Bracey Curtis' Funeral Services at 3 P. M. Feb. 3

Banker Passes Away Thursday Morning at Nogales Home

Nogales, Ariz., Jan. 31.—Flags are at half mast today, while citizens are mourning the passing of Bracey Curtis, president of the First National Bank of Nogales and the city's most beloved citizen. Funeral services will be held for Mr. Curtis Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in St. Andrew's Episcopal church, with Rev. Frederick G. Taylor officiating. From 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. the body will lie in state at Masonic Temple, in order for the friends of friends to pay their last respects. Until the time of the funeral services an honor guard of Masons will keep vigil over the body.

Mr. Curtis died at 3 o'clock this morning after a four-day battle with influenza and double pneumonia. At the beginning his sickness took on a serious aspect. His case appeared hopeless, and a lung specialist of Tucson, called for consultation last Tuesday, marveled that Mr. Curtis remained alive at that time. Nearly 30 tanks of oxygen were administered to the patient during the three days of his sickness, and powerful heart stimulants, also, were administered.

Dr. A. L. Gustetter, a close friend for many years, and three other physicians used all their medical knowledge and skill in their efforts to save the life of the banker. The end came peacefully after a night of semi-consciousness. Near midnight his pulse and respiration began falling rapidly, and a heart stimulant was given, and Mr. Curtis rallied for a short time.

Besides Dr. Gustetter, Dr. V. A. Smelker, Dr. E. C. Houle, Amos Yaeger, Mrs. W. J. Phillips, Wade Barbee, Theron Richardson and R. B. Romero were at the bedside when death took the sufferer.

Mrs. Daisy Curtis Edwards, sister of Mr. Curtis, who resided with him, waited in an adjacent room, and collapsed when told of her brother's death. She was immediately placed under a physician's care.

Following funeral services here, the body will be removed to the Carrou mortuary to await shipment to Phoenix for cremation. The ashes are to be sent to Medford, Mass., former home of Mr. Curtis.

Mr. Curtis was a bachelor. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Daisy Edwards, Mrs. Maude Ritchie of New York, and Mrs. Blanche E. Mitchell of Brookline, Mass.

Deceased was a member of the Order of Eastern Star, El Zaribah Shrine of Phoenix, the Masonic Blue Lodge of Medford, Mass., and the B. P. O. Elks, besides being connected with many civic organizations.

Mr. Curtis was born at Medford, Mass., July 21, 1870, and in 1899 came west, locating in Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, where he engaged in mining. He came to Nogales in 1903 and, with Lycurgie Lindsey, purchased the Sandoval National Bank, changing the name to the First National Bank of Nogales. Since becoming a citizen of Santa Cruz county, Mr. Curtis was an ardent booster for its natural resources and was owner of many mining properties, including the well-known Duquesne mines.

Many telegrams of condolence are being of our most prominent and best-constantly pouring into Nogales from all parts of the country over the past-loved citizen. The largest gathering of mourners ever to attend a funeral in the history of Santa Cruz county is expected here Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Curtis' uniform charity and kindness will live long after the end rites of next Sunday.

What to Do to Prevent the Flu

The flu epidemic, according to advice from health authorities of 24 states, and New York City, shows a tendency to decline west of the Mississippi, and a corresponding tendency to increase east of the Mississippi. The present scourge is mild, and the death rate comparatively small, but doctors caution against optimism. They point out that in 1918 an early visit of the disease in mild form, was followed later in the winter by a second and more violent epidemic, which claimed victims by the thousands. We illustrate here some of the precautions which medical authorities advise to keep free of the dread germ of the disease.

You can help check the advance of the epidemic, whether you are afflicted with it yourself or not, by covering every cough, and every sneeze with a handkerchief and spray your throat regularly with zonite. Cover every cough and every sneeze and you'll help mightily in the fight against the germ.

The influenza epidemic of 1918 was traced to the war torn battlefields of Europe, where the germs multiplied daily by the millions and were carried to practically every part of the world.

During the war, two scientists, Dr. Alexis Carrel and Dr. Henry Dakin, developed a solution for the treatment of wounds. Although non-poisonous and non-caustic it was a powerful germicide. This discovery reduced infection of wounds in Allied hospitals from seventy five to one percent. This remarkable antiseptic, known as the Carrel-Dakin solution, had one fault: it would not "keep." It had to be made every day by experts. For this reason its use was restricted to hospitals and the medical profession.

Now the great discovery is available for general use. In its concentrated stabilized form, this war-born solution is known as zonite. Though highly germicidal, it is non-poisonous and as an aid in preventing attack by germs during the flu epidemic, is unexcelled.

Contagious diseases and infection of wounds are caused by malignant bacteria, according to the discoveries made by Pasteur, the famous French scientist. To guard mankind from germ attacks, disinfectants with high germicidal powers, should be freely used in the battle against disease germs.

HOTEL DINING ROOM CHANGES MANAGERS

Messrs. Ray Marr, manager of the Patagonia Drug Company, and Carl Reed, formerly of the same concern, have taken a lease on the dining room of the Commercial hotel, and will serve plenty of good, clean, and healthful food at moderate prices, according to a statement made to The Patagonian.

The dining room of the hotel is one of the best and neatest to be found in any small town, and would do credit to communities much larger than Patagonia.

Both young men are popular and will do a good business.

DOWNY (CALIF.) CATTLE HAVE HOOF AND MOUTH DISEASE

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—Officials of the county veterinarian's office disclosed late today that a second outbreak of hoof and mouth disease in California had been discovered in a small dairy herd at Downey, a suburb of Los Angeles. A quarantine was immediately established around the area, and other steps will be taken to prevent spread of the disease.

The Downey outbreak occurred close to the first one of two weeks ago, which was at Whittier, where an entire drove of 2500 hogs were destroyed. The infection was traced to garbage brought to the hog ranch from foreign ships at San Pedro harbor. Guards had been posted to maintain the quarantine thrown about the Whittier area since the outbreak.

Circle Z Ranch Rodeo Thrills Guests

Sunday afternoon a rodeo was staged at Circle Z guest ranch as an added attraction to the 50 or more guests now spending the winter there. It was pronounced a good show by spectators, many of whom witnessed the cowboy sports for the first time. The Circle Z overlooks no opportunity to give its guests a touch of the real west. Our cowboys are the equal of any in the country and never fail to come up to expectations.

DEMOCRATS IN SECRETARY OF STATE'S OFFICE RESIGN

I. P. Frazer, Republican, of Nogales Appointed to Succeed Callaghan

I. P. Frazer, Republican, of Nogales has been appointed to succeed the late J. C. Callaghan as secretary of state. He is a civil and mining engineer, proprietor of the Selby Service station and a member of the firm of Frazer & Frazer, Texaco Oil representatives in Nogales. He is 54 years old. Mr. Frazer was defeated in the last election by Mr. Callaghan.

Phoenix, Jan. 31.—Howard J. Smith, assistant secretary of state, today tendered his resignation to his newly-appointed chief, I. P. Frazer. At the same time Smith said other employees in the office of the secretary had also resigned.

The resignations are effective immediately, but the force will remain at their posts until Secretary Frazer takes office. Smith said that he, as a Democrat, could not serve under a Republican, and the same reason applies to other attaches of the office.

J. C. CALLAGHAN, SECRETARY OF STATE, DIES IN PHOENIX

Phoenix, Jan. 27.—J. C. Callaghan, secretary of state, died this morning at 4:10 o'clock at a local hospital, following an operation, which was performed January 21. He entered the hospital two days before he was to have taken office.

Callaghan was the first state auditor of Arizona when the state was admitted to the union in 1912. He served two terms. In 1926 he was elected state treasurer after having been in private life for 10 years.

Callaghan was a bachelor. He was born in Gallitzin, Pa., July 8, 1869, dying in his 60th year. In 1897 he moved to Denver, but remained there but a short time, moving to Clifton, Ariz., where he was employed by a mining company. He was a former deputy sheriff of Cochise county. He was a member of the Bisbee lodge of Elks.

The body of Callaghan will lie in state in the capitol building from 4 to 5 o'clock tomorrow. Funeral services will be held Tuesday, following which the remains will be shipped to Johnstown, Pa., for burial. J. A. McCarthy, a nephew, will accompany the body to Pennsylvania.

Sidelights

Miss Genevieve Mach of New York adopted a unique method of getting even with an automobile agency which she charged with selling her a bum car and refusing to make adjustments. She placed on it a sign which read, "My $2000 Lemon," and parked it in front of the firm's salesroom. A magistrate made her park it elsewhere, but allowed her to retain the slogan.

Those who worry over the negro problem in the south may be interested to know that Fred Shaw, a sophomore at Mercer University in Georgia gave a pint of blood for transfusion to save the life of Lee Battle, a negro servant of the institution. Nineteen other white students volunteered for the same ordeal.

P. S. Niswiz of Washington appears to be a rather poor sport. Last fall he married a girl as a result of losing a bet on a football game, and now he wants the marriage annulled on the ground that a gambling debt is illegal.

The provisional government of Quebec believes in freedom of the air. That body has declared its intention of establishing a powerful broadcasting station in defiance of both the Canadian government and the United States Radio Commission.

Recently a Palestine weekly published a fictitious story relating that the mummy of King Solomon's "favorite" wife had been unearthed. Jerusalem newspapers and press correspondents took the yarn seriously and spread the report as real news, but which they later had to admit was a hoax. On its face the tale would seem "fishy," for with 700 wives to choose from it is doubtful that even Solomon in all his wisdom could have picked out one special favorite.

A REAL FARMER

In several states the commendable plan of designating each year a number of "master farmers" has been adopted as a means of recognizing outstanding accomplishments of tillers of the soil.

One of the notable honors to be conferred in this connection is reported from Missouri, and goes to Ruby R. Abeles of Bolivar, Route 3, who heads the list of master farmers of his state. He compiled wit hall the requirements of a master farmer, which include the adoption of intelligent planning, use of adequate equipment, scientific feeding, systematic accounting and performance of community duties.

Mr. Abeles met all the conditions in handling 215 acres, and won his place in competition with representatives of 7 counties. His major accomplishment was that of clearing $3,736.88 off a flock of 1400 White Leghorn hens.

Farmers like that do not depend on politicians' promises for farm relief. They employ intelligent methods to relieve themselves.

LITERARY PIRACY

Following the lead of our American "do-bunkers," perhaps, literary critics are unearthing what they claim to be monumental frauds perpetrated by authors of supposed imperishable fame.

For example, it is now claimed, with much show of plausibility, that Dumas stole the plot of "The Three Musketeers" from a book by one Courtill de Sandras, published in 1701. Also that many other novels by the famous mulatto were taken from books a few centuries old, which Dumas "jazzed up" and published as his own.

Another alleged discovery is that John Bunyan cribbed the essentials of his "Pilgrim's Progress" from a story by Guileville, a Frenchman who lived three centuries before Bunyan. Then, again, it is asserted that Parson Weems filched the story of Washington's hatchet and cherry tree from a story much older, which pertained to an entirely different person. It is quite generally accepted among scholars that the cherry tree story is a myth, regardless of its original source.

And lest we be charged with piracy ourselves, let us hasten to say that the above information is condensed from a recent article in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, as quoted in the Literary Digest.

A SCHOOL PROBLEM

Earnest educators throughout the United States are giving serious thought to a reform of curricula, with a view to better adapting them to the needs of the present-day student. No current question deserves more thoughtful consideration.

It is no reflection upon our educational leaders that present methods are proving inadequate to the demands of the times. With the ever-increasing store of available knowledge, it becomes more and more difficult to choose that which should be taught in the limited time that can be given to formal education by the average student.

But the problem is not new. As far back as 1758 the prevailing system of education in England came in for drastic criticism by Thomas Sheridan, who labored with little success for its reform.

Sheridan contended that the established system of that day did not fit the young for their duties in life; that it was uniform for all and profitable for none. He also stressed the importance of imparting a better knowledge of the English language. The latter point, at least, might well be taken to heart today. It would be a great step forward if our children might emerge from high school with a reasonable acquaintanceship with their mother tongue.

John Hale of Wise, a., lost his right hand 25 years ago, but today operates a planing mill, blacksmith forge and a cabinet shop and is considered an excellent violin maker.

Oscar De Priest of Chicago may feel a bit lonesome in the Seventy-first Congress, but he will at least have the satisfaction of constituting the entire negro bloc.

It is said that the Chinese are learning to like tomatoes and asparagus. But it will probably take a good deal of missionary work to convert them to spinach.

TONS OF SNUFF

To those who do not happen to come into contact with many persons addicted to the habit, the information that 41,000,000 pounds of snuff are used in the United States yearly may be a surprise. This represents a ten-fold increase in the last 50 years.

According to a recent government report, snuff was first used by the American Indians, and tobacco was first used in this form in Europe about the middle of the 16th century. By 1624 snuff-taking became so prevalent that Pope Urban VIII issued an edict of excommunication against persons using it in church, because their sneezing disturbed the services. Snuff was fashionable among the lords and ladies of England in the 18th century, and far into the 19th public snuff boxes were installed in the halls of the American Congress for the benefit of members.

Snuff is still used by persons in all walks of life, but principally among immigrants, colored people and those engaged in industries where smoking is not permitted.

The manufacture and distribution of more than 20 tons of snuff a year constitutes quite an important branch of the tobacco industry. It is a commercial proposition "not to be sneezed at."

Liquor was recently pulled across the Niagara river by pulleys attached to a 120,000-volt power line. The voltage of the liquor was not stated.

It is predicted that the silent movie will soon become obsolete. If its passing results in a silent audience all will be well.
