FOR SALE A PARTLY DEVELOPED MINE

I have a group of six claims on a great lode, discovered and named by the early Spaniards, as the Veta Grande, and ever since so known. There are also some adjoining claims that could be added to these, on very good veins, with considerable work. But the big lode runs up in one place to 110 feet or more in width. At this point is a body of ore visible on the surface for more than 1000 feet, which is estimated to have 50,000 tons in the shoot 6 feet wide already opened. Though only 6 feet of this is now exposed, the lode, if it maintains the same average width that it has on the surface, would give a block of ore 100 feet wide, 1000 feet long and 400 feet deep (very conservatively figured), or more than 2,000,000 tons, above a crosscut tunnel already started to cut the lode. This tunnel requires about 500 feet to hit the lode 400 feet from the surface. The work to prove up this ore would cost about $20,000, or probably less than 1 cent a ton. This remarkable body of ore spells "opportunity" for some man of vision, especially as the ore now in sight is an invitation to venture. There have been four shipments from this work, and a sample taken across 12 feet on the 100-foot level assayed 7% lead, 3.5% copper, 10 oz. silver and about $2 in gold. The shipping ore ran up to $50. There are theoretical reasons for thinking that shortly below the level now reached there is ore of higher grade.

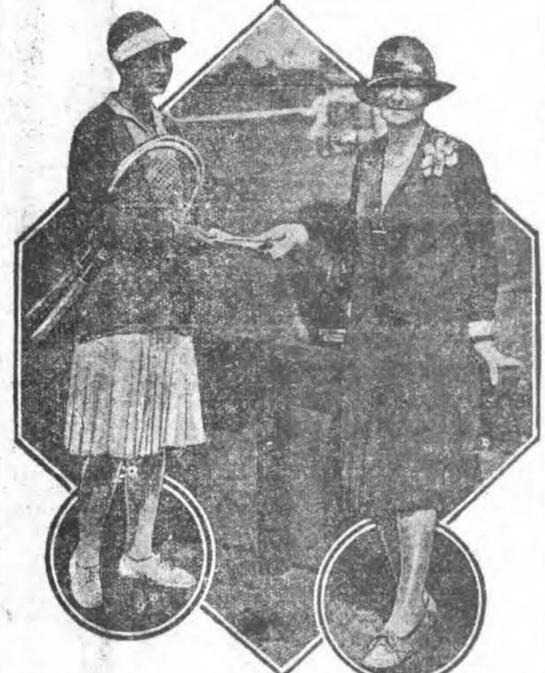

The work consists of two shafts about 100 feet, seven other shafts of lesser depth, two tunnels, one about 100 feet and the other 450 feet long, and a number of prospecting pits. It is my recollection that all of these show ore enough to warrant further work.

There is an abundance of water for a large mill, that can be impounded high enough up to flow to the mill by gravity, and the work proposed will undoubtedly develop a considerable amount. The road runs onto the property in two places, and other mining conditions are ideal.

While I have estimated the amount of ore at 2,000,000 tons (this is only above the tunnel and if the lode continues in depth, which is as certain as can be, the amount of lode matter in 6000 feet long, 100 feet wide and 5000 feet deep, makes impressive figures, whatever factor of safety is adopted. My own judgment is that depth will increase the width as well as the tenor of the ore. Those who are interested in this phase will find my views set forth in the Sept. 15, 1928, number of the Arizona Mining Journal.

My conviction is that this is a great mine, and it would seem to be a legitimate venture to do work to find out what such a large amount of possible ore will average. It is estimated that the 50,000 tons now exposed will average $12.50 per ton, making a respectable sum certain. The work done has demonstrated the mine's value.

Youth of America Backs Hoover, Says Helen Wills, Tennis Star

HELEN WILLS has accepted the appointment as Chairman of the Sports Division of the Women's National Committee for Hoover from Mrs. F. Louis Slade, National Chairman of the organization.

"Am I voting for Hoover?" she said. "Yes. And why? For the same reason that countless other young people throughout the country are voting for him. It is because they realize that Mr. Hoover possesses just those qualities that will make him a great president," said Miss Wills.

"He said in his speech of acceptance that he wishes to carry the spirit of the youth of the nation into the government. 'Youth,' he said, 'is today pulling at the traces as never before, and is willing to pull a full load. Youth's eagerness contains a more earnest desire than ever to be of service.'"

"All youth can admire Herbert Hoover because of his sincerity, intelligence and great industry."

"His achievements, in the past, have been marked with success because of his ability for organization and his wonderful powers of perseverance. His life is a story to fire the imagination and admiration of every young person in the country."

"He spoke of 'Youth's eagerness for service.' He was guided in his own youth by this idea. He has proved since, at home and abroad, that he is a great man."

"May Youth everywhere, by voting for Hoover, show that its ideals are of the highest and that it has the earnest desire 'to be of service.'"

A STRENUOUS CAMPAIGN

Now that the primary election is over, it may be a good time to republish the experience of an Arkansas candidate for sheriff, which has been going the rounds of the press for several years.

The latest version of the story is as follows:

"Let four months and 20 days canvassing, lost 1360 hours of sleep thinking about the election, lost 40 acres of corn and a whole lot of sweet potatoes, lost two front teeth and a lot of hair in personal encounter with an opponent; donated one beef, four shoats and five sheep to barbecues; gave away two pairs of suspenders, five calico dresses, five dolls and 13 baby rattles, kised 126 babies; kindled 14 kitchen fires; put up eight stoves; cut 14 cords of wood carried 24 buckets of water gathered 7 wagon loads of corn, pulled 475 bundles of fodder; walked 4660 miles, shook hands 9050 times, told 10,001 lies and talked enough to make 10,000 volumes; attended 26 revival services, was baptized four times by immersion and twle some other ways; contributed $50 to foreign missions; made love to nine grass widows and got dog-bit 39 times, and then got defeated."

THE CHILD AT SCHOOL

With the opening of another school year, the problem of encouraging the child to make the most of the opportunities which the school offers again presents itself. It is a problem in which parents as well as teachers should take a keen interest.

Perhaps the most important objective to be sought is to awaken in the child a real desire for knowledge. It should be pointed out that it is possible to derive enjoyment from the pursuit of school studies if one approaches them with a genuine ambition to learn. The child should not be led to feel that going to school is an unpleasant duty. He should be impressed with the fact that it is a privilege to be appreciated; not only as a preparation for after life, but as a means of present happiness and satisfaction as well.

Some children appear to realize this without much urging, but others seem to be naturally averse to mental effort, and require patient handling in order to arouse their interest in school work.

Parents should not place the entire responsibility upon the teachers, but should cooperate with them, not only in insisting upon punctual attendance but also in leading the child to adopt a proper attitude toward his studies.

NOTED CLERIC FLAYS BIGOTRY

Dr. Henry Van Dyke Declares Defeat of Smith Would Be "National Calamity."

ASSAILS SECRET PROPAGANDA

Warning American voters that sinister and secret forces are threatening the very foundation upon which our Government is built, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, eminent educator, Presbyterian clergyman, author and diplomat has issued, from his home at Seal Harbor, Me., a ringing appeal for religious tolerance.

Dr. Van Dyke who holds degrees from Princeton, Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania University, Union College and Oxford University is perhaps one of the best-known of living writers and clergymen. In a formal statement, he said:

"At the present moment there is on foot in these United States a widespread cabal to keep one of the candidates for the Presidency from election because he is a member of the Catholic Church. The other candidate has handsomely disavowed any personal share in the sentiments or arguments which characterize this cabal. This is much to his credit.

"But unfortunately he can not, or at least he does not, restrain and check the pernicious activity of his supporters, who are convinced that the end of a victory for their party justifies any means which they employ to secure it.

"Hence, if their candidate should be elected, he would owe his election in part to the religious prejudice and anti-Catholic emity which the cabalists have stirred up and marshalled to the polls. This would be a misfortune for him, and a calamity for our country as the home and citadel of religious liberty.

Most Important Issue

"The mere prospect of such a calamity ought to move the hearts of true Americans and honest Christians with dismay, and awaken their minds to serious thought and earnest action in defense of that real freedom of conscience which is the hard-won crowning glory of America and the dearest jewel of Christianity.

"That seems to me far and away the most important question before the country today—a question not to be answered by heated appeals to partisan allegiance,—a question not raised, thank God, by either of the honorable candidates for the Presidency, but a burning question thrust upon the conscience of every American voter by the overt fulminations and covert whisperings of those who seek to defeat one of the candidates because he is a Catholic.

"My Protestantism is obedient to Him who said, 'Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's.' My Protestantism, which is hereditary from the school of William of Orange, tells me that 'conscience is God's province.' My Americanism, which is a stout growth of eight native-born generations, tells me that to vote against a man because of his church-membership is to be untrue to the central faith of the Republic.

"Freedom of conscience is the greatest thing at stake in this campaign. Hundreds of thousands of voters fall to realize it.

It is time to blow a trumpet to awaken the sleepers. The Palladium of the Republic is attacked by secret and open foes. It is in danger, trembling in its marble hall. The spiritual call to arms goes out to every man and woman. Defend the religious Liberty of America!"

BLAINE ADVISES BOLT

Republican Senator in Wisconsin Declares Voters Must End Corruption; Says Friends Are for Smith.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Republican leaders, disheartened by the tremendous reaction to the recent speech of United States Senator John J. Blaine, in which he bitterly criticized the last two Republican administrations and lauded Governor Smith, have practically given up all hope of swinging Wisconsin to Hoover.

Senator Blaine, a former Governor of Wisconsin, and one of the State's popular Republican leaders, declared in an address at Burlington: "I have no doubt that my friends and supporters are going to vote for Governor Smith. We must condemn Republican silence on the scandals of the Harding Administration as an accessory after the fact. The thing to do is to end corruption by voting for Governor Smith."

FARM AND LABOR LEADERS LOYAL TO GOVERNOR SMITH; G. O. P. MEN ACCLAIM HIM

William Green, President of American Federation of Labor, Lauds Governor's Record.

UNANIMOUSLY ENDORSED BY STATE FEDERATION

50,000 People in Demonstration at State Fair; Democratic Candidate Acclaimed by Republican Farm Leaders.

Twice in his own State last week, and among two distinct classes—the farmer and the labor man—Governor Alfred E. Smith's popularity was so spontaneously and so enthusiastically attested, that any lingering doubt of his tremendous strength among these privileged to know him must certainly have been dispelled.

Governor's Day at the State Fair at Syracuse, attracted more than 50,000 people from the rural districts, and proved to be one of the most impressive demonstrations ever accorded a presidential candidate. Again and again throughout the day the fair grounds resounded with tumultuous cheers for the guest of honor. Republican and Democrat joined in acclaiming the man who as Governor had won the ardent friendship of the farmers of his State.

Labor Demonstration

At a meeting of the State Federation of Labor, in Rochester, the Governor's name, uttered by William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, brought an ovation almost unprecedented in a labor gathering.

Congratulating the State Federation upon having obtained "the best body of labor laws of almost any State in the Union," Mr. Green said he realized the State had been fortunate in having Mr. Smith as its Governor.

Instantly the 472 delegates and almost as many visitors were on their feet cheering wildly. For a long time, while the speaker waited, the demonstration continued. Then Mr. Green said:

"You have been fortunate indeed, in having as Governor one who was in full sympathy with your social justice program and who assisted in securing this legislation.

Great Outstanding Figure

"I am glad that a study of the record shows that the working men and women in this State showed their appreciation by voting for him almost unanimously in every election in which he figured.

"This great outstanding figure has now been called to a larger field. I am convinced that Governor Smith's speech of acceptance and his reference to the abuse of injunctions has made a deep impression on every industrial State.

"It is the purpose of the American Federation of Labor to acquaint its members with the speeches of acceptable of both candidates and their records in matters affecting labor, and then leave the subject to the political conscience of the working men and women of America.

"And I am satisfied that when they go to the polls, they will stand by those who stood by them in their hours of need."

Endorses Governor Smith

A resolution endorsing Governor Smith and calling upon labor everywhere to support him, was unanimously passed by the Committee on Resolutions of the State Federation.

Another demonstration occurred at Syracuse, when Governor Smith addressed an almost solidly Republican audience of 250 farm leaders, at a dinner given in his honor by Jerome D. Barnum, publisher of a Republican newspaper, the Syracuse Post Standard.

Republican Editor Assails G. O. P. In Reply to Letter Asking Support

WASHINGTON.—The attitude of the intelligent Western farmer who has studied the causes of his present predicament, and who realizes that a continuance of the Coolidge policies would mean to him, is strikingly set forth in a letter received by Herbert N. Strause, of the Republican Business Men, Inc., from Willis A. Wells, Republican editor of the Webster (S. Dak.) Journal.

The South Dakota editor had been asked by Mr. Strause to support Herbert Hoover and to send a reply which could be published. Here is the reply:

"You request that I join the Republican Business Men, Inc., of your city, in promoting the election of Mr. Hoover upon the sole ground that 'he will carry out the Coolidge policies.' Your plea leaves me as cold as the ice fields of a polar sea.

"As a Republican I enthusiastically decline to do any such fool thing. I am for Hoover just about as far as you can throw our party elephant by the pin feathers with your arm broken in four places.

"Out in the West, where men are mortgaged up to the eyeballs and

In the Sandwich Islands the people go into mourning by knocking out their front teeth and painting the lower part of their faces black.

GEORGE WASHINGTON ON RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE

As a reply to the bigoted propaganda, attacking Governor Smith on religious grounds, which is being distributed through the South by various intolerant organizations, the Democratic National Committee has issued photostatic copies of a letter written by George Washington to the members of the New Church, a Baptist congregation, in Baltimore. In it, the "Father of the American Republic" said: "We have abundant reason to rejoice that in this land the light of truth and reason has triumphed over the power of bigotry and superstition, and that every person may here worship God according to the dictates of his own heart. "In this enlightened age and in this land of equal liberty it is our boast that a man's religious tenets will not forfeit the protection of the law, nor deprive him of the right of attaining and holding the highest offices that are known in the United States."

VETERANS FOR SMITH

Say Hoover Ignored Disabled Soldiers; Attack Red-Tape and Bureaucracy; Cite Governor's Record.

Endorsing Governor Alfred E. Smith as a tried and true friend of the ex-service man, a group of former soldiers of national reputation, led by General Henry T. Allen, former Commander of the Army of Occupation, has formed the National Democratic Veterans Organization, to direct a campaign on behalf of the Democratic candidate among the veterans of the country.

Among those who attended the first meeting of the organization in New York were General Edward A. Logan of Boston, Commander of the New England Division in the world war; Major General John F. O'Ryan of New York, Commander of the 77th Division; Major General Ryan of Albion, N. Y.; Commander E. C. Kay and former Commander William Jones of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Major William F. Deegan, former Commander of the American Legion; Col. J. Monroe Johnson of Marion, S. C.; Col. John Nounaa of Springfield, Mass., and James J. Hoey, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Replying to the "specious arguments" of Republican speakers that Governor Smith had been unfriendly to war veterans in criticizing the alleged economy of the Republican Administration, General Allen said:

"Governor Smith in his speech of acceptance, instead of finding fault with the appropriation for aid of disabled war veterans, approved them. What he did criticize is the intolerable 'red-tape, technicalities and bureaucracy' which has marked the administration of these funds under Republican rule.

"In his speech of acceptance, Mr. Hoover completely ignored the plight of the disabled war veterans throughout the nation.

"That Governor Smith's fullest sympathies are with the war veterans and that he believes they deserve the fullest measure of assistance from a grateful Republic, is shown by the fact that under his administration as Governor of New York State he signed legislation providing a liberal state bonus; special recognition under state civil service laws; providing an annual grant of $500 a year to blind veterans of any American war who are residents of New York State; and an appropriation of $10,000,000 for a state hospital for the sole care of New York's disabled veterans."

TUCSONIA HOTEL IS POPULAR

The Tucsonia hotel, Tucson, is one of the safest, most comfortable and most homelike hotels in the state. Safest because it is built of concrete and steel and is practically unburnable. This gives a sense of security that overbalances most other considerations. Most comfortable because the Tucsonia beds have long been famous for guaranteeing a good night's sleep, and the many comfortable chairs make the guests' rooms most inviting to the tired traveler. Most homelike because of the unusual arrangement of furnishings, the lavish use of draperies in private and public rooms and the air of cordial hospitality with which the guest is greeted by employees.

As to new things, many shower baths have been installed during the last summer, all the rooms, including the lobby, have been redecorated and much new furniture has been installed. In addition, a radio concert is given each evening in the lobby of the hotel through one of the most modern receiving sets. This is proving a most popular innovation, and much praise has been heard over the management's enterprise.

Fight the Fire Demon!

BEFORE THE FIRE DEMON CAN

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE week of October 1 to 7 is Fire Prevention week. During those seven days the people of the United States are to be given every opportunity to learn from various organizations, both public and private, how best to resist the ravages of the greatest single enemy of prosperity and progress, the Fire Demon, which every year destroys more than $500,000,000 worth of American property.

The fight against this menace, as exemplified in Fire Prevention week, is a nation-wide affair and it is the concern of all American citizens, whether they be city or country dwellers. More than that, it involves a national problem, the ramifications of which are far-reaching and vitally important to our whole economic system. Fire Prevention week comes at the height of the forest fire season and when one considers the appalling damage done each year by woodland blazes, it is evident that the prevention of forest fires is one of the major projects in the observance of Fire Prevention week. During the year 1923 there were no fewer than 91,000 fires with a financial loss of more than $25,000,000. The record since then is not much better, but such as government estimates place the loss at an average of $100,000 a day.

How that loss can be reduced is indicated by the fact that 72 per cent of the fires in 1923 were caused by man, 12 per cent of lightning and 16 per cent were of undetermined origin. Criminally careless smokers, who dropped matches or cigar or cigarette stubs without extinguishing them, were responsible for 16 per cent of those fires and sparks falling from engines of railroads caused 13 per cent. Due to the efficiency of our national forestry service with its airplane patrols and other means of spotting and checking fires in our national forests before they got a good start, the inexcusable carelessness of campers is somewhat counterbalanced so that the ravages of the Fire Demon in the nation's preserves are reduced to a minimum.

But this does not prevent a huge annual loss caused by fires on privately owned lands. In the state of Pennsylvania this year four times as many forest fires have occurred on privately owned lands as on public preserves and the burned area has been 40 times as great. The principal cause is the inexperience of those who attempt to burn brush on private land. The flames get beyond their control and spread to both private and public lands for the Fire Demon is no respecter of land titles. In the Southern states this problem has become so acute that the American Forestry association has launched a $150,000 educational campaign to prevent such fires in the states of Georgia, Florida and Mississippi.

"In no section of the country," declares O. M. Butler, executive secretary of the association, "are forest fires so currently widespread and so detrimental to forest regeneration as

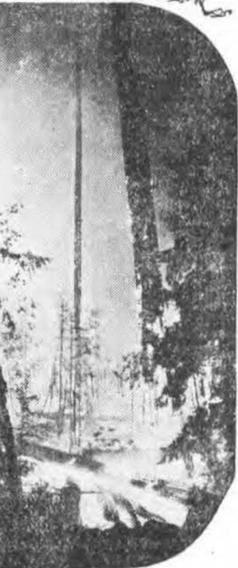

THE DEMON'S FIERY BREATH

In the south. The seriousness of the situation is reflected in the fact that 80 per cent of all forest fires reported in the United States during the past ten years have occurred in the southern states. More than one-third of the entire pine area embracing millions of acres has been so completely lumbered and so repeatedly devastated by fire that it lies idle and non-productive. In addition, forest fires are wiping out the game and wild life over vast areas throughout the South.

"Woods burning arising from a traditional custom of great numbers of rural people, ignorant of the social and economic benefits of forests, places a tremendous handicap upon efforts to renew forests on millions of acres. To stop these fires and to make the growing of forests a safe undertaking is the great and immediate problem of forestry in the South."

The menace which the observance of Fire Prevention week attempts to combat is of importance in both city and country in this way: Forest fires reduce the amount of available forest products and city fires at once cause a new call for more forest products. Thus the ravages of the Fire Demon immediately become a part of our vast economic system and a part of a national problem. Further light on that national problem and an attempt at its solution is given by a recent statement of Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, who for years has been the foremost exponent of a forestry policy which shall not only preserve our fast dwindling timber supply but guarantee an adequate supply for our future needs. In this statement Mr. Pack says:

"With one-twelfth of the world's people North America uses about one-half of all the timber consumed in the world. That is the economic situation in this country must solve sooner or later. Estimates show the population of the United States to be increasing at the rate of a million a year. This means a population of about two hundred million in the year 2000. Railroads use about 15,000,000 new wood ties every year. There are about 2,000 to the mile. Something like 2,000,000 trees are cut annually for telegraph and telephone wires; we use 500,000,000 fence posts every year. Millions of feet of pulpwood are used every year to keep the newspapers of the country providing you with the news of the day. About two-thirds of the population uses wood for fuel. A greater amount goes to this than for any other purpose. There are eighty-one million acres of idle land in this country all of which should be put to work growing trees. The passage of the important Mc-

THE DEMON'S FIERY BREATH

Sweeney-McNary bill during the late hours of congress marks for the first time a national effort to provide for a scientific program of forestry study through a long period of years. We need this research because we foresters have really no answer to many questions. Co-operation is becoming the key word in forestry today. Under the Clarke-McNary law co-operative forestry has made progress. This law itself provides a powerful impetus toward bringing together the state and federal government and the private timberland owner in a joint effort to promote forestry. It is just making a beginning in providing for adequate protection against forest fire. It is studying the perplexing problem of forestry taxation under a committee headed by Professor Fairchild of Yale. It is supplying farmers, under certain conditions, with small trees to plant on their idle lands and is advising farmers as to the best way to handle their woodlands. All this has not come a day too soon. We are a rapidly growing nation. An increase in population means an increasing need for wood and the census bureau tells us that this country is increasing at the rate of one million inhabitants a year. This means a population of 150,000,000 in 1933 and about 200,000,000 in the year 2000. Over against this is the fact that the amount of our population may increase, the amount of land in this country certainly does not. Our only way out of the problem of supplying a continually increasing demand for wood—a demand that is being made upon a continually decreasing forest—is to put every acre of available land to work growing trees.

For the problems of forestry are by no means all solved. Even though interest in forestry is increasing and effective forestry is being enacted, productive forests in this country are still rapidly decreasing while the waste acres are growing larger. It is not unlikely that in 1950, at the present rate, we may have an area of idle land larger than New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and all the New England states. How, in the face of all this wastage, shall we satisfy the wood needs of those hundred and fifty million near the census bureau tells us we will have? We still fall far short of providing for the future productivity of the 240,000,000 acres of forest land that is an industrial cowslip.

In the life of a tree the year 2000 is not very far away. Indeed, in our own shorter human lives that date is not so far distant that we need disregard it. Time goes hurrying by. There are children in our schools today who will write that date. Today is not a day too early for us to be thinking of the welfare of those who come after us. For a shortage in our wood supply is in no way comparable to a shortage in our supply of cotton and wheat. These may be grown in a few months, but our great timber crop—on whose existence our civilization today is based—requires many years to reach maturity. Whether or not the year 2000 is to be blessed with a supply of reasonably priced timber must be decided within the decade. We cannot afford to reap without sowing. We must grow trees for our growing nation.

Kittens for the Cat

By CORONA REMINGTON
(Copyright.)

"NOW, there's a new tot we got only yesterday. Isn't she sweet? Excellent heredity, lovely disposition, Grace, come here, darling, and shake hands with the gentleman." "Isn't she too sweet?" said Nurse Simpson, taking the child in her arms. "Now, why don't you adopt her, Mr. Kellington? I know if I were out baby shopping I'd choose her out of a million."

"Could we take her somewhere to gether? I would like to get better acquainted with her. Suppose I call again this afternoon. Then you could go along, couldn't you, and watch over her." "Just a minute. I'll ask Miss Doughty."

Nurse Simpson went in search of the matron and put the strange question to her.

"If he weren't on the board and such a liberal contributor I'd say no. What does he want with a baby anyway? The whole idea is ridiculous—a bachelor with a baby!" scoffed the matron.

Of course, the whole thing was absurd, but what could they do? John Kellington practically maintained Tiny Tot Terrace, and since he was willing to spend his money on it, he was surely entitled to some consideration. When at lunch the other attendants heard that Miss Simpson was taking out another baby with Mr. Kellington, they all discussed the matter vigorously.

"Why on earth he doesn't get a job in the nursery I don't see," declared Miss Wilson. "I believe he'd ask for it if he weren't afraid of being ridiculed," answered Miss Simpson. "I never saw a man as crazy about children in all my life."

"How old is he?" asked another. "Surely he can't be very old but he has a little gray at his temples." "He's not old and he isn't young," answered Mary Simpson, the Kellington authority by right of experience, because he had always called on her to accompany him on his visits through the nursery. "Miss Doughty was furious when I took her the message," the nurse went on as she straightened the perky little white cap on her curly head.

"Don't you pay any attention to her," advised another of the girls. "She's got a crush on Kellington and he doesn't even look at her."

"He's awfully nice when you're out with him," confessed Miss Simpson. "Just sort of comfortable to be with him. Oh, dear, afraid I'm falling in love again," she ended with a sigh. "Why can't I learn better sense and stop it!"

Immediately after lunch she got little Grace ready, then dressed herself and had hardly finished when Mr. Kellington appeared, carrying two toy balloons in one hand and under the other arm a little stuffed woolly dog with a black spot over one eye. A shiver of sheer delight ran over Miss Simpson at the sight of him, he was so splendid looking and so calm, and she felt sorry for a little sad look she often saw down deep in his eyes.

The car was soon speeding along and the draft coming in at the window tossed Grace's curls over her face in a riot of playfulness. Even Miss Simpson relaxed and threw her little felt hat on the back seat and gave herself up to the pleasure of the moment.

"What does Miss Doughty say about me?" Mr. Kellington asked suddenly as he turned the car into a shady cross road and slowed down a bit. "Oh, why—nothing. She thinks you'd make a wonderful father for a baby."

"Does she really believe I mean to adopt one?" he asked. "Why—why—yes. Don't you? I thought you did," answered the girl justly. "Mary, there are some things I've been wanting to tell you for a long time," he said, parking the car at the side of the road and lighting with his gold cigarette case. "I've been married once. I was very young and a darn fool I suppose, but anyway I've always been crazy about children, and Louise wasn't. Well, things went from bad to worse and finally we got a divorce on the grounds of incompatibility. After that I decided I'd know how a girl stood on the subject of motherhood not by words only, but by actions as well, and it seemed to me that anyone who would devote her life to the care of homeless tots must be a mother at heart. Then when I met you—and fell in love, Mary, it seemed to me as if there might be a little happiness in life for me yet. How would you feel about marrying a divorcee who's crazy about children?" he asked, slipping a hand over hers and looking at her with the old sadness in the back of his eyes.

"If the man were—you, I'd feel pretty happy about it," smiled Miss Simpson without a hint of coquetry in her voice. Fortunately Baby Grace was too young to think it unconventional for a good-looking man to kiss a pretty little nurse so she did not report to the authorities, but when it did get out Miss Doughty merely remarked as she turned back to her desk: "Well, I've heard of courting the cat for the kittens, but I've never heard of courting the kittens for the cat before!"

Fight Over Bullhead Caused Duck's Death

A large duck was recently found at Portage Inlet, British Columbia, choked to death by a squalid in the act of swallowing a bullhead, according to a correspondent of Field and Stream. The strange occurrence, he says, came about in this manner: The duck had just dived into the water, emerging with a bullhead protruding from its bill. In the meantime a band of seals had been circling around in the vicinity of the ducks. One of the seals immediately detached itself from the others and started to chase the duck. The squalid, objecting to losing its dinner, pulled the opposite way. The result was that the spikes on the fish's peccolator fins jabbed the duck's neck. It was not long before the unfortunate duck was lying dead on the water with the fish still sticking out of its mouth.

So Constipated That Life Seemed Hopeless

"In November, 1923, I wrote you for special instructions in the use of Milk's Emulsion. I have been constipated for a number of years and suffered with my bowels for a long time. I finally had an X-ray made which definitely located the trouble in my bowels. An operation was advised, but I was afraid of an operation, and your Emulsion had been recommended to me, so I decided to try it. I gained in weight from 100 lbs. to 125 lbs. in less than 120 pounds, and became so weak that I could not turn over in bed without help. I could not eat any solid foods for months, but (ended up on liquid diet, until I have it up constantly. Nothing passed my bowels except a dry, hard powder. "Finally when I was convinced that I had only a little longer to live, I resolved to try Milk's Emulsion. This was in November, 1923, and after a continuous decline for two years. Now I am happy to say to you that I am greatly improved. At this writing my bowels are fairly regular with proper consistency. I have gained in weight and I am beginning to have an appetite. "I have taken 15 large bottles of Milk's Emulsion and the results have been most satisfactory. I am 35 years old, and still improving. I expect to return East in October and resume active business as mechanical engineer. "I heartily endorse your Emulsion and I am satisfied that it saved my life." Yours very truly, C. B. Forests and Taxes

That timber growing, not timber hoarding, will solve America's forestry problems is now the view of those who have surveyed the question most carefully, whether as capitalists of industry or as masters of science. No longer does anyone whose judgment counts look upon conservation as a locking-up of natural resources, but rather as the most efficient use of them, and, if possible, their steady replenishment.

Certainly this holds true of our timber reserves. To protect them against fires and other wastes is a prime duty both of government and of organized industry. But protection alone will not suffice. There must be also reforestation of lands now barren and unsuited to other purposes; and there must be such a system of taxation as will encourage, instead of virtually preventing, the growing of timber on a large scale as a money crop. If the crop does not pay, it will not be produced; and pay it cannot unless relieved of heavy taxes until its maturity and marketing, at which time it should contribute its portion of public revenues.—Atlanta (Ga.) Journal.

Bugs Boost Lumber Cost

Insects and diseases directly affect the price of lumber, for they cut down the supply by tens of thousands of trees every year, says the Forestry Primer of the American Tree association. The trees, like children, must be kept in good health.

Story for the Children

By Mary Graham Bonner

Alfred, the horse, was talking to the other horses in the stable. They had all been saying how much better every one, people or horses, or anyone or anything behaved, if they were well treated.

But Alfred had an adventure to tell the others.

"Once," he said, "I got out of my stall, and at first I had a glorious run."

"I went and went and I went."

"But after awhile I became very tired and then I began to try to find my way back home."

"I couldn't do it, and oh, how dreadfully worried I was! I didn't know what to do."

"I tried to find my home, and I kept going and going, without reaching it."

"After awhile a nice farmer met me and said:

"'Whoo,' in such a kindly voice that I stopped."

"He took me into his stable and gave me fine oats, and then he took me back home, for he had heard I had run away."

The other horses neighed that they were glad the horse had a happy ending.

"Yes," said Alfred, "and I was so glad to get home that I never wandered off again."

"But I have another story to tell you of the time I took a little boy for a drive for the first time."

"He had never been driving before, and my master heard that he had been sick, and that driving would be good for him, only he had no horse to drive."

"And I was the horse which pulled him along as he took his first drive."

"Never will I forget how he loved the countryside and the flowers, just coming out, and he thought I was so wonderful."

"Think of having taken a child for a drive who had never been before!"

"Wonderful," said the other horses, and then they added:

"He Took Me into His Stable."

"You have such nice stories to tell us of the days before you came here."

"Ah, I love it here, and I'd never want to leave."

And the other horses said the same. Then one of the other horses told of the time, not so far off, when he had belonged to a city driver.

"One day," he said, "my master was inside delivering some laundry."

"Well, you know I thought it would be fun to run away—not far off, but just have a little excitement.

"I dashed along the street, but you know I was discouraged by the speed with which the automobiles went, and I didn't go so very quickly."

"A policeman jumped up and stopped me and quieted me—though I wasn't much excited, and then when my owner came along, he said:

"'I guess it takes the old-fashioned horse to be much of a runaway.'"

"And you know that was just the way I felt about it."

So the horses neighed and told stories and ate hay and had a very nice time of it.

FOUNDATION PATTERN IS HANDY

The Pattern is Carefully Fitted at All Important Points.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To avoid repeating the fitting process on every garment one makes, it is a good idea to make a guide or foundation pattern for each member of the family one sews for. A woman can fit her own foundation pattern, but it is better to have help. A simple commercial pattern with normal shoulder seam, high neck line, and set-in sleeves is bought for the purpose, and a dress-length of good quality, but inexpensive material, such as unbleached muslin, cambric, or gingham. A gingham with a conspicuous check is very satisfactory because the lengthwise and crosswise threads of the goods can be plainly seen. The foundation pattern is cut from this material as if one were going to make a dress, the bureau of home economics explains. In a bulletin on fitting dresses and blouses. It is basted up and carefully fitted at all the important points—shoulders, underarms, bust, hips, armholes, sleeve, and skirt length, and any necessary alterations are made on it. The hem is turned at the right distance from the floor, the neck line and armholes are correctly trimmed, darts are made in their proper places, and the points are marked at which pockets, belt-line, hips, or kick-plais should come. Care should be taken that the seams are uniform in width.

The foundation pattern is then cut down, the center front and center back. One half is used as a pattern, the other as a baste for designing. Unless the two sides are noticeably different, due to irregularities in the figure. In that case both sides should be saved. The right and left being plainly marked. All markings are made permanent by stitching with thread of contrasting color, which makes the pattern reversible. All pieces should be stitched one-eighth inch from the edge to prevent stretching.

The pattern is now available for designing almost any style of dress and many blouses. It is especially useful in sewing for a member of the family who at any time is away from home.

His friend cast a speculative glance over the vehicle before replying.

Things for the Family Table

By NELLIE MAXWELL

"Hope and courage and sympathy and trust are great producers, and they are great factors in a man's doing his duty, as well as his having the joy of achievement."

It is wise in planning the menus for a day to have the food principles fairly distributed.

To know the relative value of different foods and different dishes will keep one from serving one day a menu

In which all dishes are high in fuel value and the next day a menu lacking in nutritive dishes. Concentrated foods, such as fats and proteins, should be combined with starchy or carbohydrate, which serve to dilute them. Cheese, a highly concentrated food, should be served with rice, macaroni, bread or potatoes. Candy, another valuable food, should be eaten at the close of a meal, then the amount eaten will not be so great.

Soups served at the beginning of a meal are of two kinds—stimulating and nourishing. The thin clear soups are good to prepare the stomach for heartier foods. A cream soup will often form the main dish of the meal.

Salads are most valuable summer or winter. They stimulate the appetite and supply the vitamins which are so necessary for health. A rich salad, such as chicken, may take the place of meat, or when a fruit salad is served the dessert may be omitted.

There is a reason for ending the meal with some sweet. We need it, and when taken then we will not eat more than is good for us. A light dessert should follow a heavy meal and a richer one may add to a light meal.

Nutrition.

With the proper surveillance of school nurse the undernourished child is taken in hand to correct such condition. It is appalling to read the surveys of different cities; with all the assistance that is already given to overcome defects in nutrition, there is still a large per cent handicapped.

The poorer districts are by no means the worst, for there one may naturally look for undernourished children, but it is one of the tragedies of life that many well-to-do, even wealthy homes, contain sickly, badly fed children, whose care is often left to unintelligent servants who do not care in the least about the child's welfare or development. The giving of sweets to a child to keep him quiet is a common practice. Sweets will often make a child fat, but all fat is not healthy.

It is not a tremendously expensive proceeding to feed a child properly and scientifically; it does not cost money, but it does cost time for thought and careful buying and preparing of simple wholesome foods that a child needs for growth and health. The ordinary amount spent for food will not be increased by intelligent buying.

Those who are able to take their children to the greatest child specialist in the country today will be advised as follows as to the kind of a diet:

Give him milk, the best grade you can afford and at least one whole quart each day. When the child refuses milk, give it to him in cream soups, sauce, on vegetables, custards, junkies and in cottage cheese and drinks, such as cocoa. Use diplomacy and finesse, but get him to swallow it in some way.

Meat and eggs are to be served several times a week. Milk supplies all the protein needed for the child with an occasional meal of eggs and meat.

The meats to serve for a child are well-cooked beef, chicken, lamb, mutton, fish and soft-cooked eggs are also good.

Such desserts as custards, sponge cake, bread puddings, figs, dates, and fruits are the best of desserts for the growing child.

finished with a cunningly devised leather band.

The use of woolen weaves for handbags is one that is increasing in favor. No do they always match the material of the costume. Some of the new bags are made of loose-woven worsted materials, the patterning being gaily modernistic.

As to the newer tweeds which top the fabric list for daytime and utility wear, they are luxuriously soft and daintily light in weight. They express two trends which are characteristic of the season's woolen novelties, namely, looseness of weave and a Jacquard patterning which is of modernistic inspiration. The plain loose wove tweeds give preference to the combination of several shades or several colors, as the case may be, so that an illusive tinge all-over repeat patterning is indicated. The Jacquards, on the other hand, are of compelling patterning, defining cubes, angles and triangles which are frankly modernistic both as to color and design.

The swagger thing for fall is the tweed ensemble which features brown with orange or with any of the new reddish beige tones. Among models which attract because of their new and startling color effects is an ensemble which employs a fine small-patterned tweed in cinnamon brown for the skirt and jacket, the jumper being of vivid burnt orange ensemble.

FRUIT FILLING FOR CAKE

Select one dozen large stewed prunes and remove the seeds, allowing them to drain so that practically all of the juice is removed. Also use an equal number of stewed figs or canned figs. Put through a food grinder, using the coarse knife. Add enough confectioner's sugar to make a nice paste for spreading. This makes a good filling for chocolate cake, with the plain white icing used on the top of the cake.

Flavor of Curry With Eggs

The flavor of curry goes especially well with eggs. A small quantity of curry powder, combined with other vegetable flavors and a dash of tabasco gives piquancy to a sauce served with hard-cooked eggs. The bureau of home economics gives these directions for preparing a dish of curried eggs with rice for lunch or supper:

- 6 eggs, hard cooked, cut in quarters
- 2 cups cooked rice
- 4 tablespoons butter
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon chopped green
- pepper
- 2 tablespoons chopped onions
- 2 tablespoons chopped celery
- 1 teaspoon curry
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 drops tabasco

Melt the butter in a skillet, add the onion, green pepper, and celery and cook for 2 or 3 minutes. Stir into this the seasoning and the flour, mix well, and add the cold milk. Cook for 3 or 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Make a bed of the flaky cooked rice on a hot platter. Arrange the cut eggs over it, and pour the hot sauce over the eggs and rice. Sprinkle the top with chopped parsley and serve at once.

Coat and Handbag of Tweed

Maine Election Notable for Size of G. O. P. Majorities; Smith Nails a Lie.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
THOSE who still place faith in the old saying "As Maine goes, so goes the nation" are now free to place their bets on Hoover; for the Republican ticket won a sweeping victory in the state election last week. However, no one had doubted that the G. O. P. would elect its candidates, and the significant features were the size of their majorities and the total vote. The former was a surprise to even the most optimistic Republicans. William T. Gardner defeated E. C. Moran, Jr., for the governorship by nearly 85,000 votes; and Senator Frederick Hale's majority over Herbert E. Holmes was approximately 80,000. The Republican majority was more than double what it was four years ago and four times what it was in 1926. The total vote was about 35,000 less than it was in the last Presidential year, but analysis shows that the loss was mostly sustained by the Democrats. The Republicans had made an especial effort to get out their vote and the Democrats were frankly apathetic. The Republicans elected all four of the state's congressmen.

Naturally, Republican National Chairman Work rejoiced in the Maine outcome and found in it presage for a Hoover victory, asserting that the campaign in the Pine Tree state was waged largely on national issues. On the other hand, Democratic Chairman Rastob, saw no omen in the result, saying his party had made no special effort there and no national issues were decided by the Maine election. He was "surprised the Republicans did not pull a larger vote."

The records show that since 1840, in 15 out of 22 Presidential election years, the result in the Maine state election has correctly foretold the outcome of the Presidential election.

TEXAS provided an exciting incident in the campaign when its state Democratic convention opened in Dallas. A motion that only those delegates loyal to Al Smith be seated started the rumpus. The anti-Smith crowd, led by former Governor Colquitt, promptly bolted, and as they retired from the hall there were innumerable fist fights. The regulars proceeded with their business, "cordially endorsing" the national platform and Smith and in the same set of resolutions calling upon "all officers of the government and all members of the party" to rally for the "destruction of the traffic in alcoholic liquors."

The bolters, about 300 in number, held a separate meeting and adopted resolutions characterizing the nomination of Smith as an unfortunate error. They left the direction of their future activities in the hands of an executive committee headed by Alvin S. Moody of Houston.

WHILE Senator Robinson, Democratic Vice Presidential candidate, was making a whirlwind speaking tour through the South, Governor Smith gave such time as he could spare from state duties to conferences with party leaders and to further refutation of charges made in the deplorable "whispering campaign." Informed that he was accused, in a letter, of being "disgracefully intoxicated" at the New York state fair at Syracuse, he issued a formal denial of the charge, which denial was backed up by the statements of men who were close to him all during the day of his visit to the fair. One of his defenders was one of the governor's political opponents, State Senator Fearon of Syracuse. Others included the newspaper correspondents who accompanied the governor. The letter was said to have been written by a woman of Syracuse to one in Parkersburg, W. Va. Republican Chairman Work has strongly repudiated the whispering campaign as an offense to common decency equally harmful to the candidate maligned and to his opponent. He says Hoover is also the object of scurrilous and false attacks. The Post Office department has taken steps to stop the sending of the vicious statements through the mails. In one instance a lot of post cards were confiscated.

Plans were completed for Governor Smith's tour of a fortnight, September 19-30, during which he speaks in six western cities.

HERBERT HOOVER had a long conference with President Coolidge immediately after the latter's return to Washington, and while there was no announcement of the part the President would take in the campaign, it was said he probably would make one or more addresses in New England. Mr. Hoover is now directing the organization work of his campaign. The radio part is already in operation. The candidate's first real campaign speech was ready for delivery at Newark, N. J., Monday.

National officers of the national Woman's party met in Washington and decided to support Hoover because, they stated, his position is in advance of that of other Presidential candidates. They said they opposed Smith "because he opposes equal rights for women in industry and has had a long record of opposition to equal industrial opportunity for women and has actively sponsored laws handicapping women in earning their livelihood."

WHEN Hoover, praising the Kellogg anti-war treaty, hailed it as one of the great achievements of the Republican administration, Secretary Kellogg showed signs of displeasure for above all things he does not want the pact dragged into partisan politics pending action on it by the senate. Said he: "I do not think the treaty for the renunciation of war should be made a party issue in either the campaign or the senate, and I cannot conceive that it will be." Reservations to the treaty, by the senate, will be vigorously opposed by both Mr. Kellogg and Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. They believe there is nothing in the treaty that imperils the Monroe Doctrine or other vital interests of the United States.

Despite the fact that most of the nations of the world have accepted the Kellogg pact, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur believes the United States should go right ahead with its navy construction program. He said as much after conferences with naval officials in which both the Kellogg treaty and the mysterious Anglo-French agreement were discussed. Other officials said the Navy department would concentrate on senate approval of the sixteen-ship bill and later would try for the adoption of a large building program.

FORMAL negotiations looking toward complete evacuation of the Rhineland and final settlement of reparations were opened in Geneva by the representatives of Germany, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. The first discussions of Germany's plan were promising, although an earlier speech by Premier Briand, attacking Chancellor Mueller's statements of German fulfillment of her pledges, had created some doubt of ultimate agreement. London dispatches said Great Britain and France were in accord on these points:

First, perfect co-operation among the allies.

Second, implicit recognition of the fact that the occupation must continue unless the Germans give other guarantees for the payment of the reparations.

Third, a political guarantee by Germany that the plan for the union with Austria will not be pursued.

Fourth, the consent of Germany to the control of the demilitarized zone of the Rhineland for 25 years.

Fifth, the Germans to take the initiative by presenting concrete proposals.

GENERAL Primo de Rivera, premier of Spain, uncovered another plot against his dictatorship and caused the arrest of several hundred revolutionists who were hatching a coup d'etat. The dictator in a statement to the press said those taken into custody were politicians and others who "live and prosper by provoking disorders" and declared the condition of public order in Spain could not be better in all the country. Another dictator has been offered a crown, but probably will decline it. This one is Marshal Pilsudsky, who was offered the crown of the "Polish empire" by 1,500 delegates of the monarchists of that country. He already has refused a like honor several times.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES was elected a member of the permanent court of international justice by the League of Nations to succeed John Bassett Moore, resigned. Mr. Hughes accepted, saying he deemed it a privilege to serve on the court. GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING celebrated his sixty-eighth birthday last Thursday and Secretary of War Davis took the occasion to present to the famous soldier four foreign decorations conferred upon him since the World war. These were the Order of the White Lion, class 1, conferred by the President of Czechoslovakia; a medal commemorating the first centenary of the battle of Ayacucho, conferred by the President of Peru; knight commander's cross of the Order of Virtuti Militari, conferred by the President of Poland; and a Venezuelan "Bust of Liberator," two lapel buttons and an album of photographs conferred by the President of Venezuela.

JOHN COOLIDGE, son of the President and Mrs. Coolidge, has obtained a position as a clerk in the general offices of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad in New Haven, Conn., and last week began earning his own living. William Wood, secret service operative, will continue to act as bodyguard of the young man until March 4. Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of the governor of Connecticut, returning from a motor trip through Europe, admitted to reporters that she was likely to become John Coolidge's bride sometime next winter though not before Christmas.

EARL ROWLAND of Kansas won first place in class A of the aerial derby across the continent from New York to Los Angeles. He drove a Cessna monoplane and was in the air 26 hours and 30 minutes. Most of the planes in all three classes made the transcontinental trip safely, and the finish was a great sight for the crowds gathered at the Los Angeles field for the air races and exhibition.

Of the nine planes that started in the nonstop race across the continent not one completed the trip except that piloted by Art Goebel, and that noted aviator had been forced to stop at Prescott, Ariz. The contest was therefore declared no race.

One of the aviators taking part in the recent exhibition was Lieut. J. J. Williams of the army. He crashed early in the week and died of his injuries, whereupon Col. Charles Lindbergh reported at army headquarters there and asked to be assigned to take the place of his dead friend. Thereafter the "three musketeers" in little Boeing fighters were led by Lindy in their maneuvers.

HIGHLY successful tests of the new submarine safety device called the "lung" were held off the coast of Maryland. Three navy divers went down 155 feet in a diving bell, and, equipped with the "lung," crawled out and made their way to the surface safely and with no discomfort. It was made known that several scores of these devices are being constructed and their final test, that of being used for actual escape from a flooded submarine in 225 feet of water, will be made next month by the same divers. The naval officers expressed a belief that last week's successful test will result in the equipping of all of the 78 submarines in the United States navy with "lungs" for each member of the crew to be placed in the escape compartments of the undersea craft.

Grant, Colfax and Bernalillo counties, respectively, led all other counties of the state of New Mexico in assessed valuation for 1928, according to records of the state tax commission, while Bernalillo county led the state in automobile valuation.

The feasibility of a five-year or longer cooperative program for the extermination of predatory animals, Stanley P. Young of Washington, senior biologist for the United States department of agriculture, stated in Albuquerque, is under investigation, and a report will be made to the next session of congress.

Concern over a report that Columbus, N. M., was to be sold for taxes has been dissipated by news of a gold strike. Columbus for the last several days has had more excitement than at any time since the United States army used its site as a base for the Mexican punitive expedition to protect American soil from Pancho Villa's band. Gold has been unearthed in the Tres Hermanas mountains by J. M. Crump, and an assay, made at El Paso, Tex., shows, Crump says, that the first ore assayed $743.50 to the ton on the minimum load, and $1,872 for the best load.

No commercial advertising hereafter shall be permitted on any Arizona highway subject to the control of the State Highway Commission, this to include any directional signs or sign that imitates any official marker. No sign of any sort may be placed on the highway without prior permit from the department. There may be erection of signs by civic bodies and municipalities under certain limitations of location, those to be not more than three feet in diameter and carrying official numbers. No signs will be allowed at curves or dangerous points. It is noted that the regulations will have no effect upon billboard advertising on the ground that may be outside the road right-of-way, but will serve to displace a multitude of alleged directional and distance signs, erected merely for business advertisement.

The industrial employment survey report, just issued from the office of Quince Record, district director of the U. S. employment service of the U. S. Department of Labor at Denver, states that an upward trend is noted in all lines of industrial activity and employment in Arizona, more especially reflected in agriculture, horticulture, building, general construction and highway construction, with indication for continued expansion during fall months. Harvesting of a 200,000-acre cotton crop in the Salt River, Casa Grande, Yuma and Tucson districts, is in full swing. Thinning of the fall lettuce crop in the Salt River Valley will be under way on or about Oct. 1, and will require hundreds of additional workers. The dairy industry is expanding. Metal mining in the Bisbee, Globe, Jerome, Ajo and Tombstone districts continues normally active. Supply of unskilled metal mine labor is adequate. There continues to exist, however, a moderate shortage of first-class drift miners in the Jerome metal mining district. Building and general construction continues exceptionally active. Supply of construction labor barely equals the demand. A normal condition exists in practically all lines of industry and employment in New Mexico. Expansion is noted in building and general construction lines, agriculture, oil, highway construction and metal mining. Due to a gradual influx of migratory workers, the supply of labor is adequate to meet demands in all lines. The agricultural situation is promising for abundant crops. Harvesting of the cotton crop is causing demand for several hundred additional male and female cotton pickers in southeastern sections of state. Manufacturing plants are reported operating on normal summer schedules. A considerable amount of new metal mine construction and development work is under way in numerous new and old metal mining camps. The supply of metal mine labor is adequate. Coal mines are gradually increasing operations and forces. Coal mine labor supply is ample. Building is increasing. The supply of highway construction and maintenance labor is adequate in state to meet immediate demands. There is a considerable amount of oil prospecting work under way in several districts.

Forty registered Hereford bulls, purchased in Canada, Texas, were delivered to the Mesquero Indian reservation recently, making a total of 76 registered animals imported in the last few months. Fred Crosby, superintendent of the cattle ranges, is preparing for the annual cattle roundup and it is expected that 2,500 calves will be branded.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. E. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, 1201 S. Western Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.)

Lesson for September 23

THE CHRISTIAN BASIS OF TOTAL ABSTINENCE

Temperance Lesson.
LESSON TEXT—1 Cor. 8:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let no man seek his own but every man another's wealth.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping Others to Keep God's Law.
GENUINE TOPIC—Helping Others to Keep God's Law.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Abstinence for the Sake of Others.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Standard of Social Conduct.

In this section of Scripture Paul is bringing to view the great doctrine of Christian liberty and forbearance. The occasion of this teaching was the uncertainty as to the right attitude for Christians to take toward things sacrificed unto idols.

I. The Idol is Nothing (vv. 1-6). Intelligent people know that an idol is nothing but a piece of timber or stone. They know that there is only one God, the creator and sustainer of all things. Since an idol has no real existence, the eating of such meat is a matter of indifference. It should be borne in mind that the principle stated in this section has reference to things which are in themselves wrong. Strictly speaking, therefore, this teaching cannot be applied to indulgence in intoxicating liquors. To do so would be a perversion of Paul's meaning. The indulgence in intoxicating liquors, the use of tobacco, etc., are things wrong in themselves because they injure the human body. The holding of stock in certain corporations and having partnership in illegal business are things that are wrong in themselves. In applying this principle to the use of intoxicating liquors, this should be borne in mind. The principle can be applied only to things which are in themselves harmful.

II. Not All Christians Have Maturity of Discernment (vv. 7, 8). Uninstructed Christians were still possessed of the conviction that an idol was really a living and powerful being. For those persons to sit down to a social meal where such meat was eaten would be to expose themselves to the liability of being brought again under bondage to their sins.

III. The Christian's Behavior in Such Cases (vv. 9-13).

1. He should take heed lest his liberty become a stumbling block (v. 9).
2. Liberty must be curtailed for the sake of the weak brother (vv. 10, 11).
3. To disregard this is to sin against our brethren (v. 13).

To disregard our brother's interest is to sin against Christ, for it is sinning against the one for whom Christ died. To place a stumbling block in the way of the believer is a terrible crime. In enforcing this, three important considerations are brought out:
(1) The fate of the weak brother (v. 11).
(2) The relation of the man to his sinner. He is his brother, for he is a Christian, because the brother is a member of Christ's body.
(3) What Christ did for the "weak brother."

Christ died for him; therefore to sin against a brother is to sin against Christ, because the brother is a member of Christ's body.

IV. The Teaching Illustrated in Paul's Life (vv. 14-15).
At Corinth Paul worked with his own hands less his mission to them should be misjudged. While vigorously contending for his right to ask for support of them, he refrained from asking for money of his own labors and the donations which he received from the Macedonian churches he was able to leave them, but had not been chargeable to them.

V. The Teaching Applied (10:23-25).

1. Christians may indulge in lawful things only as they are expedient and unto edification (v. 23).
2. Let no man seek his own, but each his neighbor's good (v. 24).
The principle of love is unselfishness.
3. Whether therefore ye eat or drink, do all to the glory of God (v. 31).
The Christian is not at liberty to do that upon which he could not ask God's blessing.
4. Give no occasion for anyone to stumble (v. 32).
We should so live that no one can ever say that we have been the occasion of his downfall.
5. Follow the example of Jesus Christ (11:1).
Christ gave up all for the sake of others.

The Road of Good Works

The road of good works is blocked by our past sins, and it is sure to be further blocked by our future sins; we ought, therefore, to rejoice that God has commanded us to the open road of faith.—Spurgeon.

Thank God

Thank God for a gospel that sings itself into our daily lives, and that bids us sing away sorrow and care! Sin has no such hymns.—Clarence Eberman.

SEES HOOVER REAL FRIEND OF FARMER

His Record Appeals to Head of Equity Union.

Leroy Melton of Greenville, Ill., for many years head of the Farmers' Equity union, in a letter to Republican headquarters in New York, stated that he is giving his personal support to Herbert Hoover in the belief that he is the only man who will make a genuine effort to help the farmer. "I am doing this," he wrote, "on his great record as a public servant and a constructive statesman. I agree with him in his position supporting the Constitution, including the Eighteenth amendment and I also believe he will assist the farmers of this country to work out their own salvation through co-operative marketing. I believe he will be fair to every class in this country."

The Farmers' Equity union is one of the strongest agricultural organizations in the country. It has more than 500 chartered locals, capitalized at from $5,000 to $100,000 each, in Texas, Oklahoma and many middle western states. It holds seats on the board of trade of Chicago and of Kansas City.

The organization operates grain elevators, coal and lumber yards and maintains a co-operative system of marketing that has been highly effective. Mr. Melton has been president of the union practically since it came into existence in 1910.

Why Let Democrats Tinker With Tariff?

Only once in our history has the country changed political administration in an era of prosperity, except when the change was brought about by a party division. The single instance was that of 1892, when the country turned back to Cleveland. The change brought commercial disaster in its train. Notwithstanding the tremendous burden of taxation laid upon the people by the great war, we have experienced six years of the most remarkable prosperity. This, too, in the face of several great strikes and disasters, which for a time tied up one or more great industries. It may be true that a part of this prosperity is due to conditions in other parts of the world, but is more largely due to the wise administration of the government.

If the people as a whole are prosperous, why should they want to change and run the risk of bringing about a commercial crisis? Long years of experience have established the fact that a protective tariff has always been the backbone of American prosperity. The Republican party promises to retain that feature in any revision that may be made. The history of the Democratic party is that it has always opposed the protective theory. What assurance can it offer the people now that it will go back on its fixed beliefs?

Letters Show Growth of Hoover Sentiment

Thousands of letters arriving daily at the office of the Republican National committee, 15 E. 41st street, New York, give one of the most complete views of the extent of Hoover sentiment in all of the states that has been secured by the national organization.

Instead of reports upon isolated incidents made by traveling workers, the letters, coming from editors, business men, farmers and those in every other walk of life, represent the observations of men and women who have spent their lifetime in their communities and therefore are fully in touch with local sentiment.

To sum up the letters, there are few "bad" spots in the country, and, to the contrary, a growing Hoover sentiment is expressed in regions which have been overwhelmingly Democratic.

The farm problem will not be settled until it is settled permanently and rightly. Dependence on the motive and abilities of Herbert Hoover offers the safest course for the farmers of the nation.

Extraordinary Support

"Even if Governor Smith's position (on prohibition) were tenable," says Josephus Daniels brightly, upon recovering from his first shock, "the proposal of amending the Eighteenth amendment is one that is now so impossible of accomplishment that it is nothing more than the expression of a personal opinion." In other words, the former secretary of the navy and one time admiring disciple of William Jennings Bryan, undertakes to comfort his dry soul by contending that the issue which his Presidential candidate is trying to make paramount is merely homesome and doesn't actually mean a thing. "Support" and endorsement of that sort ought to make Alfred glow with pleasure from head to toe.—Detroit Free Press.

Smith's Charges Recoil

In our judgment, Governor Smith's prohibition policy, while vigorous and specific, is premature and based on insufficient facts. The governor echoes certain partisan arguments made familiar at Houston, notably an indictment of Republican corruption and a denial of Coolidge economy. As the actual head of Tammany hall and the most extravagant governor the state of New York has ever seen, he might better have left those charges unspoken.—New York Herald Tribune.

Any Woman Can Look Stylish

By MAE MARTIN

Most stylish-looking women are just "good managers." They know simple ways to make last season's things conform to this season's styles. Thousands of them have learned how easily they can transform a dress, or blouse, or coat by the quick magic of home tinting or dyeing. Anyone can do this successfully with true, fadeless Diamond Dyes. The "know-how" is in the dye. They don't streak or spot like inferior dyes. New, fashionable tints appear like magic right over the out-of-style or faded colors. Only Diamond Dyes produce perfect results. Insist on them and save disappointment.

My new 64-page illustrated book, "Color Craft," gives hundreds of money-saving hints for renewing clothes and draperies. It's Free. Write for it now, to Mae Martin, Dept. 12-143, Diamond Dyes, Burlington, Vermont.

Gathering It In

The Dempsey-Tunney fight, with the enormous sums that went alike to winner and loser, led Mayor Duval of Indianapolis, to say at a luncheon: "Two men were talking about the fight."
"Great boxes, Jack and Gene," said the first man.
"Hoovers?" said the other. "They're not just simple boxes."
"Humph. What are they, then?"
"Why, cash-boxes."

Recent Discoveries

Among recent discoveries is a chestnut-sided robin, men who build their homes of human skulls in the mountains of Formosa, Chinese fish which can climb steep bank banks by means of their tails and fins and can travel on land.
