A SINGER TURNS FARMER

BISBEE, DAILY REVIEW

Miss Marion Talley, who was blessed by nature with a voice of marvelous beauty, seems to have been gifted with a good deal of discernment.

A few years ago Miss Talley, coming out of Kansas City to fame and riches as a star of the Metropolitan Opera company, was listed among that band of ardent young men and women who have "dedicated" their lives to art. She began a brilliant career; and we lesser mortals, who have a sneaking feeling that following the fine arts must bring more satisfaction than any other kind of life, envied her greatly.

Now, however, she is retiring—retiring when by all the laws of probability, her career could be continued for years and years. She will sing no more, she says, either in grand opera or on the concert stage. Instead she will travel through the middle west, buy a farm and settle down to the pursuit of agriculture.

Did ever a young artist do anything like this before? Probably not; and we repeat, it proves that the young lady from Kansas City has a great deal of discernment.

People who "dedicate their lives to their art," as the saying has it, do not do it primarily for the sake of the money they will get, or for fame and adulation. Those things count, of course; but no one worth his salt ever followed the fine arts for any other primary reason than the belief that he could make his life more satisfying, more full, more self-expansive, in that way than in any other.

But Miss Talley, who had several years of experience on the very pinnacle, gives it up at the height of her powers and prepares to retire to a farm. What's more, she says she isn't going to play at farming; she wants to get out and dig in the dirt, herself, and be a real farmer.

There are several ways of expressing oneself. It can be done by singing beautiful songs, by writing poetry, by carving statues out of stone, by painting pictures; and it also can be done in much homelier fashion, by getting close to the warm black earth and making oneself a close-range spectator of the satisfying, never-ending pageant of growth and fulfillment, death and rebirth, seeding and harvest. If a Verdi-aria can lift one's soul to the stars, and hint at the ultimate secrets, so can a field of ripening wheat.

There is more ways of expressing the faith that is in one than by following the arts. A spring morning in the country can be as soul-filling as the grandest music ever written. Miss Talley, more discerning than most, is able to recognize that fact.

OUR STOCK IN TRADE

DOUGLAS DAILY DISPATCH

With storms ravishing a large part of the country,—snow in Wyoming and Colorado, floods in the middle and southern states, accompanied by tornadoes, storms along the east coast, destroying shipping, it seems to be a good time to take an invoice of our climate virtues in southern Arizona, with the idea of selling sizeable chunks of it to those less favorably endowed by nature.

Fortunately sales of climate to those living beyond the pale of Arizona sunshine does not deplete our stock, but in fact renders it more valuable.

No storms mar the scheme of nature in this section, as evidenced by the fact that while our air mail and passenger service has been delayed and handicapped in other sections of the country, the Standard Air Line passenger ships arrive and leave Arizona on schedule time each day, the army airplanes take the air at all times of the day in their patrolling of the border, and all nature seems at rest in this most favored clime.

If the fact were generally known that there was such a valley as the Sulphur Springs valley, counting its arable but uncultivated acres by the thousands, with its abundant supply of sunshine from above and its never ending supply of water from below, there is no question but what there would be such a rush to populate those acres as has not been witnessed for many decades.

Tears contain a chemical that kills germs and are therefore of benefit to the eyes even though weeping is usually associated with sorrow. Let's eat onions.

Prospect For Sale

I offer a group of claims for sale at a price that will allow a man with very little capital to own his own mine. There are three claims in this group, and there is a chance to enlarge the group out of the adjoining government land. This extension has not been prospected but it is believed that the man runs through, as a similar lode is taken about half a mile away, and shows good ore. Here is a chance to get a fine piece of ground for considerably less than the amount already spent on the works.

There are a number of fault veins, but the principal value should be in the main true fissure lode, which stands up out of the ground the length of the group. The width of the lode is as yet unproved, but the cone of the associated veins that make up the lode, on which the work has been done is probably twenty-five feet in width in places. A cross-cut at the fifty foot level in the shaft shows nine feet of ore, and the cut is made toward the hanging wall, but the foot wall has not been seen underground at all. This nine feet is good mill ore with indications of shipping ore, as a little below in the shaft tetrahedrite rich in silver is coming in, which might transform the whole body of the vein into a grade that could be shipped mine run.

A cross cut tunnel from the outside has cut the lode a little west of this shaft and exposes already eight feet of mill ore. There is some carbonate shinning ore on the surface near and between these points. A tunnel on the lode to the east has a good showing and bids fair to be an encouraging work. The ore already opened packs old silver and copper, and with sorting could be shipped, but it would all go to a mill.

There is another tunnel higher up the hill, that runs into the lode, but strikes it at a point where though strong with much quartz, it has been badly leached of its metallic contents. It is now making enough water to run a good sized mill, and the water could be piped to the mill by gravity. There is a fine mill site to which the ore also will come by chute. In fact, there is an unusual combination of ore, water and slope, such as is rarely met with. The ore is amenable to long known system of concentrating, and gives in a flotation mill on test a 98 per cent saving.

A good road runs part way to the mine, a road that can be made good runs half the rest of the way, and 1/2 mile of new road will let trucks load at the mill. There are shippers on both sides, and in front, and the region has a very good reputation. Persons who contemplate owning a mine and mill are invited to come and see this splendid chance to get what will make a great mine for less than they could take a group out of the range.

Now is a good time to take up this group, as the shaft during this dry time makes but little water, as the water drains out of the lode through the tunnel mostly. There are two good tunnel sites on the group that will give one foot for three or a little better. Low price and good terms should make this attractive to an investor.

Modern Prospector to Use Plane And "Diviner" In Search For Gold

Prospecting for gold and other minerals with airplanes which carry a magnetic diviner may soon be an established fact. Experiments with such a diviner, mounted in a plane, are now being made in South Africa, according to Harold McCracken, well-known explorer, writer and lecturer.

Harold McCracken Well Known Explorer, Lecturer and Writer

"Such an instrument, if successful, would register whenever the plane passed over ore deposits," said Mr. McCracken in a recent lecture in New York City. "It would be really a modern scientific development of the ancient divining rod used by means of the strange apparatus a large section might be prospected in a few hours. The aviator-pro prospector returning to his camp would indicate his discoveries on a map of the district. Men would then be sent to dig for ore in the places indicated. Thus the man who actually uncovered the ore would be merely a laborer employed by the prospector, and thus also another romantic occupation would have lost its atmosphere. Airplanes are now used to map prospective mining areas and, through their topography, gain an idea of their geological formation."

Even when airplanes are not used, prospecting de luxe is the order of the day, according to Mr. McCracken. The days when the prospector took into the country only what he could pack upon his back and upon his mule are over; the modern prospector goes in with a large wagon and a Ford tractor. The wagon carries ample provisions, comforts, and even luxuries, and the tractor is capable of drawing it through all but the roughest and most broken country.

When a camp is made by a likely stream the tractor is used as a power plant to scoop out the gravel from the stream bed.

The Arctic regions, according to Mr. McCracken, are the world's richest in ores and only the intense cold has delayed their exploitation. Cold remains, he says, the great danger which the prospector must face.

"As leader of the recent Siberian-Arctic Expedition which passed through regions where the world's lowest temperature (about 80 degrees below zero) has been recorded, I realized more than ever before the awful menace of cold," said Mr. McCracken. "We knew that we might be ice-bound in this coldest section of the globe for a year or more and therefore we carried provisions for at least two years' stay in the Arctic. The foods were scientifically selected to maintain the health of the members and crew. Our ship, the Morrissey, was equipped with American radiator heating and carried a two years' supply of fuel. We were thus absolutely safe so far as food and heat were concerned and the ship was quite as comfortable as our own homes. But this comfort and safety the Arctic prospector may not expect and, no matter how modern the mechanical and other equipment may be, he must still incur the ever-present menace of almost fabulous temperatures running down to 80 degrees below zero."

ARIZONA CONDITIONS

Natural conditions have been favorable for continuous activity in all lines of spring farm work. Plowing is quite general and where the season is sufficiently advanced planting and seeding is well under way. Cantaloupes are up to a good stand in the irrigated valleys. Spring lettuce is moving from the Salt River Valley. In this same valley planting of oranges and grapefruit has been quite heavy. Quite general rains occurring the first week of April increased storage water in irrigated districts. It also increased the moisture content of the soil in dry-farm sections, started growth on livestock ranges and replenished stock water supplies.

Motion Pictures Open New Field for Musical Development

Nathaniel Shilkret Makes Famous Musical Score

New York City.—Jazz, the step-child of the arts, is at last finding a place in the hall of musical fame, not heaven, the concert hall, but the cinema palace.

Motion pictures, according to Nathaniel Shilkret the country's most famous musical director, have taken jazz under their wing and have given it the opportunity to be accepted as serious music. Heretofore our modern American music has been confined principally to dance orchestras and a few concert pieces. Now it is being used to tell a complete story.

When Mr. Shilkret wrote the score for "Lilac Time," a Colleen Moore picture, he didn't at first realize that he was opening the door for jazz to "soar the heights." His work here for the first time the possibilities of a score in modern rhythm. The story is told by music and by camera at the same time.

"Jeannine I Dream of Lilac Time," the theme song for the picture, is remarkably developed in fifteen moods and eighteen different arrangements. Heretofore pictures have usually been scored with compilations of foreign classics. This meant trying to tell an American story in a foreign language. Shilkret in "Lilac Time" has told a foreign story in an American idiom. He has interpreted a French story for Americans in their own musical language.

"The greater works in modern American music will make possible greater developments in picture scoring," Mr. Shilkret comments. "Our music is too new for us to know what we can really do with it. Our children and our grandchildren who have absorbed the American jazz idiom will probably be able to do the real thing. Pioneer as we may, we still have certain foreign musical influences which we cannot and do not want to leave behind. The next generation will have shed this."

Nathaniel Shilkret is a native New Yorker, and has been a professional musician since the age of seven. He plays every instrument in the modern orchestra, and is probably the greatest musical arranger this country has produced. His earnings are far greater than those of any composer here or abroad.

The Secret Of How To Be Well Dressed

The first step towards smartness is to know yourself. The well dressed woman studies her type and her coloring, just as she studies the hues that are flattering, lines that give grace to her figure, and details that best express her personality.

The days when women were dependent entirely on the saleswoman are gone forever. Thanks to a brilliant stylist of New York City, Miss Marie Dunn of I. Mittleman & Company, a scientific analysis of the feminine figure with special reference to the couturier's needs has been made. If you would like a chart of how to ascertain your correct size, one will be sent to you gratis if you will write Miss Dunn. Frocks, especially those of the inexpensive type, are now standardized in sizing according to her tru-fit system. Regular and intermediate sizes from 14 to 48 are covered by this novel plan.

Certainly this idea will revolutionize the art of dress manufacture. After all, a definite knowledge of one's size is money in one's pocket. Do you know your size? Is yours a standard size or do you belong in the category of inter-mediate sizes? These two smart and inexpensive frocks exemplifying the spirit of the new mode, designed and cut according to standard or regular and intermediate sizes, insure a perfect fit without alterations.
