GOV. SMITH IS BETTER FITTED TO HEAD NATION

Eminent Republican Banker Calls Him Master of Science of Government.

HOOVER LACKS DIPLOMACY AND COURAGE, HE SAYS

Jerome Davis Greene, Rockefeller Associate, One of Many Prominent Figures Who Repudiate Party's Candidate.

Describing Governor Smith as probably the greatest living master of the science of governmental reorganization, Jerome Davis Greene, the banker who is associated with John D. Rockefeller in the management of the vast Rockefeller business and philanthropic interests, has declared in a letter to the editor of the New York Times that he will support the Democratic candidate.

Mr. Greene, a Republican and Congressionalist, is a director in many great corporations and an officer and member of many scientific organizations. In his letter, which was not solicited by the newspaper nor by any political organization, he comments that Hoover's supporters urge his election on the ground of his administrative ability. "That, he asserts, is an obvious fallacy.

Pointing out that whatever success Hoover achieved as a food administrator was due, not to courage or diplomacy, but to the almost autocratic power with which he had been invested, Mr. Greene continues:

"The candid and gallant stand which Governor Smith has taken upon the subject of prohibition by Federal enactment as an instrument of social reform, and the outstanding importance of the issue thus presented, has somewhat obscured in the public mind his legitimate claim to preference over Mr. Hoover in respect to the one qualification which is urged, with perhaps more emphasis and greater sincerity than any other, in support of Mr. Hoover.

Science of Government
"Many, especially those who live outside the State of New York, are perhaps unaware of the fact, known to all students of recent advances in the science of governmental organization in this country, that there is probably no man in public life more familiar with the theory and recent improved practice of that science than the present Governor of the State of New York.

"Governor Smith has made a record of which the people of his State are justly proud. Moreover, it is a record made by an avowed political partisan who has subordinated his political partisanship in those matters to the higher call of loyal citizenship and enlightened statesmanship. In so doing, he has more than once found himself a willing and welcome collaborator with like-minded men whose political partisanship was hostile to his own.

"If all this be of Tammany, let us have more of it."

Philanthropist Supports Governor
Another eminent financial figure who has added his name to the long list of leading Republicans to declare for Governor Smith, is E. S. Harkness, capitalist and philanthropist, and one of the largest holders of railroad securities in America. Sending a $10,000 contribution to the Smith campaign fund, Mr. Harkness wrote:

"Any nation that can produce a real leader is to be congratulated and I cannot but feel that Governor Smith has demonstrated to the people of this country that he possesses rare qualities of leadership."
Among other wealthy and prominent Republicans who have recently bolted

ARIZONA'S GREATEST PROBLEM IS THE COLORADO RIVER

The most vital question which concerns the people of Arizona today is the development of the Colorado river.

In the long-drawn-out and bitter struggle to preserve and protect her interests in this stream, Arizona has been fighting for the greatest material stake ever contended for by the people of a western state.

Governor George W. P. Hunt has an active and consistent record of defense of Arizona's interests in the Colorado river.

The record of his Republican opponent for governor of Arizona consists of his efforts in the Arizona legislature to have that body ratify the Santa Fe Compact without any reservation whatsoever, and his threat to the Sixth legislature that unless it ratified the compact a Republican legislature would ratify it.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the ratification by Arizona of the Santa Fe Compact would have sacrificed the tremendously valuable interests of Arizona in the Colorado river.

Outside of his legislative record, Mr. Phillips has taken no active part in the controversy over the Colorado river.

From a comparison of their records on this question of such great importance to the state, it should not be difficult for the people of Arizona to choose the man whom they will entrust with leadership in the fight.

DOMESTIC ART EXHIBIT AT FAIR TO BE BIGGEST IN HISTORY

Phoenix, Oct. 4.—A greatly enlarged domestic art department, featuring interesting and varied products of the home, will greet visitors to the 24th annual Arizona State Fair, November 12 to 18, according to J. P. Dillon, secretary of the seven-day exposition.

With increased premium money and the addition of several classes of competition this year, Mrs. W. S. Goddard, who is in charge of the domestic art department, predicted that the exhibits would be far more interesting and much higher in quality than ever before.

It was emphasized that only residents of Arizona could exhibit in the domestic art department.

In addition to this department, there will be 14 big exhibition buildings displaying the finest products of Arizona.

SENATOR HAYDEN TO SPEAK IN PATAGONIA

United States Senator Carl Hayden will speak in Patagonia and Nogales Friday, October 12, it was announced last week. Accompanying Senator Hayden on his trip to this county will be Democratic candidates K. Berry Peterson of Tucson, candidate for railway general; M. A. Murphy, Phoenix, candidate for tax commissioner; Amos A. Betts, candidate for corporation commissioner, and Mrs. Ana Frohmlinger, Phoenix, candidate for state auditor.

A policeman stopped Miss Shame of Philadelphia recently and ordered her to go home and put on stockings, and she obeyed.

Her party to support Smith, are Charles W. Clark, mine owner, and son of the late Senator William A. Clark of Montana, who has voted the Republican ticket since 1896; Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., who is actively identified with the affairs of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and Thomas Gerald Condon, railroad builder with vast holdings in the coal and iron regions.

TOURING WEST

RUNNING MATE of Governor Smith in the Presidential campaign, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, is heading a drive by 250 well-known speakers to elect the Democratic ticket.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL NOTES

(Genevieve Kestor, Editor.)

The Fourth grade had a perfect lesson today in spelling.

A new pupil entered the Fourth grade Monday, which makes our enrollment 30 in that grade.

The Fifth and Sixth grade girls are each making a dress for themselves in the sewing class. Judging from their work, many of these girls will be remodeling clothes in some large "fashion house" within the next few years.

Several pupils in the Fifth and Sixth grades have been having perfect spelling scores each day for the last six weeks, as follows: Eolise Altemerano, Martha Valenzuela, Myrtle Hicks, Ernesta Quiroga, Virginia St. Louis, Ernesto Altamarino and Rita Arizquez.

There are now 150 children attending school.

Carmen Simolin has finished her dress in sewing and many others are nearing completion.

The Eighth grade is planning to have a Halloween program.

PATAGONIA ROAD TO BE PUT IN BETTER CONDITION

R. A. Campbell, R. C. Blabon and Senator Andy Betwy returned Tuesday from a trip to Phoenix to consult the state highway commission concerning the badly-needed repair work on the strip of highway passing through town. They requested the highway department to pave the strip as the best guarantee against damage by flood waters from the mountains.

The state engineer stated that such a project was not possible at this time, owing to the fact that there was no sufficient money in the budget for the work. However, he said money would be sent here within a few days to put the road in better condition.

JIM PARKER PAROLED

James Parker, sentenced to serve from two to seven years in the state penitentiary for manslaughter was released last week after serving seven months of his sentence. He was sentenced for shooting Urey Ford of Tucson. Mr. Parker has many relatives living in Santa Cruz county.

Vote For Smith Is Worth $50 An Acre to Farmer, Says Republican Banker

KANKAKEE, Ill.—"Fifty dollars per acre for your vote!"

"That slogan in big black type is appearing in local newspapers at the head of full page advertisements which are being paid for by F. G. Snow, local farmer and banker."

Mr. Snow, one of the leading Republicans in the community, points out that farm lands on the average are worth $50 less an acre than they were seven years ago and calls upon all Republicans to repudiate Hoover and the Coolidge policies. He said:

"Though I have always been a strong Republican, I would be a second Benedict Arnold to the people who patronize my bank if I support this year. The prayer of the farmer today is not for rain but for the election of 'Al' Smith."

"As the head of a large bank in the farming district I daily come into contact with numerous farmers who face ruinous conditions. The advertisement is my contribution to defeat Herbert Hoover, the farmer's arch enemy and the very man who was responsible for maintaining the fixed prices on wheat and hogs, to the disadvantage of the farmer, during the war."

"I have had many requests from Indiana, Iowa, Tennessee, Kansas, South Dakota, Nebraska and Montana for permission to reprint it."

In the advertisement, Mr. Snow said: "Mr. Farmer, in pre-war days every acre of good land was worth from $25 to $75 more per acre than it is worth today, and for what reason? Farmers are now paying a tariff-protected price for nearly everything they buy, and because of a small surplus, are compelled to sell what they produce at prices unprotected by the tariff, for their tariff is absolutely ineffective because of a small surplus."

"Nearly four years ago Mr. Coolidge was elected President on a platform containing a strong farmers' plank. Since his election he has done nothing to relieve the depressed agricultural conditions, but has twice vetoed a farm-aid McNary-Haugen bill which was backed by a united agriculture and twice approved by Congress."

"I do not care whether you are Catholic or Protestant, wet or dry, the fact remains that the steady confiscation of farm lands is still going on to an alarming extent. I claim that a vote against Hoover is a vote for a 50 average increase in the price of the farmer's land, and a chance to return to prosperity for the tenant farmer as well."

PROMINENT MERCHANTS OF NOGALES TO KEEP OPEN TILL 9 P. M. SATURDAYS

Most of the leading stores of Nogales will keep their places of business open until 9 o'clock Saturday nights to accommodate their rural customers. This decision was reached after a careful analysis of the business from out of town, said a prominent business man of the border city to the editor of The Patagonian this week.

It is quite true that by keeping their stores open until 9 o'clock Saturday nights they are doing a great favor to those people residing in the upper part of the county who find it impossible to get to Nogales on other than Saturday afternoons. They are glad to know that they still have the opportunity to do their shopping after they have finished their weekly duties and have the only time in the week open to them to do their shopping considered by the merchants of Nogales.

Persons living at some distance from the county seat rarely visit the city except on Saturday, and many drive a long way there to do their weekly or monthly shopping. Many favorable comments have been expressed over the fact that the Saturday night shopping opportunity is still open to them.

The merchants who will continue to favor their Saturday night shoppers have nearly everything the buying public needs, so long trips will not be made in vain.

F. D. ROOSEVELT NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Oct. 2.—Franklin D. Roosevelt today agreed to set aside his personal preference to aid Governor Smith in his campaign for the presidency by accepting the Democratic nomination for governor of New York state.

Maintaining his opposition virtually until the moment when the state convention at Rochester nominated him by acclamation, the former assistant secretary of the navy said in a message of acceptance that he would consent to become a candidate if he could "help the cause of our beloved governor," although "every personal and family consideration is against it."

Before the convention acted, the Democratic leader, who already had launched upon a vigorous speaking campaign in behalf of the national ticket, had telegraphed a press association in Atlanta that he could not become a candidate for the New York executive chair. His message was in reply to one asking for his position in view of the demand of convention leaders that he be nominated.

Mr. Roosevelt was nominated by acclamation by the Democratic state convention.

E. P. GIL CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF MEXICO WITHOUT OPPOSITION

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25.—Emilio Portes Gil tonight was elected provisional president of Mexico by a joint session of the senate and chamber of deputies. He received 277 votes, being unanimously elected. He will take office on December 1, at the expiration of the term of President Calles, in place of the assassinated elected president, General Alvaro Obregon.

Congress ordered that a popular election for president be held on the third Sunday of November, 1929. The regular president then elected will succeed Emilio Portes Gil on February 5, 1930.

DEMOCRATIC HEADQUARTERS

Phoenix, Oct. 3.—State Democratic headquarters have been established in Phoenix at 309 West Monroe street. The telephone number is 32229. All communications should be sent to the new address of the committee.

"And Julia won't be alone, either, now," said I brilliantly. "She has her uncle—"

"She wouldn't be alone long, anyhow," observed Nancy, demurely.

A faint flush mounted to Peter's serene brow, but he offered no rebuke. So we all smiled with highly spontaneous cheerfulness, and he observed modestly:

"Well, I'm not likely to start anything I can't finish!"

Nancy snorted.

But here came a fortunate interruption. Outside, a motor rolled up to the curb, and in walked Mr. Darrow, wearing a portentous expression; something important was impending, to bring him to the shop at this hour. Being one of the employees he spoke to, I said, careful, however, not to be too forward or unconventional:

"Good morning."

He admitted my existence, but not Peter's nor Nancy's.

"Good morning, Mr. Darrow," said Nancy, sweetly. "Isn't it lovely out so early?"

"Delightful, indeed," murmured Mr. Darrow, with slightly uncertain cordiality.

"You don't know me," said Nancy. "I am Miss Burton. Miss Wilkes is kindly giving me special training to become Miss Fuller's private secretary. This is my brother."

"Ah-h-h!" observed Darrow. "Back are you, Burton?"

"Yes, sir, assented Peter. Then, emboldened by our having survived Nancy's coup, he added: "I got a full set of the broadsides, Mr. Darrow; at a bargain."

"Ah!" observed Mr. Darrow. "You might come and tell me about it."

"He's a perfect dear, but he needs a lot of help!" sighed Nancy, viewing the retreating forms of the two gentlemen.

"Mr. Darrow needs help?"

"All men do, but I was referring to Peter. He's going to marry Julia."

"Is he?"

"Well, can't you see that? Is it always necessary to say everything right out? Aren't you glad?"

"If it proves to be true, I shall be very glad."

"Especially because you helped make it happen. Of course I did most of it; but you certainly helped."

"Do tell me how you did most of it, Nancy!" I begged.

"Well," began Nancy, with intense satisfaction, "the first night we were at Normandy terrace, the most terrible noise woke me up. It was Peter singing to his sleep; he does that sometimes, when he's very tired. I knew that trip to Richmond and the fuss about Malvina and his worry about me had just worn him out, and I certainly felt the pangs of remorse. But if he had gone on, Ernesto would have put us on the street; so I went to the keyhole and moaned like a banshee until he turned over very loud and was quiet. But that was not before I had made out what he was singing: a love song, and a slushy one at that! Peter—fancy! Then first thing next morning, he nearly swooned when he saw the paper, and tried to explain it by just mentioning casually that 'the young lady who fainted in the shop yesterday lives downstairs!'"

"You thought there was more to it than that?"

"Rather, when I heard that that young lady wanted Virginia books, that her grandfather collected them, that he was attacked in the law-book alcove; especially when I remembered that my old friend Brandon Tower had been after a book in Peter's suitcase which was an old Virginia law book. I couldn't relate all these facts I admit, until dear Daisy Abbott helped me. She caught me in the hall one day, and clattered lovingly, and asked me quite incidentally how Peter had met Miss Grosvenor before."

"She had detective aspirations. I'll tell you about them, some time."

"She had matrimonial aspirations, too. I fixed them. I'll tell you how some time."

"I told Julia about my etopemont so she would never be surprised at hearing of it indirectly, or think it was at all important, or that I cared a bit for him, ever. And she said I was a good sister, and rewarded me."

But here even Nancy had to stop a minute. Mr. Case arrived as vanguard of the staff, greeting us affably and passing on to his office with all the pleasant courtesy which had never deserted him during that past trying week, except once when old associations had been too poignantly aroused.

"Nice, notta?" murmured Nancy. "Some would say dull, but I say good."

"Correct," I affirmed. "How did Julia reward you?"

"She lent me this to bring here today," answered Nancy.

From her pocket she drew a small copper plaque, which she laid on my desk just as Captain Ashland, who had the moment before stepped out of a taxi, appeared in the doorway. One look, and with a shriek I bounded toward him, brandishing the plaque.

"The original!" I cried. "Colfax's own copperplate!"

He seized it, stared at it speechless. "I say!" he ejaculated finally. "Yes, here's the circled serpent quite in form . . . and the ship . . . and the pillars . . . and the instruments. Where did you get this?"

"I got it!" announced Nancy, loud and clear; "I got it out of the little sewing-table in Julia Grosvenor's . . . I mean Julia Harrington's . . . house."

I glanced nervously at the captain, sorry for the allusion, in his presence, to the Grosvenor mystery; but to my amazement, he looked more interested than ever. I stammered:

"Out of the sewing-table? But it was a dummy; it didn't open—"

"That's what everybody thought," returned Nancy, ignoring the captain temporarily, for it was no time to explain to him about sewing-tables; "but Julia's mother must have discovered otherwise. And I suspected that table all along, myself; it was so curious and striking. Julia thinks her mother probably hid the copperplate there to safeguard her copy of the bookplate—that is, so that her copy would never be shown up by some engraved one being struck from the copperplate; she must have realized that, with everybody thinking the table was a dummy, the copperplate would almost certainly never be disturbed, especially if she hid the key, too. I tried the sewing table yesterday after I'd tried Julia's boxes, and given her the chance she wanted to talk to you and Peter. And there was this copperplate, all carefully packed into the little drawer, so it would never rattle, with this paper!"

Dramatically she produced an old, stained, yellow sheet. Bending over it, she handed over it, the captain and I deciphered the following legend:

"To Dr. Charles Grosvenor
"from
"Hugh Colfax,
"this bookplate, in profound gratitude,
"in his peaceful home, may he recall
"the great days of the Macedonian
"and the Esmeralda."

This was pure Greek to me, but the captain started back in amazed recollection.

"The Esmeralda?" he cried. "Why, that ship's one of the most famous prizes in England's nava. history! She was captured off Callao by the British fleet that went to the aid of the revolutionists of Chile in 1820. We've got it at last, I believe! Colfax's son must have been there!"

"He was!" I cried. "Never mind how I know; that can wait. But afterward he fell a victim to yellow fever and his life was saved by Doctor Grosvenor, then an American naval surgeon. Though just how he happened to be on the spot I don't know—"

"I do!" broke in Nancy, determinedly. "Julia told me. That ship on the bookplate is the Macedonian, the doctor's ship, which was on a voyage and lying off Callao at the time of the action between the Esmeralda and the British fleet."

"But," I objected—I had been examining the copperplate closely again—"the Macedonian was a very famous American ship, Nancy, and Captain Ashland says this is a British-built frigate— Oh, my gosh!"

"Just too late I perceived that my wonderful memory had not been quite wonderful enough. The sincerity of the bookplate!" sighed Nancy, picking up the copper plaque regretfully.

"I haven't," said the captain.

"How so?" she asked.

"Because I've really just began on account of it. It had great influence, you see, in forming my decision to stay here."

"Here?"

"Yes, I'm staying indefinitely. My uncle always urged me to come, but my first morning here I wasn't very keen on it, I must admit. I felt put off a bit; safer in the war, what? But then you—and Miss Fuller, of course—drew my attention to—the bookplate, and so I've decided to stay and help in the business on this side. I telephoned my uncle my decision last night and I must be off now to see him, for he said he'd be here early to welcome me. I believe I'll have time to learn the business and do some other things I want to, now that Almy says he's through with me."

"Mr. Almy is through with you?" I ejaculated. "Why, what do you mean, Captain Ashland? You weren't helping solve the Grosvenor mystery, all this time? And I never knew it!"

"Helping?" repeated the captain, dazedly. "I say, were you in it, too? I had no idea!"

"Oh, I didn't do much," I demurred feebly.

"Nor I! Just made a nuisance of myself soothing my uncle, and begging for tea, and insisting on an original for that copy of the bookplate, and what not."

"See here," said I, severely; "how long has Mr. Almy known, anyhow, that that book was an object of interest to the Grosvenor connection?"

The captain chuckled delightedly.

"Good joke on all of us, what? Why, you know, his interest in the case started when he heard Professor Harrington was among those present; of course, he knew about him personally, but he also remembered that the police had been called in when Harrington's library was robbed, some years back. So he reads that case over, to refresh his mind; and then, when he walks into my uncle's office, last Monday noon, there's one of the very books that was stolen, lying on the desk! And then, with all the Grosvenor clan rushing hither and yon for Virginians, the rest was easy."

"Oh, was it?" said I.

"Of course it was, when he had so much help from experts!"

"Mr. Almy," observed Nancy, irrelevantly, "told me one day to take care of my fine brother. So I did."

"We were puppets in his hands!" I murmured.

"Positive puppets," beamed the captain. "Going up, are you, Miss Burton? Do tell me how you took care of your brother!"

So young England and young America departed, each with a prize; or perhaps America had two, for Nancy bore off the Colfax copperplate, "Miss Fuller, you see the paper this morn'g?" A dark hand held out Daily Snapshots. "Bookshop Mystery," ran the largest caption; "Clew's Denouement," above an enlarged reproduction of the spring-land.

"Is that there a clew, Miss Fuller?" inquired Ulysses, indicating the instrument.

"Yes, Ulysses." With sudden determination I resolved to ask him one question; he seemed communicative, for him. "Have you ever seen Miss Harrington, too? I mean, as well as her grandfather?"

"No," didn't know her "I all," denied Ulysses. "We-all knew Professor Harrington, of course."

"You mean, down in Virginia."

Fortune favored the bold. Ulysses proffered a single confidence:

"Yes; my old father, he lived with the Harringtons. They had elegant big white house all full of red-satin furniture. I loves grand furniture." Then he was gone with his Snapshots, leaving me with my thoughts and catalogue proof, which lasted me until late that afternoon, when, true to form, Mr. Roberts interrupted on the telephone.

"Are you busy?"

"No," I answered, also true to form.

Then I was kindly to come to Mr. Darrow's office. Not once before in nine years had I been summoned to the Presence. I wondered why Mr. Darrow should take the trouble to fire personally, but marched into his cherrywood headquarters and faced him and Mr. Roberts with all the composure I could muster.

"Ah! Miss Fuller?" said Mr. Darrow, as if he wasn't quite sure. "Sit down. Now, in reference to that bookplate— You know what I mean?"

"I think so," I murmured.

"Miss Fuller showed considerable intelligence in that connection," interrupted Mr. Roberts.

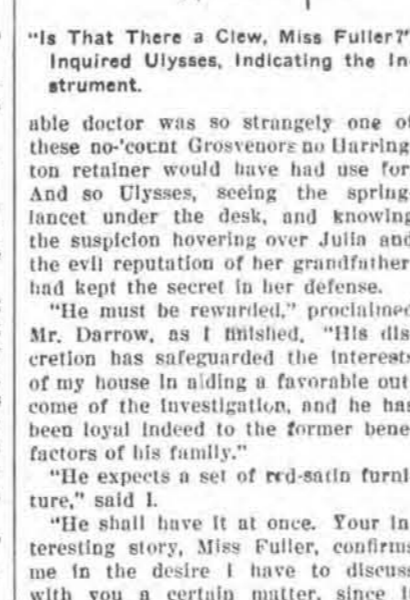

"All Almy's efforts seem to have been crowned with success," said Mr. Darrow, hastily. "I have been glad to exert my poor influence to obtain for him the vacation he has long desired to spend with his worthy aged parents on their picturesque Maine island. I would not see one who has exerted himself in behalf of the cause of justice and my house remain unrewarded."

"Then don't forget Ulysses!" said I.

And, swearing both my astonished hearers to secrecy, I outlined Ulysses' epic of devotion, for such his whole course of conduct during the previous week had to be accounted. Without analyzing too closely the ethical aspects of his delay in identifying Mr. Grosvenor, it could be seen that it had won a certain advantage for Julia, by giving Ulysses time to sound Mr. Case and win his friendship for Mary Grosvenor's daughter. For he knew that Julia was also the daughter of Miles Harrington, without doubt. If the Harringtons had been his father's "family," if, thirty-odd years before, he had seen the professor, then a boy, down in Virginia, he must have known Miles, too; and an old colored nurse, long years a Grosvenor retainer, who had tended both Mary Grosvenor and her little daughter, had been sent home to Virginia for giving that child information that was to be kept from her. Far more important information, confided by that dying mother to her old nurse, must have gone the rounds of the log cabins in Elliot's Crossing, and found its way north again to one who secretly knew the gray-haired professor as more than one of the details of life in Darrow's.

And finally, Ulysses, seeing the spring-land under my desk that Thursday, had undoubtedly recognized it in some way. Exactly how, would never be known. Yet it might be safely assumed that his old father, with the interest in bodily his characteristic of his race and class, had told Ulysses over and over again of the fine young naval surgeon who once, long ago, by means of a strange little brass box full of knives, had cured him of pleurisy. And it was the more likely that Ulysses had heard this story frequently because this admiral able doctor was so strangely one of these no-count Grosvenors no Harrington retainer would have had use for. And so Ulysses, seeing the spring-land under the desk, and knowing the reputation of her grandfather, had kept the secret in her defense.

"Is That There a Clew, Miss Fuller?" Inquired Ulysses, indicating the instrument.

"He must be rewarded," proclaimed Mr. Darrow, as I finished. "His discretion has safeguarded the interests of my house in aiding a favorable outcome of the investigation, and he has been loyal indeed to the former benefactors of his family."

"He expects a set of red-satin furniture," said I.

"He shall have it at once. Your interesting story, Miss Fuller, confirms me in the desire I have to discuss with you a certain matter, since it shows you have won esteem in widely varied classes of society—an asset, indeed. By the way, you have heard of the gratifying offer I have received for Claribel's Notes?"

"Not yet."

"Magistrate Judges will give six hundred dollars for it. I let him have it for that figure; he desires it for a special purpose. He was particularly attracted to it by the significance of the substitute bookplate which you so astutely inserted, that bearing the motto 'Invictus,' most appropriate for his political purpose. You understand me?"

"Quite."

"I think, Miss Fuller, you do ordinary things rather well."

"Thank you."

"Now, with my nephew's most gratifying decision to remain here on my account, we shall unquestionably be in a position to increase our international business through his connection. He believes, accordingly, that it would be well if a reliable and experienced person could be sent to England very shortly for six months, to observe the conduct of Ashland's business, so that we might get their point of view as he is getting ours. Now, how do you feel about it? You understand me?"

"Captain Ashland's judgment is excellent, I am sure," I replied candidly, though nearly suffocating from heart failure.

"Ah! It interests you?"

"It sounds most interesting."

"Well, Miss Fuller, I am well impressed on the whole with your conduct in important matters during this past week. I am wondering if I could trust you with something larger."

"I should be so glad," I murmured humbly.

"I do not wish to startle you; but the fact is, I should like you to undertake this mission. I believe you have enough intelligence to serve my interests well."

"I'll say," said I, "you ought to believe it!"

"I assure you, Miss Fuller," said Mr. Darrow, soothingly, "you have my entire confidence!"

SMITH WELL FITTED FOR HIGH POSITION

Campaign Has Shown Candidate's Qualities.

No man in America is better fitted to be President than Gov. Alfred E. Smith, according to the Baltimore Sun. Contrasting the characters of the Democratic and Republican candidates, the Sun declares it will support Smith, and gives the following reasons for doing so:

"The campaign has gone on long enough to make the issues clear. It has revealed the mettle of the candidates and the ideas for which they stand. The Sun believes that, in the face of the facts now plain to every eye, Governor Smith is the better man, and should be elected.

"Mr. Hoover's virtues, both as a private citizen and as a public official, are not to be gainsaid. But all of the good qualities that he shows are in Governor Smith, too, and in addition Governor Smith has many that he lacks.

"One of them is frankness. Smith is the frankest man heard of in American public life since Grover Cleveland. He seems to be incapable of evasion, of dissembling, of begging questions. When he comes to a conclusion he states it in plain words and welcomes candid criticism of it.

"He meets opponents openly and fairly and wins their respect. With this frankness goes courage. When he thinks he is right he sticks bravely to his guns and no lure of political advantage can move him.

"Mr. Hoover, since he took to party politics, has shown no such candor and resolution. No one knew what he thought about any major issue until the nomination was safely in his hands. His campaign was a campaign of policy, of compromise, of tricks and evasions. He had nothing to say about prohibition, though the country talked of little else. He was silent about the gross corruption that surrounded him. For seven long years in Washington he served silently as an unprotesting associate of scoundrels in high places, and when he began his struggle for nomination he turned for aid to even worse scoundrels. Today, it appears, he is on both sides of all the principal questions before the people."

Slur on Marchers in Farm Protest Parade

The representatives of the farmers who went to Kansas City last June, and there had the door of the Republican national convention slammed in their faces, now are being represented as underworld characters, according to Frank W. Murphy, chairman of the legislative committee of the Corn Belt Federation of Farm Organizations, and for many years a leader in the fight for the McNary-Haugen bill.

He shows a clipping from the Long Beach (Calif.) Press-Telegram, in which Mrs. Charles E. Van de Water, a member of the California delegation, is quoted as saying:

"It is an undoubted fact that the 50 farmers in the farm protest parade at the convention were men from the Kansas City stock yards, many of whom were known to have former police records."

A W. Ricker, secretary of the Corn Belt federation, calls Mrs. Van de Water's attention to the fact that there were 3,000 farmers, including himself instead of 50, and that it was Senator Nye who started them marching through the streets chanting, "We won't vote for Hoover."

Workers Are for Smith

Major George L. Berry of Tennessee, president of the Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America and chairman of the labor bureau of the Democratic national committee, predicts that Smith and Robinson will poll the largest industrial vote ever received by a Presidential ticket.

"There is a very general appreciation of the fact that the Democratic nominees have proven their interest in the workers' cause," he said. "And at the same time are in harmony with America's business ethics, which means peace, prosperity and good will."

Real Nullification

President Wilson vetoed the Volstead act, Senator Robinson says, and his integrity and purpose were never questioned. "Can it be," he inquires, "that because Governor Smith believes that, without referring to the old evils of the saloon, temperance and respect for law can be promoted through changes in the existing system, he is a nullificationist and an enemy of the Constitution? Such arguments impeach the intelligence of their authors." Nullification, he points out, lies in the refusal or willful failure to enforce.—Chicago Journal.

Leader the Nation Needs

The Democratic party under Governor Smith's guidance leads the way to a constructive solution of a problem that has sapped the vitality of our government. His representation of the economic aspects of the various government problems treated in his message evidences extraordinary grasp of the underlying principles of government. He is ideally equipped to assume the leadership of the nation at a time when a change of leadership is imperative.

Rid of Constipation. Improved Both Health and Looks

"I suffered from stomach and bowel trouble for a number of years. I finally got so bad that I had no life or energy left, and felt that there was no help for me. I was completely worn out all the time, had a distressed, haggard look on my face. My mind was dull, my eyes blurred, and I was unable to take an interest in anything. I commented using Milk's Emulsion in May. It occurred to me that the best way to let you see the wonderful improvement Milk's Emulsion had made in my health and appearance, would be to send you the picture that I happened to have taken a few weeks before I started using your Milk's Emulsion, and to have another picture taken now, and send both to you."

"I am still taking your Milk's Emulsion and improving each day. I know I would have been in my grave had it not been for your Emulsion. I love to take it. It is so pleasant and agreeable."

"I only weighed 108 pounds when I began to use Milk's Emulsion, and now I weigh 138 pounds. It has cleared up my complexion, made my eyes bright and a difference in my looks, as you will see by the two pictures. I don't look like the same woman. To my mind it is Nature's beautifier."

"I try to get everyone that I meet to take Milk's Emulsion as it is the most wonderful medicine in the world." Yours truly, MISS SARAH KATE KNIGHT, 722 Anderson St., Bristol, Tenn.

Hot Oil Employed to Wipe Out Mosquitoes

Hot fuel oil, sprayed against the shores of the lakes in the Canal zone, is a most efficacious weapon against malaria-laden mosquitoes. This oil, a big factor in the fight which is culminating in certain abolition of the insect, has destroyed breeding places in the Pedro Miguel and Gatun lakes.

The method used to spray the oil necessitates the use of a rowboat carrying a tank containing 150 gallons of oil, and a crew of three men. One man rows, one works a hand pump and the other handles the spray nozzle. The hot oil is sprayed on the shore line as fast as the boat can be propelled. This surface filming has been found positive and complete.

Wind action and wavelets carry the oil into every nook and cranny, even to a considerable distance from the point of application. A rigid inspection follows every oiling to determine if it has been done thoroughly.

Elsewhere than in the lake areas, mosquito breeding is controlled chiefly by training of streams and by draining and filling.

Cat's Varied Diet

On a farm in Hinsdale, Mass., says the Boston Globe, lives a cat that is positively omnivorous. Like most other felines she eats meat, fish and milk, but her diet does not stop there, however. When the lady of the house was surprised to find bits of cucumber on the ground near the kitchen door, she watched the cat for a while. Finally she saw kitty go to the garden, break off a good-sized cucumber and carry it to the house, where she broke it open and ate it. Since that time the cat's appetite has been tested with various other vegetables and it responds heartily.

Dwellers in High Places

The highest inhabited place in the world is a mining district in Chile, 18,480 feet above sea level; next, a mining district in Peru, 15,200 feet; then a monastery in Tibet, 15,200 feet. The highest home of man in the United States is the Pikes Peak observatory in Colorado, over 14,000 feet above sea level.

Tolerance is never forced.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush elongated kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Lesson for October 7

PAUL IN EPHEBUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:8-20.

GOLDEN TEXT—We are his workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Bravery Against a Crowd.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Bravery Against a Crowd.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Outgrowing Superstition.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Growing Together in Christ.

1. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv. 8-10).

1. In the synagogue (v. 8).

Paul's custom was to go to the Jews first with the gospel, though they were his inveterate enemies. His preaching here was characterized by:

(1) Boldness. He knew that God had sent him and therefore that he was backed by divine authority. This should characterize every Christian worker.

(2) Argument. The gospel message is in accord with the highest reason.

(3) Persuasion. It is not enough that the minister come boldly with a reasonable message. It must be accompanied with persuasion. "Knowing the terror of the Lord, we persuade men."

(4) The message should have definite content.

It was concerning the kingdom of God, Paul's supreme theme was salvation through Christ.

2. In the schoolhouse of Tyrannus (vv. 9, 10).

Paul's earnest scriptural and persuasive preaching only hardened the hearts of the Jews, even causing them to speak evil openly of this way of salvation by faith in Christ. It was for this reason that Paul separated the disciples from them and retired to the schoolhouse of Tyrannus, where he continued his ministry for two years with glorious results.

3. God Working Miracles by Paul (vv. 11-16).

Ephesus was noted for its wonder workers, therefore if Paul's ministry was to be successful God must in an extraordinary way put His seal upon the work. So wonderful was the divine power manifested that even handkerchiefs or aprons brought from Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits. Everywhere the supremacy of the Lord Jesus Christ was recognized. Seeing the marvelous power operating through Paul, certain strolling Jews who went about the country practicing the magical arts at the expense of their poor unfortunate fellows, a detour to use his name "Jesus" in their incantations. Knowing that the connection with Christ was not real on the part of these Jews, the use of His name by them only enraged the evil spirit who struck them and overcame them. The name of Jesus is only powerful on the believers' lips.

4. A Glorious Revival at Ephesus (vv. 17-41).

1. Fear fell upon all (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits created impressions favorable to Christianity.

2. It brought to the front those who professed faith in Christ, while not living right lives (v. 18). They believed but had not broken from sin. Great blessing would come to the church if some awakening could come to those whose lives are not in keeping with their profession and cause them to openly confess and make a new start.

3. Gave up the practice of Black Arts (v. 19).

This means forms of jugglery by use of charms and magical words. All such are in opposition to the will of God, therefore no one can have fellowship with God and practice them. They proved the genuineness of their actions by publicly burning their books.

4. The uproar of the silversmiths at Ephesus (vv. 23-41).

1. The occasion (vv. 23, 24).

This was the power of the gospel in destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows.

2. The method (vv. 25-29).

Demetrius, a leading business man, called a meeting and stated that because of such people turning from idolatry business conditions were threatened and that the market for their wares was weakening. He stated, "This our craft is in danger." The world is willing to tolerate any kind of religion or moral awakening so long as it does not interfere with its business or manner of life. He further said, "The temple of the great goddess Diana will be destroyed." He became quite religious when he saw that business was being interfered with.

THE EARLIEST PICTURE OF THE LANDING OF COLUMBUS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

OCTOBER 12 is a day which Americans set aside for honoring the memory of the Genoese sailor who is almost universally credited with being the "discoverer" of the New World and in twenty-three states of the Union—Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont and Washington—Columbus day is a legal holiday. Most of us know something about Columbus, for the story of his life with the record of his dauntless ambition which drove him on in spite of many disappointments and discouragements until success came to him, only to end in poverty and failure, is one of the most romantic and at the same time one of the most tragic in the annals of mankind. But what of the history-making event itself, the anniversary of which we are about to celebrate again? How clear a picture do we have of what took place on that October day, 430 years ago? For all of the millions of words that have been written about Christopher Columbus and his voyages of discovery in the past four centuries, there is none which paints the scene more vividly than do the words of an American historian who wrote of it more than a hundred years ago, and modern scholarship has found but little to correct in the record as it is set down by Washington Irving in his "Life and Voyages of Columbus."

Here is the story of that historic day as Irving tells it: It was on Friday morning the 12th of October, that Columbus first beheld the New World. As the day dawned he saw before him a level island, several leagues in extent, and covered with trees like a continual orchard. Though apparently uncultivated, it was populous, for the inhabitants were seen issuing from all parts of the woods, running to the shore. They were perfectly naked, and as they stood gazing at the ships, appeared by their attitudes and gestures to be lost in astonishment. Columbus made signals for the ships to cast anchor, and the boats to be manned and armed. He entered his own boat, richly attired in scarlet, and hiding the royal standard, while Martin Alonso Pinzon, and Vicente Yanez, his brother, put off in company in their boats, each with a banner of the enterprise emblazoned with a green cross, having on either side the letters P. and Y. the initials of the Castilian monarchs, Ferdinand and Isabella, surmounted by crowns. As he approached the shore, Columbus, who was disposed for all kinds of agreeable impressions, was delighted with the purity and suavity of the atmosphere, the crystal transparency of the sea, and the extraordinary beauty of the vegetation. He beheld, also, fruits of an unknown kind upon the trees which overhung the shores. On landing he threw himself on his knees, kissed the earth, and returned thanks to God with tears of joy. His example was followed by the rest, whose hearts indeed overflowed with the same feelings of gratitude. Columbus then rising, drew his sword, displayed the royal standard, and assembling round him the two captains, with Rodrigo de Escobedo, notary of the armament, Rodrigo Sanchez, and the rest who had landed, he took solemn possession in the name of the Castilian sovereigns, giving the island the name of San Salvador. Having complied with the requisite forms and ceremonies, he called upon all present to take the oath of obedience to him as admiral and viceroy, representing the persons of the sovereigns.

The feelings of the crew now burst forth in the most extravagant transports. They had recently considered themselves devoted men, hurrying forward to destruction; they now looked upon themselves as favorites of fortune, and gave themselves up to the most unbounded joy. They thronged around the admiral with overflowing zeal, some embracing him, others kissing his hands. Those who had been most cautious and turbulent during the voyage were now most devoted and enthusiastic. Some begged favors of him, as if he already had wealth and honors in his gift. Many subject spirits, who had outraged him by their insolence, now cringed at his feet, begging pardon for all the trouble they had caused him and promising the strictest obedience for the future.

The natives of the island, when, at the dawn of day, they had beheld the ships hovering on their coast, had supposed them monsters which had issued from the deep during the night. They retreated to the beach and watched their movements with awful anxiety. Their veering about, apparently without effort, and the shifting and furling of their sails, resembling huge wings, excited them with astonishment. When they beheld their boats approach the shore, and a number of strange beings clad in glittering steel, or talismans of various kinds, standing upon the beach, they fled in affright to the woods. Finding, however, that there was no attempt to pursue or molest them, they gradually recovered from their terror, and approached the Spaniards with great awe; frequently prostrating themselves on the earth, and making signs of adoration. During the ceremonies of taking possession, they remained gazing in timid admiration at the complexion, the beards, the shining armor, and splendid dress of the Spaniards. The admiral particularly attracted their attention, from his commanding height, his air of authority, his dress of scarlet, and the deference which was paid him by his companions; all which pointed him out to be the commander. When they had still further recovered from their fears, they approached the Spaniards, touched their beards, and examined their hands and faces, admiring their whiteness. Columbus was pleased with their gentleness and confident simplicity, and suffered their scrutiny with perfect acquiescence, winning them by his benignity. They now supposed that the ships had sailed out of the crystal firmament which bounded their horizon, or had descended from above on their ample wings, and that these marvelous beings were inhabitants of the skies.

The natives of the island were no less objects of curiosity to the Spaniards, differing as they did, from any race of men they had ever seen. Their appearance gave no promise of either wealth or civilization, for they were entirely naked, and painted with a variety of colors. With some it was confined merely to a part of the face, the nose or around the eyes; with others it extended to the whole body and even to a wild and fantastic appearance. Their complexion was of a tawny or copper hue, and they were entirely destitute of beards. Their hair was not styled like the recently discovered tribes of the African coast, under the same latitude, but straight and coarse, partly cut short above the ears, but some locks were left long behind and falling upon their shoulders. Their features, though obscured and disfigured by paint, were agreeable; they had lofty foreheads and remarkably open eyes. They were of moderate stature and well-shaped, most of them appeared to be under thirty years of age; there was but one female with them, quite young, naked like her companions, but beautifully formed.

A unique engraving made to illustrate an Italian poem by Guiliamo Dato, printed in Florence in 1493, shortly after Columbus' return. From a facsimile of the original in the British Museum, reproduced in the Yale University Press "Pageant of America."

As Columbus supposed himself to have landed on an island and at the extremity of India, he called the natives by the general appellation of Indians, which was universally adopted before the true nature of his discovery was known, and has since been extended to all the aborigines of the New World.

The islanders were friendly and gentle. Their only arms were lances, hardened at the end by fire, or pointed with a flint, or the teeth or bone of a fish. There was no iron to be seen, nor did they appear acquainted with its properties; for, when a drawn sword was presented to them they unguardedly took it by the edge.

Columbus directed among them colored caps, glass beads, hawk's bells, and other trifles, such as the Portuguese were accustomed to trade with among the nations of the gold coast of Africa. They received them eagerly, hung the beads round their necks, and were wonderfully pleased with their novelty, and with the sound of the bells. The Spaniards remained all day on shore, refreshing themselves after their anxious voyage amid the beautiful groves of the island.

The island where Columbus had thus, for the first time, set his foot upon the New World was called by the natives Guanahani. It still retains the name of San Salvador, which he gave it, though called by the English Cat Island. The light which he had seen the evening previous to his making land may have been on Watling's Island, which lies a few leagues to the east of San Salvador, is one of the great cluster of the Lucayos or Bahama Islands, which stretch southeast and northwest, from the coast of Florida to Hispaniola.

GRIDIRON SPORT VERY EXPENSIVE

Missouri Tigers' Equipment to Cost $100 a Man.

It cost the University of Missouri athletic department $100 per man to fully equip the members of the Tiger varsity for competition this fall. It was disclosed, following a final check of all new equipment received for the coming football campaign. The cost of the complete outfits, much higher than in any previous year, is based upon the various equipment necessary, including wet and dry weather outfits.

Gwinn Henry's desire to lighten the burden which his Tigers must carry has resulted in Missouri's discarding the traditional old gold and black sweater for a lighter garment of airplane cloth, which is several pounds lighter than any previous Missouri team has ever worn. The new sweaters are of solid old gold. Should the Tigers encounter snow and cold weather in any of their late November games this fall, they will find among their equipment a heavy sweater, much the same style that they have been compelled to wear from the opening of practice in September until Thanksgiving.

The Tigers are also wearing a new type of shoe. The cleats are much the same as those on other shoes, but the construction and material used is much lighter, yet it gives the proper protection to the feet of the wearer. Complete new outfits of hip and shoulder pads, both lighter in weight than the old ones, are also in use for the first time.

Here is an estimate of what the varsity Tiger candidate drew from the Missouri storehouse:

Doc Gautreau Anxious to Assist Any Rookie

Doc Gautreau, the try insider, formerly with the Boston Braves, but who is now playing in the Eastern league, was a helpful sort of a fellow to rookies breaking into the big leagues. The story is told of the rookie he had with one young man whose hair was not without its luster, but whom Gautreau wanted to see get an even break.

Clamming up to the kid in the hotel lobby one night, Doc broke the ice. "Have you decided what you'd like to do tonight?" he asked the innocent one.

"Well, let's think hard," replied the rookie.

"No, no," snapped the little Gautreau, "let's do something that you can do, too." But it was wasted on the subject at hand.

Harvard-Yale First to Use the Forward Pass

The forward pass first came into being in the year 1908. It was not until the Harvard-Yale game of the season of 1907 that a great forward pass play appeared. In this struggle P. E. Yeeler of Yale led in the first half, lung a long forward pass 30 yards down the field to R. W. Forbes, and, who caught the ball and was down on Harvard's three-yard line. From this point, in a single plunge the ball was carried across the line for a touchdown, the sole and winning touchdown of the day. This spectacular victory intensely popularized the forward pass during the following winter and raised great expectations for its use in 1907.

To Play Navy-California Game at Yankee Stadium

The Yankee stadium, never greatly favored by the larger college elevenses, a site for football games, has just landed one of the greatest plums of the season. Army athletic officers announce that the Stanford-Army game scheduled for New York on December 1 would be played at the home of the Yankees, where a seating capacity of almost 100,000 is in prospect.

The Army, particularly, always has contended that seats at the Yankee stadium were unsold for a football game, although the cadets played Notre Dame there in 1925, 1926 and 1927. Officials of the Polo grounds thought they would get the Army-Stanford game.

RELY ON HOOVER FOR FARM RELIEF

Agriculturists Have Faith in G. O. P. Promises.

"The purchasing power of thirty important agricultural commodities was 93 in July of this year as compared with 69 in 1921, the low point following the World War depression," said Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Jardine in a recent statement.

"This improvement has been gradual and today we find some of our major commodities in a satisfactory condition," Secretary Jardine expressed the belief that a continuance of the Republican policy of protection will bring the farmers safely through their troubles.

"In my recent conferences with farmers throughout the West," the secretary continued, "I found a unanimity of thought that the problems of agriculture can only be met by keeping the Republican party in power, because it has consistently stood for the protection of the American farmer in the domestic market and has made a definite contribution to the recovery of farm prices since the severe depression following the war. The present level of wheat prices gives a clear example of the need for effective legislation to enable farmers to prevent price depressions, due to so-called surplus, through an effective plan of price stabilization. A constructive plan in this direction will receive the support of the Republican administration."

The secretary sees brighter times ahead for the wheat farmer since, he said, in the United States the consumption of wheat is increasing at the rate of 6,000,000 bushels a year. Increases in Europe also are noted, he declared.

Why Women of Indiana Will Vote for Hoover

Because they feel that the prosperity of Indiana homes and the pay checks of Indiana fathers (ests) on the issue of restricted immigration more than any other national issue, Indiana women are going to vote for Herbert Hoover and his restricted immigration policy, according to Mrs. Louise M. Dodson, personal representative of Mrs. Alvin T. Here, vice chairman of the Republican national committee.

"Indiana is a state of farms and of industrial centers," she said. "So the question of immigration is a very vital one to every family in the state. Indiana women tell me they feel that in their state restricted immigration has lightened the load of labor, has raised wages and has increased the prosperity of Indiana homes."

Campaign Thoughts

"This year people are thinking pretty hard over the voting situation," says Postmaster Roland M. Baker of Boston. "They are thinking over the things they have been able to get during the last few years; of the new hampdown, the radio, the new family car; of a lot of things which they have been able to make for the better. No one wants to give up such things. No woman wants to go back to old conditions when a family income had to go wholly for the bare necessities of life. That's why, when thousands upon thousands of voters go into the election booth this year, they'll not be willing to change—they'll vote for Hoover."

Smith Admits Prosperity

Democratic as well as Republican newspapers report that Smith has admitted some of the optimism therein expressed. In his acceptance speech he characterized the national prosperity as a "myth." Henry Morgenthau has persuaded him to admit that the country is generally prosperous, even if, for political purposes, he denies any credit to Republican policies for that condition. Mr. Smith's political education is progressing. But it is too much to expect him to confess his blunder in charging the Republican national administration with extravagance, at least after his warranted rebuke by Senator Smoot he may be more careful in the future.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Smith Shows Weakness

The virtual surrender of the Smith campaign against "wild-sweeping" by some of its strongest and most partisan supporters may have several wholesome consequences. It should prick the pretense of martyrdom, the begging for votes out of sympathy, which constituted the last and least admirable stand of the Smith forces. Every public man has been the object of false gossip. If Governor Smith can be hauled over by an old wives tale he is not the stuff of which Presidents are made.—New York Herald Tribune.

Maine's Vote Significant

At the last referendum on prohibition, taken before the World war, the vote was a stand-off. Maine's hard-stance, in so far as dryness was an issue, was simply an overwhelming rejection of reform under Tammany auspices. Governor Smith has passed his life as part of a political organization in which the saloon was an integral part. When the country is ready to modify the Volstead act it will insist that the task of modification be done by its lifelong enemies.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming. The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headache, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois.

Berlin Business Men Forced to Exercise

Berlin is rapidly becoming a city of fences in the truest sense of the word. Busy squares are being fenced in; low wire fences are being erected between the tracks of the street cars, where they run on a strip of grass in the center of the road; everywhere substantial metal fences are being put up. This is done to force the pedestrian to cross crosswalk squares and thoroughfares only at specially marked corners. The population, however, is not exactly grateful to the authorities for thus taking care of them, for the fences smack too much of the old Prussian discipline. Not infrequently it happens that a man who has to catch a train or who is otherwise in a hurry jumps a fence and thus many a sedate business man is gradually acquiring considerable athletic skill.—Exchange.

Columbus' Story Lost

When Columbus returned to Spain from the New World, he stopped on February 14, 1493, at Santa Maria, one of the islands of the Azores, probably to take water. Four days before this he had encountered a most terrific storm and was convinced that he, his men and his vessels must perish. Now Columbus realized in his heart that he was going back to Spain with news of a discovery second in importance to no other. And when it seemed that his ship would sink at any moment he set to work to make a record of his mighty undertaking, hoping that by some will of the Fates it would not be lost to posterity. So he carefully prepared as complete an account of his marvelous voyage as was possible under the circumstances. He wrote the details of his journey on a stout piece of parchment, wrapped it carefully in a piece of waterproof cloth, then placed it in an ironbound barrel and threw it into the raging ocean. But the Fates were kinder to Columbus than to his account made in a time of stress. Certainly this, the first record of America, written by the brave hand of Columbus, would be the most precious relic in all the chronicles of our country. Alas, that it never has been found! And if I thought there were one chance in a million of finding it I would take my power boat, the First Folio, and cruise in the neighborhood of the Azores forever!—S. W. ## NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Mabel Willebrandt's Hoover Speeches Create a Stir—Help Storm Victims.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MRS. MABEL WILLEBRANDT, assistant attorney general of the United States, was the storm center of the political campaign last week, and if she enjoys publicity she must have had the time of her life for she fairly crowded the candidates themselves off the front page. Mrs. Willebrandt has special charge of the government's legal proceedings against dry law violators and already had incurred the enmity of wet New Yorkers who resented the raiding of night clubs and similar doings. Then she started out to make speeches for Mr. Hoover and one of her first efforts in this line was an address to a big Methodist gathering in Ohio in which she urged that all members of that church should get together to help in the defeat of Al Smith. That gentleman and countless others immediately accused her of attacking him on religious grounds, and there were numerous demands that she be separated from her government job and also that she be taken from the list of accredited Republican speakers. Some of the Hooverites seemed to be fearful lest she become the female Doctor Burchard of the campaign.

Declining to retract or modify any of her utterances, Mrs. Willebrandt asserted she had asked the Methodists to oppose Smith on the ground of his views on prohibition and had made no mention of his religious beliefs. She said Smith himself was trying to "dodge behind his own church," and furthermore that the Democratic candidate was the one who had made prohibition an issue of the campaign. Congressman Walter Newton of Minnesota, chairman of the Republican speakers' bureau, stated that Mrs. Willebrandt was speaking under the auspices of that bureau and that demands for her, from every part of the Middle West, were far more than she could fill.

GOVERNOR SMITH, in the course of his Western tour, spoke at Denver in advocacy of absolute government ownership and control of the natural water power resources of the country and for immediate action in the construction of Boulder canyon dam. Then he moved up through Wyoming to Montana and in Helena devoted most of his address to the responsibility of the Republican party there. The chiefs of the seven Indian tribes of the state made him a member with the name "Leading Star." Turning back toward the east, he passed through North Dakota, where the political situation is peculiarly complicated, and during a brief stop in Bismarck he was christened "Chief Charging Hawk" by the Sioux. Thursday night he spoke in St. Paul on a variety of topics, and next day he entered the Wisconsin tangle. It was believed that in his Milwaukee address he might take up the subject of prohibition, hitherto ignored during the tour. Some days before Senator Blaine of Wisconsin had completed his flop by announcing his intention to vote for Smith. Republican leaders said this amounted to little since Blaine never had been a real Republican.

Senator Borah of Idaho was the big gun of the Republican speaking battery during the week and his loudest explosion was in Kansas City, where in lively fashion he contrasted Smith's record and knowledge of the farm problem with that of Hoover, violently assailed the equalization fee, and blew up the charge that Hoover was responsible for the lowering of the price of wheat during the war. He also defended the Eighteenth amendment and paid his disrespect to Tammany.

WITH the approval of President Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg sent identic notes to Great Britain and France setting forth our government's attitude toward the naval limitation agreement reached by those two nations. The contents of the notes were not made public, but it was understood that they stated the British and French suggestions could not be accepted by the United States as a basis for naval limitation, and pointed out the reason. The American objection to the Anglo-French agreement was tersely expressed by the London Daily News when it said: "It gives Great Britain unlimited small cruisers, France unlimited small submarines, and gives America nothing she wanted. It is almost too crude to be true." Dispatches from London insist there are no secret clauses in the agreement. Some of the French papers are indignant over the American opposition to the pact, saying England and France are held slaves of the United States by their war debts.

WITHOUT having made much progress toward disarmament, the assembly of the League of Nations ended its full session. Almost its last act was to pass a resolution that the disarmament preparatory commission should meet again not later than January 1. No mention was made in it of any plan for a general disarmament conference, and Germany and Hungary refused to vote after Count von Bernstorff had made a bitter speech chiding the league for its slowness and asserting that Germany was helpless and surrounded by heavily armed neighbors. At the final session the earl of Lytton, speaking for India, warned the league that while it was firmly established in Europe, its position in Asia was not assured. Costa Rica, which resigned from the league in 1925, gave notice that it would rejoin.

REHABILITATION is now the great task in Florida and Porto Rico and the job is in the hands of the Red Cross, as is that of feeding the thousands of storm sufferers. An immense sum is being raised by popular subscription for these purposes. In Florida the dead are now estimated to number more than 2,300, most of them in the region about Lake Okechobee, where the dikes broke down and the waters were driven over the land. The exact number never will be known. Reports indicated that the white death list was about 700. The danger of pestilence made it necessary to burn most of the bodies as soon as they were found. The Porto Ricans were reported to be in pitiful state. There were more than 15,000 cases of influenza, and malaria, measles and other diseases prevailed among the refugees. The homeless on the island are stated to number 284,000.

Probably 150 persons, including children, perished when the big Nevada theater in Madrid, Spain, burned. The fire started on the stage and the tragedy closely resembled the burning of the Trocadero theater in Chicago years ago. The flames spread through the business district of the city, destroying many buildings.

Five villages in the state of Conahuilla, Mexico, were swept away by floods and many lives were lost. The Chinese city of Hankow was the scene of a tremendous conflagration that destroyed thousands of buildings and an unknown number of lives. The old Spanish fort of Cabroriz Bajos on a hill above Mellia, Morocco, was demolished by an explosion of the powder magazine and scores of lives were lost.

EMILIO PORTES GIL, secretary of the interior, was elected provisional President of Mexico by a joint session of the senate and chamber of deputies, without opposition. He will take office on December 1, when President Calles' term expires. The congress also ordered that a popular Presidential election should be held on the third Sunday of November, 1929.

Senor Portes Gil will be one of the few Presidents Mexico has ever had of exclusively civilian career, being devoid of any active military experience. Until selected by President Calles for his cabinet he had been governor of Tamaulipas, where he established partial prohibition, suppressed open gambling, and established the first state supported industrial school in Mexico for indigent children. He is known as a friend of the United States. According to a statement issued by him, he will follow the policy of the late President-Elect Alvaro Obregon in the uplift of the peasantry, encouragement of irrigation and extension of schools in the rural districts and mountains. He will work to incorporate the Indians, which form 50 per cent of the population, into the body of the nation. He will go along the lines laid down by President Calles. While organized labor will not be represented in the cabinet, he will, nevertheless, extend a helping hand to the labor unions as part of the government policy to uplift the laboring masses.

INLAND WATERWAYS CORPORATION, in an application filed with the interstate commerce commission, proposes extension of the government barge lines services on the Mississippi and Warrior rivers to all parts of the country through the establishment of joint barge and rail rates and barge and rail through routes. The corporation's application first asks the commission to declare that the services of the barge lines are a public convenience and necessity for expansion of the services to the tributaries of the Mississippi, including the Illinois waterway. Virtually every railroad in the country is named in the part of the application asking the establishment of through routes and joint rates. Joint barge and rail rates 20 per cent lower than all-rail rates between specified points are sought by the corporation, that being the basis on which existing barge and rail rates are generally made.

WHEN Nicaraguans go to the polls on November 4 to elect a President every voter will be marked on the hand with a chemical stain as he casts his ballot in order to prevent repeating. To avoid misunderstandings the election board, headed by Gen. Frank L. McCoy, U. S. A., issued a statement explaining that the chemical was harmless and the stain will disappear within a day or two. An election official said malicious agents are spreading reports among the Indians that the Americans will use a chemical that will poison the voters. Other alleged threats to hinder the voting are rumors that the Americans eat children, and that the Sandhistas will attack the booths, or kill those registering or voting.

MME. GANNA WALSKA, opera singer and the wife of Harold F. McCormick of Chicago, is an American citizen, despite her residence in France, and will have to pay duty on jewelry and personal effects which are said to be valued at about $2,500,000. This ruling was made by Philip Eiting, collector of the port of New York, who told Henry D. Bulkley, attorney for Mademoiselle Walska, that her claim to foreign residence and consequent immunity from duty had been denied. Bulkley immediately made plans to appeal and will, if necessary, carry the matter to the United States Customs court and the Court of Customs Appeal.

Less Poisoning by Liberal Feed

Overgrazing of Pastures Forced Animals to Eat Inferior Plants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Conservative grazing, which assures an abundant supply of nutritious range forage, is an important factor in reducing losses of live stock from poisonous plants, says the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture.

Cause of Losses.
At a recent meeting of the Ince-mountain Live Stock Sanitary association Prof. C. E. Fleming of the University of Nevada pointed out that a great many of the death losses from eating poisonous plants were the result of overgrazing and depletion of the better forage plants, which force the live stock to eat plants of inferior value—including those that are poisonous—in sufficient quantity to prove fatal. Doctor Murray of Salt Lake City also stated that in his opinion many losses on the winter range were due to malnutrition as a result of live stock having to subsist mainly on inferior range plants and having an inadequate forage supply.

Reduce Losses.
In the drought region of southern Arizona it is extremely important, the forest service has found, to graze the range conservatively, since short rainfall may result in the production of a feed supply materially smaller than usual. It was found that by utilizing approximately 50 per cent of the growth of the important palatable plants in the average year and by reserving a part of the summer range, on which the vegetation cures well on the stalk and is excellent winter feed losses could be reduced from the average for that region of about 10 per cent to about 2 to 3 per cent of the animals grazed. Not only is there a direct saving to the live-stock producer from fewer death losses, but the better condition of animals results in a greater production of young and better development with a more satisfactory price. This profit has been made from cattle during the recent trying years where conservative grazing has been practiced, although net losses were shown by those outfits in the region which utilized their range forage too closely.

Get Seed Wheat Free of Objectionable Weeds
Many wheat growers in the Corn Belt, because of the extensive winter killing that occurred in this area last season, will be faced with the necessity this year of providing themselves with seed wheat. Seed may often be obtained from neighboring farmers, but it may sometimes be necessary, or it may appear advisable to bring in seed from greater distances. In any case, says the United States Department of Agriculture, the farmer should assure himself that the wheat seed he buys is free from weed seeds, Garfick, cockle, and cheat or chess are especially objectionable and unfortunately are widely prevalent in many wheat growing areas. When once introduced on a farm they are difficult to eradicate, and grain containing such weed seeds is discounted on the market. A little care in preventing the introduction of noxious weeds in seed wheat may save a lot of trouble.

High Grade Alfalfa Is Marketed Profitably

A much greater quantity of high grade alfalfa could be produced and marketed profitably in the United States, the United States Department of Agriculture believes, if producers would study market demands and make their production and loading practices conform to the market requirements. Hay dealers in all the big alfalfa distributing markets receive each year thousands of orders for high-grade alfalfa, which cannot be filled because of an insufficient quantity of hay of this grade. The chief demand for baled alfalfa is from dairymen, and large numbers of them who now depend largely upon mill feeds as sources of protein would doubtless become buyers of alfalfa if supplies of a high-grade hay were available.

Best Time to Cut Sudan Grass for Crop of Seed

The best time to cut Sudan grass for seed is when most of the heads are fully ripe. At that time many of the early heads will shatter, but as the plant matures abundantly, it is not possible to catch all of the heads at the same stage of maturity.

The seed crop is generally cut with a grain binder and is cured in shocks. Sometimes a corn binder is used when the crop has been planted in rows on rich land and has grown very large and coarse, but ordinarily a grain binder is better. A grain separator will thresh and clean the seed perfectly if the seed is plump and ripe when harvested, but if the seed is cut too early it will be light and some of it will be blown over in the straw. For threshing light seed a clover huller is probably better than a grain separator.

When Pasture Is Short Feed Corn Meal Mash

If the pasture is short, or if it is desirable to fatten the gainers for an early market, a mash composed of corn meal, wheat middlings and ground oats in equal parts by weight, mixed with 5 per cent of meat scraps, will make an excellent feed. Grit and oyster shell should be available as well as a good supply of water.

Mature geese can be handled in a similar manner. Unless they are being confined for some special reason, they will secure most of their living from good range. During the breeding season they should receive a mash similar to that enumerated above.

Lambs that receive a good supply of milk and grow rapidly are apt to carry the highly prized "milk or baby fat" when they reach market weight.

Soy bean hay is considered a very good feed for horses; in fact, it is in a class with alfalfa and clover hay. If the beans are fairly well matured, horses which are merely being maintained need little other feed.

The term "permanent pastures" commonly includes all the land that is left in pasture year after year for a long time. If it is plowed up once in four or five years it can scarcely be included with the permanent pasture land.

Home Gardens Need Proper Fertilizer

Apply Manure at Rate of 10 to 20 Tons Per Acre.

Fertilizer for the typical home garden usually should consist of manure supplemented with a complete vegetable fertilizer or with superphosphate, says F. O. Underwood of the vegetable garden department at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. Manure should be applied at the rate of 10 to 20 tons to an acre, or, on the basis of smaller areas, 50 to 100 pounds to 100 square feet of space.

The supplementary fertilizers should be applied at the rate of two to three pounds to 100 square feet of garden. On rich soils, it is often advisable to not manure too heavily as tomatoes and root crops may produce excessive top growth at the expense of fruit and roots. Under such conditions either superphosphate or a complete commercial garden fertilizer will usually overcome the difficulty. If manure is not available, leaves, lawn clippings and similar plant refuse may be used as a source of humus. These should be supplemented with two to four pounds of a high-grade garden fertilizer for each 100 square feet.

Where the soil is sour, many vegetable benefit by an application of lime. Six pounds of ground limestone or half as much hydrated lime may be used for each 100 square feet where there is an indication that lime is needed. Applications may be made every three or four years. Home gardeners should be cautioned, however, that the organism causing scab of potatoes is more active in limed soils, Professor Underwood says.

One way to avoid this difficulty where lime is needed is to put lime on part of the garden at a time and on this part plant vegetables other than potatoes or beets, he points out.

Egg Marketing Methods Described in Bulletin

Egg marketing in this country is the subject of a revised bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. It covers the conditions under which market eggs are produced and the methods used in marketing them.

The bulletin, prepared by Bob R. Stearns, marketing specialist of the bureau of agricultural economics, emphasizes the fragile, delicate nature of the egg as a food product and the need for proper handling and speed of delivery to insure the consumer the best possible quality.

Eggs are produced for market on specialized poultry farms of the Atlantic and Pacific coast regions, but in greatest volume on the general farms of the Middle West. In those sections they are concentrated at shipping points and transported by express or by refrigerated freight where they go into immediate consumption or are placed in cold storage to take care of seasonal fluctuations in the rate of production. The marketing channels through which the eggs pass vary greatly in their relative complexity, says the author, depending upon how direct the contacts are between producer and consumer or through how many different hands the eggs pass during their journey to market. Constant effort has been made to improve methods of handling and marketing, including better care on the farm, more frequent marketing, more favorable temperatures by the use of chill rooms, better packing materials, better grading and more efficient distribution, all of which is resulting in a gradual raising of the level of quality of eggs reaching consuming markets and a reduction in breakage.

Copies of the publication, Farmers Bulletin No. 1378-P, Marketing Eggs may be obtained free from the Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Best Time to Cut Sudan Grass for Crop of Seed

The best time to cut Sudan grass for seed is when most of the heads are fully ripe. At that time many of the early heads will shatter, but as the plant matures abundantly, it is not possible to catch all of the heads at the same stage of maturity.

Lambs that receive a good supply of milk and grow rapidly are apt to carry the highly prized "milk or baby fat" when they reach market weight.

Soy bean hay is considered a very good feed for horses; in fact, it is in a class with alfalfa and clover hay. If the beans are fairly well matured, horses which are merely being maintained need little other feed.

The term "permanent pastures" commonly includes all the land that is left in pasture year after year for a long time. If it is plowed up once in four or five years it can scarcely be included with the permanent pasture land.

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin? And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsillitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

Fairy Tale for Children

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Good morning, Kangaroo," said a Sparrow who had come to visit the zoo.

There was no answer.

"Did you hear me, or are you a deaf kangaroo," the Sparrow said again.

At last the creature who was questioned turned around.

"I am most certainly not a kangaroo," he said, "and when you said, 'Good morning, Kangaroo,' I did not answer because your question was not addressed to me."

"Well, well, well, but I think you're particular," said the Sparrow.

"Besides, if you're not a kangaroo, what are you?"

"What am I? A Wallaby, of course, a brush-tailed Wallaby."

"Pardon me," said the Sparrow, quite meekly. "Well, how do you do, Mr. Wallaby?"

"Now you've asked me a question I can answer. I am quite well, I thank you."

"I feel better now that I am called by my right name. It is not," he continued, "that I dislike the kangaroo family."

"Far from it. But I do not like to be mistaken for some other creature."

"One likes to be one's self, no matter if one is queer and ugly."

"No one would change places with the peacock."

"It is all very pleasant for the peacock to have a handsome train, but do you suppose that the monkey would change places with him?"

"Not at all. The monkey has a far better time playing and swinging and doing tricks."

"The wart hog is ugly but he wouldn't change places with a peacock. He is used to being a wart hog."

"He wouldn't feel natural or at home in the world if he were anything else, even though he is so hideous."

"I didn't ask for any hideous creature," said the sparrow.

"It's all a part of my talk, though," said the Wallaby. "Poor old wart hog has crooked horns, ugly wrinkles, a few queer hairs and an enormous snout which has a peculiar way of banging down."

"But he is happy. He likes to lie in the sun and dig in the ground like any member of the pig family.

"You see all creatures want to be themselves. He'd be very unhappy as a peacock. He wouldn't know how to act or what to do."

"That is probably so," agreed the Sparrow. The Wallaby was still talking.

"Now you see over there, my

"That is Probably So," Agreed the Sparrow.

kins. He is the Agile Wallaby, because he can move easily and quickly.

"An agile creature means one who is nimble and quick, in case you don't know, Mr. Sparrow!"

"And there is the Wallaroo too—he is a cousin, though he is quite gray in color and is a good deal larger."

Now the Brush-Tailed Wallaby is really like a small kangaroo, and he comes from Australia.

He has a very long tail, short front legs, and longer back ones.

When he had finished making his speech to Mr. Sparrow he sat down upon his hind legs while he put his tail between and sat upon it, letting it come out in front of him, for it is so long.

He is a mixed color of gray and brown and red.

"Well," said the Sparrow, "I must be leaving, but I thank you for teaching me all about your family and the different members of it."

"Always glad to be a teacher of lessons, or a professor," said the Brush-Tailed Wallaby.

"I like to talk about what I know, but I believe that is true of all creatures."

"And people usually teach what they know best—so you see I did the same."

And now the Sparrow was off, for he had seen a few nice crumbs not far away.

Tab on Bookkeeping

Loose-leaf systems of accounting are prohibited in Brazil, where the keeping of books by commercial firms is strongly fiscalized. Only bound ledgers are permitted. Similar laws prevail in other South American republics, some even requiring that every sheet of every ledger be stamped by a government official before the book can be legally used for entries.

CARVING STUFFED SHOULDER OF LAMB

How to Carve Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many people think the meat of a shoulder of lamb is just as tender and quite as delicious in flavor as the leg or any other part. The shoulder is not so easy to carve as the leg, owing to the irregular shape and central position of the shoulder blade. This difficulty about carving is easily met, says the bureau of home economics. Select a shoulder of lamb weighing from three to four pounds. Have the butcher remove all the bones, as well as the felt, or outer papery covering of skin. The bones may be saved for making soup. The shoulder may then be stuffed, and either left flat or rolled. The flat shoulder, as illustrated, is easier to sew up than the rolled, and the pocket holds twice as much stuffing. Either of these completely boned stuffed shoulders can be carved straight through in attractive slices of part meat and part stuffing.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Sprinkle the inside of the pocket with salt and pepper, pile the hot stuffing in lightly, and sew the edges together. Rub salt, pepper, and flour over the outside. If the shoulder has only a very thin fat covering, lay several strips of bacon over the top. Place the roast on a rack in an open pan without water. Sear for 30 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit). If bacon is laid over the roast, shorten the time of searing so as to avoid overbrowning. Reduce the temperature of the oven to 300 degrees Fahrenheit, and cook the meat at this temperature until tender. From 2 1/2 to 3 hours will be required to cook a medium-sized stuffed shoulder at these oven temperatures. Serve hot with brown gravy.

Mint or Watercress Stuffing.
3 cups fine, dry bread crumbs, 3 lbs. chopped leaves, or 1 1/2 cups celery, 1/2 cup fresh mint, finely cut watercress, leaves and stems, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. pepper.

Melt one-half of the butter in a skillet and add the onion and celery. Cook for two minutes and add the mint leaves or the finely cut cress and the other seasonings. Push this mixture to one side of the skillet and in the empty part melt the remaining butter and stir in the bread crumbs. When they have absorbed the butter, mix all the ingredients together. When using watercress allow the liquid which cooks out to evaporate before the buttered bread crumbs are added.

Bananas Baked in Cream Sauce.
Fill a baking dish half full of sliced bananas and sprinkle with a bit of salt. Scald two cups of milk, pour it gradually over the sugar, one beaten egg, and two tablespoons of flour. Mix the flour with one-half cupful of sugar. Cook in a double boiler until well cooked, pour over the bananas and bake until brown.

Banana Fritters.—Prepare the following fritter batter: One cupful of flour sifted with one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of baking powder; add one-half cupful of milk and one well-beaten egg, then one tablespoonful of melted butter. Beat until thoroughly mixed.

Some Good Things to Eat

By NELLIE MAXWELL

Great Mother Woods, stretch forth your arms to me, For I have come again with failing fire, My only strength the urge of my desire, A patient for your tonic greenery: Your roots are deep in wisdom as the sea, And yours a singing soul of wind-tossed mirth, To heal me as you healed the scars of earth, With kiss of moss and tenderness of tree. —Amanda Benjamin Hall.

Sprinkle a custard pie, a pumpkin or a cream pie with chopped nuts, cover with whipped cream and serve a ple de luxe.

Nut Muffins.—Sift together one-half cupful of wheat flour, one cupful of whole wheat flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, add one-half cupful of nuts cut into pieces, six dates cut into quarters, one egg beaten until light, three-fourths of a cupful of milk and two tablespoonfuls of melted shortening. Mix lightly and put into greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes.

Nuts and Cinnamon Toast.—Cream three tablespoonfuls of butter and add two tablespoonfuls of brown sugar and one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Cut bread into one-fourth inch slices, using three slices, remove the crust, cut into three pieces crosswise. Toast on one side, spread the untoasted side with the butter mixture and sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of chopped nuts. Put into the oven until the sugar melts, then serve at once on a dairy plate.

Nut Topping for Coffee Cake.—Mix two tablespoonfuls of brown sugar with three-fourths of a teaspoonful of cinnamon, three-fourths cupful of soft bread crumbs and two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Put over the top of a coffee cake in a shallow pan sprinkle with three tablespoonfuls of chopped nuts and bake as usual.

Fig Nut Cakes.—Wash and stone one cupful of dates, wash figs using one cupful, put through a meat chopper with two cupfuls of walnut or pecan meats. Mix thoroughly, season with salt, spread in a small greased pan one-fourth inch thick and cut in to squares.

Banana Recipes.
This tropical fruit which is now so common in our markets is not half well enough appreciated. The golden ripe fruit is one of the best of our common fruits and when underripe may be baked and served in many tasty ways.

Baked Bananas.—Peel and scrape the fruit to remove the acid fiber. Cut the bananas into halves lengthwise. Place in a buttered baking dish

Velvet Chic for Milady's Suit

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

So extravagantly have the praises of velvet been sung, it would seem that there is nothing more to be said upon the subject—until one catches a glimpse of the new velvets for this season. Then does one realize that the story of velvet is only at its beginning. There was a time when velvet was just velvet, suitable to wear only a few months in the year, and then laid aside until the coming of another winter season. But now! In color glory, in sheerness of texture, in artful patterning or in superbly beautiful monotone, velvet challenges the most exquisite of chiffons and other supple lightweight weaves to outdo it. That there is a velvet for every occasion also adds neatly to its prestige.

While the new and enchanting print velvets are conspicuously in the limelight, they have in no way detracted from the vogue for sheer handsome solid-color velvets. So far the velvet vogue is developing on a fifty-fifty basis, plain colors and prints sharing the honors.

In the tailored daytime costumes, sheer monotone velvet finds one of its happiest expressions. The model in the picture, which is of transparent velvet in a deep wine tone, merits a place in the fall wardrobe of the woman who understands the art of dressing with distinction. It would be equally as attractive developed in one of the handsome and voguish autumn browns, or in dark green, which is also a very fashionable color this season.

From a standpoint of styling reference should be made to the surplice opening of the soft coat, which achieves an especially clever scalloped fastening at one side. One of the advantages of a jacket-and-skirt costime like this is that it can be made more or less dressy by tuning the blouse worn with it to the occasion, preserving tailored simplicity for casual hours, and for the formal function wearing a very handsome metal fabric type or one otherwise elaborated.

Snartry simple two-piece models of transparent velvet such as this one and others equally as intriguing are registered on the calendar, not only as an autumn item but for midwinter resort wear as well. Stressed in the styling of these lovely colorful velvets are finely plaited skirts which vie with those of circular treatment. The soft jackets are usually detailed with scarfs, the latest wrinkle being to monogram them.

Cozy Dining Alcove

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Do you have a comfortable spot in your kitchen where you can sit down for some of your tasks? We hear much in connection with modern housekeeping about saving energy by sitting at one's work, and there is no doubt but that a high stool at the sink or ironing board is often a great help and back saver. There are many other kinds of work done in the kitchen, too, for which one might be seated if there was an inviting corner and comfortable working surfaces handy—shelling peas, stringing beans, picking over fruit for canning, even peeling potatoes and apples or cupping berries, although these foods may afterwards have to be washed at the sink. One of the great advantages of a "breakfast alcove" or "dining recess" or whatever you like to call such a nook of the kitchen is that it provides just this sort of place for working in comfort. The top of the table is easily protected by paper or oilcloth if the work makes dirt. For many of us over in the refrigerator and the other on the grocery order. A small shelf these tasks two people join forces at times, and there is not room for both at the sink, but here a sociable half-hour can be made of an otherwise uninteresting task.

A place for keeping track of household expenses, particularly foods and kitchen supplies, is almost a necessity.

Floor Plan of Dining Alcove.

and in such an alcove there is comfort, quiet, and order, and the records can be attended to in those intervals that occur while something is cooking when there is not enough time to warrant going to another part of the house to sit. Meals can be planned here, too, with one eye on the left for cookbooks and records might be arranged at one side of such an alcove. Outside the window, a box filled with evergreens or flowering plants would add charm, just as does a bowl of flowers on the table.

In a small house the alcove sometimes serves every purpose of a regular dining room. In others it partly occupies the position formerly given up to a "butter's pantry," between the dining room and kitchen, where it is especially adapted for hurried breakfasts and the housekeeper's solitary lunch. At dinner time, and on occasions when there are additional persons to serve, it is very convenient for spreading out salad or dessert plates to be filled, or otherwise to take the place of a serving center.

The floor plan, which is from Farmers' Bulletin 1513-F, "Convenient Kitchens," shows one way of arranging an alcove so that it is well situated in relation to other features of the kitchen. The window may be placed at the side or at one end of the alcove as in the other picture.

The illustration shows an alcove which was part of the kitchen improvement in a Massachusetts farm home, carried out during a kitchen contest directed by extension workers. The table and benches were built by a member of the family. The benches have hinged tops so that they can be used for storage. The table in this instance is not hinged, but a tilting table is often arranged to permit easier cleaning of the alcove.

Hannah's Hour of Fate

By JANE BURTON

MISS HANNAH CLAY came back from the post office and passed in front of her own millinery shop.

"The windows looked real tasty. If I do say it as I shouldn't," she murmured. "That plum hat with the peonies would do right well for me, but where would I wear it?"

People never wondered much about Hannah Clay's splendor. She was thinking about that now as she saw a mother—one of her schoolmates—pass with a young daughter. She was clad of an interruption. It proved to be Judge Scott, and at the sight of him she felt very faint. All her small savings were in his bank. Was he bringing her ill news?

"You can't imagine what I came for," said the Judge, putting his hat on the case and adjusting his glasses. "The bank has failed and my money's gone," she whispered.

He threw back his head and laughed merrily.

"It isn't the bank, then?" sighed Hannah, relieved.

"Bless you, no—bank's sound as a nut. I came to buy a bonnet."

"A bonnet?"

"Yes, you mustn't breathe a word about it; it's a secret between us two. You know my cousin, Angeline Spall—lives up the hill and sits two seats ahead of me in church?"

"Of course I know her."

"Ever see that awful brown silk bonnet she wears year in and year out?"

"It is old as the hills," agreed Hannah, "but she looks real well in it. Angeline would be quite sweet-looking if she wasn't worried so for money."

The judge looked startled. "I thought Spall left her well fixed," he muttered.

Hannah shook her head. "Squandered every penny before he died. She'll lose the place if she doesn't look out."

The judge was very thoughtful. After a while he took out a notebook and did some figuring. "Hannah, I'll buy in that little house and give it to Angeline Spall, and I'll settle a regular income upon her. I can afford it, and I'll take the prettiest bonnet you've got here as a present."

Hannah took the petunia hat out of the window. "This is the prettiest hat," she said, and tried it on before him. The judge looked and looked—and looked, and Hannah blushed and hastily took it off the hat.

"Put that one away," said the judge at last. "I think I'll give Angeline the money and let her choose her own hat."

"I believe she would rather do that," said Hannah honestly.

"You've lost a sale, Hannah Clay."

Hannah's little work-worn fingers trembled as he pressed them. "I'm coming in again and tell you all about Mrs. Spall," said the judge as he left the shop.

Hannah closed her eyes in momentary ecstasy as she relived the last half hour. When she opened them again she saw her own reflection in the mirror. It was the face of a stranger, so changed it was. She reached into the window and drew out the petunia hat and tried it on. She did not hear the door open gently and the soft, gliding footsteps of old Mrs. Beebe, who, through advanced age and an almost uncanny knowledge of human nature, claimed the gift of prophecy.

"How be ye, Hannah?" she chirruped, perching on the edge of a chair. "That hat's real pretty."

Hannah started violently and dropped the petunia hat.

Mrs. Beebe picked it up and twirled it around on her gnarled fingers. "Why don't ye treat your wedding hat better, Hannah Clay?" she chirruped. "That's not a wedding hat, Mrs. Beebe, it's just one I made to sell."

Mrs. Beebe lifted her hand and closed her eyes. Hannah realized that her visitor was about to "prophecy."

"No one shall wear the bridal hat but the judge's bride—the hour of fate has struck—it strikes once for every man and woman and then—" her voice suddenly became stern and practical: "Ye choice of that hat, Hannah Clay, you will need it soon!" She hopped off the chair and went out of the shop.

Hannah stared after her and then, eliding herself while she put the petunia hat away amid much flustered paper in the postbox had lost she possessed. "Angeline Spall may want to buy it," she said guiltily.

The next day Judge Scott came to tell about Angeline Spall and how he had arranged to make things easier for her. "She's coming to pick out a hat, and Hannah," he hesitated and a twinkle came into his gray eyes, "don't sell the petunia hat!"

It took Judge Scott several months to discuss Angeline Spall with Hannah, and he spent many evenings in the pretty little shop with its rug carpet, old-fashioned chintz curtains and rush-bottomed chairs.

One evening the judge suddenly put his arm around Hannah and said: "If we don't get married right away, Hannah, that hat'll be out of style, and I've been counting on my wife wearing it—so if you'll just get a petunia-colored dress—I'll see the parson—and I've picked out my wedding coat. Why are you crying?"

Hannah looked up, drying her eyes, bright now with renewed youth. "Every woman cries when her hour of fate strikes," she said mysteriously.

Corrosion of pipe lines that carry oil has perplexed scientists for some time, but bureau of standards investigators, after a number of tests, have announced that they are of the opinion the action is due to electricity. Running through soils where the ground is of different chemical composition and of varying moisture content, the pipe is subjected to the results of a discharge and a collecting of electrical current at different points. The earth, in other words, becomes a sort of huge battery of cells formed by the different soil sections. —Popular Mechanics Magazine.

MINING PROPERTY FOR SALE
 I offer for sale three lode mining claims in the Josephine watershed. These claims cover a wide ledge, which makes certain a large tonnage of ore. Work done consists of location works, pits and cuts, one shaft down 60 feet, with a crosscut at 50 feet showing one wall and exposing nine feet of ore, with the other wall untouched. The lode may be much wider than nine feet. A tunnel 40 feet long cuts the big ledge and shows eight feet of ore of mill grade. A tunnel has been started on a companion ledge, and this shows good ore. A tunnel 160 feet long above these reaches the big lode; this tunnel makes enough water to run a 25-ton mill, which can be piped into the top of the mill, in an ideal location, which also allows the ore to go through the mill by gravity.
 The ore consists mostly of carbonates, but in the works there is enough gray copper to make a desirable ore; I am assured that this gray copper, running high in silver, can be concentrated by flotation. The ore minerals below are gray copper, borate, copper glance, lead sulphide, and rare silver minerals. The ore also packs gold, the best assay so far running $21.60 per ton. There is indicated, besides, an appreciable amount of shipping ore; this will be increased as depth is obtained. The new tunnel will give, if produced under the ridge, hundreds of feet of back. Shippers live on three sides, the Emma, the old Holland mine, the Delaware, and the Connecticut belonging to the Richardson estate.
 The road is nearly completed to the property, and a small amount of work will enable a truck to load up at the mill. The geological conditions are favorable to big deposits of ore.
 I will take 1500 cash as a first payment, and the balance partly in royalty on ore shipped or in stock in the operating company; or both if desired.

UP TO DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE

Speaking of the chances for a Democratic victory this fall, Dr. W. F. Chenoweth said:

"There is such an overwhelming majority of registered Democrats that the county Democratic central committee should feel greatly humiliated at any failure.

"Every member of this committee knows that a Democrat is one who invariably votes for and supports the entire executive and legislative part of the national, state and county ticket, and at least a majority of the balance of the ticket in order to be entitled to be called a Democrat.

"Our committee was not selected for their personal aggrandizement or political advancement, and every one knows that they were selected in recognition of their ability to aid in the success of the entire ticket.

"This county has been Republican for the last two years, and is therefore Mugwamp, because Democrats put in two Republican supervisors as county legislators. We all know that the Board of Supervisors is the head and legislative branch of our county government, and no Democrat can retain his self-respect when he allows factional strife to make a Mugwamp of him.

"Therefore, it is to be expected that the committee, if they have the party welfare at heart, will pass a resolution declaring that in future any one posing as a Democrat who violates the principle above enumerated shall be not only refused party patronage but that the committee shall, when the matter is brought to their attention, reach such person out of the party."

James Buchanan was the only president of the United States who never married.
