Foreign consumers have generally lagged behind domestic buyers in covering their requirements and this warrants the belief that the market will remain fairly active. It is estimated that foreign buyers are in need of 93,000,000 to 100,000,000 pounds for shipment during February and March, whereas domestic fabricators are now generally covered until May.

Refinery shipments in 1928 were the largest ever recorded, totaling 3,-315,362,000 pounds. Of this total, about 58 per cent was taken by Amercan consumers and 42 per cent by foreign buyers. Consumption over the past two years has exceeded producon by about 40,000,000 pounds.

SAFE FOR DICTATORS

Ten years ago we thought that the World War had been fought to make the world safe for democracy. It now looks a sthough it made the world safe for autocracy. The intervening 10 years has seen the rise of dictators in many lands, and their tribe seems Mussolini in Italy, de Rivera in Spain, Kemal in Turkey, Pilsudski in Poland, Valdemaras in Lithunia, Zogu in Albania, and now Alexander in Jugo-Slavia hav seized supreme power, and the first three have maintained it for a considerable period. In Russia the dictatorship of Stalin, although camouflaged by a pretense of popular appoyal, is moe oppressive than that of the former czars. Carmona became virtually the dictator of Portugal in 1926. In several Latin-American countries the government is almost completely dominated by the individual who happens to be president for the ting being.

So, looking back over the record of the past decade, one is forced to adm't that i' democracy was at stake in the World War, it fared rather badly

BANKERS IN NATIONAL MOVE FOR UNIFORM FINANCIAL PRACTICES

Would Promote Greater Consistency Among All the State Laws in Respect to Banking Conditions-Uniformity of Practice and Understanding Will Make for Greater Convenience, Efficiency and Safety for All Business.

By S. J. HIGH

President State Bank Division, American Bankers Association PAPID interchange of business and the quick transporta-A tion of goods in the United States, coupled with almost instantaneous means of inter-communication by telegraph, telephone and wireless, have welded the country into an economic unit. The nation is not, in a business sense, conducting its affairs in water-tight compartments, as in a measure it did in the days of slow travel and remote places, but styles, methods, commodities and business practices flow freely today in all directions. Therefore it is desirable that finance, trade and industry throughout the country operate along generally uniform or at least consistent lines, so that a contract or an agreement or obligation in connection with business transactions shall mean virtually the same thing in all parts of the country. Particularly necessary in this connection is the establishment of uniform financial and banking practices so as to facilitate the flow of trade along accepted and understood lines.

Banking in the United States is recog nized as a semi-public type of business and is therefore subject to laws to define the scope and character of its activities. These laws at present set up a great diversity of conditions under which banking is conducted in various parts of the country since they come from both state and federal authorities. The national banks are all chartered by the federal government and therefore operate on the same lines in every state of the Union, but there is no such regularity in respect to the conditions under which the state banks chartered by the respective forty-eight states must conduct their business. All state banking codes, while they have similarities, also have many great dissimilarities in respect both to the national bank laws and the banking laws covering state bank operations in other jurisdictions.

Bankers Move for Uniform Laws The State Bank Division of the American Bankers Association, which latter includes in its membership banks of all descriptions throughout the country subject to all the variations of state and federal banking laws, is committed to the effort to bring about greater consistency and uniformity among the statutes of all these various jurisdictions. This body is conducting a vigorous nation-wide campaign urging that active steps be taken to secure greater co-ordination in banking legislation, more equitable conditions and more uniformly efficient public supervision of banks in the several states. The organization is particularly concerned with fostering this movement to bring about more uniformly desirable conditions throughout the United States in respect to the public supervision of banking institutions by the state banking departments. It is on record as favoring the policy that the important office of state bank commissloner should be kept as free from entangling partisan politics as the judiciary itself and should be completely detached from all other functions of state government.

It is also on record as favoring the policy that the tenure of office of state bank commissioners should be made more secure and lasting than is now the case in many state jurisdictions and that this important public officer be granted sufficient compensation and discretionary power so that the office shall attract and retain the services of men of outstanding executive ability and successful banking expe-

It is also a part of this policy that the bank commissioner's ability to serve well should be strengthened by providing him with adequate forces of bank examiners, selected on the basis of merit from men having the requisite qualifications of honesty, ability, training, and banking knowledge to carry out the duties of their offices on the highest plane of usefulness to the public as well as to banking.

The Trend of State Laws The Association's State Bank Division has recently concluded a nationwide survey of state banking legislation and conditions and in general has discovered a definite trend along the following lines:

There is a distinct tendency among the states to raise the minimum capital required for banking institutions to $25,000 and also to give the bank commissioners or the banking boards sole power as to the granting of charters for new banks, thus enabling them to use discretion as to the need or desirability of added banking facilities or the fitness of the organizers to enter the banking field. In this connection many states are creating banking boards to act in an advisory capacity with the state bank commissloners. There has also been observed a tendency to increase the compensation of the bank commissioners and to lengthen their terms of office and to give them power to appoint necessary deputies and examiners so as to build up an adequate force to carry out their responsibilities and duties. An important augmentation of the powers of bank commissioners in some states found in laws giving them complete charge of insolvent banks and their liquidation as distinguished from morcostly liquidation through the courts

In the Public Interest Distinctly in the public interest arlaws prohibiting or limiting an office or director of a bank from borrowin from his own bank unless his col lateral security is approved by a ma jority of the board of directors of the bank. Also there is recent legislation noted providing for closer supervision and regulation of building and loan associations, credit unions, financ companies and private banks.

In some states measures have been enacted broadening the field for in vestment of funds of savings bank and trust companies, which have ma terially enhanced the service that these institutions can render, particu larly in the way of co-operation wit their customers in personal financia management. Another type of legis lation, important especially to bank ing in view of the frequent efforts to defraud banks, is that which makes the issuance of worthless checks misdemeanor with specific penalties

The State Bank Division of th American Bankers Association en dorses in the fullest degree in princi ple the development of banking laws along the foregoing lines and is active ly engaged in fostering the spread of such legislation wherever its servi are considered useful both to banking and to the public. Uniformly sound banking institutions and practices, to gether with common methods and un derstanding, will materially add to the convenience, efficiency and safety o business in serving the well-being of the public in all parts of the nation especially in those transactions involve ing dealings between different local

AMERICA LEADS THE WORLD IN SAVINGS

The past year saw the greatest gains in savings in a single twelve month ever recorded in the United States, bringing the total savings de posits in banks to over $28,400,000,000 on June 30, 1928, held in more than 63,000,000 individual accounts it is reported by the American Bankers As sociation. These are the biggest fig. ures in this field shown by any coun try in the world.

These figures are indicative of pros perity more general than any time since the business depression of 1920, the report declares. Only three states falled to show a gain and the 1928 volume of savings constituted an increase of more than $2,327,000,000 above the 1927 figure. The gain per inhabitant for 1928 over 1927 was $17 and the gain in number of savings depositors was 2,496,079, an increase of 5.2% as against a growth in the population of the country of 1.2%. The gain in savings per inhabitar in New England and the Middle At lantic states over the previous year was $36. These groups of states, with 29.9% of the population of the United States and 52.8% of the total savings deposits, have the largest savings rate. $461 per inhabitant, of any area in the world. The per capita savings for the United States as a whole this year stands at $237 as compared with $220 last year

"An acre of alfa)fa for every cow in Howard County, lowa," is the slogau adopted by the county bankers association there after watching several hundred thousand dollars go out of their county last winter for feed.

Belle Boyd Goes Home "STOTEWALL" JACKSON By ELMO SCOTT WATSON ELLE BOYD is going home-back to her beloved Valley of the Shenandoah. For nearly thirty years one of the most famous spies in all American history has slept in what to her was allen ground-in a little ceme tery near Kilbourn, Wis.

Over her grave stood a simple stone upon which was this inscription: "Belle Boyd. Confederate spy. Born in Virginia, Died in Wisconsin, Erected by a comrade." But now plans are under way to rebury her in the soil of her native state, in the South which she served so well. Belle Boyd's life span was a stormy half-century. The story of her girlhood she tells in a book, "Beile Boyd in Camp and Prison," which she wrote while she was virtually an exile in England after the Civil war, She

There is perhaps no tract of country in the world more lovely than the Valley of the Shenandoah. There is, or rather I would say there was, no prettier or more peaceful village than Martinsburg, where I was born in 1844. . . According to the cus-tom of my country, I was sent at twelve years of age to Mount Wash-ington college, of which Mr. Staley, of whom I cherish a most grateful recollection, was the principal. At six-teen my education was supposed to be teen my education was supposed to be completed and I made my entree into the world in Washington city with all the high hopes and thoughtless joy natural to my time of life.

Washington is so well known to English people that I will not pause to describe its gayeties and pleasures. In the winter of 1860-61, when I made my first acquaintance with it, the rea-son was pre-eminently brilliant. The congress halls were nightly dignified by the presence of our ablest orators and statesmen. The salons of the wealthy and the talented were filled to overflowing, the theaters were crowded to excess, and for the last time for many years to come the daughters of the North and the South commingled in sisterly love and friendship

Then she tells how Virginia replied to Lincoln's call for volunteers by a similar call for volunteers for Virginla. Both her mother's father and her own father immediately enlisted in the Confederate army, her father joining the Second Virginia regiment. Says Belle: "It was armed and equipped with a subscription raised by myself and other ladies of the valley. The corps was commanded by Colonel Nadenbush and belonged to that section of the Southern army, known as the 'Stonewall Brigade,' "

Martinsburg being on the border line between the North and the South, it soon felt the ravages of war and Relie's first service for the South was as a nurse in a hospital for Confederate soldiers in her home town. When the Northern forces entered that town Belle came into immediate prominence by defying a Union captain who declared before leaving that she was an "Independent rebel lady,"

Belle Saves Her Home

Her attitude toward the invaders of Martinsburg resulted in the Federal troops determining to raise the Stars and Stripes over the Boyd home. Belle's mother declared that every member of her family would die before they would permit that, whereupon a soldier, who is said to have been intoxicated, struck her to the floor. He was promptly shot down by the daughter. In retaliation the soldiers threatened to burn the house but Belle hastened to the Union commander and by his orders the home was saved. Soon afterwards Belle took advantage of the opportunity presented by her position within the Federal lines to begin her activities as a spy. Her first attempt, however, was a failure. One day, after having exercised her charms to wheedle military information from a Union officer, she en-mammy who was to carry it to the Confederates. The negress was captured and the message she carried traced to Belle Boyd who was arrested and taken before a Union That officer, probably imcolonel. pressed by her charms no less than his subordinate, contented - himself with reading her the articles of war about sples instead of shooting her. He released her, warning her, however, that she would not escape so easily the next time.

BELLE BOYD'S GRAVE AT KILBOURIN, WISCONSUY

Undaunted by this experience Belle continued her work as a spy whenever the opportunity offered. She constantly furnished valuable information to Gen. Stonewall Jackson and Gen. J. E. B. Stuart while they were pperating in the Shenandonh Valley and in one instance she is believed to have saved Jackson from a disastrous defeat.

Belle Is Found Guilty

On one occasion she entrusted a message to a supposed Confederate soldier who turned out to be a Union spy and who took the message to General Shields, Belle was arrested, taken to Harpers Ferry and then to Washington where she was confined in the Old Capitol prison. She was tried by court martial, found guilty. but after an imprisonment of several months was given her freedom through an exchange of prisoners. As a matter of fact, the record of her various arrests is none too clear, And for some mysterious reason she was repeatedly released although she was known to be a dangerous spy. Some of her exploits verge upon the legendary so that it is impossible to set down any complete record of her life as a spy with any assurance that it is accurate in every detail.

About the only thing that is certain is that her spirit was never broken by any of her experiences and that she did more first-class defying of her captors than any other spy on record. Perhaps the highest tribute that was ever paid to her was the order of Secretary Stanton when she was arrested in Martinsburg to which she had returned in 1863, "Don't let her get near enough to anyone to talk," he directed, "she'll charm the heart out of his body."

Eventually she was imprisoned in Carroll prison in Washington, again placed on trial and sentenced to hard labor in Fitchburg prison. Later this sentence was commuted and she was released and sent South with orders never again to be found within the Federal lines. Some time later she took passage on a blockade runner bound for England. This ship was captured by a Union vessel and Belle trusted a message to an old negro | Boyd was again a prisoner, However, she was treated more as a guest on the Union ship than as a prisoner. Here romance entered her life when she made the acquaintance of Lieut. Samuel Harding who fell in love with her. Belle reciprocated and after be ing sent to Canada, she made her way to England. Harding joined her there and they were married. When Harding returned to the United States, he was arrested as a deserter and imprisoned for a time.

There is some dispute as to the later life of Harding and his wife. According to one account, Belle rejoined him in this country after President Johnson's amnesty proclamation had freed him, but for some reason their happiness together was short-lived and she divorced him Another ac count says nothing about a divorce but states that he joined her in England after he was released and that he died there in 1869,

Takes to the Stage

At any rate the next that is heard of Belle Boyd is her entrance upon a theatrical career and her becoming the leading lady at the Academy of Music in New Orleans. Soon afterwards she married Col. John Swainston Hammond, but they soon drifted apart and were divorced. She married third time, her last busband being Nuthaniel R High, son of a Toledo clergyman. High accompanied her upon her tours about the country as an actress and a lecturer and was with her when she came to Kilbourn. Wis, in 1900 to fill a theatrical engagement

She fell ill there and died on June 11. She was buried in the Spring Grove cemetery there and for some time her grave was unmarked. Final ly two members of the Woman's Relief corps in Kilbourn purchased a board on which was placed the following inscription: "One Flag, One Country. Marie Isabel High. Belle Boyd, Confederate Spy. Born May 9. 1843. Died June 11, 1900," Later a stone was purchased by W. A. Everman of Greenville, Miss., and that is the stone which now stands at the head of her grave. Each year at Memorial day members of the G. A. R. and the Woman's Relief corps decorate the grave as reverently as they do those of their own soldier dead But if present plans are carried out that labor of love will no longer be necessary, For Belle Boyd is going home-back to her beloved Valley of the Shenandoah. And in the future her own people of the South will care for her grave and over it one day in each year will droop the Stars and Bars, which she served so well so many years ago.

Markton Oats Proven Immune to All Smut

Yields as Well or Better Than Other Varieties.

Farmers of the Northwest each year are growing more Markton oats, a variety which is smut-immune, and which, in addition, yields as well as or better than other varieties of oats.

In 1914, D. E. Stephens, superintendent of the branch Oregon experiment station at Moro, recognized in Markton, which was then growing in nursery rows, a high-yielding oat variety. It was that year that he transferred Markton oats from the nursery to the plat experiments. Markton was grown continuously in the plats during the ten years following and not only proved smut-immune, but outyielded other standard varieties grown in the Columbia Basin dry-farming wheat district.

In Washington wheat-growing areas, also, Markton has consistently proved to be the highest-yielding variety. This has also been the experience at the Judith Basin sub-station at Moccasin, Mont. Markton has proved its merit not only in the dry-farm areas, but has also given excellent yields on the irrigated lands and under subirrigated conditions.

Markton is an erect, short to midall, mid-season variety, with branching panicles. Kernels of Markton are vellowish-white, long and slender, with a rather thin hull; the lower kernel of the spikelet usually carries a fine to coarse awa. At the Washington experiment station, Markton was compared with a Silver Mine type ont which was the best variety for eastern Washington, as to quality and yields. There were 193 kernels of this Silver Mine oat in five grams, and only 178 of Markton. The proportion of hull to kernel was 28.4 in the Silver Mine and only 26.8 for Markton. The bushel weights of the two varieties were practically identical.

This smut-immune out is proving a blessing in many sections of the Northwest where it is hard to control covered smut. Necessity for seed treatment is eliminated and higher quality and better yields are resulting.

Save Larger Percentage of Valuable Farm Manure

What can be done to save a larger percentage of the crop producing value of our manure? When manure can be hauled to the field daily as it is produced the loss of plant food is reduced to a minimum or to practically nothing, provided the liquid portion is saved through absorption by bedding or otherwise. This cannot always be ione, of course. However, an effort can be made to get the bulk of the manure hauled early in the spring. On many farms manure can be hauled daily during the winter season, especially when the land is not too rolling and subject to erosion. One cannot outline any general procedure, but the subject of manure conservation is of enough importance for each farmer to give it his closest attention and do the est he can under his own conditions.

Good Bulletins for

Use of Hog Raisers Some excellent bulletins for hog raisers are Bulletin 243, "Equipment for Swine Production," Kansas State Agricultural college, Manhattan, Kan., and Circular C9, 'Handy Equipment for Swine Raising," Iowa State colege, Ames, Iowa.

These bulletins take up the proper construction of hog houses both of the permanent and the individual ypes, their proper lighting and ven-Hation, feeding floors, self-feeders, hog waterers, feed troughs, movable fences and creeps, breeding and castrating crates, loading chutes, shipoing crates, and so on. In most cases, bills of materials as well as brief construction plans are given. Copies of these bulletins may be obtained by writing to the proper colleges.

Selection of Breed for Eggs or Market

A large part of the selection of a breed for either broiler or egg production is the matter of selecting a breed that suits the personal preference of the one who is handling the flock. Light breeds do not make good broflers, in spite of the fact that they mature probably earlier than any of the other more common standard breeds of chickens.

Heavier breeds should be used for proifer production, even though they to mature slightly less rapidly than ight breeds. Any of the heavier breeds will be found satisfactory-the serticular breed adopted for the puroose depending for its success upon the way it is handled.

Grinding Feeds for

Live Stock on Farm The latest thing in grinding feed for live stock on the farm is to let it grind itself. Many farmers are now arranging their feed grinders to let the unground grain drop from the bin into the hopper of the grinder, and, by attaching a fan to the grinder, blow the ground feed into another bin where it is stored for future use. Some are even eliminating all handling of the grain and feed by running spouts from the feed bin to the feed boxes or mangers where the animals contentedly munch their breakfast and dinner. "Just press a button and let 'er zip!" is the new motto in the modern feedyard.

Gardens Keeping Pace With Diets

Supply of Celery, Lettuce, Spinach Trebled in Past Decade.

The value of a garden used to be pased largely on the saving it permitted in the budget for food, and the variety it permitted in the diet. That was perfectly in order. But now we have come to think of gardens more in terms of health and enjoyment. Vegetables have come to the front in the matter of diet because they supply roughage as well as vitamines and essential minerals. In order to build up resistance to disease and provide iron, calcium and phosphorus and vitamines for the body, at least two vegetables other than potatoes or dried beans should be eaten every day.

Crops Trebled.

Maybe gardens of yesteryear supplied all these things-but did they? Not to the same extent as the gardens of today, because we have learned so much in late years about food value, diet and the importance of vegetables in the dlet. It is significant that in the last decade the consumption of celery, lettuce and spinach has trebled. Iron for red blood is better supplied by garden greens than by patent medicines.

Health and Happiness. It is not every garden, of course, that supplies health and happiness in the fullest measure-only the wellbalanced gardens. Such gardens produce the edible-seed crops-beans, peas and sweet corn; the root crops, such as beets, carrots, parsnips, etc.; the green and salad crops, such as lettuce, celery, cabbage, chard, etc.; the vegetable fruits, such as tomatoes, squashes, eggplants, etc.; and, in addition, small fruits such as strawberries, raspberries, currants, gooseberries, etc. Varieties are influenced by locality and condition of the soil; what is best in one part of the country is not always best in another. It s a good plan to use, for the most part, varieties which have been tried and found satisfactory. But don't close your mind on new varieties-try a new one of at least one crop every year.—The Farm Journal.

Threatened by Fungus The future of all white pine forests s threatened by a fungus known as white pine blister rust which attacks the pine trees only after it has under gone a period of development on the leaves of currant or gooseberry plants. It is responsible for establishing the blister rust in white-pine forests which would otherwise have remained free from the dis-

Plan to Restore Old English Yarn Market

For some time past the ancient yarn market at Dunster, West Some erset, England, has been in an extremely disapidated and decayed condition. It has now been decided to renovate the building. Everything possible will be done to preserve the original features of the structure. An expert has already examined the building and materials in keeping with the period will be used in the renovation.

Standing in the middle of Dunster's historic main street, and facing the castle, the home of the Luttrell family, the yarn market dates from the Sixteenth century, and is now the sole remaining relic of the days when the village was famous as the mart for the noted Dunster homespuns and broadcloths. Here the West Somerset weavers once flocked to offer their wares to cloth merchants who came from all parts of Europe to purchase the finely woven cloths for which the district was famed,

Assam Bridal Custom

Custom has Imposed upon brides in Assam a considerable amount of trouble before their prospective husbands are safely tied up. On her wedding day the bride is garishly attired in a gown flashing with brilliants, and with a band of jewels holding up her veil. She goes to the house of the bridegroom-to-be. The door is open. The bride and her attendants rush in and serrch the house. The search continues until the bride discovers the seemingly reluctant bridegroom. When found he resists vigorously before the bride finally overcomes him and carries him off in triumph. The growing of tea is the sole occupation of Assam, and it is after the hustle and bustle of the harvest that the Assam man, or rather Assam woman, takes her mate.

There was nothing, however, to be gained by further argument. Either she and Craig must take matters into their own hands and run away or pressure must be brought to bear from some new source. The alternative, giving each other up, was unthink-

As soon as a slammed door announced her father's departure, she called Craig on the telephone.

"There is no time to be lost, Craig, Father is about to have me taken to Europe. But first, I've a bit of an idea would like to try out. #### OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipa-tion, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

THERE are the great catchers of yesterday? The wind has blown them all away, and big league club owners sigh and wonder when the wind of the baseball fates will blow another Bresnahan or Kling or Schalk or Killifer or Criger or Schang or Snyder into the game. Time was when there were plenty of great receivers, men who could handle their pitchers with craft and who could slug the ball in the pinches and whose work behind the bat thrilled the fans.

"O'Farrell of the Cards was such a man in 1926 and he was the talk of the circuit, but he had only one great year. Hartnest of the Cubs is a fine receiver, and Hogan of the Giants is regarded as a sure comer. But great catchers are coming to be very scarce. When the Pirates finshed young Hemsley, the rookie, on the baseball screen late last summer the experts did not watch him until they began to talk about him. He had that indefinable thing called class behind the bat, He had aptitude for the many critical plays that closed suddenly in on him. He was dangerous at the bat. He had speed and color and a lot of vim. So naturally they are looking forward with interest to what the youngster will do next season.

Ralston Hemsley is just twenty-one years old. He started his baseball career early. In fact, Hemsley started a lot of important things early in life. He was catching for his father's semipro team in Syracuse,

The Treasure of the Bucoleon

SYNOPSIS

In New York, Hugh Chesby, English World war veteran, re-lates a story of a treasure in Constantinople in the existence of which his uncle, Lord Chesby, firmly believes. A cablegram notifies Hugh of his uncle's sailing for New York. At the dock Hugh and his chum, Jack Nash, learn from Watkins, Lord Chesby's valet, that the old gentleman has left with a stranger, purporting to be a friend of Hugh. A mysterious telephone message notifies Hugh that his uncle is in a hospital, dying, victim of an assassin. Before his death he babbles of the treasure, and tells them he was stabbed by "Tou-tou." With Lord Chesby's body, Hugh and Jack sail for England. in London Hugh and Jack meet their war buddy, Nikka Zarenko, famous gypsy violinist, and pore famous gypsy violinist, and pore over some old documents seem ingly having a bearing on the treasure and its location. #### CHAPTER III

The Hilyer Party

Mr. Penfellow, the vicar, received us at the west door of the parish church. a gigantic edifice which was all that was left of the once poble foundation of the priory of St. Cuthbert of Crowden. He escorted Hugh-and incldentally Nikka and me-up the center aisle to a high-walled pew directly under the choir.

The tempered light that stole through stained-glass windows left most of the space in shadow, but I descried beyond the breadth of the crossing a second box-like pew identical with ours, and in it a company whose gay raiment and gabbling ways were out of place in contrast with the stolid plety of the village folk and neighboring gentry.

"There's Hilyer,' muttered Hugh in my ear.

But we had no time to spare for observing the county's black sheep. Mr. Penfellow's quavering, nasal voice began to intone the stately rite of the Established Church for the dead. The shrill voices of the choir-boys responded. Our eyes became fastened upon the oblong casket, resting on its low catafalque under the choir railing, which contained the body of James Chesby, that quaint, whimsical, Twentleth century knight errant, who had upheld the traditions of his race by tilting over the world in pursuit of a prize which all sober men proclaimed to be impossible of attainment.

And he had as good as found it! Laughed at, derided, mocked and ridiculed, he had persisted doggedly to what he had regarded as his life work. He had succeeded where all others had failed or feared to venture. And at the last, probably when he envisaged complete success in his grasp, he had accepted death rather than yield the prize to any but his heir. He must have had good stuff in him, that slight. wan-faced sllp of a man, whom I had only seen as he lay on his deathbed in the hospital, his eyes shining to the end with indomitable spirit.

As I thought of him, cut and backed by that brute Toutou, I found my fingers clenching on the book-rack in front of me; and glancing down, I saw Hugh's knuckles, too, were white. We exchanged a grim look. For the first time we understood fully that we were playing a man's game, a game in which there was no limit. And we experienced the thirst for action which comes from a desire to slake unsatisfied vengeance. This task we had set ourselves to was more than a hunt for treasure. It was likewise a pursuit of James Chesby's murderers.

My eyes chanced to stray toward the opposite side of the crossing, and in the shadows that hovered over the Hilyer pew I glimpsed a pair of eyes that gleamed with the evil green light of a heast of prey. For an instant only they showed. Then the shadows moved, and they disappeared. Startled, I tooked again, and saw nothing. It must have been fancy, I told myself, a trick of the sunbeams filtered through the particolored glass of the windows.

The formal service was soon ended. and after the congregation had filed out, a little knot of men from Chesby farms poised the casket on their shoulders and paced slowly after Mr. l'enfellow and the verger down the broad, winding stairs to the illared crypt. At the east end, beneath the altar, the verger unlocked a massy oaken door and behind that an Iron grate. There was a minute's delay while ae lit tall candles, and then the tittle procession marched on to the last resting place of the Chesbys. "A very sad chapter in the glorious nistory of this ancient family, Mr. Nach," murmured the vicar with moist eyes. "But surely no man could hope

The tradition is that the old lords were burled in their mail. They were all noted as warriors. Ah, Lord Chesby," as Hugh rose and walked over to us. "This has been very sad, very sad, company." "I am afraid I have been thinking of the criminals who murdered my uncle," said Hugh curtly. "You have been very kind, sir. I should like to thank you and everybody else for what they have done. Where's Nikka. Jack? Gone up? Do you mind if we leave you to shut the vault, Mr. Penfellow? Thank you again."

He hooked his arm in mine, and together we passed out of that sepulchral chamber, with its great company of illustrious dead. Upstairs in the church Nikka was awaiting us.

"I'm sorry, Hugh," he exclaimed. taking Hugh's other arm, "I couldn't wait. There's something in me that rebels against your churches. I feel the same way about mosques and synagogues, for that matter. And as for being buried down in a close, stone-lined hole in the ground, herded in with other dead!" He shivered violently. "I hope not! If there is a God -and there must be some kind of one to make the trees and hills and the grass and to put music in one's heart -why, I pray to Him that I shall lie on a hillside, with only the trees around me and the sun beating down.

Hugh smiled. "Each to his own, Nikka. You are a gypsy, a son of the open road. I am an Englishman, son to these stone walls, that old house we came from. So long as they and I last we shall be indivisible."

It was a scar through the park to Castle Chesby. As we entered the drive, Watkins, who had driven back with the servants, came around the house from the stables and started to run toward us. "Somebody broke in whilst we were at church, your ludship," he panted when he was within earshot. We were all startled. "Anything missing?" questioned Hugh sharply. "I can't say as yet, your ludship They seem to 'ave been only in the unoccupied parts. I fancy, sir, they

'adn't the time to go through the west wing." We hastened into the house after him. A rear door had been forced. Desks, wardrobes, chests of drawers, closets, armories, every corner or piece of furniture that might conceal anything had been theroughly ransacked. Drawers and their contents were still piled helter-skelter on the floor. "Do you suppose they could have found anything?" I asked.

Watkins shook his head positively. "I am sure they could not, Mr. Nash, sir, I think I know most of the stuff that they have gone through. 'Is late ludship was not in the 'abit of keeping a thing he was precious of in the east wing or the main house, sir."

We left Watkins to supervise the servants in re-establishing order in the unset rooms, and returned o the west wing. In the gunroom, Hugh lit a ci; arette and straddled his legs in front of the fire. Nikka and I dropped into the lounge that faced the hearth. "We'l'?" said Hugh, and his lips had resumed the grim line I had noticed in church. "Who are they?" I suggested. "Good Idea," appoved Hugh, and he rang the bell by the door. Watkins arrived with the celerity

"Watty, I wish you'd make inquiries along the roads, and find out if any strangers have been seen around the place this morning. Oh, yes, and tell the servants not to talk. You understand?"

"That was another good idea," sald Nikka. "Our best bet is to keep our mouths shut. They, whoever, they are, have us guessing. Maybe we can make them guess a little. And that reminds me, do you realize that they have saved us quite a bit of searching? I'd suggest that we waste no time in going thoroughly over this wing, our-

We set to work with gusto. On my indeed. And yet, as I was saying to suggestion—they nominated me captain in this enterprise because of my supposed architectural knowledge-we commenced with the gunroom. We examined it from end to end, tapped the paneling for secret recesses, examined the furniture. No result. After luncheon, we began on the upper floor and went over the entire wing in detail. We measured the different rooms. I even took outer measurements. We studied chimneys. We sounded floors. Immersed in the hunt and buffled by lack of success, we caused Watkins to put off dinner, and worked on until after nine o'clock. Still no success.

We went to bed that night, tired out and disgusted. But in the morning we arose with sharpened interest and determined to canvass the possibilities in the parts of the house the invaders had searched. Again we took careful measurements, Inside and out. Again we sounded paneling, investigated recesses and chimney spaces. We nunt ed for two days. Then we went back, and re-examined the west wing a second time. We ended up in stark disappointment in the gunroom.

Nikka, who had relapsed into one of his frequent spells of silent contemplation, jumped suddenly from his

Watkins cleared his throat.

"Well, that doesn't help any," said Hugh, "Whoever did it must have taken to the woods and cut across to the Channel road." "They need only 'ave dropped over the park wall to reach the London road, your ludship," suggested Watkins. "Oh, I see your point," agreed Hugh. "Then Ullyer's people might have seen them. I'll find an opportuntly to speak to him about tt." "Thank you, your indship."

And Watkins withdrew, "Mr. and Mrs. Hilver, your ludship!" he announced a short time afterward. Hilyer was a lean, rangy chap, with a hatchet face and close-set eyes. He looked what he was; good blood gone

His wife was a handsome, statuesque woman, awfully well turned out. She was absolutely in the mode, as perfect as a show-girl in a Gayety production. And she had cold eyes that saw everything, and never lost their icy glitter even when her manner was warmest. "Hullo, Hugh!" exclaimed Hilyer. "Frightfully glad to see you home again, but rotten sorry for the occa-You don't know Mrs. Hilyer,

"Thanks, Hilyer-" just a shade of emphasis on the family name-"It was kind of you to come. We are keeping bachelors' ball, Mrs. Hilyer, and I am afraid our resources are limited."

"Don't let that bother you," protested Mrs. Hilyer affably, "and if you and your friends want any lively diversion on the quiet, remember we keep liberty hall over at Little Depping. We wanted our-"

But I lost the thread of her conversation as I found myself staring into those same evil green eyes that I had seen peering out of the shadows of the Hilyer pew the morning of the funeral. The man they belonged to had entered the room immediately after the Hilyers. He would have challenged attention in any company with his amazing personality, the strange force that radiated from him. He had the long arms, short, thick legs and enormous body of a gorilla, capped by beautifully modeled head. But his eyes were his outstanding feature, They were large and vividly green like a cat's. The man was handsome in an intellectual way. Yet I found him repulsive.

Hilyer, undeterred by Hugh's frosty reeting, dropped his hand on this man's shoulder, and began introducing

"Signor Teodoreschi, gentlemen! The Italian chemist. And my other friends, Countess Sandra Vassilievna and Count Serge Vassilievich 1 l ought to explain they are brother and sister!"

This last with a well-bred leer. "And Hilmi Bey, gentlemen! If you now your Levant, you would recognize him without introduction."

I saw Nikka shift his attention at this from the two Russians to the Levantine, an olive-skinned individual, good-looking in a portly way, with a predatory beaked nose, effeminate eyes and a sensual mouth.

"You see we're rather an international crowd-what?" Mrs. Hilyer was drawling.

"Very interesting, I'm sure," said lugh, cold as ever. "You won't mind if I present my friends to you as a group? Thanks. This is Mr. Zaranko and Mr. Nash."

"Not Mr. Nikka Zaranko?" exclaimed Mrs. Illyer. "Oh, I say, it's a treat to meet you! How wonderfully you play!

And she wrenched Nikka away from his obvious intent to probe the Levantine, and carried him off to a corner, along with Vassllievich, a slim-waisted, old-young man, with a hard, dissipated face. Hilmi, after a look around, joined the gorilla-like Italian, who was turning the pages of a re view on the table, with occasional flashing glances around the room Montey Hilyer was volubly describing the prospects of the racing season to Hugh, and ; was left by process of elimination to entertain the Countess Sandra Vassilievna.

She was a dark girl, with great sleepy, almond-shaped eyes and a sinuous, willowy algure.

"You're an American, aren't you?" she said with a slight accent. "How do you happen 'o know Lord Chesby?" 1 explained to her.

"He went to New York to earn his lving! Ah, that is an old story, Mr. Nash. Look at my brother and me! Exiles! Forced to turn our hands to whatever we can do. The Old world is a sad place these days. What shall you and your friends do now? But ! suppose you will help Lord Chesby enjoy the life of an English country gentleman."

"For a while, yes," I agreed.

"And then?" "I don't know. America, I suppose

One must earn a living." "So you would leave him-Lord Chesby, I mean?"

I began to have a disagreeable feel ng that I was being pumped.

commented. "It may be he did ill to leave Amerlca," she suggested. "One is so safe there. In Europe who can say what the future holds? Ah, Mr. Nash, were I an American I should stay at home.' "That sounds like a threat," 1 laughed. "God forbid!" she ejaculated with true Russian plety. "It is that I envy your security.'

"Are you staying in England?" asked.

"Only temporarily. We shall be in Paris shortly." I happened to look up at that mo nent, and surprised the Italian in one of his lightning surveys of the room. "Your friend there seems exclusive,"

"Oh, he?" she said bustily. "He speaks no English, and he is sensilive about it. He talks little in any case. These scientists, you know." Hilmi Bey left the Italian's side, and sauntered over to us. "A beautiful old room," be said 'Has it any history?"

"It's the oldest part of the present building," I told him, "I understand it represents a reconstruction during Elizabeth's reign."

Planes Without Pilots

Airplanes without pilots have been made to loop the loop by wireless control from the ground. Many other difficult performances have been made possible by a delicate new system within the plane, operated by wireless waves.

A receiving set in the plane, designed to interpret and act upon impulses transmitted from a ground control station, acts as the mechanical pilot's "brain." The controls are operated by compressed air motors actuated by the wireless set.

"Lucile is the Happiest Girl'

So many mothers nowadays talk about giving their children fruit juices, as if this were a new discovery. As a matter of fact, for over fifty years, mothers have been accomplishing results far surpassing anything you can secure from home prepared fruit juices, by using pure, wholesome Callfornia Fig Syrup, which is prepared under the most exacting laboratory supervision from ripe California Figs, richest of all fruits in laxative and nourishing properties. It's marvelous to see how billous, weak, feverish, sallow, constipated, under-nourished children respond to its gentle influence; how their breath clears up, color flames in their cheeks, and they become sturdy, playful, energetic again. A Western mother, Mrs. H. J. Stoll, Valley P. O., Nebraska, says; "My little daughter, Roma Lucile, was constipated from babyhood, I became worried about her and decided to give her some California Fig Syrup. It stopped her constinution quick; and the way it improved her color and made her pick up made me realize how run-down she had been. She is so sturdy and well now, and always in such good humor that neighbors say she's the happiest girl In the West."

Like all good things, California Fig. Syrup is imitated, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the name "California" on the carton.

Cruiser Bill Fight Nears the End; Supply Measures for Army and Navy.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

BROUGHT to time by threats of night sessions made by Senator Hale, chairman of the naval affairs committee, the senators opposing the fifteen cruiser bill abandoned their fillbuster tactics and consented to lim-Itation of debate on the measure. This was to take effect at noon on February 4 and the prospect was that a vote would be reached by the middle of the week. If the pacifists succeed in attaching amendments to the house bill making necessary the appointment of a conference committee, there might be a final fillbuster against the conference report. One amendment was favored by President Coolidge-the elimination of the clause fixing dates for commencement of the construction of the cruisers. It was made known at the White House that if the bill passed even without the time clause, the President will ask for an appropriation for an immediate start in the building program.

Representative Britten of Illinois, urging passage of the bill, said early in the week that he was "sure the time limit will be pleasing to President-Elect Hoover." But that gentleman immediately telegraphed to President Coolidge that he had made no public or private statement upon this question, and added: "As you know, I warmly support your views and you may so inform others if you wish to do so." This telegram was handed to Senator Hale, who read it to the on the extraordinary prosperity which the nation is enjoying, but warned the country that this can be continued only by the exercise of rigid economy in federal, state and local expenditures. While admitting that as a result of the expansion of the country federal expenditures show a tendency to rise, Mr. Coolidge warned that the greatest menace to continued prosperity now lies in the rapidly mounting costs of local and state governments. This heavy drain on the earnings of the people, he said, "is a red flag warning us of the danger of depression and a repetition of the disaster that overtook the country in the closing days of 1920."

The President warmly defended his policy of drastic economy in federal expenditures, and was seconded in this by Director of the Budget Lord.

RECEIVING few political visitors and devoting part of each week to fishing, Herbert Hoover is having a fine time down in Florida. Most interesting of his callers last week was Al Smith, who was stopping in Coral Gables. With John J. Rascob and W. F. Kenney, the recent Democratic standard bearer drove over to Belle Island and spent half an hour chatting with the man who defeated him. Later he said to the newspaper men: "I found Mr. Hoover very friendly and affable. We told each other some of the funny things that happened during the campaign to each of us, but did not talk of anything important. I can't go into that any more."

Thursday Mr. Hoover, still eager to eatch a sailfish, went to Long Key on the yacht Saunterer. His guests were Justice and Mrs. Harlan F. Stone. Verne Marshall of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan. Correspondents at Miami Beach now believe that Mr. Hoover has decided on his cabinet but will not announce his selections until immediately after his inauguration. They are satisfied

Lastly, the change is declared to mark the definite passing of unequal treaties, including the abolition of extraterritoriality, the rendition of foreign concessions, as well as the termination of foreigners' rights to navigation in Chinese inland waterways.

SPAIN had another of her abortive rebellions last week. In Ciudad Real, a hundred miles south of Madrid, body of artillery revolted and ran their guns out into the streets ready to shoot up the city; and in some other places there were incipient uprisings. The government troops were sent into action promptly, and promises of immunity to all privates and noncommissioned officers induced the mutineers to return to their barracks. Their officers were all arrested for trial by court-martial, and Sanchez Guerra, former Conservative party leader, was seized at Valencia.

WALDEMARES, dictator of Lithuania, said he had uncovered a plot against his regime by men who were acting with the knowledge of President Smetona, and he caused the arrest of the chief of staff of the army and eighteen high officers of the Kovno garrison. The dictator's opponents declare he has been supporting the Soviet policies against Poland.

L EON TROTZKY, that thern in the side of the Russian Soviet government which he helped to create, has reaped the reward for his continuous plotting against it. He was taken from his place of involuntary retirement in southeastern Russia and doomed to exile. At first no country could be found that would receive him, but finally Turkey consented to let him be sent there. So he, at latest reports, was on his way to Angora. His friends, in Berlin and elsewhere,

JUNIOR TOPIC-A Boy Who Was INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC-Turning From Sin to God, YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC-The Way to Forgiveness.

1. Jesus Is Lord and Christ (Acts :32-36).

In order to induce repentance and faith. Jesus must be presented as both Lord and Christ. The presentation of Jesus as even the unusual son of Joseph and Mary will not convict of sin. One reason for the vanishing sense of sin is the failure of ministers and Sunday School teachers to declare the Lordship and Messiahship of Jesus of Nazareth. Peter proved Jesus to be Lord and Christ by

1. The miracles which He wrought (Acts 2:22). He performed before the very eyes of the people such mighty deeds as to demonstrate His Lordship. 2. His resurrection from the dead (Acts 2:24-32). By His resurrection He was declared to be the Son of God with power (Rom, 1:4). His resurrection was attested to by many witnesses. 3. The outpouring of the Spirit (Acts 2:15-21).

Peter declared that the coming of he Spirit on Pentecost was the fulfillment of Joel's prophecy.

II. Repent and Believe the Gospel Acts 2:37-39). Peter's gospel message convicted the lews of their sins. When they eried out, he commanded them to repent and be baptized. The evidence of their faith in Christ was manifested in their conviction of sin, and their penitence was shown in their confession of Christ in baptism.

III. The Forgiving God (Luke 15:

The center of things in this parable is not the prodigal son, nor his brother, but the "certain man who had two sons." This narrative is a most picturesque and dramatic portrayal of the history of man from his fall to his reconciliation with God. 1. The son's insubordination (v. 12).

He became tired of the restraints of home. His desire for freedom moved him wilfully to choose to leave hometo throw off the constraint of his fa ther's rule. Sin is the desire to indulge selfish purposes, free from the restraint of rightful authority.

At the request of the son, the fa ther "divided unto them his living." Man is a free being. God has committed unto man his own destiny,

2. The son's departure (v. 13).
