PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Blabon and sons of Chula Vista, Calif., arrived here Thursday morning for a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blabon, and brothers, R. C. and Bert. The boys' parents arrived here last week for an extended visit. With the arrival here of the youngest son, Otis, the family is enjoying a reunion and will celebrate today the birthday of Mrs. R. C. Blabon.

Church services will be held Easter Sunday at the Catholic church, at 9 a. m. and 4:15 p. m. Father Dube will officiate.

Rev. James Crutchfield of Nogales spent Sunday in Patagonia.

D. T. Hooks of Phoenix is visiting his son, W. C. Hooks, and family for a few days.

Postmaster H. B. Riggs went to Nogales Tuesday and brought Mrs. Riggs home from the hospital, where she recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

There will be an Easter service at the Methodist church here Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. James Crutchfield, pastor.

Mrs. Chester Broyles was an the refreshment committee for Unity Chapter, Easter Star, a dance to Nogales early Thursday afternoon to assist with her work for the lodge meeting, held that night.

Lee C. Zimmeler, proprietor of Circle Z guest ranch, went to Nogales early this week to meet a large party of guests who came from Philadelphia to enjoy our wonderful climate and the unsurpassed accommodations of this well-known "wild west" playground.

Mrs. Roy Floyd returned this week from Los Angeles, where she had been called to the bedside of her mother, who passed away following an attack of double pneumonia. Mr. Floyd, former of the 3-R mine, met his wife in Nogales upon her return from the coast city.

School teachers of Patagonia were guests Thursday night at a dinner party at the Squaw Gulch ranch of Mr. and Mrs. William Swyres. The evening was greatly enjoyed.

Roland Blanchard, mining engineer of Patagonia, will deliver a lecture next Tuesday before the geological department of the University of Arizona on "The Interpretation of Leached Outcrops," the phase of mining geology in which he specializes.

Note to our eastern friends: The boys of Patagonia are out playing marbles. Spring is here.

The Misses Rosa and Bertie Wood, Harshaw school teachers, spent the Easter holidays at their home in Wilcox.

Mrs. Richard Farrell and son, Will, of Harshaw were Nogales visitors Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and son, Jack, were county seat visitors Tuesday.

W. J. Mitchell, mining engineer of Nogales, has returned from his mines in Sonora, where he was all ready to resume operations when the revolution began.

The country home of Judge Frank J. Duffy of Nogales, near the Santa Cruz river bridge, is nearing completion.

Mal Eason of Canille met with an unusual accident this week. He was struggling to take off the lid of a milk can which stuck tightly, when it suddenly came off, causing Mr. Eason to sit down hard and suddenly upon the floor. The shock was too much, and resulted in Mal suffering dislocation of both hips. He is in a serious condition.

Elgin and Canille women will give a chicken dinner soon to raise funds for the purchase of a fence for the community cemetery.

Mrs. Beulah Bateman, teacher at Rivers school, spent the week-end at Elgin, the guest of Mrs. Elizabeth Neel.

Mrs. Grace A. Farrell, state supervisor of home-making in rural schools, visited the Elgin school on Monday, went to Nogales Tuesday for a conference with County School Superintendent, Mrs. J. W. Larimore, visited Patagonia school on Wednesday, and Harshaw and Washington Camp schools Thursday.

Elbert Kinsley of San Rafael valley was a Nogales visitor Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John McCarty of the Vaughn district were county seat visitors Monday.

Pat Hayhurst, official of the state industrial commission, was a special caller Saturday at the Patagonian office. He was accompanied by his charming wife.

MRS. ASHBURN LEAVES SONS DULK OF ESTATE

The last will and testament of the late Minnie Ashburn of Tucson, formerly a resident of Patagonia, who died March 14, has been filed for probate in the superior court of Santa Cruz county. The document names Clea, Guy and Miles Perry, children by her first husband, as chief beneficiaries, giving to her daughter, Mrs. Hulda Laney and Zelda Doster, one son, Marshall F. Ashburn, $100 each. The last three were chief beneficiaries under the will of their father, O. F. Ashburn, who was killed several years ago in an automobile accident near Vall station.

RACE OF LOCAL INTEREST

A horse race for a purse of $2000 will be run in Tucson April 6 between Buc Parker's horse and one belonging to Gen. L. H. Manning. Many local cattlemen and "punchers" will motor to the Old Pueblo to witness the contest. Parker's horse is the favorite in the betting.

THAT TERRIBLE WAR

(From the Miami Silver Belt)

A press representative on the ground at the first day of battle of Mazatlan used a full column describing the fierce fighting between the advancing rebel forces and the entrenched federals. One gathered it was a real battle, until at the end the list of casualties was announced. Then we learned that the rebels lost one man killed and two slightly wounded, while the federals denied they had lost any men.

This cruel war ought to be stopped.

The National Association of Wool Manufacturers reports that Arizona ranks second among all states in the number of Angora goats. It has 185,000 or thereabouts, without counting some of us who think we're goats once in a while.

NEW HOTEL ESPLENDOR OPENS AGAIN FOR BUSINESS

The Esplendor, Santa Cruz county's beautiful hotel, which tops one of the rolling hills commanding a vast view of the broad sweeps of the Santa Cruz valley, a view of the state by Santa Rita range crowned by the towering peaks of Old Baldy, as well as the jagged Azul range far south in old Mexico, opened last Saturday. There were over one hundred guests at the dinner on the opening night. The 25th Infantry band furnished the music at the dinner and for the dance.

In spite of the lateness of the season, and the revolutionary conditions in Mexico, Leo Dillingham, managing director, says that the prospects are so favorable and the conditions here so good that the hotel will be a great success. Santa Cruz County, well-known, and those who hold stock in the hotel, feel the same way about the future of the hotel.

Out-of-Town People Attend

Among the out-of-town visitors at the opening of the hotel Saturday night, the following names appear on the register: Mrs. Augusta Hughes of Phoenix, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Lockhart of Phoenix, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoyland of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Becker, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. De Jong, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. McLellan, of Phoenix. Several of the party came for the opening by airplane.

Gas Explosion at the Esplendor

An explosion of gas under a boiler in the newly opened Hotel Esplendor here at 8 o'clock Tuesday seriously injuring J. E. McGuire, engine room in charge. McGuire received severe injuries about the face and head and burns on both arms.

DEATH OF MARSHAL FOCH

Citizens of all the Allied nations will note with sorrow the death of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, while those of former enemy countries must pay to this military mastery a tribute of respect.

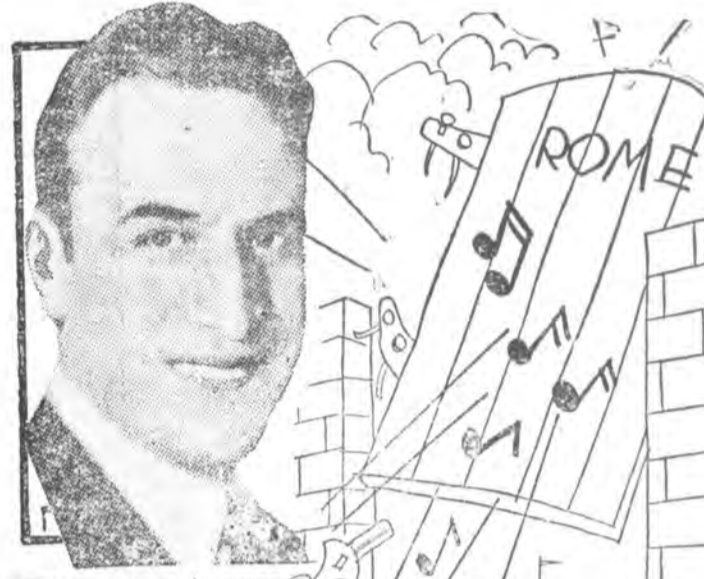

Born in 1851, this great French soldier was graduated as an artillery instructor and later commandant at the College of War, becoming a brigadier-general in 1907.

At the outbreak of the World War he was given command of the Ninth Army and led the French center in the repulse of the Germans in the first battle of the Marne. In March, 1918, he was placed in supreme command of all the Allied forces on the western front, and immediately developed a plan of campaign which brought victory on November 11 following.

His name will live in history as the conqueror of the Central Powers and commander of the most formidable military force the world has ever seen.

Recent scientific experiments show that kissing stimulates the heart action and is thus a healthful form of exercise. With the proper environment, we wouldn't object to doing our daily dozen.

Italy, Last of Europe To Succumb To American Music

WILLIAM SCOTTI
Evening breeze seems to say Time to be on your way, Down where the sun goes down

Italians True to Their Native Music

New York City.—Coming from Italy, the people of which are the most musical in the world, William Scotti, famous orchestra conductor, has an interesting theory about the great and sudden popularity of modern American jazz abroad.

"During the World War, before America became an Ally," he says, "she was the only nation with time to develop her music. She brought jazz in its earliest stage, into the trenches with her. Her foreign comrades-in-arms received it during what was probably the highest emotional peak in their lives. They took it back home with them. This was the beginning of its steadily increasing popularity," Mr. Scotti explains.

"Italy alone, of all the countries, did not, until today, begin to know and accept jazz. Now it is heard all over my native land. There are two reasons for Italy's belated recognition of jazz.

COWBOY "COPS" PROTECTING TOWN OF CANANEA

Charles E. Wiswall, president of the Cananea Cattle Company of Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, who is on a business trip to the Greene Cattle Company, a subsidiary of the Cananea concern, states that "law and order" reigns in his town by virtue of the efficiency of his cowboys, who have supplanted the regular police force there. The regular "cops" were drafted by the Mexican rebel army for military duty, leaving the town without official police protection. Mr. Wiswall, whose business interests are quite extensive in the Sonora town, took upon his organization the task of preserving order.

Under "Chief" Wiswall's cowboy reign, Cananea is carrying on business as usual, without fear, while the surrounding country is in turmoil over the chaotic state of government affairs.

The mining companies of the Cananea district are said to be operating to capacity despite the warlike conditions that prevail in the state of Sonora.

SPANIARDS MAKE LONG FLIGHT

The Spanish aviators Ignacio Jimenez and Francisco Iglesias landed their plane, the Jesus del Gran poder, at Bahla on Tuesday, completing a flight across the south Atlantic.

Bahla, or Sao Salvador, is on the northeast coast of Brazil, located about 800 miles northeast of Rio de Janeiro, the goal of their flight. It is about 4000 miles from Seville, Spain. This is the longest non-stop flight yet accomplished by airmen.

Federals Advancing Without Resistance

Mexico City, March 26.—The Associated Press correspondent, Clarence Duboise, gives out the following regarding the federal army's movement westward on its campaign to suppress the revolution:

The federal war machine rolled on, northward and westward, without meeting any rebel resistance that was reported to national headquarters here.

The federal war machine rolled on, but was issued because no messages had arrived from the field to alter the situation as reported late last night. At Chapultepec Castle it was assumed that the commanders in the field were engaged in moving their troops forward into Sinaloa and Chihuahua and had encountered no situation requiring an urgent report.

Presidential circles breathed easier tonight with the knowledge, as reported by General Jaime Carrillo, that the insurgent siege of Mazatlan was sover and that the rebels had begun to withdraw northward. The entire Pacific coast campaign changed from a federal defensive to an active offensive.

BIG STRIKE OF COPPER ORE AT SANTO NINO MINE REPORTED

From Duquesne comes reports of a new strike of copper ore. The mine recently produced a large amount of good ore, but the losses at that time decided to turn the property back to the owners. Unfortunately that was done before copper began to climb in price.

The Miami Copper Company, operators of the Santo Nino, have just purchased, at a cost of $12,000, a large air compressor and other machinery, which has been taken to the mine for installation.

The company has also acquired a fleet of trucks, it is reported, to facilitate transportation of ore to the loading platforms at Patagonia.

COPPER REACHES HIGH PRICE

New York, March 28.—Refined copper prices reached a new post-war peak when the metal sold yesterday for 25 cents a pound, domestic, an advance of 1 cent a pound, after consumers had bought practically all of the metal offered at 24 cents. The previous post-war record for domestic copper was 23½ cents, attained in 1919.

Copper for export was quoted at about ¼ cent a pound higher, but it is expected to climb in line with the domestic quotations. Heavy foreign buying has been one of the chief factors in the recent upward price movement.

Senator Andy Bettwy Returns

Senator Andy Bettwy of Santa Cruz county returned last week from Phoenix, where he has been serving his second term in the state legislature. He was accompanied home by his family, who made their home in the capital city during the legislative session.

Congress has a "joint committee on the disposition of useless papers." To which might be referred the first ten amendments to the Constitution, commonly known as the Bill of Rights.

REBEL FORGES NEARING NACO ENTRENCHMENTS

Bisbee, Ariz., March 27.—Quiet prevailed in the western part of the international border today despite the movement of Mexican rebel forces to a point within eight miles of the federal's entrenchments at Naco, Sonora.

Generals Lucas Contreras and Augustino Olachea, commanders at Naco, expressed the belief that the threatened attack from rebels under Fausto Tapete would not develop.

To the south there were signs that federal forces had pushed farther northward into rebel territory. The newspaper representatives at Culiacan, Sinaloa, report that a federal column was approaching that city from Durango, and that a rebel force had been sent out to meet it.

Rebel headquarters asserted a small detachment of revolutionists still were besieging Mazatlan and that the principal western insurgent army under General Francisco R. Manzo was heading southward for Tepic after abandoning its attack upon Mazatlan.

The federals near Culiacan was looked upon as the chief menace to the revolutionary cause in the north, as it is a potential instrument for preventing Manzo's possible retreat to Nogales, Sonora.

Federal cavalry also was reported approaching Sonora, Sonora, 45 miles south of Ajo, Ariz. The village, which has about 100 inhabitants, has been garrisoned by 17 rebel soldiers. The 7 men were reported as having fled at the approach of the cavalry.

Sightseeing privileges went up at Nogales, Sonora, it is said, where the rebel headquarters posted notice that Americans crossing into Mexico must have identification cards and passports, which were to be issued by the rebels at 1 peso, or 50 cents in American money.

NOGALES ELKS INITIATE LARGE CLASS TUESDAY NIGHT

The Nogales Lodge of Elks held a banquet at the Cavern Cafe, Nogales, Sonora, last Tuesday night, following initiation of a class of 17 candidates.

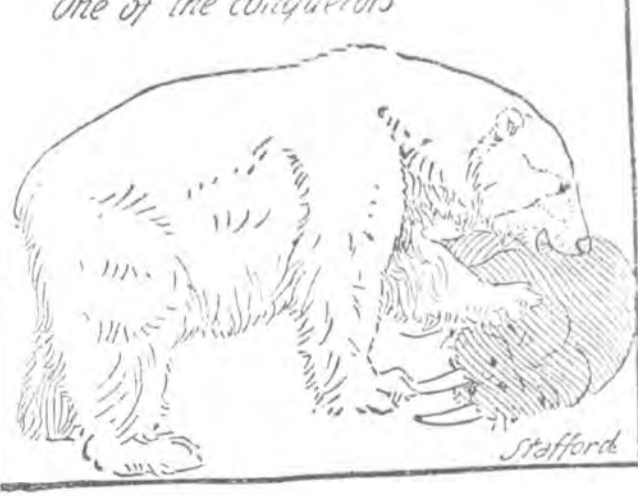

The guest of honor at the meeting and banquet was Fred Curtis of Globe, deputy grand exalted ruler, who was paying his official annual visit to Nogales lodge.

Ten candidates initiated were: Roy Adams, W. D. Blackmer, Walter L. Bristol, Louis Escalada, Alan Gillespie Jr., Clifton E. Hemperly, Albert J. Kurtz, R. Q. Leatherman, William J. Loftus, Robert M. McCusky, Charles R. Miller, James W. Mason, Bonnell Noon, Ralph Peterson, C. H. Schmidt, R. P. Tinnin and Herbert R. Wood.

Approximately 250 Elks attended the initiation and banquet.

EDISON ON POLITICS

In a recent interview Thomas A. Edison discussed government, politics and business in characteristically direct fashion, and referred pointedly to the wastefulness of government bureaucracy.

Speaking of the government's ventures into the business field, he declared that the government never really goes into business, for it never makes ends meet, adding that it just mixes a little business with a lot of politics and no one ever gets a chance to find out what is actually going on.

Mr. Edison is not pessimistic, however, but expresses his belief that continued progress and prosperity lie ahead of us. He referred to what may be expected during the Hoover administration as follows: "One of the highest duties of the president is to keep the government out of business. He would perform a great public service if he did nothing else. That is one of the many things that we can trust Hoover to do. That is his biggest job, and I should include in that job the clearing out of the bureaucracies which are growing up in Washington and becoming a wasteful nuisance."

President Hoover may, indeed, keep the government out of further disastrous excursions into the field of business, but he will find it very difficult to get rid of the army of bureaucrats who harass the people while feeding at the public crib. They appear to be too strongly entrenched ever to be dislodged.

TOWN MOURNS DRUNKARD

Strangers seeing flags at half mast and a great funeral procession in New City, N. Y., the other day might have reasonably supposed that a mayor or other dignitary had passed away. But it was only Michael Whelan, the village drunkard, who had died.

Once a prosperous contractor, his weakness for liquor proved Whelan's undoing and he had spent one-half of his 54 years in jail. Yet, because of his kindness to another likable quality, he retained the affection of his fellow citizens, who raised $1000 to give him an elaborate funeral.

He was also a hero of a sort, because of his action in saving the jail from destruction by fire a few years ago, and it had long been the custom for county officials to give him an annual Christmas party.

New City sincerely mourns Michael Whelan, not because he was a drunkard, but in spite of it.

THINKING OUT LOUD

This week I think of pins, hippopotami, words, and epigrams.

Count your blessings. Be glad there's a pinhead on a pin so it won't slip through.

Be glad, too—if you happen to be a fisherman—that when Noah led the animals into the ark he didn't let the only two hippopotami step on the only two anglerworms, for if those only two hippopotami had stepped upon those only two anglerworms, the parents of all anglerworms-to-be, think of all the anglerwormless ages we should have had, the baitless hooks, the fishless moats. It makes one shiver.

You know "hippopotamus" is a queer word. It always sounds blasphemous to me. Doesn't it? Clench your teeth; say it loudly, fiercely. "Damn, damn, damn, HIPPOPOTAMUS!"

Have you noticed how often words sound like what they mean? A hippopotamus couldn't be anything else than the clumsy, heavy beast it is; a gazelle has to be graceful. Doesn't the word "delicious" make you smack your lips and think of whipped cream desserts? Isn't it true that the ugly sound of "ape" is almost invariably in words that denote ugly things? Snipe, for example, and swipe, and wipe, and gripe. The "uts" aren't so good, either—glut, rut, slut, smut. A rose by any other name may smell just as sweet, but I'm glad "love" is spelled the way it is. And I don't think I'd like the editor any better if his name were Spinkdoodle.

But 12 words I wouldn't mind having for my epitaph are the 12 carved on Ed Schefflin's monument at Tombstone: "A dutiful son, a faithful husband, a kind brother, a true friend." That seems to take in everything.

Another epitaph—this time a facetious one: "She wasn't a good girl, but she was good company." At that, there could be worse things said about one. What is being good company, anyway? Is it being clever and charming yourself, or is it making the other fellow think he's clever and charming? All right, divide your friends into two classes. Which ones are dearest to you, the ones you admire or the ones who make you admire yourself?

MAY I POETIZE?

FRUIT
A burnt orange sun
Slid into the apple green
Of the sea.
To my thrilled, uplifted eyes
The colors of the evening sky
Were apricot and peach.
And then, damit (or hippopotamus)
I slipped on a banana.
Which concludeth the weekly loud-thinker!

Mr. C. F. Redlich, the successful expert, says:

The "Perfect Retention Shields" hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief, contract the opening in a remarkably short time and strengthen the weak tissues (the real cause of rupture) so that they frequently recover their previous natural retaining power, needing no further outside support. Stomach trouble, backache and constipation often caused by Rupture promptly disappear.

Truly remarkable and prompt results have been obtained not only with recent and not fully developed ruptures but also with old, long-neglected ones.

Ingenious, recently perfected devices are now holding ruptures firmly which heretofore never had been retained.

No elastic belts nor filthy leggings are used. I guarantee to hold the rupture and also the durability of my absolutely sweet and moisture proof, sanitary appliances.

75% of uptired children recover completely through expert mechanical treatment, according to statistics. Do not waste your money on widely advertised mail order contraptions. You cannot fit yourself. Mental pictures every car buyer should have

SOME DAY you will consider buying a new car.

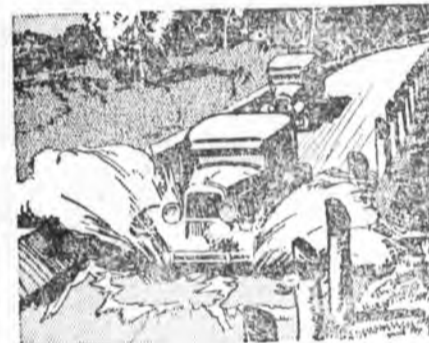

Keep in mind these pictures made from photographs of scenes at General Motors' 1268-acre Proving Ground. A car wallowing in a sunken road with water over the hubs... a car bucking a long stretch of cruel bumps and pot-holes... a car straining to reach the top of a heart-breaking hill... a car doing twists and turns and other acrobatics that few cars are ever called upon to do.

Such are the tests given advance models of a General Motors car at the Proving Ground. The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil and tire economy, body strength—every phase of car construction and performance. When every test has been met, the factory goes ahead and builds your car like these proved models.

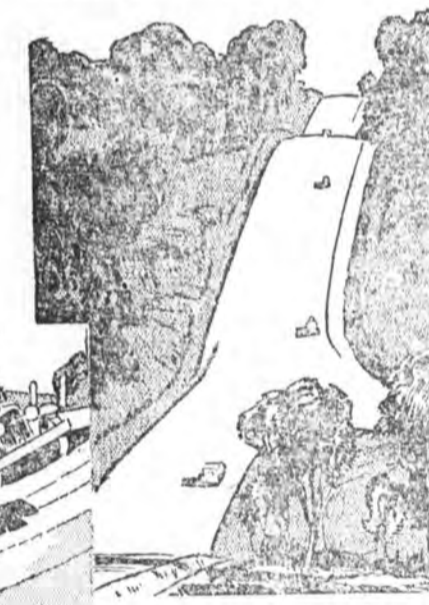

Keep these pictures in your mind. They will come in handy next time you are buying a car.

Rough going on a Proving Ground road, made bad to test various parts of General Motors cars under hardest possible conditions.

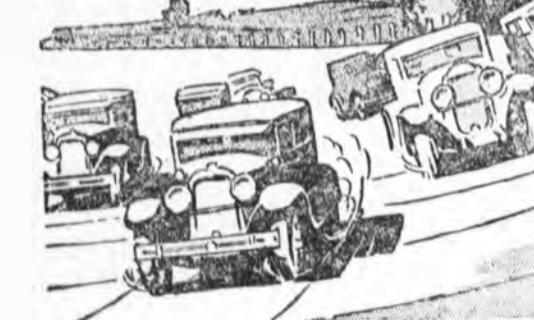

A scientific "bath tub"—not to wash cars, but to show the Proving Ground engineers exactly what happens when a car is driven through water.

Very seldom are hills as steep as this. The average grade of Highway 1-2 is 12% per cent. This hill is 25% per cent and a car must be good to make it.

On this four-mile test track the engineers can run a car night and day, at any speed, to learn just how it stands the pace.

OPPORTUNITY!

I have read that opportunity must be seized by the forelock, that it is next to impossible to hold on to its tail after it has passed. This is true of mining ventures, especially. Three things are necessary: a little money, a little nerve, and a little patience! The more one has of each of these, the more surely and more rapidly will results be obtained. Believing as I do in the future of this county, it has been absolutely unexplainable why more investors have not flocked in to seize the opportunities presented to the first comer; and, a thing unusual, opportunity has stood still for the benefit of the passer-by. It is a matter of fact that properties are now being offered all over the county at prices only a fraction of those formerly demanded, due to a lack of morale, caused by the preaching of the new joy-riding doctrine. But just what the joy-riders are going to do for the luxuries, or even comforts, of life if all the world decides to live as birds of passage, is what troubles some of us old timers. What are the riders going to do when the meals get scarce and are no longer available at a moderate price? I have mentioned this to various persons, and it is to laugh at any notion of a scarcity of any metal. But I can well remember when my mother stored all her milk in tin, pure tin, then called llock tin, pans. It is any of the generation growing up ever seen a real tin pan? If so it must have been inherited in their families. This is no joke. And we are faced by a like scarcity of copper, it seems to me. Children growing up now, when they are old, may recall that many things were made of copper, and could be bought cheaply, and will at that time in the future, pay what would now be considered exorbitant prices, or probably not be able to get it at all. I have looked over the figures of past production, and I find that since 1845, when statistics were first kept, to now the world has produced only enough copper to last that same world a dozen years at the PRESENT rate of consumption. And there seems to be some doubt as to whether there is a score of years' supply in all the mines now known. Such figures are always subject to change as new discoveries are made, but the situation as to copper is critical, and not much less so for lead and zinc, all useful metals that will probably be in fashion as long as manufacturing continues among the activities of men.

All this brings me to advise that now is the time to secure your mine, if ever. Mines can be obtained at negligible prices right now, a situation that will not last once it dawns on the business element that the conditions of metal supply are as bad as they are. If you do not know where you can get your mine, write me, telling me what kind of a mine you would like to get, and I believe I can fit you out with what you want. Not something for nothing, you understand, but double and treble value for your money, and usually on terms that will prove attractive to persons equipped with the three essential requirements as above set forth. # "Benny Havens, Oh!"

Benny Havens

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
From Nevada's hoary ridges, from stormy coasts of Maine, From Lava Beds and Yellow Stone the story never waned; Whenever duty called, they went, their steps were never slow; With "Alma Mater" on their lips and "Benny Havens, Oh!"

When this life's troubled sea is o'er and our last battle's through, If God permits us mortals there his best domain to view, Then we shall see in glory crowned, in proud celestial row The friends we've known and loved so well at Benny Havens' Oh!"

WHAT officer of the United States army from the merest "shave tail" up to a general with four stars on his shoulders has not heard that verse and for a brief moment been carried back to "Alma Mater," the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.?

For one of the most picturesque and beloved traditions of that famous military school where tradition is so strong, centers around the name of Benny Havens.

Who was Benny Havens? One of America's famous generals, a graduate of whom West Point is proud? A beloved teacher at the academy? Well, hardly! Sometime prior to 1832 Benny Havens came to West Point and occupied a one-story cottage a short distance west of where the old cadet hospital, now the nurses' quarters, stands. What his ancestry was or where he came from no one seems to know. But after all those things are relatively unimportant, for the beginnings of a tradition are frequently wrapped in a mist of obscurity, but a tradition is none the less dear on that account. In the early days of Benny's residence at the post he sold to the cadets ale, cakes and cider, and in the winter, buckwheat cakes and cider flip. Later on the cider flip became ale flip and still later something a bit stronger was added to his bill of fare. It was this "something" which led to Benny's undoing, for he was expelled from the reservation.

By this time Benny had become so attached to the corps of cadets and the cadets had become so attached to Benny that neither could think of allowing this expulsion to mean his retirement to the obscurity from which he had come. So he set up his little shop just off the post in what later became known as "The House by the River," a Mecca to which so many of West Point's famous sons made frequent, even if forbidden, pilgrimages. For slipping out of bounds to the hospitable residence of Benny Havens, where food and drink could be illegally obtained, contrary to the rules and regulations which have always characterized the dignity and order of this severe academy, was one of the offenses for which a cadet could be "skinned" (today they call it "squilled," i. e. reported for one of the many breaches of regulations).

For instance, take the case of Cadet Armstrong Custer of Ohio along about the year 1861. Custer himself has recorded "my offenses against law and order were not great in enormity but what they lacked in magnitude they made up in number. The forbidden stronger attractions than the study and demonstration of a problem in Euclid." If you go to West Point today you can find in an old sheepskin bound volume the record of Custer's "skin sheet," bearing the list of offenses for which Cadet Custer was reported. In all there are 453 separate "skins" with a total of 812 demerits and many of them are for partaking of Benny's hospitality. Since a cadet is allowed 835 demerits before he is dismissed, Custer had only 23 more to go when he was graduated. So he came very nearly being denied his chance for fame and America came very nearly losing one of her most brilliant cavalry officers. But if Benny Havens had a part in this, it was by no means a unique case. Many another officer who later became famous could testify to a number of "skins" because they simply could not resist the charm of Benny Havens' hospitality. "Benny Havens' character was many sided, kind to children, invariably courteous to women," so reads a sketch in "Bugle Notes," the handbook of the United States Corps of Cadets, or "the plebes' Bible," as it is called at West Point. "He was possessed of a terrible and ungovernable temper. There was an indefinable something about his personality, that bound his friends to him by inseparable ties. Virtues and qualities were his which helped to shape the lives of and give guidance to, as they rose to life's pinnacles, many whose names are now engraved on the pages of history."

Benny's Pitcher.

For instance there was a certain cadet named Edgar Allan Poe. During the short stay of that erratic individual at the academy, (he was dismissed after being there about six months) Poe frequently visited Benny's place of business while it was still on the reservation and became devoted to him. The future poet often remarked that "Benny was the sole congenial soul in the entire God-forsaken place."

Benny lived to the ripe old age of eighty-eight years. Taps were sounded for him on May 29, 1877, and now he sleeps in the Highland Union cemetery on the banks of the river he loved so well. But West Point is rich in memories of Benny Havens. If you go there today they will show you the pitcher from which he served his famous cider flip. But most of all his fame is preserved in the song which has been carried literally around the world by West Pointers. That song was composed early in his career. It was written about 1838 when Lucius O'Brien of Maryland, a lieutenant in the Eighth Infantry was visiting a friend, Riley A. Arnold, then a first classman. Together they spent many a congenial evening at Benny's place and, so the story goes, O'Brien and his friends composed a poem about Benny and set it to the tune of "The Wearing of the Green." It immediately became popular at West Point and for the next quarter of a century one of the first things a plebe did was to learn to sing "Benny Havens, Oh!" During the summer days of 1865 when day after day the steamers bearing home the veterans of the Civil war passed Benny's little cottage on the banks of the Hudson the hands would strike up one tune and Benny would hear hundreds of voices joining in the singing of:

Come fill your glasses, fellows, and stand up in a row To sing, sentimentally we're going for to go; In the army there's sobriety, promotion's very slow So we'll sing our reminiscences of Benny Havens, Oh!

CHORUS: Benny Havens, Oh! Oh! Benny Havens, Oh! We'll sing our reminiscences of Benny Havens, Oh!

To our kind old Alma Mater, our rock-bound Highland Home, We'll cast many a fond regret as o'er life's sea we roam; Until on our last battle field, the light of heaven shall glow, We'll never fail to drink to her, and Benny Havens, Oh!

CHORUS: 'May the Army be augmented, may promotion be less slow May our country in the hour of need be ready for the foe; May we find a soldier's resting place beneath a soldier's blow With room enough beside our graves for Benny Havens, Oh!

WOULD PENALIZE ALL FOUL BOXERS

Drastic Measures Favored by Missouri Official.

Hitting an opponent below the belt, whether accidental or otherwise, will probably bring a drastic penalty on the head of the offending boxer in future bouts held in the state of Missouri, according to Ben J. Harrison, secretary of the Missouri Boxing commission.

"Our board probably will adopt a rule whereby a boxer who fouls an opponent is automatically deprived of his purse," said Harrison. "Under the present rules, the offending boxer's money is held up, but may be released at the discretion of the commissioners. The consensus among the board members now seems to be to make the forfeiture of purse permanent and not optional."

While Harrison made no direct reference to the recent Benny Bass-Henry Lenard bout, it is obvious that the foul ending of that affair aroused the commissioners to consider the question of protecting the public, writes Dent McSkimming, in the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

"Accidental low punches must be penalized," said Harrison. "The public pays to see a fair contest and when it stops suddenly in one or two rounds on a foul the public loses. That's just where the loss should not fall. In New York recently Buddy Taylor hit Al Singer below the belt in the fourth round and the bout was stopped. Now the same men are matched at higher ringside prices. That looks like a reward for committing a foul. We mean to see that boxers are not rewarded for fouling in Missouri."

Harrison called attention to the fact that a Missouri commission proposal has been adopted by the National Boxing association. This new rule penalizes any boxer to compete against a boxer who is under suspension. Such a bout might occur in a state not affiliated with the National association. The first boxer so penalized is Tommy White of Houston, who met a suspended boxer, Jimmy Finley, in a bout in Louisiana.

Kansas Apollo Stars

Carlos Fetty, twenty-year-old sophomore from Eldorado, Kan., holds the distinction of being the best specimen of a man now enrolled at the University of Kansas. Fetty, according to Dr. James Haismith, inventor of basket ball and physical examiner at the institution, is the best physically equipped male now in school and one of the best he has ever seen. The Kansas Apollo is built along the lines of an Adonis and is an all-around athlete.

Footwork in Golf Game Is Quite Rare Quality

Good footwork is a rare quality, except among the best players. It may be said, of course, that good footwork is impossible unless the balance of weight is handled properly. A good deal has been said about Abe Mitchell's tremendous driving power, a chief cause of which was said to be that both heels were planted solidly on the earth at the moment of striking the ball. This firm foundation certainly improves control, but if I were seeking a reason for Mitchell's length I should look to the powerful wrist action and ample body-turf during the backstroke. Says a writer in the St. Louis Post Dispatch: After striking the ball, Mitchell's club travels a very small distance and he finishes the stroke without elevating either heel. But if anyone has gained the impression from watching Mitchell that both feet remain firmly rooted throughout the entire swing, such impression should be dispelled immediately.

Ben Leonard's Opinion of Big Max Schmeling

It is interesting to consider Benny Leonard's opinion of Max Schmeling, latest fistic sensation. "I believe Schmeling has the makings of a champion but he is not an other Dempsey," wrote the Jewish athlete, who retired as undefeated lightweight champion of the globe. "Max is a sturdy, powerful, young fighter. He is fast and game; he is aggressive, and he can box quite a bit; but he can't hit with Dempsey. "When fighting Risko, he showed he does not have a Dempsey punch, I saw him clout Risko, when Johnny, his hands down, was reeling about the ring, and he didn't knock him cold. "Why, one of the old Dempsey left hooks would have stood Risko on his head—dead to the world. "Max is a good fighter; he may be even a great fighter; but he is not a Jack Dempsey. At that, he won't have to be a Dempsey to take the present crop of heavyweights."

Mayonnaise and Medicine

By JANE WALSH (Copyright.)

WHEN Laurence Montresor completed his hospital apprenticeship and became a full-fledged doctor he located in the town of Yateston.

So one June day there appeared in the corridor of the Arcade a bright and shining sign that said "Dr. Laurence Lidley Montresor, room 201, office hours 8-10 a. m., 1-2 and 7-8 p. m." This sign was posted directly beside that other sign that read "Headquarters for the Laura Belle Mayonnaise, room 204."

Montresor was looking over his shoulders at the sign when he collided with a little young woman hurrying down the stairs. It was Laura Belle Jones herself—sole proprietor of the mayonnaise factory. She was hurrying to post an important letter and was in special haste as she had left some mayonnaise in the electric mixer. This she explained as the doctor begged her pardon for causing the collision and then offered to post her letter for her.

That was sufficient introduction. Patients were slow in coming and sometimes Doctor Montresor, weary of waiting during office hours, would leave his own door open and then call on Laura Belle.

"Your business is thriving better than mine," said Doctor Montresor one day.

Laura Belle laughed a little. "Well, I can't say that I'm making a fortune. There are about six stores that take my mayonnaise regularly. But there are as many more that won't handle it."

That afternoon, after Doctor Montresor had made his short rounds, he went to a large and prosperous food store. He left a fairly large order for various food products, mentioned at random. He ended his order with "six jars of Laura Belle mayonnaise." The grocer said they didn't carry that brand, but had something "better."

"Oh, I'm sorry; I really don't want any other sort. I'm settling in town here, and I want to have regular dealings with a good grocer, but I'm stuck on that Laura Belle mayonnaise. No, never mind the rest of the things. I'll get 'em all at the same store."

Then Doctor Montresor went to all the other stores that did not take the Laura Belle mayonnaise. At each he went through virtually the same transactions.

The next afternoon Laura Belle was beaming when he called on her—beaming and very busy. Four of the grocers who had held out had put in big orders.

So well acquainted did the young doctor and the young maker of mayonnaise become in the few weeks following that Doctor Montresor felt it his duty to mention the fact of his engagement.

"I really forgot you didn't know," said the doctor, a little confused. "It has been such a long engagement that all my friends seem never to think of me in any way but as the sometime husband of Kathaleen Mayes."

"Is that her name," said Laura deliberately. And then, "Kathaleen is a pretty name—lots prettier than Laura."

"Oh, I don't know," said the doctor. "You see, she's my uncle's ward. He's anxious to see us married. I suppose we shall be some time, but not until I'm able to support her myself. In the meantime I don't want to accept my uncle's proposition to give me $10,000 so I can marry Kathaleen before I can support her."

"Uncle is coming on with Kathaleen tomorrow. They want to see how I am getting on. If uncle sees how slowly things are going here, he's sure to say that it's my duty to take it, since it isn't fair to Kathaleen to keep her waiting so long. If I could only show them an office full of patients, then there wouldn't be any excuse for speaking of money—and things could just be put off."

"But aren't you impatient? Don't you want to marry her?"

"Not especially," said Laurence Montresor.

The next afternoon Mr. Lidley, Doctor Montresor's uncle, arrived with Kathaleen Mayes and insisted on sitting in the young doctor's waiting room to observe his patients.

And when Doctor Montresor and his party arrived that evening there were already four patients waiting in the corridor. Ten or eleven arrived shortly. There were not enough chairs for all of them. The thing that struck Doctor Montresor with surprise was that five of them were members of Laura Belle's immediate family. The rest were cousins or aunts. The last was Laura Belle. When she went the doctor saw her to the door. "Good-by, Laura Belle," he said, but nothing more, because Kathaleen and her uncle were sitting there, patiently waiting. Without further ado Kathaleen explained. "This settles it," she said. "If I had found you here fighting against bad business, and friendless, I was going to stick it out. Then there is this little Laura person. I know she loves you. I'm in love with some one else. I want to be released—and I dare say you do, too." And that night, after the uncle and his ward had departed by a night train, Doctor Montresor sought Laura Belle out at her home and told her what he had not felt free to tell her before.

There is a great sameness in the titles of newspapers in the United States. Of approximately 2,400 daily papers, only about 300 words are recorded, and only 50 of these 300 words are necessary to identify 2,000 of these dailies, according to a survey of "How Newspapers Get Their Names," made by the Inland Printer. Twelve name words are used for 1,368 newspapers, the order of numerical importance being: News, 218; Times, 191; Journal, 155; Herald, 142; Tribune, 108; Record, 80; Republican, 70; Press, 70; Star, 67; Democrat, 59; Gazette, 67, and Sun, 52.

Idea for Milk Container
The plan for delivering milk in paper containers sounds extravagant. What is the housekeeper going to do with the containers when the milk has been used? Throw them out. Now, our idea is to have the bottles made of the same material as cones for ice cream, and rendered impervious to moisture by being treated with some digestible fat. Then the housewife can use the milk and eat the container, and there will be no waste.—Exchange.

YOU CAN'T DYE with Good Intentions

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye; but to do work you are proud of takes real aniline. That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market! Cost more to make? Surely. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking or spotting. See that they take none of the life out of the cloth. Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

Famous French Scientist

Louis Pasteur, the celebrated French biological chemist and pathologist, was born at Dole, Jura, December 27, 1822. Devoting himself to the study of chemistry, he was graduated from Ecole Normale, Paris, in 1847; became professor of physics at Dijon, 1848; in the following year professor of chemistry at Strassburg. Later he carried on his researches at the Institute Pasteur, Paris. One of the most important of the many results of Pasteur's investigations is the well-known treatment of hydrophobia which he showed to be caused by the presence of specific bacteria in the blood, the spinal column of the infected animal serving as a culture medium. Pasteur died near St. Cloud, September 28, 1895.

Children's Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Why is there so much excitement?" asked Mr. and Mrs. Peacock as they walked by.

"Don't you know?" asked Miss Ham.

Mr. and Mrs. Peacock didn't pay much attention as they were too proud to care to see much of the pig family and they wished some one else in the barnyard had answered their question.

But still they repeated their question. "What is going on, and why is there so much excitement?"

"We are going to have a parade," said Mr. Rooster. "Will you join?"

"Thank you," said Mr. Peacock, "we would be glad to join the parade."

"But you must give us plenty of room," said Mrs. Peacock. "We have to spread our handsome trains and they take up quite a bit of space."

"They are so big and handsome. But we'd love to join the parade for we like to march and strut."

All the other animals agreed to give the peacocks plenty of room, and the parade started.

The farmer couldn't imagine what it all meant. The animals were marching around, all making as much noise as they could.

And that is a good dead of noise, I can assure you!

Mr. Rooster led the parade and he looked very grand with his fine red top or hat.

He crowed and cawed. He felt he was not only leader of the parade but leader of the band.

You see they all said that they did not need any outside band for the parade.

They felt that the noise they would make would be quite enough. And of course it was.

The only difference was that their noise was not like music! But the animals didn't know good music from bad music and their idea of a band was a great deal of noise.

They marched around the barnyard and Mr. Rooster kept crowing the directions.

"Cock-a-doodle-do, this way, this way," he would call.

And all the animals followed along.

Some of them did not walk in a very straight line, but that didn't make much difference.

The crows cawed from above and even the sparrows joined in the noise all they could.

"This suits us," they said to themselves. "These creatures don't mind our voices at all."

Mr. Rooster Led.

"They just like noise. So we can join in a very large chorus like this."

"Other birds are so fond of their own special songs. And they have such a funny way of caring about tunes."

As a matter of fact, the sparrows were hardly noticed because of the noise the other creatures were making.

Pretty soon the farmer came out to look at them again.

"This must be some one's birthday," he said.

"Anyway, I think I will give them a birthday party. I won't bother about a cake and candles, for they wouldn't care so much for such things, but I will give them some good seed, and perhaps a few cake crumbs."

So the farmer gathered together some special goodies and the animals immediately rushed from the parade line and grabbed what they could.

"Dear me," said Mr. Rooster as this happened, "the parade is all over."

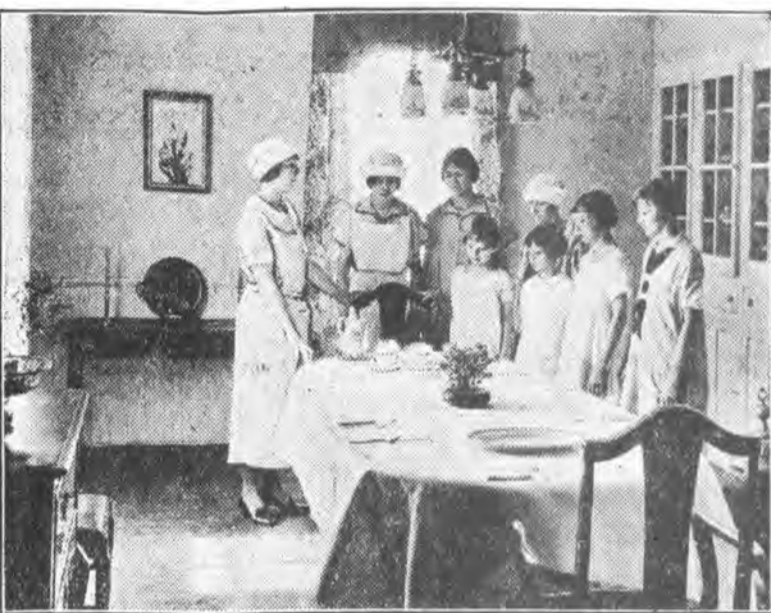

"Well," said Miss Ham, "I should think anything would come to an end when there was extra food to be had."

All the animals laughed in their queer ways, but every one had to agree that they certainly had ended the parade in a great hurry when the farmer had given them an extra meal.

But that day in the barnyard was one of the happiest ever had by all the animals, and certainly Mr. Rooster deserved the credit, for he had thought of the idea of the parade—and it was because of that, and so because of him, that they had all had the special, extra treat.

Art of Cooking and Serving

Cooking Club Girls Learn to Set Dinner Table.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the outward and visible signs of progress in the field of home making, as 4-H club girls learn its various phases, is the ability to plan a good menu, from the health standpoint, cook it palatably, and serve it gracefully. Part of this last aspect of meal preparation is learning to set a table in the accepted way. These club girls in Albemarle county, Va., are all at the age when they help their mothers constantly with the different household tasks. They usually have ideas on what is attractive or up-to-date in the appearance of their homes, and are especially interested in the details that are concerned with hospitality of entertaining the friends of the family. The home demonstration agent is showing this group how a dinner table ought to be set for six persons. She has demonstrated the use of a low flower centerpiece on a round embroidered dolly of white linen, and has begun to place the "covers" or individual sets of flat silver in the proper positions—forks to the left, knives and spoons to the right, napkin neatly folded at the left. Next, at the tip of the knives, the water glasses will be placed, and salts and peppers if used. Bread and butter plates with spreaders will go above the napkins on the left. She shows how platters and other containers should be set squarely in front of the person who is to serve, not diagonally or in hit or miss fashion as such dishes sometimes appear on the table. No doubt a count will be made of the number of serving spoons that are needed and the position of the carving knife and fork indicated.

Instruction about unobtrusive crumpling and clearing away is part of the general subject of table usage. As in many homes, no rug is used on this dining-room floor, for experience has shown that this is the hardest floor covering in the house to keep clean. One of the charms of this dining room is its freedom from articles that do not belong in it or add in any way to its appearance. Farm girls who live far from neighbors have fewer opportunities than city girls to go into other people's homes and observe how surroundings may be made attractive. The co-operative extension work takes this into consideration in planning what to include in its club projects.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

By NELLIE MAXWELL

The Bible writer of Ecclesiastes who said, "There is no new thing under the sun" would be forced to change his views if he lived in our day when the science books of yesterday are so out of date that we feel we are behind the times if we miss the newspaper. There have been such remarkable things found out about the foods we eat and about treatment of disease in the last few years that one hesitates in making any statement. Life is full of so many things today, such interesting things, that those who would keep the procession in sight must take "vital breathing" and use long strides, for who knows what is just around the corner?

We were carefully told many times that candy was "pernicious stuff," and only as a rare treat was candy allowed. Today we know that the active child who uses up so much energy in play, needs a much larger proportion of good pure candy than adults. Teeth, like all other parts of the body, need exercise and the chewing of hard candies, taffies and other hard foods, exercise the gums and make healthy teeth.

The wise mother must use her judgment in giving candy—never before a meal, as it so satisfies the appetite, that the important foods of the meal are neglected. A little candy at the end of a meal as dessert, or between meals, is considered by the best authority to be good for the child. Candy which dissolves and leaves no residue on or between the teeth, is considered much more wholesome than cake, which lodges and causes decay.

The science of dietetics has made vast strides in the last ten years. Fried potatoes, griddle cakes with syrup, sausage and doughnuts were the children's food for breakfast not so long ago. We thought them good, and even indulge occasionally now, but no mother who reads would feed her child on such food today.

Orange Dessert.—Peel two oranges, removing all the white membrane. Remove the pulp in sections. Seed less oranges are best. Arrange the sections in glass dessert dishes, three or four sections to a dish. Pour over orange junket mixed with a pint of luke-warm milk, add sugar to taste and allow to stand in a warm place until set. Chill before serving.

Golden Glow.—Take a package of lemon junket and a pint of milk, pour into five glasses. Rub a cupful of dried and stewed apricots through a sieve, sweeten to taste. When the junket is firm set away to chill. At time of serving top with apricot whipped with egg white and sugar, with two tablespoonfuls of apricot pulp.

Here is a dish you will wish to list with those worth keeping:

Salmon Souffle With Spanish Sauce.—Flake one can of salmon after removing all skin and bones. Add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of paprika, two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice.

Cook one-half cupful of soft bread crumbs in one-half cupful of milk five minutes, then add the salmon and the yolks of three eggs beaten thick, fold in the stiffly beaten whites and turn into a buttered dish; set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Serve with:

Spanish Sauce.—Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour and when well blended add one cupful of milk and one-half cupful of cream. Bring to the boiling point and add one-half cupful of pimento puree, one teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. To make the puree drain a can of pimientos and put through a coarse sieve.

This is dipped in the same way as the grapefruit peel, after it has been standing for an hour or two to dry off. In packing either of these confections in boxes, put paraffin paper between each layer. To make the apple filling for this second confection you will need:

3 firm tart apples    Rind of 1 lemon
1 cup sugar            Chocolate for
1 cup water            dipping

Wash, pare and cut the apples into three-quarter-inch cubes. Prepare a syrup of the sugar, water, salt and lemon rind, and cook for about 5 minutes. Put the apples into the syrup, cover and cook slowly until they become clear, and the syrup thick. Drain from the syrup, spread out in a single layer, and let stand for an hour or two to dry off.

Something Reminded Her of Her Duty

"Today I am reminded of a duty that I have neglected, and that is to let you know how wonderful have been the results I obtained from the use of Milks Emulsion. Nothing could have been more beneficial to me than your Emulsion.

"In the winter of 1917 and 1918 I had a severe case of pneumonia, and in the spring of 1919 I took a cough. I was doing some summer work to prepare myself for a college, but by the time school opened I was too ill to attend. I finally went to bed for the rest cure. I gained a little in strength and got up by Christmas, but my cough never left me, and I caught cold very easily and it would take a month to get over it.

"Finally, in September, 1920, I got a bottle of Milks Emulsion and wrote you for instructions, to which you replied promptly and for which I thank you. I followed the instructions carefully and soon my cough began to disappear. I was able to sleep better than ever before and my appetite was fierce. I could not eat enough. I gained in weight slowly but surely, but continued the use of Milks Emulsion, until I am a well girl today.

"I went through the entire season without a cold or a cough, and I came back into the society circle and played all the big affairs without any ill effects. About a month ago I neglected myself and took a dreadful summer cold and, being at a house party, I could not care for myself properly. But as soon as I reached home I flew in on my old standby, Milks Emulsion, and within a week I was well.

Chic Colors for Ensembles

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

ful and designful than the silks, wools, cottons, linens and rayons glorified in this season's showings.

Woolens, amazingly light of weight such as enter into the development of so many of the smartest spring ensembles, especially emphasize an enrichment of color and design. Weavers and fabricants are offering unique solutions to the ensemble problem in that they are producing materials which, though individually they be entirely different in weave, collectively they produce a symphonic coloring which assist the designer in unifying a costume. The attractive spring ensemble in the picture illustrates the point in that the coat is made of a salmon-colored basket-weave woolen fabric while the frock is a novelty worsted in a salmon and white tweed-like effect. The felt hat is the same shade as the ensemble.

Color more than anything else identifies an ensemble as an ensemble this season. There may be as many as three or four materials in a costume, according to latest style edict, yet the ensemble becomes a unit because of color relationship. Wherefore stylists are doing amazing things with fabrics, combining them in cunning ways.

This working the costume as a unit has brought about an interesting condition in that every frock now calls for a coat especially designed to accompany it. In creating so many parts to a single costume designers are bringing into play most clever workmanship. This is apparent in the ensemble illustrated, the blouse of which is decorated with appliques of the cloth of the coat in horizontal effect.

Another noteworthy point about this handsome outfit is its attractive salmon colorings. The new woolen ensembles adopt such intriguing shades as chartreuse, wood violet and other fascinating light tones.

Triumph Over Death

In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Marys to see the sepulcher.

And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the Angel of the Lord descended from Heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow:

And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

And the Angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here for He is risen, as He said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly, and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead; and, behold, He goeth before you into Galilee; there ye shall see Him: lo, I have told you.

And they departed quickly from the sepulcher with fear and great joy; and did run to bring His disciples word.

And as they went to tell His disciples, behold, Jesus met them, saying, All hail. And they came and held Him by the feet and worshipped Him.

Miracle of the Holy Fire Stirs Crowd to Frenzy

Six eastern rites simultaneously observe the most precious of all the festivals of eastern Christianity. Easter eve in the Holy city finds the Abyssinians lurching with their curious dancing gait around the dome on the roof of St. Helena's chapel, the Armenians chanting within the chapel, the Latins singing their midnight mass in the chapel of the Apparition, the gongs high up in the dome of the Crusaders' church shrilly calling the Orthodox to prayer, and Jacobite and Coptic litanies swelling this babel of Christian ecstasy.

During the week that thus reaches its climax, two services stand out from all the rest: The placid miracle-play of the washing of the feet, based on the thirteenth chapter of St. John, which is performed separately on Maundy Thursday by the Orthodox, the Armenians and the Jacobites, and the wild outbreak of the holy fire on the Saturday before Easter which is held jointly by the Orthodox, the Armenians, the Copts and the Jacobites in the lofty rotunda of the church.

Of the three ceremonies of the washing of the feet, the Orthodox service is the best known, for it is held publicly on the forecourt of the church, while the Armenian and Jacobite services are held indoors—the Armenian in the cathedral of St. James, in the southwestern quarter of the walled city; the Jacobite in the church of their monastery of St. Mark. Also in the southwestern quarter. Those who have seen all three services say that the service in the splendid Armenian cathedral is incomparably the finest.

The Holy Fire.
The little tableau of the Garden of Gethsemane is a feature peculiar to the Orthodox service. Members of the clergy impersonating St. Peter, St. James and St. John dispose themselves for sleep on the steps of the platform and presently are aroused from their slumbers. They fall asleep again and are again roused. This bit of symbolism brings the service to a close and the patriarch and his clergy, reforming in procession, leave the forecourt to the renewed clangor of the bells.

From these simple services the astounding spectacle of the holy fire is a violent transition. It is moving beyond belief, but it is a devotional rite. This is the annual miracle of the bringing down of flame from heaven and the thousands of believers who have waited all night around the sepulcher in the rotunda where the flame descends are moved to an uncontrollable emotion as the hour nears.

By ten o'clock on the morning of the Saturday before Easter the floor of the rotunda is packed with a seething swaying, murmuring mass, leaving only a narrow lane from the old Crusaders' church, now the Orthodox cathedral, to the door of the sepulcher, where police, holding hands, preserve a way for the coming of the patriarch. Higher in the rotunda the arched windows of the ambulatory and the upper galleries below the dome are similarly crowded.

Scene of Color and Frenzy.
The gold and silver of hanging lamps, the bright garments of the women in the galleries and the blending red of the fezzes struggling about the walls of the little pinnacled sepulcher below, the low roar of voices rising into snatches of chanting and the clapping of hands in rhythm, the sudden eruption of angry shouts as a flying wedge of men bearing a frenzied singer on their shoulders seek to force their way nearer to the sepulcher, only to be met and broken up by a rush of police, the never-ending rhythmic chant which gives time and beat and measure to the rising tension—all these comprise a scene overwhelming in its effect. Back in the '30s more than 300 people were trampled to death at one of these frenzied miracles of the holy fire. At twelve o'clock the bells overhead break into a deafening torrent of sound. The procession emerges through the narrow lane from the Orthodox cathedral—banners borne by choristers and laymen, bishops following and finally the white-bearded and white-robed patriarch, a golden cross upon his crown. Three times the procession circles the sepulcher, diving through the awed and hushed crowd. Finally it halts before the low door. The patriarch removes his crown and an acolyte bears it away on a silver dish. His heavy robes are removed and he passes into the sepulcher, followed by an Armenian bishop in coral biretta and blue stole.

Wild Exultation.
The tension is now at its highest pitch. A lane has been cleared from the smoke-stained hole in the side of the sepulcher to an outer door. Runners in white singlets and shorts are waiting at the hole and the crowd has resolved itself into a thousand clusters of tapers straining toward the hole through which the heaven-sent fire is to be given. A passionate suspense fills every dragging second.

The rest happens more quickly than the eye can take it in. A confused impression remains of the thrust of a flaming torch from the hole; of a great roar of exultation drowned by the furious clangor of the bells; of half-naked runners dashing away with blazing torches held high overhead; of fire dancing from taper to taper and candle to candle until the entire rotunda glows with a million wavering points of brightness; of the aged patriarch staggering from the sepulcher holding aloft three blazing bundles of tapers—an unforgettable figure of gleaming white against a background of dark faces and dancing fire.

There remains the memory of his white form carried struggling and swaying into the Orthodox cathedral. There remains, too, the memory of the processions circling the sepulcher rejoicing in the possession of the redeeming fire.—New York Times Magazine.

Easter Eve
I saw two women weeping by the tomb Of One now-buried, in a fair green place Bowered with shrubs; the eye retained no fact Of aught that day performed; but the faint gleam Of dying day was spread upon the sky; The moon was broad and bright above the wood; The breeze brought token of a multitude, Music, and shout, and mingled revelry. At length came gleaming through the thicket— A shade. Helmet and casque, and a steel-armed band Watched round the sepulcher in solemn stand; The night-word past, from man to man conveyed; And I could see those women rise and go Under the dark trees, moving sad and slow.—Henry Alford, D. D., in Kansas City Star.

Yaqui Tribal Dance
an Old Easter Custom
The dawn of a new Easter breaks over Superstition mountain, near Phoenix, Ariz., as a small group of exhausted Yaqui Indian dancers end their weird movements of "Dia di Gloria" and totter off to their wigwags and hogans.

The colorful spectacle, which reaches its climax just before dawn, is witnessed by thousands of tourists and residents of Phoenix. Police with double-barreled shotguns stand guard by the throng and spectators as the dance is near its end.

As the rites progress, bronzed figures flash in the light of smoked oil lamps and the grotesque head-dresses of the dancers nod and topple.

When the tribal dance ends the Indians move away from a bank of smoldering embers, all that remains of fires kindled at sundown the day before, and the scene shifts to a little adobe chapel covered with twigs from a thousand mesquite bushes.

Here services for the penitent Indians are held. The self-confessed sinners, wrapped in blankets and prostrate before a shrine, have prayed since Sunday the day before.

SYNOPSIS

In New York, Hugh Chesby, English World War veteran, relates a story of a treasure in Constantinople in the existence of which his uncle, Lord Chesby, firmly believes. A cablegram notifies Hugh of his uncle's sailing for New York. At the dock Hugh and his chum, Jack Nash, learn that the old gentleman has left with a stranger, purporting to be a friend of Hugh. A mysterious telephone message notifies Hugh that his uncle is in a hospital, dying, victim of an assassin. Before his death he babbles of the treasure, and tells them he was stabbed by "Tou-tou." With Lord Chesby's body, Hugh and Jack sail for England. In London Hugh and Jack meet their war buddy, Nikka Zarenko, famous gypsy violinist, and pore over some old documents seemingly having a bearing on the treasure and its location. A hidden room, referred to as the "Prior's Vault," is frequently mentioned. Montey Hilyer, man of shady reputation, but owner of a neighboring estate, calls on Hugh with a party of friends, mostly foreigners. Conversation turns on the "Prior's Vault." Jack and his friends and the hidden room, and in it documents telling that the treasure is located in the palace of the Bucoleon in Constantinople. Jack Nash's cousin, Betty King, with her uncle, is in Constantinople, and Hugh, Nikka, Jack, and Watkins set out for the Turkish capital. The party splits, Hugh and Watkins proceeding to Constantinople by sea and Nikka and Jack by land. Nikka persuades his uncle, Wass Mikail, gypsy chief, to accompany them. Jack and Nikka don gypsy costumes, and with Mikail and six of his followers reach Constantinople. There they join Hugh, Betty, and the girl's uncle, Vernon King, archeological expert.

CHAPTER VIII

The Red Stone

"We ought to try to get inside Tokalji's house as soon as possible, if Tou-tou and Helene and the rest of them are not here yet," said Nikka.

"King and I have talked it over frequently," said Hugh. "But we haven't been able to think of a safe way of getting inside. Of course, we could run across in the launch some night, and climb up the courtyard wall that fronts on the Bosphorus, but we'd certainly be discovered."

"It wouldn't work," asserted Nikka. "No, to get in and have opportunity to look around for the landmarks mentioned in the instructions we must be accepted as friends."

"It can't be done," protested Hugh at once.

"Oh, yes, it can. Jack and I can do it—with Watkins to help us."

"What's your plan, Nikka," Hugh asked.

"Just this. When we leave here, you and Watkins head for Tokalji's house. We'll follow you at a distance. You and Watty must crawl through the street as mysteriously as you can, looking up at the house, examining its approaches, all that sort of thing. After a while look back and you will see us lurking after you. Pretend to be scared. Then we'll go after you, knives out. Run. You get away, Hugh, but we catch Watty and throw him down—empty out his pockets, start to cut his throat—you'd better not wriggle around that time, Watty or the knife might slip—and you raise a yell for the police around the corner. We change our minds, kick Watty on his way and run back. At the gate of Tokalji's house we ask for admission, claiming we fear pursuit. I think—I am quite sure—they will let us in. It is a chance we must take. They will have seen what we did, and from what you and Wass Mikail tell me, Tokalji considers himself the chief of the local criminals. He will demand a percentage and let it go at that."

"It sounds simple," I said. "But what about me?"

"You are a Frenchman, an ex-Apache and deserter from the Salonika troops. Let me do the talking. I know cypries. If you tell them a bold tale, and carry a high bluff, they will take you at your own valuation."

"It's a plan worth trying," agreed Hugh. "Start now?"

"Wait until afternoon."

When the hour came to leave, Wass Mikail and his young men escorted Hugh and Watkins through the courtyard, and Nikka and I followed at some distance. The gypsies stopped to the gateway, and we strolled on alone after our friends in the direction of the Bosphorus.

As they rounded an alley corner in to a dimly lane that was overtopped midway by a wall of massive Roman construction we were close at their heels. Now he comedy began. Hugh played up in great shape. He drew a paper from his pocket, and affected to stare along the wall. He counted his steps. He looked around him fearfully. He conferred with Watkins, who manifested even more uneasiness.

We slunk into the alley in as hanged a manner as we could manage. Watty caught Hugh's attention: to us, as we thought, with genuine dramatic art. As Nikka whipped out his knife and ran for them, Watty squeaked, and lit off with a considerable lead on Hugh. But Hugh wasted no breath. He sprang and lunged into Watkins, knocking his against a house wall, so that he had time to catch up. And as Hugh reached the curve of the crescent-shaped street, Nikka overhauled

Watkins and toppled him over with every appearance of ruthless brutality. In the next moment I added my knife to the picture, and while I menaced the poor chap's throat, Nikka scientifically emptied his pockets and ripped a money-belt from under his clothes.

There came a yell from Hugh around the corner, and Nikka bounded to his feet. Between us we hoisted Watkins to his, and propelled him from us with a couple of really brutal kicks. Collar torn, jacket scuffed and trousers unbraced, Watkins scudded for that corner like a swallow on the wing. But we did not wait to watch his exit. We took to our own heels, and headed in the opposite direction, hesitated at the far corner, and doubled back to the closed door that was buried in the high wall of Tokalji's house.

Nikka banged on the thick wood with his knife hilt.

"Who knocks?" rumbled a voice.

"Two who fear the police."

"A small wicket opened.

"We want none such here."

"There is something to be divided," answered Nikka.

"Where do you come from?"

"Salonika—and elsewhere."

"Tziganes both?"

"My comrade is a Frank—but he is one of us."

A hinge creaked.

"Enter growled the voice. "Quickly."

The crack was wide enough for one at a time and we slid through like shadows, the open leaf slamming behind us. We stood in a large courtyard scattered with bales of goods and boxes and a number of men and women in gypsy dress who were occupied in staring at us.

But we did not spare any protracted attention for them. There were two far more interesting characters close at hand. One was a stalwart, black-bearded man, with a seamed, wicked face that wore an habitual scowl. The other was a girl of perhaps eighteen, whose lissome figure set off her ragged dress like a Paquin toilette. She was very brown. Her hair was a tumbled heap of midnight, and her eyes were great glowing depths of passion. Her shapely legs were bare almost to the knee, and her flimsy bodice scarcely covered her. But she carried herself with the unconscious regal air that I had noticed in Wass Mikail.

She regarded me almost with contempt, but her eyes fairly devoured Nikka.

"This is the one," she cried, "he ran like that stallion we had from the Arab of Nejd, and you should have seen him strip the old Frank. He would have had the other one, too, if his friend had been as swift. Heil, foster-father, he has the makings of a great thief!"

Nikka afterward translated these conversations for me.

But the man only glowered at us, his hand on the hilt of one of the long knives in his waist-sash.

"Be still, girl! You jabber like a crow. Who knows them?"

"Nobody," answered Nikka promptly. "Only our knives can speak for us. My comrade and I are new to Stamboul. We have heard of Beran Tokalji in many camps. A great thief, they say, and one who treats his people well."

"How do you know I am Tokalji?" demanded the bearded man, plainly flattered by Nikka's speech.

Of course, Nikka did not know him, but he was quick to seize the opportunity and make the most of it.

"I have often heard you described around the fires."

"If you knew me and sought my help, was it wise to rob in front of my door?"

Nikka affected embarrassment.

"Why, as to that, volvoide, there is something to be said," he agreed. "But we saw the Lranks, and their looks spelt gold, and—what would you? 'Twas a chance. Also, we thought the police would not dare to touch us here."

The girl thrust herself scornfully to the fore.

"Gabble, gabble, gabble," she mocked. "Are we old wives that we mouth over everything? These men robbed, they fled unseen, they have their loot. Foster-father, you are not so keen as you once were. Something was said of a division."

A greedy light dawned in Tokalji's eyes.

"Yes, yes," he insisted, "that is right. So you said, my lad, and if you would have shelter you must pay for it."

"So will I."

Nikka flung the money-belt, some loose change and a watch down on the ground, and squatted beside them. The rest of us did the same. The girl seized the belt, and emptied the compartments, one by one.

"English gold," she exclaimed. "This was worth taking. You are a man of judgment, friend—what is your name?"

"I am called Giorgi Bordu. My friend is named Jakka in the Tziganes camps."

"Did he have any papers, that Frank?" asked Tokalji.

"All that he had is there," replied Nikka.

"Humph!" The gypsy thought a moment. "It was strange that you attacked those two, Giorgi Bordu. I do not want them sneaking around here. They are after something that I want myself."

Nikka, sitting back on his heels, produced his tobacco box and rolled a cigarette.

"Perhaps a strange thief and his friend might be of aid to you," he suggested.

"Perhaps they might. I don't know—you are smart fellows, I can see that. And I need men like you. But I am not alone in this. There are others, do you see? I must consult them. Still, you should be better than the two I am using just now."

"Are they Tziganes?" inquired Nikka politely.

"Of a sort. But they have lived too long with the Franks. They are not so ready as they once were, and I find they do not bring me the information I require. We will accept your comrade for whatever he is. You I know I can use. Kara, take the strangers to Mother Kathene. Tell her to bed them with the young men."

Nikka and I pounced our shares of the loot we had brought in, Nikka appropriating to himself Watkins' Birmingham silver watch. The gypsy girl never took her eyes off him.

"We are ready," said Nikka.

Laughter Puts Joke on the Fault-Finder

As long as life lasts, we shall find that troublesome, unpleasant person who seems incapable of saying a single word without finding fault.

And there's nothing to choose on this point between men and women. Some of the former can be really bad at the game. For, after all, it is a silly game, which may become a menace to our peace of mind.

It seems to be an inseparable part of the mind of some folk—this fault-finding. Often it is based on mere nothing.

There's one thing these pernicky people don't like. They hate you very badly if you laugh at them. It upsets their rhythm. And most of the fault-finders work to a rhythm. Put them off it and they are undone.

Of course, says London Chronicle,

there are more ways than one of laughing at them. You don't need to laugh outright. A twinkle of the eye, a steady, amused look, a sly dig—metaphorically, of course, although a nice Eighteenth century one wouldn't be amiss sometimes—a bit of leg-pulling; any of these methods are warranted to disturb the lines of attack of these fault-finders.

No, indeed; they can't stand being laughed at.

Bachelor's Lament
Reunion night at a certain club had brought two old friends face to face after an interval of some years. In the meantime, one of the two had taken a wife.

"Well, Harry," he remarked, "tell me why you've never married."

"It's like this," replied the single one. "When I was quite young I resolved that I'd never marry until I met the ideal woman. I was difficult to please, but after four years I found her."

"Lucky beggar! And then—"

"Oh, she was looking for the ideal man," came the heart-broken reply.

Bugs Boost Lumber Cost.
Insects and diseases directly affect the price of lumber, for they cut down the supply by tens of thousands of trees every year, says the American Tree association. The trees, like children, must be kept in good health.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

France Pays Sorrowful Homage to Bier of Its Great Marshal.

MOST of the world shares with France its great sorrow in the loss of its distinguished soldier, Marshal Ferdinand Foch, generalissimo of all the allied armies during the World war, who died Wednesday in Paris. Marshal Foch was seventy-eight years of age and had been ill for nearly three months. He suffered an attack of influenza which developed into a pulmonary trouble and was followed by complications of the kidneys. A resultant heart weakness killed him.

Not since Napoleon's body was brought back from St. Helena in 1840 has France witnessed a funeral of such surpassing pomp as that arranged under direction of the French chamber of deputies to honor the dead marshal. For twenty-four hours previous to the funeral, which was held on the 26th, the body lay in state under the Arc de Triomphe, near the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The high and low, the rich and poor, in continuous procession passed by the bier to pay homage to France's greatest hero of modern times.

Gen. John J. Pershing, who was one of the marshal's most intimate associates and supporters during the war and who is recovering in Paris from influenza, expected to go to the Riviera for recuperation, but canceled his departure to attend the funeral and act as one of the honorary pallbearers.

Honors seldom paid to any one but the most distinguished American soldiers was the tribute of the United States army to the memory of Marshal Foch. General Pershing was designated to represent the army at the funeral in Paris. On the day of the funeral, by orders of the War department, the flag at every military post and station was displayed at half mast and salute of twenty-one guns was fired at regular intervals during the day.

President Hoover, immediately on learning of the great marshal's death, dispatched a message to the French government expressing the sorrow of the American people for the people of France over the loss of a great national hero. Warm tribute to the military genius and fine human qualities of Marshal Foch were paid by other high officials of the government.

When Marshal Foch, with sure grasp, remarkable strategy, and rare power of co-ordination, was directing the allied effort which finally broke the German hosts, he was in command of more men than anyone had led in the history of the world. Marshal Foch first attracted world attention at the first battle of the Marne, when he sent the laconic message to his chief, Marshal Joffre, "My left and right wings are shattered. I shall attack with my center." He did and broke up the German offensive and forced a retreat.

It was this success, with its manifestations of bulldog determination to win even in defeat, that singled him out as the man for supreme leadership when unified command of all the allied armies was decided upon in the spring of 1918.

So it comes that almost on the eleventh anniversary of the greatest moment of his career, when to him passed command of a military machine more vast than any the world had ever dreamed of, Foch, hero of the first Marne, has breathed his last.

In 1921 Marshal Foch came to this country as a guest of the American Legion. He covered 20,000 miles and his journey led him through the Eastern states, the wheat fields of the Middle West, the vast plains of Texas, and the plantations in the South. His trip was climaxed in the national convention of the Legion at Kansas City.

Hundreds of thousands of Legionnaires and citizens turned out in all principal cities to see and hear Marshal Foch. His personal aide was Francis Drake, an officer of the A. E. F. and a Legionnaire. A flotilla of destroyers met the French liner Paris, and as she steamed in the Narrows on October 28. The marshal was greeted by a 19 gun salute. New York gave him one of its typically famous receptions.

THE Mexican revolution is rapidly petering out. The expected great battle at Torreón failed to materialize when the rebels evacuated the place and started their retreat northward. At last accounts they were still going. Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre, rebel leader in Vera Cruz, was captured at Agua Catell, following a battle in which many were killed on both sides. He was promptly court-martialed and executed. President Portes Gil ordered photographs taken of General Aguirre before and after execution. These will be used to prove to the public that Aguirre has really been executed.

The government continues to meet its pay rolls despite the mounting costs of war expenses. Future revolutions in Mexico must count with the radio and the broadcasting stations, officials say. The disorders, the discontent, and the quarrels of the rival rebel leaders were made known to the Mexican people almost as soon as they were known in the rebel camps, and this has had a powerful effect on the popular mind.

BIDS for the construction of ten of the fifteen cruisers authorized by the naval building bill passed by the last congress are to be asked by Secretary of the Navy Adams. Designs of the new cruisers have been completed and all that now remains is for the Navy department to set forth the terms under which the bids will be asked. The new vessels are to be the fastest and most powerful cruisers of their class ever constructed in the United States. Three of the vessels will be built in government yards and the balance in private establishments. Five ships are to be started this year and five the latter part of 1930.

PRESIDENT HOOVER has already found two places convenient to Washington where he can indulge in his favorite sport of fishing whenever opportunity affords. Two places within short distances of the capital have been placed at his disposal. One of these is the historic Catoctin Manor estate at Catoctin, Md. The second fishing place selected is in Shenandoah National park, Virginia. A new game lodge to be erected near the head waters of the Rapidan river in the Blue Ridge mountains will be occupied by the President during his fishing trips in that section.

SENATOR BORAH has announced his determination to oppose American entrance into the World court when the revised protocol is sent to the senate in December.

In a statement issued in Washington, Senator Borah attacked the World court as representing merely the legal department of the League of Nations and denounced its authority to issue advisory opinions in international disputes of the league. He predicted that the World court would never function as a really great international tribunal unless it discards the practice of issuing advisory opinions. The new Root formula, the senator contended, does not afford the United States protection against advisory opinions.

OFFICIAL inquiry has failed to fix the blame for the accident in which 14 passengers were killed when a giant tri-motored Ford passenger plane crashed at Newark, N. J. The accident, the worst in heavier-than-air aviation in this country, occurred when the plane, loaded with sight-seeing passengers, fighting a gale with disabled engines, crashed into an iron freight car and was cut in two.

GOV. HENRY S. JOHNSTON has been removed from the office of governor of Oklahoma by the state senate court of impeachment and that body found him guilty of a charge of general incompetency, preferred by the house of representatives. He was exonerated on nine other charges brought by the house. The senate vote came as a dramatic climax to more than two years of political turbulence, which reached the impeachment pitch in 1927. At that time, however, Johnston succeeded in dispersing hostile legislators by court action after they had sought to convene on their own call.

LEGISLATION necessary to transfer responsibility for prohibition enforcement from the Treasury department to the Department of Justice, as recommended by President Hoover in his inaugural address, is in course of preparation, according to Attorney General Mitchell. However, it is unlikely, in view of the difficulty of the problem and as well as the President's desire to confine the forthcoming special session of congress to farm relief and tariff revision, that the dry reorganization will be submitted to congress until the next regular session convenes in December.

STRENGTHENING of the enforcement of all laws, with special emphasis on none, is the announced policy of the Hoover administration. No special law, such as the Volstead act, is to be singled out for special attention. The President's expressed hope is to obtain better law enforcement and a lessening of crime through judicial reforms, reorganization of enforcement machinery where necessary, and the building up of public respect for all laws.

The President's purpose in arranging for the appointment of a law enforcement investigating commission is to determine the facts and then work out an enforcement system which will result in a substantial permanent advance toward the enforcement of all laws.

FLOODS again are taking their heavy spring toll in lives and property in various sections of the country. The Mississippi at Quincy, Ill., has reached the highest mark in 25 years. Levees along a 50-mile front were battered by the angry waters and patrols were kept on duty night and day strengthening the danger points with sand bags. Several towns and smaller communities in Illinois are under water and thousands are homeless. The property loss cannot yet be estimated.

Two breaks in the levee near Quincy flooded 20,000 acres of farming land. In Alabama and Georgia incalculable damage has been done to property by swollen rivers and there has been considerable loss of life. Many towns and rich farming sections have been inundated and highways have been made impassable. Sections of Florida have also suffered heavily. Food and other supplies are being delivered by aviators on a regular schedule.

In sections where the waters have abated the work of rehabilitation has already commenced. Residents of the flooded towns were returning to their homes inoculated against disease, prepared to restore their ruined buildings.

DRASTIC reductions in penalties for violations of the Ontario liquor control act were announced at Toronto when the government introduced surprise amendments to its liquor legislation. Fines and terms of imprisonment mandatory upon conviction are cut in half. To United States visitors the most important change is prohibition of taking liquor purchased in Ontario outside the province. Visitors who legally purchase liquor there must consume it before they leave Ontario if they wish to remain within the law of the province. A man caught on a train bound for the United States with liquor in his possession will be liable to a fine of $200 and two months in jail for having liquor in an illegal place. It was explained that this was not a blow aimed at rum-running, but at hip-running.

THE problem aroused by the seizure of a truck load of liquor consigned to the Siamese legation in Washington is being solved by plans under course of formulation by the administration and police officials. Under the new system foreign officials enjoying diplomatic immunity from arrest will be permitted to transport liquor from Baltimore to Washington without disturbance from prohibition officers or the police if a duly accredited embassy or legation official rides the truck with the wet cargo.

Diplomats desiring to transport a consignment of wines and whiskies from Baltimore to Washington will be furnished credentials informing all who may inquire that the cargo is diplomatic liquor and, as such, enjoys impunity from seizure.

Attorney General M. A. Otero, Jr., in an opinion written for Harry F. Lee, county clerk of Bernalillo county, advised that House bill 279, providing for the codification of the laws of New Mexico is now in effect and that it becomes the duty of the county clerks to immediately begin enforcing the section of the act providing for the $5 tax on all actions filed in the office of the clerk.

Warden Pat Dugan has been ordered to install an electric chair at the state penitentiary at Santa Fe for the execution of criminals sentenced to death in New Mexico, but the Legislature didn't give the warden any money to buy the chair with. The legislative measure simply provides that death shall be by electrocution instead of by hanging and that the sentence shall be carried out in the penitentiary.

Declaring the general appropriations bill passed by the Ninth New Mexico Legislature was greatly in excess of the revenues which will be available for the next two years, Gov. R. C. Dillon called a special session of the Legislature to meet April 2, this year. The special session will also correct the $5,600,000 highway debentures bill which was invalid because it was passed without an enabling clause.

That New Mexico will now come off the list published by the United States bureau of roads as being one of the seven states without legislation regulating roadside advertising, was stated in Santa Fe at the highway offices. A list of seven states was published a few weeks ago and broadcast over the nation which included New Mexico in its number as a state which had no legislation making it mandatory for advertisers to leave points of interest, scenic spots and dangerous portions of road unmarked.

A. M. Crawford of Clarkdale, Ariz., has been appointed to the newly-created office of legislative examiner. Under the terms of a bill recently signed by Gov. John C. Phillips of Arizona, Crawford will assume office July 1.

Alonso B. Muchinson, former assistant chief of police of Douglas, Ariz., was sentenced to a term of from one to three years in state's prison for embezzlement of city funds while he was in office. Muchinson was sentenced by Judge C. C. Patres of Gila county, who heard the case.

"PIGEON OF VERDUN" WILL GET MONUMENT

French Raise Shaft to Bird Famous in War.

Paris.—The world's most famous pigeon is to have a monument in Paris.

Known simply as "The Pigeon of Verdun," this bird was absent from the roll call recently at the congress of the National Federation of Colomophile societies of France, at which 180 distinguished carrier pigeons were exhibited in annual reunion.

For ten years after the war this pigeon held the place of honor. Speeches were made to him. Toasts were drunk to him. He was awarded the Croix de Guerre; all of which probably meant less to him than a handful of birdseed.

He was the last messenger bearer from Fort Vaux during the siege of Verdun. The hundreds, if not thousands of American travelers who have explored the battered and blasted underground passages of this monument of human tenacity, ferocity and fulfillment, will remember the scene.

A Prolonged Nightmare.

During the months of ceaseless pounding by high explosive shells, the upper works of the old fort north of Verdun had been beaten to powder. Beneath, in the narrow passages and gloomy caverns the garrison had led a fugitive existence that was a prolonged nightmare.

Meager provisions were occasionally sneaked into the fort at night; but more often than not the food convoys were blown up. Commandant Raynal and his men hung on desperately while the enemy wasted thousands of good German heads of families in the struggle to gain a few more yards of battered rock, and another foothold near Verdun.

Then one day, to the other agonies of life in this poisonous stone mole hill, was added that of suffocation. The enemy had battered his way into passages at the bottom of the hill and was pumping gas up into the galleries occupied by the garrison. Stumbling in the dark over their choking comrades, those who reached the tunnel in time hastily blocked their masks through which the gas was rising. Commandant Raynal scribbled a message and clipped it to the leg of his last carrier pigeon. All other communication had long ago been cut.

"We are still holding; but we are withstanding an attack of gas. It is urgent that we receive reinforcements. This is my last pigeon."

Gains Immortality.

The little gray birds knew nothing of what it was all about. But the tenacious homing instinct which for ages has directed the flight of his kind took him through the smoke, the fire, and the deafening uproar of the shelling to the citadel and gained him an immortality in the minds of Frenchmen which he undoubtedly never understood.

City Councillor Florent-Mater announced at the "pigeon fanciers' dinner" that since the death of the "Pigeon of Verdun," a few months ago, Paris has voted him a monument.

The Federation of Pigeon Fanciers Clubs is a curious organization, strangely out of date in a mechanistic civilization. It persists probably only through the fact that in the operation of the universal military service law a number of youths are always detailed to the carrier pigeon service.

There they learn to love their feathered charges, and when they go back into civilian life they stick to carrier pigeon raising as a hobby.

Viau, Lachapelle Bridges in Quebec Bar Tolls

Montreal.—No tolls will be collected on the new Viau and Lachapelle bridges, it is learned at Quebec. The intention of the provincial government is to make a grant to the city of Montreal to help pay the cost of construction, and the condition will be that the bridges shall be free.

The question of collecting tolls on the new bridges has been raised in Montreal, it is known, and had a certain measure of support in the aldermanic body. This, however, was with the thought that the city alone would have to bear the cost of building the bridges. The decision of the government has helped to clear up the situation, and there will be no impediment to the flow of traffic from the island of Montreal to the north country.

The traffic which pours over the two bridges is very heavy, motorists traveling as far north as Mont Laurier along the fine highway which the provincial government has built, and which is but one of a network of main roads carling for the country through the mountains and westward to Manitowick, Hull and back to Montreal.

Women Eager to Ride Down 600-Foot Shafts

Monson, Maine.—Women, says Frank Cowan, night watchman at the great slate quarries here, are more eager than men to go down to the bottom of the 600-foot shafts.

Three shafts descend 575, 675 and 700 feet, respectively. They are sunk deeper in the earth than the distance most skyscrapers reach skyward, and down at the ultimate depths tunnels extend in many directions. All are electrically lighted.

The women get their greatest thrill, perhaps, by descending on the same platform that is used by the miners.

Lesson for March 31 THE FUTURE LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-6.

GOLDEN TEXT—He that is faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Glad Resurrection Day.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Glad Resurrection Day.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Here and Hereafter.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Ground of Hope for the Future.

I. The Resurrection of Jesus Christ (Luke 24:1-12).

The supreme test of Christianity is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It matters little what Jesus said and did while alive if His body remained in the grave. If He did not come forth in triumph from the tomb, then all His claims are false.

1. The empty sepulcher (v. 1-3).

(1) The coming of the women (v. 1). As an expression of affectionate regard for the Master, they came with spices for His body. If they had believed His words, they would have known that His body could not be found in the sepulcher.

(2) What they found (vv. 2, 3).

When they came to the sepulcher they found the stone had been rolled away, but they found not the body of Jesus. For them to have found His body in the sepulcher would have been the world's greatest tragedy. The empty tomb spoke most eloquently of the deity and power of the Son of God (Rom. 1:8).

2. The message of the men in shining garments (vv. 4-8).

(1) "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (v. 5).

This question, uttered by the angels, has been reverberating through the centuries.

(2) "He is not here, but is risen."

Jesus had told them that the Lord must be betrayed and crucified and that on the third day He would rise again. Had they given heed to His words they would have been relieved of their perplexities.

3. The women witnessing to the eleven (vv. 9-11).

Their thrilling testimony concerning the empty tomb and the words of the angels appeared to the apostles as idle tales, and they refused to believe.

4. Peter investigating (v. 12).

While the testimony of the women seemed as idle tales, Peter was not of the temperament to dismiss the matter from his mind, therefore he ran unto the sepulcher. Upon investigation he found the linen clothes lying in such a way as to prove the reality of the resurrection.

II. Jesus Preparing a Place in Heaven for His Own (John 14:1-3).

These last words of Jesus were words of comfort. The hopes of the disciples were utterly shattered when Jesus told them about the cross. He consoled them by pointing to the reunion in the heavenly Father's house.

1. He asked them to trust in Him, even as God (v. 1).

Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus, will steady the heart, no matter how intense the grief, or how great the sorrow.

He informed them that He was going to the Father's House in heaven to prepare a home for them (v. 2).

He assured them that there was abundant room there for all. He said, there were many "abiding places." Heaven is an eternal dwelling place for God's children.

He assured them that He would come again and escort them to heaven (v. 3).

Jesus will not depend upon our wait for His own to come to Him, but will come and call forth from the grave those who have died; transforming living believers, and take them all together to be forever with Himself in the heavenly home.

III. Jesus Christ Is the Way to the Heavenly Father (vv. 4-6).

Jesus informed the disciples that they knew the place to which He was going, and the way. To this Thomas interposed a doubt, in answer to which Christ asserted that He is:

1. The Way (v. 6).

Jesus Christ is more than a mere guide to God. He is the way itself.

2. The Truth (v. 6).

He is not merely the teacher, but the Truth incarnate. In His incarnation the spiritual and material worlds were united; therefore every line of truth, whether spiritual or material, converged in Him.

3. The Life (v. 6).

Christ is not merely the giver of life, but He is the very essence of life. Only those who receive Christ have life in the true sense.

The New Testament

The New Testament has done more toward creating a race of noble men and women than all the books of the world put together.—Sir Walter Scott.

Duty and Faith

The descent of duty is ever followed by the ascent of faith.—Dr. J. B. Shaw.

Justice Triumphs

Man is unjust, but God is just; and justice finally triumphs.—Longfellow.

If Back Hurts Flush Kidneys

Drink Plenty of Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

The Ragged Edge

The Critic—Rimexip is bringing out his works in style. Have you seen the new deckle-edged edition of his poems?

"The Observer"—No, but I notice he's still wearing the old edition of his deckle-edged pants.

O Happy Day

As she hung the snowy wash on the line. It was a "happy day" because she used Red Cross Ball Blue.—Adv.

Of Course

"What do they mean by this higher education?"
"Something that's over our heads, I suppose."

Pondering on what this universe can do to the human race, none of us should feel too important.

Denver Mother Tells Story

Nature controls all the functions of our digestive organs except one. We have control over that, and it's the function that causes the most trouble.

See that your children form regular bowel habits, and at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness or constipation give them a Little California Fig Syrup. It regulates the bowels and stomach and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act as Nature intends them to. It helps build up and strengthen pale, listless, underweight children. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it's purely vegetable, so you can give it as often as your child's appetite lags or he seems feverish, cross or fretful.

Leading physicians have endorsed it for 50 years, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows how mothers depend on it. A Western mother, Mrs. R. W. Stewart, 4112 Larimer St., Denver, Colorado, says: "Raymond was terribly pulled down by constipation. He got weak, fretful and cross, had no appetite or energy and food seemed a sour in his stomach. California Fig Syrup had him romping and playing again in just a few days, and soon he was back to normal weight, looking better than he had looked in months."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. The mark of the genuine is the word "California" on the carton.

Constipated

Instead of habit-forming purgatives or strong, irritating cathartics take—NATURE'S REMEDY—K-R-O—the safe, dependable, all-vegetable laxative. Mild, gentle, pleasant—K-R-O—to-night—tomorrow alright. Get a 25c box.
