Los Augeles, Jan. 12 .- (Special to The Patagonian.) Things are happening in the cattle market very much the way observers antilepated during the fall months. On the coast marhets from $12 to $13 per cwt. is being poid for cattle which can only be lassed as medium quality and, no doubt, considerably stranger prices would be paid for well finished offer-

At the end of the grass-shipping season last year and before the movament of fed cattle commenced, those a close touch with the sicustion pointed out to those holding esttle that the market was in a strong position and that they would not seeure the best prices by contracting shead or selling in the country. It was brought out at that time that the situation was developing into a seilers' market and buyers would go where the cattle were. Under these conditions the best results would be obtained at the open markets where sales would be made under competitive bidding with supply and demand governing prices. Practically the same situation conronts the cattle owner in going into the spring season is that which prevalled last fall. That is, the undertene of the market is tsrong and authorities generally agree that at least steady with perhaps stronger prices may be anticipated, taking into consideration, of course, the seasonal fluctuations which uzurlly come with the beginning of the mayement of grass cattle. It is difficult to estimate what the luxury of country buying and a lling has cost the industry as a whole in the list few months. Iowa Woman Found Lydia E.

Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound Always Helpful

I finally had to quit school, I was so weak, I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medi-cine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I can-not tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."-Mrs. Frank Sellers, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning through their own per-sonal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound. Mothers who took it when they were young are glad to recommend it to their daughters.

For over half a century, women have praised this reliable medicine.

WOMEN GETTING BALD

The next five years will show women with Bald Heads, or going in that direction. Men attribute it to Heredity. What will the women say is the cause for it? Thousands of young men bald, or going that way, who had no need for getting bald or even scarce of hair. You surely can give one or two minutes each day to take care of your hair. This is all the time required. You owe this to Nature, as it was given to us in the beginning by Nature. Grow hair on your Bald Head, Grow new hair, destroy dandruff by improving the condition of the scalp which feeds the hair. Then you have the problem solved.

Forst's Original BARE-TO-HAIR is not a tonic, but is a scalp fertilizer and germicide. The results from its use has really created its own demand over the entire country. Literature and information sent upon request.

The ideal way to cook a juicy, tender steak from a choice cut of beef, such as the porterhouse or sirioin, is to broll it over a coal or wood fire. As many people have to cook with gas or kerosene as fuel, this is not often practicable. With a stove of either type, however, it is possible to cook deliciously, provided one understands the method of handling juicy, tender ments. The main point, says the bureau of home economics, is to sear over the outside rapidly, at a high temperature to prevent the escape of the juices, and then to continue cooking the ment evenly at n reduced temperature by turning it from side to side until it is done.

To panbroil a steak over a kerosene flame or gas, heat a skillet very hot. grease it lightly with a piece of suct.

A steak may also be cooked in the broiling oven of a gas stove. From the house of Worth comes an adorable gown, the long black satin bodice of which is covered with parallel lines of tiny jade beads, which travel from shoulder to hipline, the skirt portion being achieved with tiers of black chiffon which cascades to jagged points at the hemline. As if to impress one with the importance of befids in the mode, the shoulder flower worn with this delectable Paris frock is itself made entirely of little

STORY FROM THE START

On the verge of pervous collapse, due to overwork, Gay De-lane, successful New York artist, seeks rest at Idle Island. She rents a cottage, the "Lone Pine," from an island character, the "Captain," and his sister, Alice Andover, "Administrator,"

CHAPTER II

Returning to the island on the early morning steamer, Gay was the only passenger to leave the boat at Evergreen pier, where she found no line of cars, no group of unhurried drivers. to receive her. While with her two hands she carried her heavy bags through the orchard and up the long grass-green slope to the Lone Pine, Gay's heart sang a soft little song of contentment.

"I shall sleep," she thought, "Oh. Idle, Idle little island, how I shall

As she stood at last begeath the craggly pine, fumbling in her bag for the keys, it was the pride of possession which throbbed in her pulses. This was her summer heritage, the reward of ten years of constant labor; It was hers.

Even with her hand on the knob. Gay readized that it was not she who opened the door of the cottage; that It opened to her, instead, from within. And as she stepped back, startled, she was confronted suddenly by a woman. not Mrs. Andover, not one of the three quiet figures from the Captain's kitchen, but one she had never seen before. "Oh, I beg your pardon," she cried.

"I didn't know there was anybody

The woman did not speak for a moment, but stood peering up, nearsiglifedly, into Gay's face-a small woman, short and slight, and a soft flush gave her face a pleasant girlish look, although as Gay learned later. she was very old, older even than Alice Andover. But for all her smallness and her pinkness, there was something impressively determined, something indomitable about her that was striking.

"Are you the Captain's wife?" Gay asked, as the woman stared at her, smiling faintly, puzzled.

"No, I'm not," she disclaimed quickiy, half laughing. "I'm just Auntalmiry. Come in." She still stared. closely. "I- This light is bad," she added apologetically. "And my best glasses are broken. I can't seem to place you- "Tain't Mary Grover,

"I am Gay Delane-the new tenant." The soft little figure became rigid. "The new tenant," she repeated.

"Oh, they didn't tell you!" "Tell me! Of course they didn't tell me. They were afraid to tell me. The cowards!" But she said this in the most amiable and cheerful tone imaginable, "I wish Alice Andover'd tell me. I'd like to hear ner. I told her. with my own thus, that I wanted to stay here myself this summer." "Oh, I beg your pardon. She must have forgotten it. I'll run right up and tell them-'

When Gay stooped to lift her bags, Auntalmiry insisted that she leave them. "You'll be right back," she said confidently. "They'll send me word. Alice Andover never misses a chance to send somebody word. Just leave the bags; you'll be right back."

Gay trudged rather crossly up the pleasant lane to the Captain's door, The disarray of her plans annoved her. and her tired perves resented the postponement of rest. She found the Captain in the kitchen in his favorite chair by the window, fondling the largest cat, while the dog sulked jealously beneath the table.

"Captain," Gay began curtly, "where is Mrs. Andover? The Lone Pine is not for rent. That woman-Auntalmiry-is going to stay there herself." "You don't say so," he ejaculated "Well, think of that now, What are you going to do about it?" What am I going to do about it?" she repeated, indignantly. "Nothing. What have I got to do about it? I will just take back my money-" 'I don't think you can do that," he said cautiously. "I don't think so." "Well, I think so. Renting a cot tage that isn't for rent! Whoever heard of such a thing? Of course I can take it back." He shook his silvered head doubtfully. "You have rented the cottage," he said. "It is yours. If an outsider comes in on you-why, you'll have to take measures to get her out."

Gay stared at him. "But she was there first! I am the interloper." "Then I don't think Alice will refund the rent. I don't think so." "Oh, if she is like that!" Gay said scornfully. "She loesn't look so dis-"Dishonest! My sister, Mis' Alice Andover? Dear, dear, what gave you such a notion as that? She's honest to the transaction. You go and get it | cottage, well built, charmingly locatfor me."

He was deeply troubled. "I-I can't do that. Not today I can't, Maybe tomorrow. But I got to go right up now and fix Mrs. Willoughby's roof-leaky roof-'fraid of rain. Looks like rain, think?

"You fixed that roof yesterday," Gay said furiously.

"No. miss, I didn't get around to it." He sighed sadly, "Seems like I just can't get around to the things I got to do. There's Mrs. Willoughby's roof, and Miss Nixon's porch. Seems like I can't begin to get around to things any more. And I'd like to get a little work done on my boat if I could find time," he finished pathetically.

"Well then," she said kindly, unable to be very severe with one so lamb like, "just come along with me to get my money back from Mrs. Andover. and then you can hurry right along and get ever so many things done. It's

He sighed but put on his cap with disarming meekness, and they set out together.

"That's her cottage down there," he said, pointing off to the left. "It a'n't far. You go right down through that little gate, and see Mis' Andover. Be firm with her, miss, you be real firm. You hold out for your rights."

And with incredible celerity, before Gay could catch and hold him, he had shambled away out of sight around the cottage, and there was nothing for her to do but go on alone. Her in ilgnation rose again as she cut down the pretty, green-bordered cinder path to Mrs. Andorer's door, but she was met with great friendliness by that affable and efficient woman, who took both her hands in fordial greting.

"My dear, how sweet or you to be so neighborly. How charming! You are a real acquisition to our summer colony.

"Mrs, Andover, excuse me, but that cottage you rented me is not for rent.

"I Don't Think You Can Do That," He Said Cautiously.

Auntalmiry is keeping it herself this summer. So if you will kindly re-

Mrs. Andover's affability froze upon her face. "My dear, do you mean to tell me that that creature had the brazen effrontery, the unmitigated audacity, the-the-to stay there after John told her I had rented that cottage?"

"John didn't tell her. She didn't know it. The cottage was not ready for me as you promised-"

"John didn't - John - John Waltace- Didn't you hear me tell him to tell her to-"

"Oh, yes, you told him. And that was the end of it. And as she is the original tenant, I have had all my trouble and worry for nothing."

And then, with reluctance, with innate delicacy, sparing Auntalmiry in every way possible, Mrs. Andover explained the situation. The little old woman in the cottage was not a tenant. She just lived there. She paid no rent, she had no money, and the cottage stood idle all winter without her. Much better for the house to be occupied, much better for Auntalmiry who needed homing-

"Oh, please," interrupted Gay, "let her stay then. Don't turn the poor thing out on my account-

And then Mrs. Andover grew really withering in her retaliation.

Turn her out! What kind of people do you think we are? Do we look like the sort to turn anybody out? We just want her to move down into her own house, the Apple Tree.' "Oh, then she isn't so poor, if she has a house of her own."

But Auntalmiry did not own the Apple Tree. Auntaimiry did not own anything. Mrs. Andover said it was the Estate, the Estate which owned the land, the Estate which had built the little Apple Tree exceusively for Auntaimiry, for her very own, furnished it for her, maintained it for

The Apple Tree was a dear little

ed. Mrs. Andover said, rather petulantly, that it was the nicer of the two cottages, and the only reason Auntalmiry preferred the Lone Pine was simple and pure perversity. The Lone Pine was too big for her, it was more inaccessible away up on the bluffs, it was farther from the shops and from her friends, but she preferred it "for her Christmas party." And then Alice Andover's voice sank to a whisper. "If she says anything about a Christmas party, you tell her John and I say she can't have a Christmas party this year. Tell her it is too expensive in the first place, and it wears her all out in the second place, and it's just nonsense anyhow. Tell her John and I say so."

But when Gay suggested that of course, she, herself, Mrs. Andover. was going 'own with her to give these explanations to Auntaimiry, the administrator was regretful, but firm.

"I can't," she said. "I wish I could, but I can't. I-I am expecting guests to dinner." She looked at her watch, "Good heavens, it is after eleven, and the potatoes not so much as peeled. You see how it is, I wish I could, but I can't, You tell her. She'll understand. Just tell her you have rented the cottage, and pald the rent, and tell her we insist-John and I both insist-that she give up the Lone Pine Immediately. Tell her if she doesn't-we'll-we'll burn the Apple Tree to the ground, and sell the Lone Pine over her head."

So Gay Delane, alone, unaided by the lamblike Captain, unsupported by the efficient administrator, broke the news to the indomitable little old womap on the hill. As she repeated, very modestly, almost diffidently, the dire threats of Alice Andover, Auntalmiry broke into laughter so hearty it seemed impossible it could have emunated from so small a source.

"My dear," she gasped, wiping her eyes, "I wish they would. I'd like to see it. Why, I'd have the law on them." She fell into helpless laughter again. "I'm a sort of a common-law wife, my dear. If you keep me tong enough, you can't get shut of me. Such talk. Alice Andover Indeed! Why didn't they come and tell me all these high doings?"

"The Captain had to fix Miss Nixon's porch, and Mrs. Andover is peeling potatoes for a company dinner, and-'

"The Captain's been fixing that porch for four years, and never set foot on it yet. And as for Alice Andover, my dear, she never peeled a potato in her life. She's aristocratic. Peeling potatoes. My dear, Alice Andover wouldn't know a potato with the skin on if she saw it." "But Mrs .- Miss-"

'Auntalmiry, dearle, just call me Auntaimiry, I'm not proud."

"Auntalmiry," Gay said appealingly, "see how I am fixed. I have paid fifty dollars rent-' "Fifty dollars For this shack? My dear, they robbed you. They never got more than forty for it in the world. Last year, they only got thirty-five. Poor child, poor dear, they robbed you." "And see They have my fifty doltars, you have my house. I have nothing." "My dear, I'll go. I'll go right away. We'll show them they can't get away with this sort of thing with us. It won't take me long to pack up. I haven't got much."

While Auntalmiry bustled about, putting her things together, Gay, having removed her cap and gloves, set her bags in a corner out of the way and went to the wide couch. She was

NEW WHIPPET CAR A MOTOR MARVEL

One of the sensations in the automobile world is the perfected "Whippet" produced by the Willys-Overland, Inc., and it is direct evidence that John N. Willys, president of the corporation, proposes to make good on his declaration that "there can be no monopoly in the light car field." The perfected car, and the price at which it is offered, placing it directly in competition with the lowest priced cars, has centered the eyes of the automobile industry and the motor car world in general on the enterprising Toledo manufacturer. It makes him the first manufacturer of automobiles to enter the price field heretofore exclusive to but one light car manufacturer.

The "Whippet," which has been in production for more than 18 months, holds the national fuel economy record of 43.28 miles to the gallon in a test between Los Angeles and New York City, covering a distance of 3,550 miles, under official observation of the A. A. A. In a speed test on Rockingham Speedway, Salem, N. H., a "Whippet" recently attained a speed of 71.6 miles an hour over a 50-mile route. This was officially timed.

The same engine that has accomplished these records is the power plant employed in the perfected "Whippet," now offered at the lowest price in the history of Willys-Overland. The "Whippet" was the first light car to be equipped with four wheel brakes, setting a new trend in the light car field. The braking area of the "Whippet's" brakes is greater than any other light car.

Details of the perfected "Whippet" disclose a wider range of colors, employment of full crown fenders, a new cadet sun visor that imparts a smart military effect, and the addition of automatic windshield cleaner, rear view mirror, and a combination rear driving light and stop light. These additions make the "Whippet" the most fully equipped light car built in the four cylinder field.

Nature's Economy

Inventions during the next two or three centuries will, in the opinion of many experts, probably be in the direction of imitations of the wonderful economy and the simple, direct methods of nature. Take the electric eel as an example. Its electric organ is in no sense a storage battery, but a contrivance by which electric energy is liberated at the moment when it is required. At rest, the organ shows so small an electromotive force that a good galvanometer is required to detect it, but a sudden nervous impulse from the eel's spinal cord raises a potential of many volts, with very little heat, and so small an expenditure of matter as to defy the most expert chemist to weigh it. Fireflies, glowworms and many deep sea fishes produce light without heat, at a cost which would make the price of a wax candle an extravagant outlay.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

More Marines Sent to Nicaragua-Government's Policy Attacked.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

THAT rebellion in Nicaragua whose head Uncle Sam cut off last year is still wriggling its tail vigorously enough to cause the United States government a lot of trouble. The tall consists of General Sandino and his band, who are holding out in Nueva Segovia, where the leader has set up a new "republic," A few days ago the American marines, in conjunction with the Nicaraguan constabulary, fought those rebels for several days and took the town of Quilali, but six marines were killed and many others wounded. Washington was aroused not only by this encounter but by adverse criticism of the administration's conduct of the Nicaraguan affair, and after the President had discussed it with the cabinet orders were issued for the immediate dispatch of 1,000 more marines to the scene of action. The reinforcements were gathered at Quantico, Paris island, San Diego and Panama. At the same time it was announced that Brig. Gen. Logan Feland had been ordered to proceed to Nicaragua and take over command of operations there. The additions bring the force of marines in Nicaragua up to 2,415 men. Secretary Kellogg, following a luncheon conference with the President, issued a formal statement announcing the government's intention to "co-operate with the constabulary of Nicaragua effectively to establish order throughout that country and make possible the holding of a free and fair election which we have undertaken to supervise."

The secretary reiterated that this government and Nicaragua consider the Sandino forces as bandits. "It will be recalled," Mr. Kellogg sald, "that both sides agreed to lay down their arms and that they did so with the exception of a comparatively small body of men under Sandino, which has since been augmented by lawless elements."

When congress resumed its session on Wednesday the Democrats and some others at once opened their attack on the administration's Nicaraguan policy. Senator Heflin of Alabama offered a resolution in the senate denouncing that policy and requesting the President to withdraw the marines immediately. Senator Nye of North Dakota presented another, declaring against the protection by the American government of investments of American citizens in foreign countries; and next day Senator Wheeler of Montana Introduced a resolution for the appointment of a senate committee to investigate the American Nicaraguan policy.

In the house Bloom of New York offered a resolution calling on the secretary of state and the secretary of the navy to supply information concerning the recent bloody fight and the reasons why marines were sent to Nicaragua. Begg of Ohio defended the administration and engaged in a warm debate with Garrett, Huddleston Quilali was Sandino's base, and its loss was a severe blow to the bandit leader. He is said to be concentrating his forces at El Chipote, a mountain stronghold, and the marines and Nicaraguan troops probably will attack him there.

COLONEL LINDBERGH'S air tour of Central America continued with great success and eclat. He made a wonderful landing on a tiny field at Belize, British Honduras, and after a day there flew on to San Salvador. Two days there, and thence to Tegucigalpa, Honduras. On Thursday he hopped off for Managua, Nicaragua, avoiding so far as possible flying over the zone where the marines and the rebels are fighting. His route then was to Costa Rica and Panama, his arrival at the latter city being expected on Monday. Everywhere he was, as usual, welcomed by officials and enthusiastic populations and his collection of decorations was largely increased. An extraordinary honor was the issuance of a million special Lindbergh stamps by the Panama gov-

Miss Ruth Nichols, a society girl of Rye, N. Y., made the first nonstop flight from New York to Miami. She was accompanied by Harry Rogers and Maj. M. K. Lee, and they covered the 1,200 miles in 12 hours. Half of the time Miss Rogers piloted the plane.

Hanford Machider has resigned as assistant secretary of war, effective January 12, and another Iowan is to succeed him. The President appointed Col. Charles Burton Robbins of Cedar Rapids to the post. Colonel Robbins is a close personal friend of MacNider and a former commander of the Iowa department of the American Legion. He rolled in the reserves. He was cited for gallantry in action in the Spanish-American war. While Mr. MacNider gave, as his reason for quitting, the need of looking after his personal business affairs, some of his friends in Iowa think he may seek the Republican vice presidential nomination this year or try for the United States senate in 1930.

WHEN Gov. Al. Smith delivered his annual message to the New York legislature-a long document declared by him to be his last-he took the opportunity to set forth his position on prohibition and law enforcement for the benefit of those of his fellow countrymen who are considering his possibility as a Presidential candidate. Ostensibly confining himself to New York state affairs, he discussed also water power, budget reform, agriculture and structural governmental changes. As for prohibition, he insisted it was the "sacred duty" of the state to sustain the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act and reasserted that, so far as it was within his power, he would remove from office any public officer guilty of laxity in enforcement of the law. He said the failure of the Republican legislature of 1919 to submit to a popular referendum the question of ratifying the eighteenth amendment was "the direct cause of the unrest, uneasiness and dissatisfaction apparent in large portions of the state. It has gone further and been the prime cause of creating disrespect for the law among citizens who give the limit of obedience to every other regulatory statute ever enacted in the state or nation."

ORDERS entered by the United States Supreme court allowed the lake states, which seek to enjoin the diversion of Lake Michigan water at Chicago, 13 days in which to repare and file briefs supporting their exceptions to the findings of Charles Evans Hughes, the court's special master in the lake level controversy. Thereafter, under the orders, the Chicago sanitary district and the state of Illinois, defending the water withdrawal for sanitary purposes, are to have 20 days in which to respond with reply briefs. As a result, it is practically certain that three months will elapse before the court hears oral arguments in the THREE noted figures of the amusement world passed away last week. First of these was Loie Fuller, the famous dancer and friend of Queen Marie of Rumania. She died in Parls after an illness of two months. The others were Miss Emily Stevens, an actress, who had played leading roles in many plays, and Miss Dorothy Donnelly, actress and playwright. Charles M. Kittle, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and former vice president of the Illinois Central railroad, died in Chicago following an emergency operation. He was only forty-seven years old and had had extraordinary success in business, PLANS just announced by the governing board of the Pan-American union contemplate the erection in Santo Domingo of the largest lighthouse in the world as a memorial to Christopher Columbus. It is to cost $4,000,000 and architects of all nations are invited to compete for the honor of designing it. Prizes totaling $50,000 will be distributed among the architects. Albert Kelsey of Philadelphia has been authorized to go to Santo Domingo to select the site and plan the competition. The Dominican government already has subscribed $300,000 to the fund, and other governments have indicated their willingness to participate.

IF AMERICANS thought they had a hard time during the week of extreme cold weather that prevailed over almost the cutire country, they should contemplate the plight of the British. Over there they had a cold snap that was, relatively, as severe as ours, and then the deep blanket of snow that covered the island began to melt rapidly and much of the countryside was speedly under water, Cities and towns were flooded, communication was interrupted and there

New Bulletin on Feeding Horses

Combinations of Home-Grown Crops Are Most Economical Rations.

(Prejured by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A suitable ration for horses meets the requirements of nutrition, economy and convenience, says the United States Department of Agriculture in a revised edition of Furmers' Bulletin 1030-F, "Feeding Horses," Just published. Combinations of homegrown or locally raised crops as a rule constitute the most economical

It is a good plan to observe the results in feeding a ration and modify it according to age, size and condition of the horse, declares the bulletin. Slight changes in feeds are occasionally advisable but should be made gradually to avoid digestive disturb-

Computation Not Difficult.

The computation of rations is not lifficult, according to the authors of the publication, and a little time spent on calculations enables the feeder to provide from available feeds a ration approximately supplying the requisite amounts of protein and carboliydrates. Data on rations, it is pointed out, will afford valuable aid to the feeder. It is far more economical to feed the required amounts of nutrients in the right proportion than to provide an excess of one and a deficiency of an-

The benefits derived from grinding or crushing oats and corn for horses depend on the cost of preparation, working conditions and state of the animal's teeth. Ordinarily it is not profitable to cook, steam or souk feeds for horses. When the small, hard grains cannot be rolled or crushed, however, it is advisable to soak them.

Additional Information. Farmers' Bulletin 1030-F contains ach additional information concerning the selection and computation of rations, the preparation of feeds, condations affecting feed requirements and numerous suggestions relative to feeding horses. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained free upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Barnyard Manure Is Best

Plant Food, Says Keffer No other source of plant food is ulte as satisfactory as barnyard nanure in the maintenance of soil fertility. That is why some form of animat husbandry should find a place in every farm plan, states Director Charles A. Keffer of the agricultural extension service, University of Tennessee. The fertility of the land can be kept up and increased by the use of commercial fertilizers and green manure crops. Lime and legumes and acid phosphate mark the cropping route to successful soll improvement.

Most farmers practice a more or less diversified agriculture and on most farms crop rotation of some sort is used. It may be only that of following corn with small grain or cotton, or even letting a field lie idle a year, to plow under the weed growth for the following crops. And there are not a few farmers who imagine that merely to grow cowpeas, cutting them close for hay. greatly benefits the soil. That is a mighty poor way of maintaining soil fertility.

Crop rotation of any sort is better than continuous cropping to one kind of plant, but to be in the highest degree beneficial corn and cotton and tobacco and truck crops should after nate with some legume, preferably clover or alfalfa for hay and pasture and then plowed into the land. Thus we have a cultivated crop rotating with a sod crop, and the use of live stock in the farm scheme.

Renew Interest in Jerusalem Articheke

By New Method Levulose Is Produced From Tubers.

(Prepared by the Posted Stafes Department of Applications.)

The Jerusalem articiodos, a widely nown but little used plant native to the United States, has recently taken on new interest because of the devel opment of an improved method for producing levulose from the tubers. Levulose is a form of sugar which is considered by many authorities to be much sweeter than ordinary can

The renewed interest in the Jeruatem artichoke and its possibilities alls for a thorough study of the lant. Accordingly the United States Department of Agriculture has recent published Technical Bulletin No 33-T, in which has been collected and reviewed all of the published works on the artichoke. Besides a summary of available literature the bulletin includes the results of preliminary work in the study of varie tles. Suggestions for improvement of varieties are also included.

The culture of the Jerusalem artithoke is very similar to that of corn and is no more expensive, except har vesting, which is comparable with that of potatoes. Although it has a rather undeserved reputation as weed because of its hardiness, it can be kept under control by proper ro tation and cultural practices,

It has long been regarded as a competitor of potatoes and for that reason has not received the attention b seems to merit. It has a much wider range of usefulness, however, than as a substitute for the potato. All parts of the plant may be used for feed, forage, human food or for manufactured articles. Some French Investigators have suggested the use of the stalks for fuel and of the pith for use in research laboratories. It is particularly valuable for diabetics who seem able to use the insulin contained in it to better advantage than s the case with sugars or starches,

If the United States is to grow the plant more extensively, the success of the crop will depend on economic adjustments, says the department. The basis of selection will be an attempt to find the type or variety which can most cheaply produce in sulin. Copies of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture. Washington, D. C.

Odors in Milk Annoying

During Winter Season Dairymen will often experience ore trouble in keeping odors from their dairy products in winter than In summer. This is on account of milk bsorbing edors from the barns as vell as from the feeds that are given dairy cows.

Keeping barn odors from milk seans not only keeping the barn clean out providing proper ventilation. When barn is close and stuffy, barn odors are apt to be noticed in the product.

Green feed often produces odors in the milk, especially when eaten short ly before milking. Rape is a feed of this class. When cows are pastured on rape or any other feed which offects the milk, it is important that they be given the feed shortly after milking. When used in this manner odors will not be noticeable if several hours intervene between the time of feeding and milking.

The same principle holds true in feeding during winter. Silage often flavers milk if given to the cows prior to milking. For this reason it is pref erable to feel silage and any other feds of a similar character after milking, rather than before.

Prevent Mice Damage in Orchard During Winter

While certainly rabbits are about the most serious of animal pests around an orchard, at the same time in some localities field mice destroy even larger numbers of fruit trees by girdling the trunks and roots. In fact, good deal of the injury caused by meadow mice is thought to be caused by rabbits, says Successful Farming.

In many orchards pine mice attack the roots, frequently girdling the en tire root system, and this is a very serious injury since it passes unno ticed in the majority of cases until it is too late to save the tree by bridge grafting or other means.

A few ordinary mouse traps baited with rolled onts is a means of determining definitely the species of mice that may infest the orchard. And in case of slight infestation of mice in small orchards, trapping is a very effeetive method to use in ridding the premises of the mice.

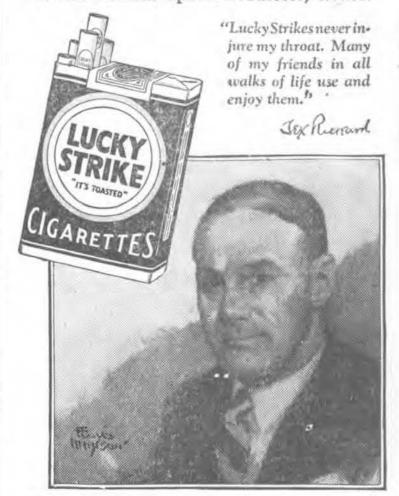

In larger areas control measures must consist of proper cultivation, the use of nonlegume cover crops, and systematic poisoning during the full and winter.

Balanced Roughage Alfalfa and corn sitage makes only one of the combinations which will give us a balanced roughage. Clover bay is nearly as rich in protein and minerals and can be used in place of affalfa with good results. Soy beans and cowpen hay are us high in protein but are coarser, resulting in some waste. Corn stover, corn fedder or my from grasses can be used. If necessary, in place of siluge but they lack succulonce. Anys of these combinations give us a medium protein rough
