. I have no doubt. Our hired man, who never succeeds in writing a complete sentence, and who would not have recognized a joke if he had met one face to face, confessed to me once that he'd "like to run one of them funny colons in a daily newspaper," and Fenton, my neighbor who weighs 300 pounds and has never been able to learn how to navigate a Ford, admitted that he'd like best of all to be an aviator.

As for myself, perfect bliss has always seemed to me incarnate in the young fellow who sold things in a dry goods and gents' furnishing store. If I could ever have helped out with the Christmas trade at Gullie's who ran such an emporium in our village, I should have been content, and asked for nothing in my Christmas stocking. But such joy has always been denied me.

Herb Weston had charge of the "gents' furnishings" in the store, and he was to me the last word in sartorial perfection, and the object of my secret envy. He was plump and impressive of physique, and his clothes were without a wrinkle. He was considered the social dictator of the village. He affected spats and a cut-away coat buttoned over a gloriously broadened vest. His socks were radiant; but the crowning feature of his attire was a large pearl stud at a rakish angle through his cravat. It seemed to my childish eyes priceless and unattainable. I have since, in Rome, bought a handful of similar jewels for three lire.

Young girls adored Herb; young men envied him. He had such self-possession, such assurance, such perfection of appearance and such opulence. His salary, I was told, was $40 a month! It seemed incredible.

I was too much of a yokel for him to give me a thought. I came from the farm and my clothes were common and ill-fitting. He laughed at me one day as he saw me mounting Moses, our old gray horse, who was covered with mud from rolling in the street while I had been making some purchases in the store.

His cynical smile chilled me. That was the end of my ambition. I realized with a sad heart that it was far too high for my attainment and future events have proved that I was right. I have had to be contented with a humble lot.

Many Flavors of Honey

The entomology department of the University of Missouri discovered 43 distinct flavors of honey within the state. A few hives produced a honey of an onion flavor, which the bees had secured from the blossoms of a large patch of perennial onions. This honey was white like clover honey.

MAKING GOOD IN A SMALL TOWN

Real Stories About Real Girls

By MRS. HARLAND H. ALLEN

THE BAKER LADY

IS YOUR talent for baking? And are there, in your town, certain bachelors who are reputed to live solely on flap-jacks; bachelor girls who are popularly supposed to dine daily out of cans; society folks who have difficulty finding on Main Street just the baked dainties they would like to have for their parties and dinners?

If it is, and there are, your fortune is made, says one girl who is famed in her home town for her short and flaky biscuits, coffee cakes, cream puffs and cookies, her delectable corn bread and pie.

"My one talent is baking," she is fond of saying. "I always wondered whether such a homely household accomplishment had any commercial value. I settled the point by starting a bakery in the kitchen at home, and I have proved to my own satisfaction that my talent can earn something besides compliments from the family."

The girl who seriously desires to start in the business, must of course, be a good "bakeress." If she is, she knows probably about what ingredients, kitchen utensils, and equipment she will need. In general, she should remember that the best materials are always the cheapest.

There is more profit in fancy baking than in bread, though bread is the best stand-by; but few women customers can resist some of the tempting dainties which are revealed when they take the bread out of the basket. The baker lady should hire a small boy, for the job of carrying the baskets about to the prospective customer's door.

In preparation for her basket-boy's visits, the baker-girl should call at the homes of friends and acquaintances, telling them of her project and soliciting orders. If her sales are limited for a time, she may sell her wares to local confectionery stores and groceries, or have them displayed and handled on a commission basis. The woman's exchange usually provides a market. An advertisement in the newspaper is not a great expense, and will reach the people who probably would not hear of her project any other way.

But never, no matter how large her business grows, should she cease her personal supervision of every biscuit, pie or cake—for that's the only way she can honestly use in advertising the phrase that is her main stock-in-trade, "Personally cooked."

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

JUST as simplicity plus originality is what costs in clothes, so a work that is among the most staple and yet unique of jobs has a high cash value—selling lists of names.

"Any energetic small-town girl can get into this business, and have a monopoly of her field, providing it is not already occupied," says one little list-maker who is also a money maker. "The girl who undertakes this business," she told me, "should compile a list, as nearly complete as possible, of all persons in her neighborhood town or township. This list is to be her own personal and permanent record; but it must, since chances are constantly recurring, be frequently brought up to date. Such a list, when carefully made is a real 'working capital' which will earn money for its owner."

Every year there are numbers of political candidates who want the names of all voters in a township; and they pay liberally for such a list when it is accurately compiled. Banking institutions, constantly trying to educate people in matters of thrift, will buy names and addresses of persons who have no savings accounts. Even a list of names unclassified as to who have bank accounts and who have not is useful to the bank, but it will be worth more, of course, the greater the amount of proper information it contains. While getting information about savings, it is well for the compiler to note who carry insurance and what kind. Insurance agents will be glad to pay for this information.

Mail order houses are always on the lookout for new names to which they can address their catalogues and circulars. A business house which has once bought a list of names and has found it up-to-date and reliable, will be anxious to purchase a revision at least once in every two years. Those "personally conducted" lists are the only reliable ones from which business men can get complete mailing lists for a given territory. Township voting lists and the rolls kept by the assessors are generally not only incomplete but out-of-date. The post office does not, as some people think, give out lists of names and addresses. That is the secret of the value of lists of names; and the reason why, when a girl is known to possess such a list, she will have frequent calls for it. Her prices should vary according to the amount of wanted information she can give the customer; mere names and addresses, while valuable, are not, of course, as valuable as more detailed information is.

Selling lists of names may seem an odd way of earning a living; but there are tempting possibilities in the work, and it requires no capital to make the effort.

NERVOUS & HALF-SICK WOMEN

Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

These Three Letters Prove It

Lowell, Mass.—"I am sending you a few lines to let you know what good your medicine has done for me. I want you to let every one know that it has helped me in nervous troubles. I have four children and you know there is a lot to do where children are. They would come in from school and they would start telling me about their little troubles but I could not stand it. I had to send them away. I could not even walk on the street alone I was so nervous. I found one of your books and read it and then I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got it and had taken one bottle when I saw a change in myself. I was surprised. The children can talk all they want to now and it does not bother me. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOSEPH LEMERE, 34 South Street, Lowell, Mass.

Hagerstown, Md.—"I was very bad off with backache, a bearing-down feeling in my body and a pain in my left side. I could not be on my feet at times and once I was so bad I walked bent over to one side for three weeks. My sister read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me a bottle. I got so much relief that I took more until I was well. I am 40 years old and feel like 20. I am sure this medicine will help all women."—Mrs. MARY E. SANDY, 436 W. Franklin Street, Hagerstown, Md.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent of these replies are "Yes." That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. All druggists are having increased sales of this medicine.

Felt Like A New Woman

Springfield, Missouri—"For four or five months I was run-down, nervous, my back ached and I did not feel like doing a thing. Sometimes my legs ached and felt like they would break and I had a hurting in my sides. I had been reading in the newspapers the letters of other women who had taken Lydia E. New Words

According to compilers of a standard dictionary, the general use of the radio since its invention has added 5,000 new words and terms to the English language. Flapperdom has added several hundred more, and the new compilers were just getting over the shock of having to define 7,000 words and terms which our participation in the impetuosity in the late world mixup brought to the average vocabulary. Now what to do? We have been informed previously that women talk too much anyway—that "words is what they ain't got nothin' else but"—in the language of a popular writer of negro tales; so it is proved by this company that less than 25 per cent of the new words discussed have been invented or coined by women-folk, men having done the dastardly deed.—Kansas City Times.

Dalai Lama Lights Up

Lhasa, "Sacred and Forbidden" seat of the Dalai Lama, 12,000 feet up in the air amid the bleak crags of the Himalayas, is to have a modern hydro-electric plant. Already a specially designed turbine and generator and other necessary equipment are traveling toward Lhasa along perilous mountain trails on pack mules and soon the age-blackened temple walls and prayer wheels will glow with a new light from the western world. The installation will be made entirely by Tibetans, since white men may not enter the city.

WHAT SECRETARY WEEKS OMITTED TO BROADCAST

Many persons who heard Secretary of War Weeks defend the Republican administration in a talk on the radio from Washington recently were shocked at his brazen unfairness toward Senator Wheeler, vice presidential candidate of the La Follette party, and his apparently deliberate misrepresentation of the facts regarding the indictment of Wheeler in Montana.

Secretary Weeks cited Sen. Wheeler's indictment, but carefully hid from his hearers the fact that it was admittedly the result of a plot concocted by the Republican National Committee and executed by the Department of Justice under Harry Dugberry's regime.

While on the subject of Wheeler's indictment, Secretary Weeks omitted to mention that Secretary Fall, with whom he was associated in the Cabinet, and in Republican councils, is now under indictment for corruption in leasing the naval oil reserves and refused to testify before the Senate committee because his testimony might incriminate him, and on that plea escaped examination.

Secretary Weeks omitted also any reference to Forbes, Director of the Veterans Bureau, who is under indictment charges with embezzlement of public funds at the expense of sick and disabled soldiers and sailors of the World War; or of a Republican Congressman who stands convicted of bribery in connection with the violation of the prohibition laws; or of the outrageous dismissal of thirty men and women from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to make room for Republican henchmen—one of them charged with wife-beating and another charged with "book-making"; and gambling; or of the Republican spies of the Treasury and Department of Justice by whom the offices of Senators and private citizens have been entered and rifled; or of the use of the Government's secret telegraphic code on "Ned" McLean's private wire for messages between the latter and the White House during the investigation of Fall; or of Secretary Slomp's exposure as a peddler of Federal jobs in Virginia before he became President Coolidge's confidential political agent; or of the little "Green House on K Street" where the "Ohio Gang" met to make plans for getting spoils; or of Jess Smith, Daugherty's associate "without portfolio" in the Department of Justice; or of Burns, the professional "man hunter" who lent his agents to the Republican National Committee to help "frame" Senator Wheeler; or of the exhibition of prize fight pictures in the home of "Ned" McLean in violation of the law—but in the presence and for the entertainment of the highest officials in the Republican administration; or of any of the numerous dishonesties and abuses of which the Republican

"LA FOLLETTE'S RECORD"

We see plenty of John and Cal in your valued publication Mr. Keener so lets have a look at Bob. Robert (Bob) La Follette, was born on a farm, educated himself by hard work, besides keeping to support his widowed mother and 3 children; he has served in the State of Wisconsin as a "Public Servant" for nigh on to 40 years. How well has he served the State of Wisconsin? The answer: So well that today Wisconsin is the state in this Nation that is "Out of Debt."

Robert La Follette has succeeded in all his political victories "unbossed." The big whips have found him "unmanageable" and in a mendable to thin scheme of exploitation of Public Interests for private gain; why? Because he realizes he is a "Public Servant." He is responsible for most of the real laws Wisconsin today possesses especially those that appertain to economic Government and taxation. He has fought all his life against Wall Street and the monopolies.

His supreme test came at the outbreak of the late War. He opposed the United States entering the War, which was demanded by the Money Lenders, the munition makers, and Profiteers (Remember only 27 thousand billionaires were made during the late war.) He foreseen conditions more than any man in our Nation and believed and still believes that Congress should have the only right to declare war, and its duty of each member of Congress to vote their honest convictions, for or against war; So he dared to stand out against entering the war and has had to bear the fruit of a storm of abuse and deliberate lies such as seldom has descended on the head of a "Public Servant." But when war was declared, he urged its effective prosecution, and sent his younger son into the service. He voted for every bill to better the condition of the soldiers and sailors and fought to make War Profits bear a reasonable proportion of war taxes—besides fighting to relieve the poor from the high cost of living.

Secretary Weeks cited Sen. Wheeler's indictment, but carefully hid from his hearers the fact that it was admittedly the result of a plot concocted by the Republican National Committee and executed by the Department of Justice under Harry Dugberry's regime.

Secretary Weeks told his audience that Senator Wheeler "had appealed" to the Federal court to have the trial of his case deferred until after election. It may be that Secretary Weeks does not know the truth, but many of his hearers do, and it is the reverse of what the Secretary of War said.

While on the subject of Wheeler's indictment, Secretary Weeks omitted to mention that Secretary Fall, with whom he was associated in the Cabinet, and in Republican councils, is now under indictment for corruption in leasing the naval oil reserves and refused to testify before the Senate committee because his testimony might incriminate him, and on that plea escaped examination.

Secretary Weeks omitted also any reference to Forbes, Director of the Veterans Bureau, who is under indictment charges with embezzlement of public funds at the expense of sick and disabled soldiers and sailors of the World War; or of a Republican Congressman who stands convicted of bribery in connection with the violation of the prohibition laws; or of the outrageous dismissal of thirty men and women from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to make room for Republican henchmen—one of them charged with wife-beating and another charged with "book-making"; and gambling; or of the Republican spies of the Treasury and Department of Justice by whom the offices of Senators and private citizens have been entered and rifled; or of the use of the Government's secret telegraphic code on "Ned" McLean's private wire for messages between the latter and the White House during the investigation of Fall; or of Secretary Slomp's exposure as a peddler of Federal jobs in Virginia before he became President Coolidge's confidential political agent; or of the little "Green House on K Street" where the "Ohio Gang" met to make plans for getting spoils; or of Jess Smith, Daugherty's associate "without portfolio" in the Department of Justice; or of Burns, the professional "man hunter" who lent his agents to the Republican National Committee to help "frame" Senator Wheeler; or of the exhibition of prize fight pictures in the home of "Ned" McLean in violation of the law—but in the presence and for the entertainment of the highest officials in the Republican administration; or of any of the numerous dishonesties and abuses of which the Republican

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

Democratic

Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2
I take this means to solicit your vote at the forthcoming election, November 4. Since my appointment to the office of Justice of the Peace I have endeavored to handle all cases coming before me in a just manner, and no one has received a fine or prison sentence unless it was deserved. If elected to the office, I shall continue to handle impartially and fairly all cases coming before me. HOWARD KEENER.

For Sheriff

In requesting your support in the general election, November 4, I do so because I believe my record has been good and that I have saved the county considerable money compared with previous administrations. The records of the office show for themselves. A fingerprint department has been added to the identification system with no additional expense and other features that add to the efficiency of the office have been inaugurated. I thank you for your support in the primary election and would appreciate a reiteration of your confidence at the general election. HAROLD J. BROWN.

REPUBLICAN

For Supervisor, District No. 3
I respectfully solicit your vote for the office of Supervisor in District No. 3. If elected, I will conduct the affairs of the office in a fair and economic manner. Special favors will be granted to no one with my vote. P. A. HONNAS, Sonolita.

LEGAL NOTICES

OFFICIAL NOTICE

I Luella Walker, Treasurer and Ex-Officio Tax Collector for Santa Cruz County, Arizona, hereby make known that the assessment and tax roll of the County of Santa Cruz, Arizona, for the year 1924, is now in my possession for the collection of the taxes levied. That one-half of the taxes on all personal property assessed by real property, and one-half of the taxes on all real property, will be due and payable on the 15th of November next, and thereafter at 5 o'clock p. m. and unless prior thereto four per cent will be added thereto as a penalty, and interest from the time of the delinquency at the rate of ten per cent per annum until paid.

That the remaining one-half of the taxes on all personal property assessed by real property, and one-half of the taxes on all real property, will be due and payable on and after the first of March next and will be delinquent on the first Monday in May next, thereafter at 5 o'clock p. m. and unless prior thereto four per cent will be added thereto as a penalty and interest from the time of the delinquency at the rate of ten per cent per annum until paid.

That all taxes may be paid at the time of the first installment, as herein provided, is due and payable. That the above said taxes may be paid at the Treasurer's Office in the Court House for Santa Cruz County, State of Arizona, in the City of Nogales, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. with the exception of Sundays and holidays.

Walter P. Chrysler Gives Staggared Auto License Plate to the Public

As a bit of public service, Walter P. Chrysler, president and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chrysler Motor Corporation and the Maxwell Motor Sales Corporation, has acquired patent rights and arranged to make available to any state wishing to adopt, at no cost, the staggered license plate which he proposed some time ago as a practical step in the direction of reducing the number of motor car thefts, and as no less practical in the case of getting the number of a runaway motorist.

Drawing shows present New York State (above) and Staggared Plate (below). Even here in black and white the superior visibility of the Chrysler plate is well demonstrated.

Relentless Prosecution and Severe Punishment Will Check Crime Increase, Says E. A. St. John

FINANCIAL crimes have increased alarmingly since 1913, says E. A. St. John, president of the National Surety Company of New York. "Losses paid by a group of surety and burglary insurance companies in 1913 totaled $5,328,789. These same companies in 1923 paid losses of $20,912,709, and will pay as much or more in 1924. Our own share in 1923 was $7,217,051 the largest of any single company. In 35 years we have paid in losses $40,000,000. If the crime wave is to be checked, the surety, public prosecutors and magistrates must join in a campaign for relentless prosecution of the criminal and severer prison sentences.

Chrysler Six Calls On Navy Dirigible Shenandoah

Leaders of the land and sky met the other day at Lakehurst, N. J., when a Chrysler Six visited the United States Navy Dirigible Shenandoah—daughter of the stars.
The Shenandoah, originally known as the ZR-1, was christened the Shenandoah October 10, 1923, on the occasion of its acceptance by the United States Navy as Fleet Airship No. 1. The Shenandoah is 600 feet long, longer than all but the very longest ocean liners. The Majestic, the largest of all ocean liners, is 515 feet long, the Leviathan 467 feet, and the Berengaria, the third largest, 383 feet. The Shenandoah is 79 feet in diameter and has 20 gas cells with a gas capacity of 2,100,000 cubic feet.

With six 200-300 horse power motors the dirigible is able to make a maximum speed of 75 miles an hour. It carries a crew of 30 men.

The Chrysler Six pictured above is owned by Lowell Thomas, explorer and pilot, who is making a 10,000 mile motor tour of the United States in a Chrysler.

THE FARM PROBLEM AND ITS DANGERS

The hard situation in which the farmers of the United States have been placed during the past three years has caused a shifting in the foundations of our national life which ought to concern not farmers alone or even mainly, but all people of every occupation who are interested in preserving American government and American life as they have always existed.

The farm problem, essentially, is not a class problem but a national program. Unless the right solution is found, business and industry and the domestic and laboring conditions of the cities will suffer, in the end, very much more than the farmers do. For the foundation from which the cities suck their sustenance is being dried up.

The best estimates obtainable show that about 1,200,000 farmers have been driven out of business since 1920. Some of them continue on the farms as tenants or economic slaves to mortgage holders; the others have become day laborers in the cities. There are many farming communities scattered through out the United States where hardly a single family is left that lived on the land four years ago.

Few persons in urban communities understand what the breaking up of a farm home means. The farm is not merely a place to live—it is the source of life. The bankrupt farmer is a man destroyed. The day when he could move on to free or even cheap land is past. Nothing is left for him except to become tenant to an absentee landlord, giving up the bulk of his earnings to pay his rent, or go as a laborer in a line of work that he does not understand. There are other names for unrequited toil—slavery, serfdom and the like—ugly names, all.

The energetic families, particularly those having boys and girls of energetic outlook, leave the farms for the hope of better things in town. The unresourceful, the indolent, the stupid—these remain as slaves on the farms they once may have owned. The bond and sinew of rural life is eaten away. Those who should have stayed to breed good farmers of the future, to build up schools and churches and to keep their shoulders to the wheel of progress are gone. And the nation begins to pay the price of folly.

There is nothing new in all this. It is as old as Egypt, old as the cities of the Mesopotamian plains. It has been repeated in every civilization that ever died. As one writer puts it, "Desolation came from the rushing of the dispossessed and the unrequited to the cities. The farmers suffer first, then the small towns go down, then the larger cities decay, and the over-swollen centers of population, deprived of nourishment and with lost markets, fall into the hands of a mobocracy of rapacious and idle people, and the state passes away into something else."

That is the process which has been going on in the United States—is going on now. No American should deceive himself as to that. There are only about 6,000,000 farms in the United States, and 1,200,000 of the farm families have been rooted out of the soil. The nation cannot stand up forever under this drain upon the life blood of a nation's life.

If any one is lulled by representations that the farmers are receiving good prices this year, let him reflect that whatever of this may exist is temporary and the result of natural conditions which will not often recur. Next year, or certainly within the next few years, there will again be a surplus of agricultural products which, unless guarded against, will plunge American farmers into another period of catastrophe.

Insurance must be written against the recurrence of agricultural agony. John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate for President, has drawn up such a policy—a policy that will protect the farmer and the nation. Its main clauses are: An export marketing corporation; restoration of the farmer's markets abroad; governmental encouragement of cooperative marketing; a tariff that will enable the farmer to buy and sell on equal terms with the manufacturer; lower taxes, lower rail road rates.

Let the city man remember that this policy is designed to protect him in the long run, and let the farmer remember that it is designed to save him from immediate and recurring disaster.

Notable physicians have prophesied that in ten years all women will be tubercular. Will women heed this voice? They will not. Women would not resume red flannel underwear again—not if The Bee stood in the door.

FINANCIAL difficulties and poor health caused Frank B. Brandegee, United States senator from Connecticut, to commit suicide last week in his Washington home. He formerly was a rich man but had made unfortunate investments in real estate.

WASHINGTON The passport business has been a flourishing one for Uncle Sam this summer. It has strengthened the claim of attaches of the division of passport control of the state department that theirs is the one unit of the government that more than pays for itself.

A movement has been started in Washington to get out the chronic stay-at-home vote, which is said to comprise about 50 per cent of the citizenship. The organization is nonpartisan and its only aim will be to stimulate the lagged voter.

ANATOLE FRANCE, the "master" of French contemporary letters, passed away after an illness lasting for weeks, leaving a place in literature that there is none to fill. His real name was Jacques Anatole Thibault and he was the son of a poor Paris bookseller.

MINISTRIES of two European countries went out last week. That of Sweden was replaced by a cabinet headed by Hjalmar Branting, the noted Socialist leader. In Yugoslavia the Davidovich cabinet resigned because the king insisted that Radich's federalist party be given a share in the government.

ABOUT a month ago William B. Ross, governor of Wyoming, died, and last Tuesday the Democrats of that state enthusiastically nominated his widow, Nellie Taylor Ross, to succeed him. She did not seek the honor but was the unanimous choice of the convention.

JAMES R. SHEFFIELD, the new American ambassador to Mexico, presented his credentials to President Obregon Wednesday, and in a little speech gave the Mexicans assurance of the friendliness and fairness of the United States.

Anatole France, considered one of the greatest writers of modern times, member of the French academy—the highest intellectual honor in France—and officer of the Legion of Honor, died in his home in Paris.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald escaped serious injury at Clark Heaton, England, when the platform from which he was addressing an audience collapsed and spilled the premier and 200 of his listeners.

Naval guards around the foreign settlements in Shanghai, China, were strengthened as an additional precaution, to balance the influx of soldiers from the defeated Chokiang armies into Shanghai and environs.

Elimination of the national anthem, which is customarily played whenever the king is present, was ordered by the Socialist woman minister of fine arts at a gala jubilee performance in the Royal theatre in Copenhagen.

The fur has begun to fly in the British election campaign, which is sure to be short and almost certain to be snappy. It may have been the dropping of the case against Editor Campbell of the Workers' Weekly on which the government decided to accept defeat and go to the country.

President Ebert of Germany sent the following telegram to Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the ZR-3, at Lakehurst, N. J.: "After your successful transatlantic flight, I together with the entire German people and the government, congratulate you and your brave crew most heartily."

Assembly of a complete automobile at the Highland Park plant of the Ford Motor Company was one of the features arranged for the entertainment of the Prince of Wales, who visited at Highland Park, a suburb of Detroit.

With America's $110,000,000 portion of the $200,000,000 German loan about five times oversubscribed, the banking syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., which underwrote the issue, has been busily engaged in sending down the allotments of subscribers.

A suit for $100,000 damages for mutilation alleged to have been incurred at the hands of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb was filed in Circuit Court in Chicago by Charles Ream, a taxicab driver.

The night force at police headquarters in Washington, D. C., re-evoked a shock when Willard Gentry, escaped leper from the federal colony at Carrville, La., walked in and said he had been commissioned by the 180 inmates there to come to Washington and protest against conditions in the colony.

A leap or fall from a second-story window of her home in New York City took the life of Mrs. Helen Salth Woodruff, author and playwright, declared by Penrhyn Stanlaws, the artist, to have been one of the most beautiful women in the world.

Official representatives of twenty-eight Protestant communities will gather at Atlanta, Dec. 3-9, for the quadrennial meeting of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. Leaders say that it will be the most representative gathering of churchmen in years, and that its deliberations will have far-reaching effects in all denominations.

President Coolidge was the first of official Washington to congratulate the commander of the ZR-3 on the successful completion of his record-breaking flight from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst. Word of the landing was given to the president within a few minutes after she had landed at the Lakehurst airfield.

Seventy-eight guests at the Hotel Windsor, at Houston, Texas, were removed from the hotel to the municipal isolation hospital on orders of city health officials in an effort to check an epidemic of yellow fever of virulent form which it is believed has started in that city.

Arrested by his own father, Lester Kahl, 24-year-old son of Deputy Sheriff E. A. Kahl of Shipman, Ill., was being held in jail with a net of gruesome evidence tightly drawn about him as the slayer of his pretty thirteen-day bride, Margaret, 21.

BRIEF ARIZONA ITEMS

The coroner's jury investigating the death of Jose Garcia, who died in Salt Ford, found that the deceased had come to his death by a gunshot wound, self-inflicted.

The body of a man, who evidently met his death from two crushing blows to the skull, was exhumed in the presence of a coroner's jury three miles north of Superior.

Investigators are seeking a key to the person who fired the shot that wounded Mrs. Grace Montgomery of Columbus, Ohio, while she was visiting on a chicken ranch near Bishop.

Dean G. M. Butler of the College of Mines and Engineering of the University of Arizona will represent the Arizona board at the meeting of the national council for state boards of engineering next month in Washington, D. C.

Authority of the state of Arizona to collect inheritance taxes on stocks owned by non-resident decedents in Arizona resident corporations qualified to transact business in Arizona is placed at issue in a case filed against State Treasurer Wayne Hubbs by Thomas Barlow, Jr., of Ashland, Wis., in the Superior Court of Maricopa county.

Phil Lacy, former federal prohibition officer, was brought back to Phoenix from Carson City, Nev., in the custody of federal officers to face a charge of violating the national prohibition law. Lacy, according to authorities, was captured in Nevada several days after he failed to appear in Phoenix for his preliminary hearing following his release on his own recognizance.

Contracts for nearly $1,000,000 worth of electrical generating equipment were awarded by the board of governors of the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association, according to an announcement by C. C. Craig, general superintendent and chief engineer of the association, in Phoenix. The equipment will be used in the development of the Horse Mesa power project, according to Mr. Craig.

It is reported in Phoenix that the Grand Canyon National Park officials have entered into negotiations with Santa Fe Railroad Company looking toward the establishment of a hotel in the Indian Gardens upon the Bright Angel Trail, in the Grand Canyon.

The proposal to sell the Grand Canyon's historic Bright Angel Trail at a public auction in Flagstaff, Ariz., will be submitted to the voters of Coconino county on November 4. Action to place the plan on the ballot to decide the future disposal of the trail, possession of which has been in controversy for several years, was taken by the county board of supervisors which also deferred the plan for sale of the trail in Flagstaff on Oct. 25.

More than a million dollars will go for labor alone in the construction of the $5,000,000 leading plant to be erected at Inspiration by the Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company, first work on which is under way following awarding of the contract for the excavation of an Arizona firm.

This is one of many interesting points brought out in a description of the plant and its construction furnished by the Arizona Industrial Congress by the Inspiration company. Capacity of the plant will be 7,500 tons of ore a day, and on this basis it will produce about 100,000 pounds of copper daily.

The Douglas High school has been awarded first prize for the best school annual for 1923-1924, as printed in a school printery in the United States. The booklet was entitled "The Copper Kettle."

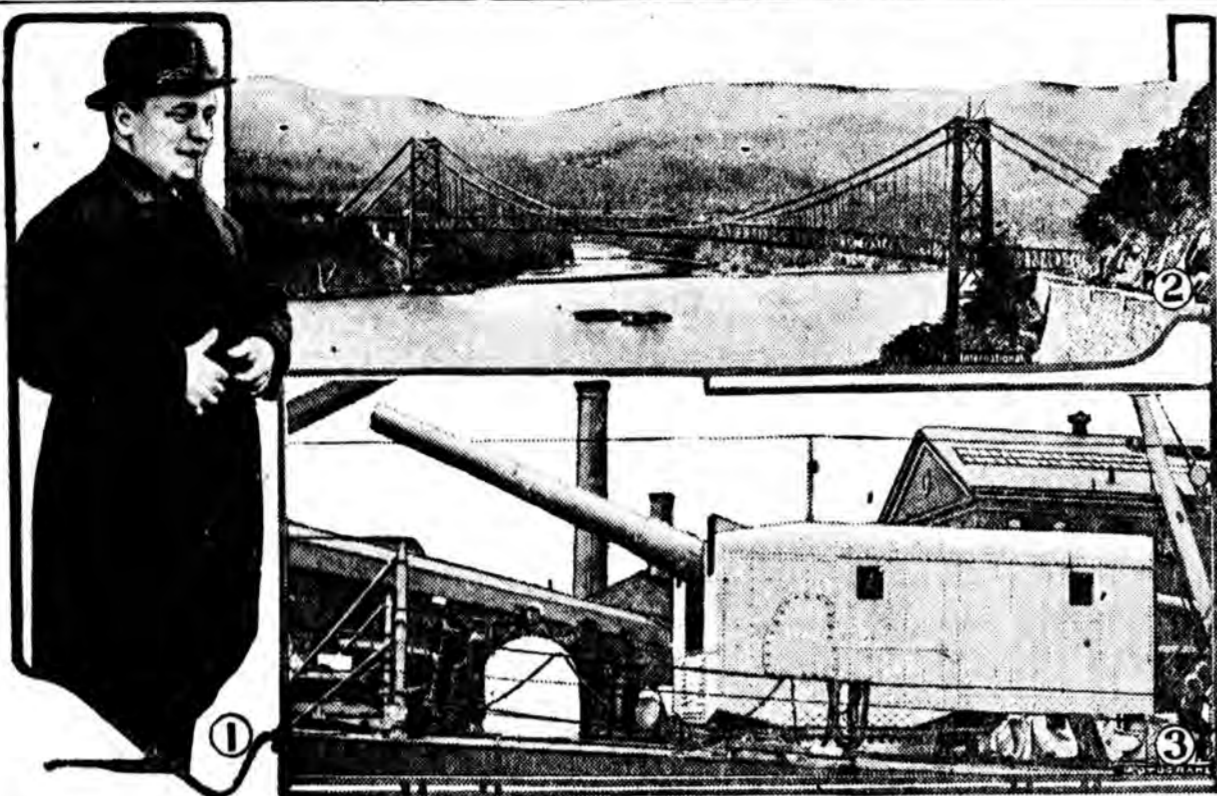

Arizona business conditions took another upward swing during September and most lines of industry showed improvement over Sept. 1 of last year, according to officials of the Arizona Industrial Congress who recently completed a survey of conditions throughout the state.

They reported advances in the cotton market and favorable prices for hay and grain, and declared the agricultural outlook for the state was promising, with the exception of dry farming districts in northern sections where crops suffered because of the lack of summer rains.

ZR-3, Our Big German-Built Zeppelin, Breaks Record on Trip Across Ocean.

ZR-3, the giant Zeppelin built by Germany for the United States as war reparations, successfully made the flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J., last week in 81 hours, 17 minutes. The distance over land and sea covered by the huge glittering airship was 5,066 miles, and she broke all flight endurance and long distance non-stop speed records.

The ZR-3, the giant Zeppelin built by Germany for the United States as war reparations, successfully made the flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J., last week in 81 hours, 17 minutes. The distance over land and sea covered by the huge glittering airship was 5,066 miles, and she broke all flight endurance and long distance non-stop speed records.

Not a single mishap marked the epochal flight from Europe to America, but head winds and fogs caused the navigator to change his course when approaching our shores and instead of coming by the more southern route the Zeppelin headed toward the northwest and then came down the coast of Nova Scotia and New England.

Of the 120 dirigibles built by the Zeppelin company, the ZR-3 is the best, according to Doctor Eckener. Over in Germany, pride in the mechanical achievement is mixed with chagrin because America gets the ship, and because, according to the terms of the Versailles treaty, Germany can build no more big dirigibles that would be capable of being transformed into war craft.

SHANGHAI has been abandoned by the commanders of the Chekiang forces that were defending the city against Kiangsu armies, and at this writing the latter are within a few miles of the city with practically nothing to keep them from occupying it.

LITTLE Hsu, a notorious Anfu leader, is chief of the crowd still resisting the Kiangsu forces, and he has been reinforced by two battalions of Hupeh troops which had been aiding the attackers but revolted and slipped into the city, seizing the arsenal. The conflict seems now to be a struggle for the privilege of pillaging the rich Shanghai area.

General Wu, the Peking military chieftain, is reported to be having some success in checking the advance of General Chang's armies. For some days he has been devoting his efforts largely to exhausting the enemy's ammunition. One of his schemes is to place thousands of peasants, in civilian dress and unarmed, in front of his troops.

Japan has warned the warring factions that she will not tolerate damage to Japanese lives, rights and interests in Manchuria. France also is disturbed over the danger to her interests there, and Premier Herriot has protested to Peking against the agreement with General Chang concerning the Chinese Eastern railroad and other properties.

TOWARDS the close of the week reports came from Canton that Chinese "Reds" were stirring up much trouble there and had started serious fires in many parts of the city. Looting had begun, the principal streets were deserted and steamers were crowded with refugees.

IT IS apparently up to the League of Nations council to prevent warfare between Great Britain and Turkey over the disputed boundary in the Mosul region. After getting all ready to fight, the Turks suggested the matter be submitted to the council, and the British government promptly demanded an immediate meeting of that body.

IN Arabia Ibn Saud and his Wahabis, having driven Hussein from the Hedjaz throne, have occupied Mecca, the holy city. The British say all this is the result of plotting by Italians and Egyptians who seek to destroy British and French prestige in the Arab countries of Asia and north Africa.

ALL over the world, except in Holland and France, the $200,000,000 Dawes plan German loan went big, being heavily oversubscribed in America and Great Britain. In France the public wanted none of it, but the banks, under pressure from the government, took up the French share.

ON HIS eastward way from his Canadian ranch the prince of Wales devoted a day to the sights and pleasures of Chicago, visiting the stockyards, the university and the field museum and dancing most of the night. Next day he spent in Detroit, where Henry Ford showed him how flippers are built and otherwise entertained him. The residents of both cities threw some spasms over the royal visit, rather embarrassing the modest young man with their attentions.

SPEAKING of Henry Ford, that gentleman let it be known last week that he had withdrawn his offer to the government for Muscle Shoals, having abandoned all interest in that development. He says: "A simple affair of business, which should have been decided by anyone within a week, has become a complicated political affair. We are not in politics and we are in business."

Charges made by Attorney General John H. Duhbar were on file in Superior Court in Seattle, Wash., against the American University of San Francisco, headed by John E. Lydon, alleging that the school sold physicians' diplomas at prices ranging from $3.75 to $500 each without the formality of a course of instruction as required by law.

Employment in Wyoming steadily increased during past thirty days, due to a further increase in activities in coal mining, oil fields and railway shops. Fall harvesting, principally of sugar beets and hay, has absorbed most of those released from seasonal grain harvesting.

Investigation of campaign funds by the Borah senate committee began last week in Chicago in response to LaFollette's charges of a Republican slush fund. The LaFollette-Wheeler campaign manager, John M. Nelson, was the first witness and he submitted accounts showing his organization had collected $190,535 and had expended $155,002.

SOLDIERS ROB HOMES

ALLIED TROOPS LAND MACHINE GUNS IN CHINESE CITY TO PROTECT FOREIGNERS

Hong Kong.—A detachment of fifty Indian grenadiers, with ammunition and machine guns left here for Shamen, the British concession in Canton. It was said they were sent as a precautionary measure.

Canton.—While Chinese troops continued looting and robbing citizens here, British and French armed naval forces were landed to protect the foreign concession and boats plying between Hong Kong and Canton made extra trips to carry persons fleeing from Canton.

The naval forces put ashore brought with them machine guns with which to protect bridges in the foreign concession. British military forces also arrived from Hong Kong.

Clashes of the rival factions and the expected arrival of Chang Kwing-Ming with a fully armed force of 18,000 are causing an alarming situation. The merchants volunteer corps, whose differences with the so-called "red army" of Chinese laborers precipitated the present trouble in Canton, is concentrating its forces at Shihuling, west of Canton, with a view to making a final effort to expel the troops from this city.

The local British consul has been accused of harboring Chin-Lin-Pak, head of the merchants' volunteer corps and other officials of that organization within the foreign concession.

Looting is still going on, while the troops are robbing the refugees, thousands of whom are leaving Canton seeking safety in Hong Kong. Business is almost at a standstill, a majority of the business houses being closed, the merchants removing their valuables to the foreign concession for safe-keeping. It is said that much loot has been removed to transports, where it is being held pending a favorable opportunity to dispose of it in other districts.

Many private residences have been commandeered for the use of the troops.

Two American and six other foreign gunboats are here to protect foreign interests.

A strict government censorship of telegrams is being maintained.

Shenandoah Ends Flight

Aboard the U. S. S. Shenandoah, Camp Lewis, Wash.—The navy dirigible Shenandoah in the last day of its flight from Lakehurst, N. J., to Camp Lewis, Wash., before it was moored, was able to keep between 3,000 and 4,000 feet off the ground only by tilting at an angle of fifteen degrees and keeping five motors turning at the rate of 1,000 revolutions a minute. The big ship shuttled back and forth between the mooring mast at Camp Lewis and Tacoma. From its control cars those on board could see both snow-covered Mount Ranier, nearby, and Mount Hood, more than 200 miles to the south.

Blast Puts Out Gasser

Grand Junction, Colo.—The blazing gasser of the Utah Oil and Refining Company near Cisco, Utah, met its match in the person of Ford Alexander of Los Angeles, expert oilwell fire fighter. Ten minutes after Alexander arrived on the scene and shot a quantity of high explosives near the blazing well, the fire was out. Alexander came to the field from Denver after having been given a contract to extinguish the fire by the Midwest Oil Company, controllers of the Utah Oil and Refining Company.

Upholds Right of Woman to Office

Austin, Texas.—The last vestige of the ancient bar against women in office was swept away by the Texas Supreme Court in holding Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson of Temple, and all other women in the state, eligible to elective positions. Attempts to bring out of the dim past and establish as present day law, the fragments of an old order, were cast out by the highest court of the state, which pronounced women as independent entities of an equality with men.

Firpo Case Withdrawn

New York.—Perjury charges against Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavy-weight, before Federal Commissioner Hitchcock were withdrawn here with the announcement that the case against the pugilist would be presented to a federal grand jury next week. Canon William S. Chase, Firpo's prosecutor, asked permission to withdraw his case after he had received a letter from the grand jury foreman asking him to appear before that body with his evidence.

Coats Achieve Varied Styling; Winter Hats to Suit Everyone

IN COATS the mode continues to show much partiality for simplicity and even severity of line, and there is no question that the straightline outer-garment is "correct." This is reassuring knowledge, but every woman aspires to own a coat that is even more than correct—she wants one that is distinctive. Designers strive by different means to achieve this desired "chic"—through the use of novel fabrics or by unusual decorative features or originality in design and management of styles.

The creator of the charming coat shown here chose unusual decoration could be said of them for there was never so much diversity in headwear as there is now. Or perhaps it seems that way since the reaction came and we turned our backs on the small cloche so universally worn. The group starts off with one of those soft off-the-face velvet shapes with a wayward brim widened at the front and caught to the crown with a ribbon and fabric ornament at the right side. This is one of many that keep to the right in pinning their trimmings. When winter comes we shall see many soft off-the-face hats, some of them covered with the most to place it in the ranks of those that claim distinction. Like many winter coats it fastens to one side and is made of wool velours, with straight, standing collar of fur. Loops of braid placed in rows, in a novel arrangement, make a beautiful finish for it and one that has the additional feature of being thoroughly practical as well.

To be chic and practical at the same time, is all that any coat needs, to be popular as well. This is a consummation devoutly to be wished—the end brilliant embroideries and gold braidings. Others go further and are set with mock jewels, and queens are not more gorgeously crowned than their wearers will be.

"Spain" is written on the hat at the right quite as plainly as if the great seal of state had been affixed to it. It is one of many popular sailor models with a row of sequins about the brim edge and a chin strap of molre ribbon which appears to slip through the brim, for it crosses the crown. Many a youthful head adds to its attractions that all designers strive for. Beautiful fabrics that wear well help solve the problem for manufacturers, and there are novel stripes and plaids, new patterns in flannel cloth, corded silks and fabric furs that need almost nothing in the way of decorations, being highly decorative in themselves. Fur bandings are liked for them in collar and cuffs, and occasionally bordering the neckline or front fastening. When plain materials are used the styling is varied by ingenious collars, jabots, three-tiered capes or old front openings.

Here are five winter hats, each one beautiful and interesting, but each entirely different from all the others. If the group contained fifty hats it is likely that the same things when this picturesque hat adorns it. The model is in black.

A beautiful velvet hat in which a light facing relieves the dark covering is shown in the center of the group. It is a forerunner of the mode in flower-trimmed hats for midwinter. Its crown is high and made higher by two huge silk and velvet roses posed at the left side. Many color combinations are possible in hats of this kind and they look best on the dignified heads of mature types. At the lower right a chic velvet hat, with an eccentric brim line is shown—it has a flare of ostrich across the back—likely to be in flame color and a gold cord about the crown. It will find its proper resting place above an animated face. Felt and velvet are combined in the familiar shape that finishes the group and it is trimmed with one of those white-tipped black pompons that have so much style.

Lincoln Must Stand Trial.

Geneva, Ill.—The jury which has been hearing evidence as to the mental condition of Warren J. Lincoln, who killed his wife and her brother and sealed their heads in a concrete block, returned a verdict finding Lincoln to be sane at this time. The verdict means that Lincoln, the Aurora, Ill., horticultural lawyer, who kept the authorities puzzled for months by confessions and repudiations before he finally led them to a dump pile where he pointed out the block of concrete containing the heads of his victims, must stand trial for the slayings.

Seal Skins Sold at Auction.

St. Louis.—Seventeen thousand government-owned seal skins from Alaska were offered for sale at an auction in the establishment of the Foulke Fur Company. For the first time three were offered lots of dyed seal skins of a golden chestnut hue, while 14,000 were black and the remaining 1,000 were offered raw. Another government-owned lot ready for auction consisted of 787 blue fox skins, fifteen white fox and four sea otter.

Farm Implement Sales Increase.

Washington.—Recovering from the slump of 1922, farm equipment manufacturers last year surpassed 1921 with an increase of 74 per cent and were 11.2 per cent above the 1921 production. Census bureau statistics announced for the annual canvass of manufacturers of farm equipment places the value of the output at $204,701,537, as compared with $202,499,878 in 1922 and $28,040,783 in 1921. Manufacturers of tractors showed a marked increase.

TIMELY DAIRY NOTES

(By E. N. Davis, Extension Dairyman)

A total of 910 cows tested in the Maricopa County Cow Testing Association during the month of September produced an average of 665 pounds of milk containing 24.2 pounds fat. This is the lowest average monthly production for the Association for the year. This is accounted for, according to the testers, Wallace Robinson and S. C. Coman, by the exceptional hot dry weather, and the fact that a large number of the cows in the Association are well advanced in the lactation period, and will freshen within the next 60 days.

High Herds

The registered Holstein herd of the Miller Cattle Company is first among the herds over fifteen cows, with an average production of 1455 pounds milk containing 48.2 pounds fat, while the registered Jersey herd of B. Chesney is second with a production of 731 pounds of milk containing 35.2 pounds fat.

High Cows

The pure-bred Holstein cows, Florida and Pearl Burke, in the herd of the Miller Cattle Company are first and second respectively for the month with a production of 79.4 and 70.6 pounds fat, while the cow No. 47 owned by Chandler Land & Cattle Company is third with a fat production of 65 pounds.

Total Month Production

The total month production for the Association is 601,677 pounds milk and 22,045 pounds fat. This is equivalent

All's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which quickly follows by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health. Sold by druggists for over 40 years. P. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio
